On behalf of a very large number of prominent and public-spirited business men of this city the Moral Reform League, to the very large majority (vote 3510) in favor of the complete abolition of the taverns, twice taken upon by the largest municipal vote ever polled in this city) and in view of the fact that the power to reduce the number of licenses is reposed in your honorable body, we have, after careful consideration, concluded to ask you to reduce the number of tavern licenses to eight and two shop licenses. The citizens of Peterborough by their vote would, of course, prefer all the bars removed, but it is the general and widespread feeling throughout the city that all classes of citizens are expecting that a very substantial reduction shall be made in the number of license holders, and we are positive that the council will give effect to such restrictions of the liquor traffic as will fully express the very strong convictions of so large a proportion of the citizens of Peterborough.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES G. POTTER,
President.

Industrial Commissioner to be Considered by the Committee of the Whole

A very busy special session of the council was held last night. All the members were present. The council decided to adopt the Property Committee's report which recommended that Hon. J. R. Stratton's offer of $11,000 for the Hall building on Hunter street be accepted. Particulars of this deal will be found elsewhere.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were received:

From C. E. West, clerk of Campbellford, asking this city to help meet the expenses amounting to $51, in connection with the death of and last illness of William Light heart, a former resident of this city.

From O'Connell & Gordon, a writ in Cranby vs. City of Peterborough, for $2,000.

From City Solicitor Hall stating that all aldermen must be re-elected next year under the ward system. One for two years and one for one year, and thereafter one each year for a term of two years.

Mr. R. H. Leary, president of the Agricultural Society, addressed the council and asked for the annual grant only increased considerably. Last year the grant was cut $100. He asked that this year it be $500.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Ald. Duncan the request was referred to INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER.

Mr. D. O'Connell, on behalf of the Board of Trade, addressed the council last night in reference to the decision of that body that it was desirable that the city take up seriously the matter of the appointment of an industrial commissioner. He formally presented the resolution passed by the Board of Trade. He urged that the matter be taken up at the earliest possible moment.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Ald. Buller, the matter was referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

The council also received the Financial Committee's report and a bylaw granting a pawn broker's license to Messrs. Snowden and Tooley was passed.

The bylaw in reference to the city's special legislation to go before the Ontario Legislature was also passed.

Barber Shot His Wife Then Ended His Life

Buffalo, Jan. 17.—Walter Garner, a barber, 32 years of age, recently of Hamilton, Ont., is dead as the result of wounds self inflicted, and his wife, 29 years of age, formerly of Toronto, is suffering from two bullet wounds. Garner came home on Saturday after a week's debauch and shot his wife in the left arm and right shoulder. He then turned the revolver on himself and a bullet penetrated his brain causing his death.

Solomon Hiscott, father of Mrs. Garner, lives at 30 Gould street, Toronto. The parents of Garner live at 14 Cannon street, Hamilton.

Since last Monday Garner has been on the spree, and his wife locked the doors against him. On Saturday he got in and said to her: "I came in here to speak to you. Come here." Mrs. Garner then went towards her husband, and he fired at her with a 32-calibre revolver, shooting himself twice after she had dropped on the bed. He died some hours afterward but his wife will recover.

Earache, Toothache!

NERVILINE.

Fifty years ago Nerviline was used from coast to coast and in thousands of houses this trusty liniment served the entire family, cured all their minor ills and kept the doctor's bill small. Today Nerviline still holds first rank in Canada among pain relieving remedies—scarcely a home you can find that doesn't use it.

TESTIMONIAL. From Port Hope, Ont., Mr. W. T. Greenaway NO. of the Guide newspaper staff, 4398 writes: "For 20 years we have used Nerviline in our home, and not for the world would we be without it. As a remedy for all pain, earache, cramps, headache and disordered stomach, I know of no preparation so useful and quick to relieve as Nerviline."

Let every mother give Nerviline a trial; it's good for children, good for old folks—you can rub it on as a liniment or take it internally.

Wherever there is pain, Nerviline will cure it. Refuse anything but $1.00, all dealers or the Catarrhozone-Nerviline, 25c. per bottle, five for 25cts. Co., Kingston, Ont.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Ontario's latest Eldorado is the Porcupine district.—Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of mines, is determined that the government shall not be blamed for any losses that may be incurred, is without incurred, is out with a timely warning against speculating in claims without proper examination. This is good advice at any time, but it is particular valuable when applied to a district so new and hard to reach as that in which the most recent discoveries of gold have been made.

The Congress of the United States will deal with the white slave traffic. The bill forbids all persons engaged in the traffic to enter the United States and provides that they may be deported if they do manage to pass the frontier. Even the purchase of transportation for the purpose of promoting the infamous trade is punishable. The maximum fine is $5,000 and the maximum imprisonment ten years. The Canadian authorities will doubtless be willing to co-operate with those of the United States.

Secondary Consideration.

She—I don't see why you should hesitate to marry on $3,000 a year. Papa says my gowns never cost more than that.

He—But, my dear, we must have something to eat.

Made No Difference.

"I must warn you, dearest," he said, "that after we are married you will very likely find me inclined to be arbitrary and dictatorial in my manner."

"No matter," she replied cheerfully, "I won't pay the slightest attention to what you say."—Presbyterian Standard.

Easy.

"You know Jones, who was reported so rich? Well, he died the other day and the only thing he left was an old Dutch clock."

"Well, there's one good thing about it. It won't be much trouble to wind up his estate."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"Dry Cure" For Colds.

A fact that ought to please all the sufferers from colds, and they are legion, is that there exists an infallible cure for them, according to Dr. Rossano, of Paris. Dr. Rossano adds that it is an English cure, and is, moreover, some 150 years old, having been discovered by an English physician, Dr. J. B. Williams, who was well known at the end of the eighteenth century.

This marvelous and simple cure consists in abstaining from all liquids during a period of 36 or 40 hours, counting from the moment when the sufferer feels the first irritating symptoms of a "cold in the head."

Bread, fish, vegetables, "white" meat and pudding may be eaten, but beverages should be taken in very small quantity—a spoonful of tea, coffee, or milk in the morning, and a small glass of water before going to bed—or, if possible, not taken at all. It is not necessary to remain at home. The dry cure, in fact, is more rapid and complete if the sufferer breathes in the open air.

Dr. Steinberg, the well-known Viennese medical authority, fully believes in this old English cure, and considers it as thoroughly efficient. He has modernized it by forbidding soup which is more liquid than solid, and even the small quantity of tea or milk of Dr. Williams' system. But he allows a small glass of wine and water during the day.

Get a Prize.

Wertheimer, a London art dealer, was one day passing through Mayfair when he noticed a sale about to take place of the "furniture and household effects of a deceased nobleman." He walked through the rooms were dealers were critically examining choice specimens of undoubtedly genuine Chippendale and Sheraton, interspersed among early Victorian furniture, his eyes apparently dwelling on nothing. But when the sale was about to begin he asked the auctioneer if he would take $25,000 for everything in the house. The offer was accepted. "Now you can resell everything to me," said Mr. Wertheimer, "except this," and he took down from the mantelpiece a dirty ornament some nine inches high and put into his pocket. It was a piece of the rarest Dresden china, bearing the coveted mark of the wand of Aesculapius, which he afterward sold for $50,000.

Canada's Manufactures.

The capital invested in the various manufacturing industries in Canada amounts to $834,000,000, an increase of 86 per cent. in five years; while the total deposits in chartered Canadian banks on November 30, 1909 equalled nearly $100 per capita for everyone, man, woman and child, as against $38 per capita ten years ago.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Clin, thus giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 60 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $10.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.04 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 26.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

When We Sleep.

The Hindus never sleep with their heads to the north, for they believe that to do so would cause their days to be shortened. There is much superstition in Hindustan as to the point of the compass towards which the head should point when in bed; to lie in the direction of the south being thought to be productive of longevity, where as the east and west, it is asserted, are calculated to bring riches and change of scene respectively. The Japanese never sleep with their heads to the north, their reason being that the dead in their country are always buried with their heads in that direction. So particular are the Japanese in this respect that, in their sleeping rooms, a diagram of the points of the compass will usually be found pasted upon the ceiling of the room for the benefit of guests. The Russians, too, dread the northern position, as they have been taught that all evil emanates from that quarter of the heavens, and that by sleeping with their heads towards it they are in danger of disaster, illness, or sudden death. The Hungarians, Poles, Patagonians, the Samoans, and several African tribes have the same objections on various grounds, but all tending to the one direction.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

AN HONEST POLITICIAN.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson Was an Honor to the British Commons.

"Laws should be adapted to those who have the heaviest stake in the country; for whom misgovernment means not mortified pride or stinted luxury, but want and pain and degradation and risk to their own lives and to their children's souls." Mr. George Russell has put these noble words in the forefront of his memoir of the late Sir Wilfrid Lawson, and they give the keynote of the life portrayed therein.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson is described by one who knew him as an "absolutely honest man." His life shows it. He entered politics in 1859, and left them in 1905. Yet he was the same man all through. The ideals he fought for at Carlisle in 1859 he fought for until his death. He never faltered; he never changed. Some of his ideals have been accomplished. Others remain ideals. But there is not one which was, or is, not noble and unselfish.

He was once described as a "gloomy fanatic." Probably a more gross misdescription was never penned. He came of a sturdy Border stock. The Wybergbs of Clifton have been there since the days of the Third Edward. The Lawsons of Brayton were another ancient Border family, which had again and again represented Cumberland in Parliament. In 1806, Sir Wilfrid Lawson looked round about him for an heir, as he was childless, and he chose his nephew, Thomas Wybergh, who assumed the name of Lawson, and from him our hero was descended. Young Lawson's life was that of an ordinary country squire, save that the religious surroundings of his home were more marked. But withal there was little of stern sour puritanism about the home at Brayton. "My father enjoyed a long day's hunting or shooting almost to the end of his life, and in skating and playing hockey on the ice he often tired out younger men."

And the love of open-air life and field sports passed on to the son. Many thousands have asked the question, "D'ye ken John Peel?" Young Lawson "ken'd" him, and he bought the hounds that Peel had hunted, improved the pack, and became Master of the Cumberland Foxhounds. Incidentally Sir Wilfrid settles the right reading of the old song, "With his coat so gay" is the conjectural emendation of those who cannot conceive of a huntsman without a red coat. But Lawson says, "his gray coat is no more a myth than himself, for I well remember the long, gray garment."

This, then, is the type of man who sought to enter politics in 1857. A typical English gentleman, bearing an ancient name, heir to a large inheritance; and a thorough sportsman. And, with all this, there was a sturdy Radicalism which never changed and never faltered.

The first essay for Parliament was unsuccessful, but in 1859 young Lawson stood with his uncle, Sir James Graham, of Netherby, Canningite, Whig, Peelite and Liberal, a hard-hitting politician of the old school, whose favorite aversion was Disraeli. Lawson was roused out of bed in the middle of the night by a deputation of Carlisle Liberals, and—"in my robes of repose"—he furnished his election address there and then. He was returned after a stiff contest, and took part in the fights of Lord Palmerston's last administration. Here, perhaps, we may finish off Sir Wilfrid's electoral experiences. He was turned out of Carlisle in 1865, but won the seat back in 1866 and held it until 1868, when he stood for Cockermouth and was defeated by ten votes, the Irish vote going against him. In 1868 the Irish vote went for him, and he held the seat until 1900, when khaki proved his undoing. Camborne gave him a refuge in 1903, and he returned to Cockermouth in 1906.

Iron Cyclone Cellar.

An iron cyclone cellar is a novelty described in Popular Mechanics. It says that a metal concern in one of the cyclone states is manufacturing the cyclone cellar of extra heavy galvanized corrugated iron. It has a cylindrical shape and is provided with stairway, seats, shelves and bins. Under ordinary conditions it is used for the keeping of fruits and vegetables. The whole is anchored solidly in the ground and thoroughly braced.

Bavaria remains easily ahead in its consumption of beer for last year. We are told it drank 248 quarts for every man, woman and child in the kingdom. Though the ladies assist, we may set aside the children and conclude that the average Bavarian man is not far outside a gallon a day.—Westminster Gazette.

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto, is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, on January 28th, 1910.

J. Mahood of Smith township. The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Annie Lyell, cousin of the bride. The bride was prettily attired in an empire dress of cream cash, trimmed with duchess satin and braid, and carried white carnations. Miss Irene Ruth, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, was dressed in cream batiste hand embroidered, and carried pink carnations. Mr. Ernest Mahood, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Henderson, of Charlotte St. Methodist church. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a dainty wedding supper.

MAIL DELIVERY.

A New Rural Mail Delivery is Established.

A rural mail delivery has been established between Lakefield and Lakehurst, and the contract has been entered into by the Post Office Department with Mr Shearer for the delivery of rural mail. It now depends upon the farmers themselves along the new route whether they will take advantage of the system and obtain the benefit therefrom, or whether they will remain indifferent to the privilege. Patrons along the route between Lakefield and Selwyn should have their mail addressed to Lakefield, the patrons between Hall's Bridge to Selwyn, and between Hall's Bridge and Lakehurst, to Hall's Bridge, in order to ensure the earliest delivery. Any former who desires to have a box placed at his gate should make application for the same to the post master general at Ottawa. The only cost of rural delivery to the farmer is the cost of the box—82. The box is the property of the patron and may be taken away by him in the event of his moving to any other mail route. The post master at Lakefield will no doubt facilitate matters by giving any information about the new route to any farmer enquiring of him.

Reginald Dugan Had Right Leg Amputated Result of Accident

Reginald Dugan of Smith street, and employed in George B. Kingdom's cooper shop, Barnardo Ave., met with a very nasty and unfortunate accident last evening about six o'clock. He was just leaving work as the G.T.R. yard engine was passing the Barnardo avenue crossing, and it is understood that he attempted to get on for a ride. He missed his footing and the engine went over his right leg, which was crushed to a pulp. Drs. McCullough and McPherson were called and had the injured man taken to Nicholls Hospital. Upon examination it was found that the leg had to be amputated above the knee. The operation was performed and the patient is doing as well as can be expected.

R. Cox's Butcher Shop Damaged by Small Fire

Fire visited Robt. Cox's butcher shop at 641 George street last night just before 10 o'clock, but it was discovered by Messrs. R. J. Soden and Felix Brownscombe before much damage was done. The high wind loosened the electric wires at the rear of the building and caused a short circuit. The window sash took fire and it had crept into the shop and was eating up the refrigerator. The firemen arrived in good time, and by the use of chemicals extinguished the flames. A line of hose was laid but no water was necessary. A second call was sent to the fire hall and the chief went up with a chemical and put out the new fire which had started between the walls. The damage to the building, which is owned by Mr. J. J. Howden, will amount to only a few dollars, but there was a lot of smoke and the meat may be damaged in that way.

In addition to the costume prizes there will be four races run during the evening, a mile race, boys race, bell race and ladies' race. Good prizes are being offered and are on exhibition in the window of Mr. R. H. Campbell's store.

Peterboro' Won First Game in the Tankard

Lindsay, Jan. 18.—The first draw in district No. 2 for the Ontario Tankard was played here this afternoon when Peterborough rinks were drawn against Campbellford. The city curlers had no difficulty in defeating their opponents, and by big scores. Peterborough rinks were as follows:

Carton	Dr. Wightman
Medd	T. F. Matthews
Waddell	D. Davidson
Giroux, Sk.	J. H. Connal, Sk.

Port Hope was defeated by Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon won from Cannington.

The ice was slow on account of the soft weather. There was a good crowd present watching the games.

The Campbellford rinks which played in Lindsay against Peterborough yesterday afternoon stopped off here last night and had a friendly game in the rink here. They will return home this morning.

The Peterborough rinks won from Campbellford yesterday by large scores for both rinks. The ice was soft and was getting softer so that at the end the local players refused to continue the games in the evening. They were to have played Bobcaygeon but the game had been postponed until Monday or until the ice is in good shape.

Bobcaygeon defeated Cannington, and the winners of the Bobcaygeon-Peterborough game will play Lindsay for the district championship.

Heir Says the Groom is Crazy and Therefore He is Not Responsible.

ANNUL CONTRACT

Proceedings Taken By Husband's Friends to Have Marriage Set Aside.

Barrie, Jan. 18.—A suit, in which some sensational developments are promised, was commenced here yesterday, when an injunction was granted by Judge Ardagh, local judge of the High Court, in a suit of Michael Fraser (who sues by his next friend Catharine McCormick) against Hannah M. O. Robertson and William Robertson. A blushing bride of 25, a groom over whom the wintry wind of 84 years have blown, and an $80,000 estate figure as somewhat prominent features.

INJUNCTION GRANTED.

From an affidavit filed by Richard McCormick, a farmer, of the Township of Tay, there is every indication that an interesting romance has been enacted in the sombre precincts of Midland. In the affidavits upon which the injunction was granted it is sworn that Michael Fraser, an old bachelor of 84, and possessed of about $80,000 worth of property, was married in Midland on the 13th inst. under somewhat peculiar circumstances. Miss Hannah M. O. Robertson, a nurse, accompanied by her father, William Robertson, said to be a retired Presbyterian clergyman, arrived in Midland on the 13th inst., with a license, got into the house of Michael Fraser, and there and then married the couple, excluding the friends of Michael from the ceremony.

TO ANNUL MARRIAGE.

The action begun yesterday is for the purpose of annuling the marriage and to prevent the bride and her father from interfering with the estate and property of the groom, the allegation being made that the groom is not only insane, but has been in that condition for some time. In proof of this statement it is asserted in the affidavit that two of the aged groom's brothers died in the asylum, and another died insane out of an asylum. The injunction is good until next Monday, when a motion will be made to continue it before the High Court in Toronto.

The banks were notified today of the proceedings to prevent any disposal of the moneys of the alleged groom.

Liberals Likely to be Returned but with a Shattered Majority

Lord Charles Beresford and His Running Mate Won a Great Victory in Portsmouth—Mr. Balfour's Huge Majority in London—Mr. Hamar Greenwood Defeated

London, Jan. 18.—In the elections held yesterday the Unionists gained twenty-one seats, the Liberals five, net, and the Labor party one, net, making a net gain of fifteen for the Unionists, one less than gained on Saturday. The Liberals made six gains, but two of them were on Labor, and Labor made two gains, but one was on Liberal. Portsmouth and Preston, two seats each, were the greatest gains. Lord Charles Beresford captured Portsmouth by a large majority, carrying his running mate with him. He made the condition of the navy his campaign cry, and his election was received with the greatest enthusiasm in London. The Midlands gave four Unionist gains, the South of England seven gains for the Unionists, London five Unionist gains and one Liberal, and Lancashire, Yorkshire and the North of England contributed three gains to the Liberal side. Scotland returned three Liberals. Will Crooks, the prominent Labor man is among the fallen. The Labor party lost many seats, half a dozen going to the Unionists and one to the Liberals. Hamar Greenwood, a Canadian, who was elected for York in 1906, and was considered a prominent candidate for high office in the Liberal Government, was defeated by 100 votes.

Hon. Joseph Martin, a former premier of British Columbia, was elected for St. Pancras East.

The general review of yesterday's battle bears out the forecast. The North is solid for the Government, while the Midlands section, especially around Birmingham, favors protection.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN CARNEGIE.

A Prominent and Public Spirited Man Passed Away at Guelph.

The sad news was received in Peterborough yesterday morning of the death of Mr. John Carnegie at Guelph, where he had gone a few days ago for medical treatment. Mr. Carnegie had been in poor health for several years, but his death was not looked for and the news was a surprise and shock to his friends.

Mr. Carnegie was the son of the late John Carnegie, and was born in the township of Douro, in March, 1837, and was in his 73rd year at the time of his death. At an early age he took an active part in public affairs, and in the years 1864-65-66, was reeve of his native township and represented it in the county council. At the time of Confederation in 1867 he was elected as the Conservative candidate for the representation of West Peterborough in the Ontario Legislature, and sat in the first parliament of the Province. At the next election he was defeated by the late T. M. Fairbairn. In the election in December, 1883, Mr. Carnegie was again a successful candidate for the legislature, and in 1886 he was defeated by Mr. J. R. Stratton by a majority of 32, and in June, 1890, again unsuccessfully opposed Mr. Stratton. For many years Mr. Carnegie was an energetic supporter of and platform advocate for the Conservative party, and especially his part in the National Policy campaign of 1878 and subsequent Dominion elections will be remembered. During recent years the state of his health did not permit him to take part in public affairs.

Mr. Carnegie became connected with the Review as editor, while it was published by the late Robert Romaine and later, about the year 1877, the Review was purchased by Mr. Carnegie and Mr. E. J. Toker, and published by them under the firm name of Toker & Co. In 1884 the Review Printing and Publishing Company, Limited, was organized, and from that time, although he retired from active participation in the affairs of the company, he was president of it until his death.

For many years Mr. Carnegie was president of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society. He was also secretary of the Peterborough Trust Commissioners, and was several terms arbitrator in the adjustment of the accounts respecting the administration of justice between the city and the county. He always took a deep interest in the progress of the city, and was interested in several of the leading local industries and manufactories.

Mr. Carnegie was a member of the Presbyterian Church. He was twice married, first to Miss Eleanor Hilliard, sister of the late George Hilliard, M.P., and subsequent to her death on July 5th, 1876, to Miss Frances Snyder, daughter of the late William Snyder, who survives him, and was with him at the time of his death. He also leaves one son, Mr. J. Hilliard Carnegie of Osgoode Hall, Toronto, who for four years represented North Victoria in the Ontario Legislature, and four daughters, Mrs. Geo. Orde, of Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. Adams, of Coboconk; Mrs. W. L. Innes, of Simcoe, and Miss Carnegie, of Peterborough. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. W. H. Sherwood, of Los Angeles, Cal.

The body will be brought to Peterborough for interment in the Little Lake cemetery.

Kaiser Knows More About British Navy than Ministers Do

New York, Jan. 18.—Writing of "William the Sudden" Kaiser of the Germans, without the awe the usual beholder shows when speaking of an almost mystical personage, "an English woman at the Prussian court" in the current number of Hampton's Magazine, declares the Kaiser is an ardent lover of peace, an ardent foe of women voters, and a deep lover of family.

The writer criticizes the Kaiser's efforts to foist bad opera on the Berlin people and, when they refuse it, saying "the taste of the Berlin public is deplorable." The Kaiser, the writer declares, does not understand good music, and likes nothing better than a grapaphone uttering comic songs.

KEEN AND DEMOCRATIC.

The writer asserts that the Kaiser is a keen lover of his wife and children, a noisy, even boisterous friend; a keen story teller, with the laugh of a peasant; a democratic man withal, who, when away from home and pressed for time does not hesitate to send picture postal cards to the Empress instead of letters.

"It is not true that William burns the midnight oil over State papers and projects for the good of the people. He is singularly regular in his personal habits, retiring always, unless during a ball, at 11 o'clock."

IT AMUSES THE KAISER.

"Here's Haldane," she says he will cry. "He was educated as a barrister, he's translated 'Schopenhaeur;' he's an ardent admirer of Goethe, writes books about him and visits Weimar every year—and the British make him minister of war. He came to our German manoeuvres, and I offered him a horse and gave him every opportunity to see everything—and he cannot ride. I never met a British minister who knew how many ships of the line there are in the British navy, I can tell him, but he cannot tell me!"

"Reluctantly compelled to relinquish his first hasty conclusion that they were all ladies who had been disappointed in the marriage market he seeks in vain for an explanation of their conduct. To individual ladies the Kaiser is the pearl of gallant courtesy, but he shares with other Germans the opinion that women are quite incapable of managing, beyond certain limits their own affairs.

The article ends with a declaration that the Kaiser does not seek or desire a war with England. With Russia unfriendly on one side and France on the other England's friendship is regarded as vital by the Kaiser.

The German Peril is Not a Bogey

The British Empire Approaches One of the Greatest Crisis in History.

London, Jan. 18.—Associated with the Unionist demand for tariff reform is the appeal for a strong navy. Generally there is restraint in the references to Germany, but undoubtedly a few newspapers and speakers go far. In some of these utterances there is the flavor of the demagogue and a temper which is not admirable. But what they rashly say many sober minded Englishmen are thinking.

The German peril is not a bogey. It is a thing of flesh and blood. Amongst many of those whose opinion is best worth having, who love peace and hate war, who have never opened their lips to increase the tension between Great Britain and Germany, there is a solid conviction that the British Empire approaches one of the great crises of its history, and that it must gather up all its energies to maintain not merely its naval supremacy, but its existence as an Empire. It may be granted this is an ugly issue for an electoral contest, and it is noteworthy that the more responsible Unionist journals confine themselves almost wholly to the discussion of domestic questions. But that there is profound concern over the attitude of Germany and a resolute determination to keep pace with its naval construction program cannot be doubted.

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended, and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Blythe's Case was Discussed in the House

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—In the House of Commons yesterday the case of Walter Blythe, who is now serving a long term in the penitentiary for manslaughter, was discussed.

Capt. Tom Wallace (C. York), moved a resolution asking for correspondence relating to the postponement of Blythe's execution and to his second trial.

Mr. Wallace said that Blythe's crime had been committed in Agincourt, in his own constituency. There had been some comment upon the action of the government in granting Blythe a reprieve after his condemnation to death for killing his wife. Therefore, he believed it would be in the public interest to produce the documents in the House.

Mr. Aylesworth regretted that a motion relating to the exercise of the Royal prerogative of mercy should be introduced. It was extremely undesirable that such papers should be given to the House.

Dr. Sproule (East Grey) urged that the papers be produced to allay the feeling which the postponement of Blythe's execution had caused.

Mr. Aylesworth denied that any lawyer could influence the course of the government in capital cases. It would perhaps be better if prisoners applying for mercy were not represented by counsel. He reiterated his refusal to grant the documents desired, and Captain Wallace finally withdrew his motion.

Died of Scarlet Fever Said to have been Refused Medical Attention

Port Hope, Jan. 18.—Lina Elizabeth Ennis, the juvenile daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ennis, Elgin street, passed away this morning from convulsions, the effect of acute scarlet fever. Mrs. Ennis was a Christian Scientist and refused medical aid. The child is said to have been out sleigh riding on Saturday, in a raging fever, and much local interest has been aroused in the case. Two others in the family have the disease and were not reported.

SEED JUDGING.

(Market Hall)

Two sessions will be devoted to a study of those farm crops most important in Peterborough county. Weeds and weed seeds will receive special attention on Monday, January 24th. Lectures will be given on the purity, selection and improvement of seed, in addition to the judging.

The seed judging will be under the direction of Professor C. A. Zavitz of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Mr. T. G. Raynor, of the Seed Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, will take part in this work.

STOCK JUDGING.

Professor G. E. Day, of the Ontario Agricultural College, and Mr. C. M. MacRae, B.S.A., of the Live Stock Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, will conduct these classes.

The various points of an animal will be illustrated by the use of a score card. A number of animals will then be placed before those in attendance who will be allowed to judge and place them. The professor in charge will afterwards give his placing together with his reasons for such placing.

The course will be free to everyone interested. Townspeople, as well as farmers, are cordially invited to be present at any of the sessions.

Poultry Directors.

A meeting of the directors of the Poultry Association will be held in their rooms tonight at eight o'clock to close up the books ready for the auditors and other business. All are requested to be present.

STRENGTH.

Without Overloading the Stomach.

The business man, especially, needs food in the morning that will not overload the stomach, but give mental vigor for the day.

Much depends on the start a man gets each day, as to how he may expect to accomplish the work on hand.

He can't be alert, with a heavy, fried-meat-and-potatoes breakfast requiring a lot of vital energy to digest it.

A Calif. business man tried to find some food combination that would not overload the stomach in the morning, but that would produce energy.

He writes:

"For years I was unable to find a breakfast food that had nutrition enough to sustain a business man without overloading his stomach, causing indigestion and kindred ailments.

"Being a very busy and also a very nervous man, I decided to give up breakfast altogether. But luckily I was induced to try Grape-Nuts.

"Since that morning I have been a new man; can work without tiring, my head is clear and my nerves are strong and quiet.

"I find four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with one of sugar and a small quantity of cold milk, make a delicious morning meal, which fortifies me for the day's business."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

Ottawa Won First Came from Edmonton

The greatest excitement prevailed in Peterborough last night, owing to it being the date for the first game of the series for the Stanley Cup between Edmonton and Ottawa, and as two of the westerners' line up are boys from this district, "Hay" Miller, formerly of Keene, and Fred Whitecroft of this city. The results at one time, in the first half looked like a win for Edmonton, when the score stood 3—2 in their favor, but Ottawa nosed ahead, and at half time the score stood 5—4. In the second half Ottawa shut the westerners out and added four more to their tally.

Whitecroft, who lived up to his former reputation, and was playing a brilliant game, was injured and delayed the game for a short time.

The line-up:

BREWERS AND TEMPERANCE.

Rochester, N.Y., Jan. 19.—The progress of the temperance movement in this and other sections of this country is among the matters to receive attention at the annual convention begun here today by the New York State Brewers' Association. The convention is attended by prominent brewers from all parts of the large cities of New York.

THE WEATHER.

LOCAL BONSPEIL.

The local bonspeil was opened last night but "owing to the soft condition of the ice only two games were played. The bonspeil will be continued today. Last night's scores were:

WIND ON THE STOMACH.

"A few weeks ago I ate some green vegetables and some fruits that was not quite ripe. It first brought on a bit of indigestion, but unfortunately it developed into bisocughs, accompanied by nausea and cramps. I was dreadfully ill for two days—my head ached and throbbed; I belched gas continually, and I was unable to sleep at night. A neighbor happened in to see me and urged me to try Nerviline. Well, I wouldn't have believed that any preparation could help so quickly. I took half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in hot sweetened water, and my stomach felt better at once. I used Nerviline several times, and was completely restored."

NERVILINE STRENGTHENS WEAK STOMACHS

The above is from a letter written by G. E. Braun, a well-known stockman and farmer near Lethbridge, Alta. Mr. Braun's favorable opinion of the high merit of Nerviline is shared by thousands of Canadians who have proved Nerviline is simply a marvel for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, nausea and stomach disorders. Safe to use, guaranteed to cure—you can make no mistake in keeping Nerviline for your family remedy. Large 25c. bottles; five for $1.00. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

LOST GRACE OF THE CLIPPER.

In general appearance sea craft are much changed—it must be admitted in some respects, not for the better. Cargo steamers particularly have degenerated in outward form. They are clumsier, more angular, less graceful than formerly.

One looks in vain for the clipper bows, rakish masts and trim sails of the early traders. The changes which culminated in the tramp of to-day came gradually.

First, the masts, already reduced in number, size and importance by the supersession of steam over sail power, were stripped of yards and square sails, and later the tryasails in some steamers, not even a staysail being carried.

Now, alas for sentiment, masts are frequently fitted without rake, and gawky a ship so fitted looks alongside those of the older style. But a raked mast is a bad derrick post, and efficiency first, appearance last, is the present rule.

Even standing rigging, with its convenient ratlines, beloved of the youthful mariners, is disappearing in favor of the widely spaced guy ropes, a prosaic iron ladder riveted to the mast giving access to the masthead.

In many vessels, too, forests of derrick posts stand up awkwardly from the deck, making with derricks and running gear, when seen on the skyline, a most extraordinary show, the ships looking for all the world like floating factories.

Outward appearance apart, however, change of design has always been in the direction of simplification of parts, perfection of detail and general improvement. Thus the standard of comfort has been raised. Forecastles are not the poky holes they once were. The limit of deck space per man is greater, the 'tween decks better and light and ventilation improved.

Officers, too, are seldom now accommodated in the bridge 'tween decks, with its close atmosphere and passages smelling of the engine room, but are housed on the upper bridge, in roomy, central apartments airy, dry and convenient to the deck.

Lifted gangways now span the dangerous wells; bulwarks have been raised and strengthened. The vulnerable machinery openings are protected with substantial castings, and bridge fronts are strong enough to defy the wildest seas. Thirty years ago there was little science and much rule of thumb practiced in the designing offices of the shipyards. Not infrequently the model was made to please the eye and the line plans afterward drawn from it. No one can defend this practice, although the graceful forms of the clippers of that day were thus evolved.

Before the Daphne disaster few private firms went the length of making the stability investigations. What were metacentres and centres of gravity? Vessels had been built since the ark with little regard to such matters, and could still be built, as the clipper experts reasoned. Then came the Daphne accident and changed this. Stability became everything.—Cassier's Magazine.

Sir William's Mistake.

"Sir William Harcourt once told me that he had dined out every night for a whole week in advance of his invitations. He only discovered his mistake on the last night, when, on going to dine with some people who were long invitations and large dinners, he found them alone. After a very pleasant evening he thanked them for asking him in so friendly a manner, whereupon their astonished that the invitation had been for a week later, but that they had been only too delighted at his mistake. On hearing this, Sir William looked at his engagement book and discovered that this was the last of a number of invitations which he had anticipated by a week."—From "Memories of Fifty Years."

Settling the Preliminaries.

"Oh, Jennie," said the other girl, "I had such a queer dream about you last night."

"Don't say another word if it was the unlucky kind," Jennie interrupted.

"Wait! How was I dressed?"

"All in shining white."

"And did I have on my white picture hat?"

"Yes."

"Go on."

The Final Test.

"Doctor," asked the patient, whose eyes had been undergoing treatment for a period of six months or more, "do you think that my eyes are all right now?"

"Yes," said the oculist, "I think I can assure you, Mr. Pincheminckel, that your eyes are cured. But there is one more test I should like to apply. See if you can read that at a distance of twelve or fourteen inches, without blinking."

Whereupon he laid his bill before him.

Street Names.

Paris' street with the longest name is La Rue des Pretres-Saint-Germain-l'Auxerrois. In Brussels is La Rue de la Montagne-aux-Herbes-Potageres. The Belgian metropolis has a suburb bearing the name Ongeschuperdonkvercokkernoljestratt. Holland eclipses these with Alblasserdammerlandareopostecksersvergaderinkbaal, which signifies "the meeting room of the street lamp lighters of Alblasserdamm."

Escaped.

Mother—Where is Mr. Asher? I thought you were going to play something for him.

Daughter—Ah, the wretch! As I was putting the children and the dog out of the room he slipped out with them.

Orderly.

Mr. Frontpew—I am glad you belong to our church choir, my dear; it is such an orderly organization. I never see you whispering to one another during services.

Mrs. Frontpew—No; none of us are on speaking terms.

Get Well First

Don't risk even a penny—until health first returns.

And I mean just exactly that. I am the one physician who says to the sick, "Get well at my own peril, then let your mind think of its habit to bring you help." And for 20 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used in every community and every climate in America. They have positively proved their merit in every conceivable way, and in every conceivable condition. Then why pay the cash, and at your own risk, for doctors' experiments and uncertain medicines? Why not use Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the one remedy that has proved itself worthy for over a quarter of a century? Why not use it when your nerves fail, when sick ones know how quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever. They know that when Dr. Shoop's Restorative fails to bring health and strength it fails quickly and entirely. Then you pay nothing. And you are the sole judge and disappointment. Then write me first for an order. Then will come delay and disappointment. Then remember all Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Restorative Invigorator, but all are sold on the guarantee to give the first dose benefit, or the druggist is not to be paid. Then my druggist is authorized to refund your money. Then you are the only judge. Then no one else to decide. Then no doctor's opinion counts but yours. Then no one else to write me. Then no one else's word is taken. Then you pay nothing. Then you are not under any obligation of any kind to anyone but yourself. Then you are to be the sole judge

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let me give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as references of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 26.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in these concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Inaugural Meeting of Burleigh and Anstruther Council.

The inaugural meeting of the Burleigh and Anstruther Council for 1910, was held in the Town Hall, Apsley, on January 10.

The clerk reported that Wm. Tucker had been elected reeve and Al mond Harris, Robert Hales, W. G. Stone and G. C. Stone council for 1910. Moved by Councillor Harris, seconded by Councillor Hales, that the time for returning the collector's roll be extended to March 1st, 1910, and that the corporate seal be attached to this motion to give it the effect of a bylaw.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Hales, seconded by Councillor Harris, that Mr. B. Coons, collector, receive $25 on salary account.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Harris, seconded by Councillor Hales, that Councillors W. G. and J. C. Stone be a committee to look into the matter of road leading into Mr. G. W. Stone's and Wm. Bolton's and side line between lots 8 and 9, con. 1, S. Burleigh, and report at next meeting of council.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

DR. W. GRENFELL.

A Toronto despatch says:

If the report that Dr. Wilfred Grenfell is to lead the Norwegian expedition to enquire into the discovery of Andree's grave is correct, the selection will be regarded with satisfaction; for the noted missionary and explorer is the most suitable man for the task. For many years the doctor has devoted himself to the physical and spiritual needs of a parish containing 320,000 square miles of territory, carrying a sparse population of Eskimos and natives of Labrador. He has set their broken limbs, cured the ophthalmia, caused by the glare of the sun, and battled with the scourge of consumption. During his sixteen years' service in that bleak region he has established four hospitals, an orphanage, and many stores, where the fishermen, none too worldly wise, may be assured of not being cheated.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

NEW WELLAND CANAL.

English Contractors Ready to Complete It in Five Years.

His Worship Mayor Geary has received a communication from a prominent firm of British contractors, who are willing to undertake the widening and deepening of the Welland Canal. If they can secure plans and specifications they are prepared to submit a price for the work, which they undertake to complete within five years. To render the financing of the project one of comparative ease to the people of the Dominion, the firm would accept government guaranteed bonds extended over a period of thirty years, in payment, the bonds to be redeemable by the government in equal payments annually. The communication will be referred to the Special Committee for the Improvement of Navigation on the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes.—Mail & Empire.

The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its marvellous curative properties. Tight tickling or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid prescription—Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so safe and good for children, as well. Containing no opium, chloroform or other harmful drugs, mothers should in safety always demand Dr. Shoop's. If other remedies are offered, tell them No! Be your own judge. Sold by all dealers.

A Stage Manager's Ruse.

The house bill of the Imperial theater of La Roche-sur-Yon announced for the evening performance "La Tour de Nesle," a five act melodrama, and "La Soeur de Jocrisse," a one act farce. The drama had been disposed of, but the low comedian was missing and could not be found. What was to be done? A luminous idea finally entered the manager's mind. The orchestra played an overture, then another, then a third, then a polka and finally a quadrille. At last, when the audience had grown quite obstreperous, the stage manager appeared. He addressed the three conventional bows to the spectators and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, you are anxious, I know, to listen to 'La Soeur de Jocrisse.' The pièce has just been acted, but through an unaccountable oversight on the part of the stage hands they forgot to raise the curtain."

Saw It in a Dream.

For many years ivory manufacturers were trying to devise a machine for turning out a billiard ball as nearly perfect as possible and at the same time avoiding waste. Among those who strove to perfect such a machine was Mr. John Carter of the firm of John Carter & Son, well known ivory manufacturers. One night, after Mr. Carter had been striving to solve the problem for some time, he suddenly awoke; his wife by shouting out, "I have got it," and rushed downstairs into his study, where he made a drawing of the last knife for the want of which he had been so long waiting in order to complete his machine. It appears that he had fallen asleep and dreamed about the machine, and in the dream the solution of the difficulty was revealed to him.—London Answers.

Womanly pains, head pains, in fact any pain anywhere can be completely stopped in twenty minutes with one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about the formula. It is printed on the box—and it can't be bettered. Try one dose and be convinced. Box 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Fire, Water and Light Committee Consider the Fire Hall Needs

The Fire, Water and Light Committee held its first meeting last night with Ald. Morgan in the chair. All the members were present with Mayor Morrow, and the meeting was started right on time. Everything passed off very quietly and it looks favorable for a harmonious year.

The principal business taken up was the fire chief's report, and his list of requirements for the year. Very few of these were granted, although many were marked to be considered at a meeting at the fire hall next week.

Last year's appropriations were $11,500, and by the time all the accounts are in there will not be much left so that on the surface it appeared that the next year could not be managed for much less.

The first matter the Fire, Water and Light Committee took up was the report of the chief of the Fire Department, which is given below:

CHIEF'S REPORT.

Peterborough, Jan. 1, 1910.

To His Worship the Mayor, and Aldermen of the Council of Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—Following the usual custom I have the honor to submit herewith the annual report of the Fire Department for the year 1909.

You will please find attached to this report a statement of fires showing the cause, time, how received, etc., which will give you an accurate account of the workings of the department for the year. You will also find attached a stock sheet giving an account of every dollar's worth of material on hand at the time of taking stock, January 1, 1910.

During the year the department responded to 137 alarms of fire. 66 of the above alarms were received from street boxes over the fire alarm telegraph system. 65 were received by telephone, and 6 were verbal alarms.

During the year the apparatus traveled 148 miles; we used 22,500 feet of hose, and 491 gallons of chemicals were required to extinguish small fires, 2,560 feet of ladders were used.

The total amount of damage by fire was $59,855, $19,502 damage to contents and damage to buildings was $40,353. You will observe that the fire loss for the year was considerably in excess of the previous year, but considering the number of fires the department had to combat, I consider the figures a creditable showing.

$31,600 of the above amount was caused by fires which occurred in parts of the city where fire hydrants were not available, and therefore can not be credited against this department.

I do not anticipate a repitition of such occurrences as the Waterworks Department have extended their mains in the outlying districts of the city, and during the year have installed 21 new hydrants.

It will be necessary to add to the equipment, a chemical fire engine, and also to increase the staff by six men. This will mean an increased expenditure and I trust your committee will deal with these matters early in the year so that provision may be made in the estimates to cover the expense.

Another matter I wish to bring before you is the schedule of wages paid your firemen, When the present scale was struck, it was with the understanding that there should be increases made from time to time. We have been fortunate in securing the services of very capable and competent men, but I find it almost impossible to keep good men for, any length of time owing to the small salaries paid. And it is decidedly bad policy to make changes in the personel of the staff. The high price of living, constant confinement, irregular hours, hard drill, and the hazardous nature of a fireman's life, make the position worthy of higher remuneration.

The matter of extending the fire alarm telegraph system will also have to be taken into consideration. Several more street boxes should be installed on George street, and some are required in the residential part of the West Ward. About $900 will be required for this extension.

The city is rapidly growing, and it will be necessary to build and equip a small fire station in Ashburnham. A building large enough to house a hose company with six men.

In conclusion I desire to express my sincere thanks to His Worship the Mayor, and the gentlemen of the council of 1909. And especially to Alderman William Buller, the chairman of my committee. Ald. Buller has been very painstaking and has spent a great deal of his time to assist in bringing your Fire Department to its present state of efficiency.

We are also indebted to Mr. W. F. Doan, the local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, and his staff of operators.

We have received excellent service and have not had one complaint during the whole year, this is something we appreciate and value highly.

All of which is respectfully submitted. I have the honor to be, sirs,

Yours respectfully,

W. A. HOWARD.

Chief Fire Department.

MEN'S HOURS OFF.

In discussing the chief's report His Worship Mayor Morrow said that at the present time the firemen were allowed only every fourth Sunday. This he did not think was fair. He would not like a position if he could not get out Sundays. He thought some arrangement should be made whereby the men could get off to go to church at least once a day.

Ald. Buller said that with the present staff it was impossible to let the men off any oftener. The only way that such a thing could be done would be by increasing the staff.

ASHBURNHAM HALL.

The next clause taken up was the chief's recommendation to erect a small fire hall with six men in Ashburnham. The chairman and Ald. Buller thought it would be a great advantage.

In reference to the reduction of the key rate of insurance it was stated that the rate on residences ha stated that the rate on residences had not been reduced. The chief said that the new rate had gone into effect.

Ald. Buller and Ald. Graham moved that the city clerk be authorized to make enquiries as to whether the rate was in force yet or not.— Carried.

FIREMEN'S SALARIES.

In reference to the firemen's salaries, Ald. Buller said he would like to say a word in favor of the firemen. They were not getting sufficient money in accordance with the cost of living. He suggested that the chairman look into the matter and get some information for the committee.

Ald. Metheral said he thought the committee better go slow. He thought that it was too early to start raising the schedule.

LIST OF REQUIREMENTS.

The committee then took up the list of requirements suggested by the chief outside of the ordinary supplies for the fire hall.

Among the items granted are:

Improved door openers.
500 feet of fire hose.
Two chemical extinguishers.
Stationery and books.
Telephone in chief's house.
Half dozen lanterns.
Brass coupling rings.
Battery supplies.
Extra set of works for alarm box.
Blow pot for line work.

OTHER BUSINESS.

Dr. Green's bill for attendance on Deputy Chief Grange of $11 was ordered to be paid.

The matter of purchasing the ordinary supplies were dinary supplies for the fire hall were ordered to be purchased on the order of the chairman.

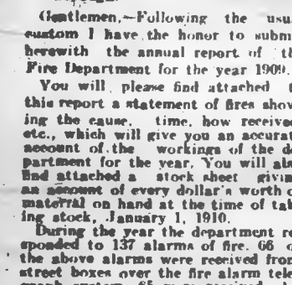
Ald. Duncan was present and asked that the arc lamp on Weir St. be changed to fire incandescent lamps. He said that the fire would give much better service.

The committee will look into that matter at once.

Ald. Duncan also asked about a hydrant on Gladstone avenue. This had been ordered but had not been put in.

Ald. Buller wanted incandescent lamps on Lansdowne avenue.



Are your hands chapped, cracked or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblains, or a "raw" place, which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief, and will heal the frost-damaged skin. Anoint the sore places at night, Zam-Buk's rich healing essences will sink into the wounds, end the smarting, and will heal quickly.

Mrs. Yelles, of Portland, says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to put them near water. When I did so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and it succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

Zam-Buk also cures chapping, cracks, chilblains, piles, ulcers, festering sores, sore heads and backs, abscesses, pimples, ring-worm, eczema, burns, bruises, scalds, sprains. 50 cent boxes and stores, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Prove this at our cost.

Liberals May Have to Call in Labor and Nationalists to Get Majority

Laborites are Not Likely to be as Strong in the New Parliament as Before—In Consequence of Great Union Improvement Interest is Again Keyed Up

TOTAL STANDING.

Liberals	98
Laborites	20
Unionists	121
Nationalists	41

TOTAL GAINS.

Unionist	51
Liberal	11
Laborite	2
Not Unionist gains over Liberals	38

The Liberals and Laborites together have 118 members so far, and the Unionists 121.

London, Jan. 19.—Today's polling should give a sure indication as to whether the Liberals will have to call on the Irishmen to outnumber the Unionists. In consequence of the great Unionist improvement, interest is again keyed up. While the coalition membership is now 146 and the Unionists 120, the Unionists have gained 51 seats, and have a net gain of 41 seats. Forty-four seats were filled by yesterday's polling. Of these 23 fell to the Government coalition and 21 to the Unionists.

The popular vote in 1906 in the constituencies voting yesterday was Coalition 214,000, and Unionists 149,000. Today it stood: Coalition 213,000; Unionists, 185,000. On Monday, Unionists gained 21 seats out of a total of 104; yesterday they gained 12 out of 46.

The Laborites are not likely to be as strong in the new parliament as before. They have already lost several seats, while many of those who got in received very narrow majorities.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT.

London, Jan. 19.—Before the electors of West Five at Leven, Mr. Asquith said he was determined to make an issue of the right of the House of Lords to veto. He said, in reply to questions: "The Liberal party will, in my opinion, be perfectly free in the next parliament, as it was not in the last, to support a measure giving full self-government in purely Irish affairs to Ireland, subject to the maintenance unimpaired of the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament."

Mr. Lloyd-George, at Newton, said it must be made perfectly clear that if the House of Lord again rejected a bill sent to it by a Liberal House of Commons the bill would be sent straight to the throne.

DEFEATED HAMAR GREENWOOD

MR HAMAR GREENWOOD, who ran as Liberal candidate in York and lost by a narrow majority, will probably be given a seat somewhere else. He was born in Whitby and educated at Toronto University. He is a barrister in London, and is a good public speaker. A year ago he traveled through Canada to the Pacific Coast.

The Late Mrs. Gordon

KINGSTON MOURNS THE DEATH OF NOBLE WOMAN.

Thousands Attend the Funeral—Pathetic Incidents Connected With Her Obsequies.

(Special Correspondence)

Kingston, Jan. 18.—Probably never before has Kingston mourned the death of a citizen as it has the demise of the late Mrs. Gordon, wife of Principal Gordon of Queen's University. The sad news was received as a shock to everyone, as she was known and beloved by all. She was one of Canada's noblest women and none knew or appreciated that fact more than did the students of Queen's for years past. Her interest in the students was almost like that of a mother, and not a few received strength and conform from her in time of trouble, while she was an inspiration to all to aspire to a nobler life and higher ideals.

The late Mrs. Gordon's funeral was held today at three o'clock, and as the procession proceeded from her late residence to the cemetery it was the most impressive ever seen in Kingston. For miles the streets were filled with mourning citizens, who had gathered to pay their last respects to Dr. Gordon's beloved wife, as she was slowly borne to her last resting place. As the solemn procession moved almost noiselessly along strong men with bowed heads dropped a tear, and turned away, feeling that a light had gone out of their lives. Even those who had never known the departed except by reputation realized that Kingston had lost a noble lady.

The floral tributes were without number, and their beauty was exquisite. Many came from distant parts and from graduates of Queen's, who still remembered the kindly and loveable lady. Three carriages loaded with flowers headed the procession followed by the pall bearers and the hearse. Immediately behind walked Dr. Gordon and his two sons, then twelve honorary pall bearers. Twelve hundred men students, followed by two hundred professors, marched in couples and a long train of carriages brought up the rear, each person by their silent presence, testifying to their respect of and love for the departed.

At the regular afternoon service held on Sunday in the college all the students were present and at the head of the procession of professors walked Principal Gordon as usual. He spoke a few words to the students, saying that he simply could not, in his bereavement, stay away from his own family (the students). He desired and needed their sympathy. He felt that he had it and he wanted to come and share with them their sorrow.

Not only does Kingston and Queen's University mourn the death of the late Mrs. Gordon, but thousands of Canadians who have come within the influence of her beautiful life feel keen regret. Queen's men and women the world over share the loss as well the citizens of other places where she and Principal Gordon have lived and worked. In Peterborough the deceased had many admirers and to Dr. Gordon and his family is extended the heartfelt sympathy.—Ed. Times.

Mother gives Life blood to Save Son

New York, Jan. 19.—Life-giving blood from his mother's veins so invigorated six-year-old Arthur Shibley that today the doctors believe that the lad, shot by a maniac on Washington Heights, would recover. Mrs. Shibley was so weak from loss of blood that she could scarcely speak, but she smiled cheerfully as she was told her boy was much benefitted by her sacrifice. Today on a cot in the surgical ward of the hospital she was recuperating nicely.

Want Government to Provide Bi-lingual Educational System

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—Fifteen hundred enthusiastic French-Canadians, representing every sphere of life in Ontario, crowded the Monument National early to inaugurate the first French-Canadian congress held in the Province. The hall was emblazoned with Union Jacks surmounted by tricolors.

MAINTAIN THEIR LANGUAGE

Sir Elzear Taschereau expressed the hope that their ideas would materialize in the near future. They should see to it their religion and language were maintained.

Mgr. Meunier of Windsor, mentioned that there were 30,000 French Canadians in Essex county, who were represented at the congress by 77 delegates. The gathering then rose en masse and sang, "O Canada."

BI-LINGUAL EDUCATION

A resolution to be presented to the Minister of Education of the Province of Ontario, asking that the Public School Act be amended to provide for a bi-lingual educational system in the Public schools throughout the Province was passed at the evening session.

The session was held behind closed doors. The resolution was a lengthy one and was submitted by Mr. P. M. Cote, president of the Educational Committee. It claims that it is by no means air that the French children in Ontario should be educated entirely in a language that is not their mother tongue.

When the question was put the fifteen hundred delegates rose in their seats and cheered loudly and unanimously carried the motion.

Made a Record Sale of Butter

The growth of the butter making industry is illustrated by the Central Smith creamery. The factory is do creamery was first operated in the beginning it was exported largely, but during the last few years the Peterborough is now buying the butter manufactured at the Central Smith creamery. The factory is doing a greater business than ever, as may be judged from Mr. J. A. McGregor's report at the meeting last night. From Nov. 1st, 1908, to Jan. 31, 1909, 14,015 lbs. were turned out. Beginning Nov. 1st last up to the present, 15,776 lbs. were manufactured, nearly eight tons in two months and a half, a much greater output than that of the entire creamery season last year. This condition is found generally. Central Smith has been very successful in its creamery operations, and has secured a good reputation for quality. The old-time custom of making butter in the cellar and shipping it on the market is rapidly passing away, as is evidenced in Smith, where the cream is collected, at the factory and sold en bloc, the receipts being afterwards divided.

Preserve Mines from Grip of Yankee Trusts

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—Mr. Arthur Wilson, who has been engaged by the Imperial Government to enquire into the nickle resources of the Dominion and whose headquarters are at Toronto, this morning told the Mines and Minerals Committee of the House of Commons that it was the duty of the Canadian Government to step in at the present moment and take over the control of its mineral deposits. Canada possesses three-fifths of the stores of the nickle which is now controlled by the American Nickle Trust. Canada and New Caledonia, he said, are the only countries which possess any great stores of nickle, and the deposits are practically controlled by the International Nickle Company of New York, which has made the price so high that the mineral is prevented from coming into general use.

Millions of tons of nickle representing immense wealth, were lying undeveloped in Canada because it did not suit the trust to do so. The taking over of the deposits by the Government Mr. Wilson looked upon as a matter of imperial urgency. Such action on the part of Canada would be to Great Britain a splendid advantage in the construction of warships. The point was raised that the Ontario Government might object, but Chairman Conmee explained that nickle titles were in fee simple. The suggestion was made by Mr. Wilson that if the Quebec bridge is to be built of nickle steel it should be stipulated that it must be manufactured in this country. The committee decides, that in view of Mr. Wilson's statements it would be advisable to summons the officials of the Canadian Copper Company, the Canadian branch of the trust to give evidence.

Thinks the Liberals Must Use Irish

London, Jan. 19.—Wednesday's polls should give a sure indication of whether, as now seems certain, the Liberals will have to call on the Irish to enable them to outcount the Conservatives.

In view of the improvement from the Unionist viewpoint, interest in the elections is again keyed up. The returns from the counties will be watched feverishly on both sides.

There is a noticeable undercurrent of opinion that in the rural constituencies the Liberals will hold their own. The Unionists draw comforting conclusions from the fact that the smaller towns are going solid for them, and they think the counties should do likewise.

Working Girls Trapped in a Burning Factory

Philadelphia, Jan. 19.—It is feared that a score of working girls lost their lives in a fire which shortly before noon broke out in the four-storey Ellis building, occupied by C. E. Shedaker and Sons, shirt waist manufacturers, and four other firms, all employing girls, which is now a seething furnace.

Five bodies have been recovered. Shut off from escape by the flames, between fifty and a hundred girls were imprisoned on the upper floors of the building.

Many jumped from windows and were seriously injured, and about 20 have thus far been removed to hospitals.

Some people believe a score or more women were burned to death. It is now known that eight were killed jumping from the windows of the second and third floors to the street.

MAY BE 40 DEAD.

There was only one fire escape, and the flames spread with inconceivable rapidity. Twenty girls were trapped on the second floor, and after the walls had fallen in, Fire Chief Baxter, with tears streaming down his face, said:

"There must be more than 40 dead."

The origin of the fire is unknown. Those of the girls who escaped, except a few who leaped into blankets from the windows, fled down a fire escape in the rear of the building. When this became cut off by fire all hope was gone.

The walls of the building cracked and swayed, endangering the lives of the firemen, and the fire could not not be fought with any success.

DO YOU VALUE HEALTH.

Regulate and Cleanse Your System.

Spring cleaning does not answer the body! The prime element in the maintenance or in the recovery of health is activity of liver, kidneys and skin. Not occasionally but only by weekly stimulation of these functions can poisons, waste matter, and accumulations within the body be drawn out so that the blood and inward parts be purified and kept wholesome. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the mildest laxative medicine known; they purify the blood, fortify the acticity of liver and kidneys, increase the eliminating power of the skin and create a general feeling of well being —the outcome of wholesale conditions within. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a general tonic to the digestive system; they restore functional effectiveness to all the organs of secretion and contribute in this way enormously to the stability of health.

For general family use in all cases of biliousness, bad blood, indigestion and disorders of the stomach, Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Horse's Leg Swelled

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is as useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua K. Hutchison, from his home, Crofta Mill, P.O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

NERVILINE IS A TRUSTY LINIMENT

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. Nine million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, five for $1.00. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1910.

BEYOND CIVILIZATION.

From Ottawa comes the annual thrilling tale of adventure soberly called the Report of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. It gives glimpses of the daily toil and devotion to duty of those sturdy men who labor even beyond the frontiers of civilization. Of course the blue-covered volume gives a report of the force's activity in Regina, Battleford and Calgary, but the log-books of the patrols provide the real interest.

For example, Staff-Sergeant Fitzgerald trips from Fort Macpherson to Herschel Island, and makes this suggestive comment: "Sergt. Selig deserves great credit in the way he handled the whale boat in the ice-pack during the gale, and in keeping his temper under all circumstances. Selig must be a man worth knowing."

Sergt. Macleod made a trip from Fort Vermilion to Great Slave Lake and return, 696 miles, in forty-four days. "Two of the train dogs were worn out and the other six dogs were in a miserable state from sore feet. I intended to return to Fort Vermilion by Buffalo Lake and the Fish Lakes on Caribou Mountain, but I could not get an Indian guide on account of the deep snow. I returned on my own trail, which was drifted full, and nearly as difficult as making a new one."

A brilliant piece of description of the loss of the boat "McTavish" is given by Inspector Pelletier in his story of the exploration trip from Fort Saskatchewan to Hudson Bay—3,347 miles.

Corporal Miller while on the Mackenzie River saw huge forest fires burning on both sides. He says with a charming naivete: "Some and probably all of these fires were set deliberately by the Indians in order to make a good moose country. There are, however, no justices of the peace in the country, so what can I do about it?" This, we fancy, might be regarded as an unanswerable question. The report is richly illustrated by reproductions of photographs taken by officers and men.

Many people will sympathize with the Havelock lad who put an electric light bulb into bed to warm his feet. Here was a boy with an original idea, and all he got for it was a burnt leg. Suffering however, is quite often the reward for originality. The fellow who departs from the beaten path is many a time the target for those who don't.

Tight hacking or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid prescription—Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is as safe and good for children, as grown. Containing no opium, chloroform or other harmful drugs, mothers should in safety always demand Dr. Shoop's. If other remedies are offered, tell them No! Be your own doctor. Sold by all dealers.

THE BASEBALL UMPIRE.

Very Different From the Fight Referee or the Race Judge.

Good umpires are rare. In the whole country there are not more than ten first rate ones. The combination of the keen eye, nimble brain and cold nerve is not a common one.

The umpire is the chain lightning of baseball. His decisions are rendered in the fifth part of a second. He renders them knowing that he must stand by them afterward, no matter what happens. Every man inside the fence, whether blinded by prejudice or loyalty to the home team, sees the same things and therefore feels that he has a right to his own opinion, but the umpire is the one man who is paid to know what he sees.

The prizefight referee sometimes has to decide which boxer won a hard battle. He has had time to which to review the situation. The whole moving picture of the fight stretches backward in his memory. Should the choice prove a difficult one there is always the comfortable middle ground—the draw decision, in which neither man wins or loses. The baseball umpire can render no draw decisions. The man is safe or he is out.

When two race horses come nodding down to the wire and two noses flash by the post so close together that a finger breadth means thousands of dollars to the backers, the race track judge may fall back on the dead heat. The baseball umpire has no dead heats. Watching foot and inch, he must know which one was first. He can confer with no one. Right or wrong, the judgment must be made in the twinkling of an eye.—C. E. Van Loan in Munsey's Magazine.

The Piano Virtuoso's Hands.

Contrary to popular belief, the piano virtuoso as a rule has extremely unattractive hands. "The artistic hand" is a phrase peculiar to the hysterical young woman who haunts musical recitals, but in reality the hand of the pianist is not at all artistic or beautiful when judged by the usual standards of the artist, the painter or the sculptor.

Constant, vigorous practicing over develops the hand and makes it actually ill-shaped. The fingers do not taper, but are blunt and broad, ending often in what appears to be a cushion of hard flesh.—New York World.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured.

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do us an act of kindness?
Will you tell some sick friend of this, and remember the cure?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought those nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the centers of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then does the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering "Take my prescription for full 50 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative Remedy—and that remedy is opposed by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—all without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 50 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 50 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.65 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment; compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of one chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as references of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

THE CASE OF GUERRE

AUDACITY OF THE IMPOSTOR.

He Deceived Not Only the Sisters, but Even the Wife, of the Man Whose Place He Usurped—The Return of the Real Guerre and the Exposure.

Perhaps the most remarkable case of doubles in all history is that of Martin Guerre, a Frenchman, who was born near Bayonne in the first half of the sixteenth century. Martin Guerre was the son of a well to do farmer and brickmaker, and, as was the custom of the country at the time, he married at the age of eleven Bertrande de Rois, who had then reached the age of ten. For eight years they lived together.

Unfortunately Martin stole a bushel of corn from his father. Frightened by the heinousness of his crime, he deserted his wife and fled to Spain. There he entered the service of Emperor Charles V. and after several years of campaigning seems to have forgotten his wife, Bertrande, and his baby boy, Sancho. At any rate, he ceased to write home, and his family lost all trace of him. His absence stretched on to eight years.

Then one evening a stranger arrived at the inn of the village where the deserted wife was still living. He at once told his host that he was Martin Guerre and recounted the adventures and hardships that had kept him from home so long. The rumor of Martin Guerre's return soon spread, and his four sisters hastened to the hostelry to welcome him home. They found him much changed. He had gone eight years before, scarcely more than a boy. Now he was a mature man, bronzed and bearded. Nevertheless they welcomed him, embraced him and carried the news to his wife. Bertrande hastened to him at once. When she saw him first she started back with misgiving. But he addressed her tenderly, repeated word for word their parting conversation and mentioned details that only a husband could have known. He even spoke of the clothing he had left behind and where it could be found. Bertrande was convinced. She begged forgiveness for her doubts and threw herself into his arms. An uncle arrived. He, too, hesitated, but the newcomer detailed to him all the minutiae of their business transactions eight years before, and he also was convinced.

The upshot of the matter was that this newly arrived Martin Guerre returned home with his wife and lived happily and without suspicion with her for four years. During this time they had two children, and Martin's father at his death bequeathed him a farm.

However, a soldier passing through the village declared that he had seen Martin at the siege of St. Quentin, that he had lost a leg there, but that he was still alive, and the soldier left a written deposition to that effect. The rumor spread that the man living as Martin Guerre was an impostor.

Bertrande at this filed a criminal information against the man to whom for four years she had granted the rights of a husband. He was described in the accusation as Arnault du Tilh and was committed to prison. The prisoner said that the uncle had influenced his wife and that the whole charge was a conspiracy to deprive him of his fortune of 8,000 livres. He submitted to a searching interrogatory, after the French fashion, and answered all questions satisfactorily. He told of his campaigns and revealed the most intimate details of the family history. He relied for his defense, too, on the four sisters who still called him brother, on his four years' life with Bertrande with her consent, and pressed her in the presence of the judges to swear that he was not her real husband, declaring that if she so swore he was ready to forfeit his head. Bertrande refused to take this oath. She was confused by his confident manner.

In the trial 150 witnesses were examined. Of this number forty deposed that the man was the real Martin Guerre, fifty deposed that he was Arnault du Tilh, and sixty declined to pronounce any opinion, owing to the extraordinary resemblance. In spite of the conflicting evidence the judge pronounced him guilty. He at once appealed to the parliament of Toulouse.

On this appeal thirty witnesses were re-examined. Ten deposed that he was Martin Guerre, eight that he was an impostor, and the remainder confessed that they were too bewildered to have any opinion. The judges were sorely perplexed and leaned to the side of the prisoner.

By a curious coincidence just at this juncture the real Martin Guerre made his appearance on the scene. He showed the same marks on his face as those borne by the prisoner. The men were confronted with each other in court. Even the four sisters, who till now had clung to their belief in the prisoner, confessed their mistake. The prisoner lost his nerve, confessed his crime and begged forgiveness. He was condemned to death and executed. The real Martin was restored to his rights.—Conrad Oek in New York Tribune.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the diseased organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, already tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Originality.

"Why did you accept George?"

"He was so much more original than the other fellows."

"In what way?"

"He was the one that asked me to be his wife."—Puck.

INSTALLING THE MAYOR.

English Towns Have Ritual Peculiar to Each.

The mayor of Lincoln, for instance, is duly elected by placing upon his finger an ancient ring, which for centuries his predecessors have worn. Should his worship send his ring to any school in the city the master is bound to give his pupils a day's holiday.

At Chichester the mayor is armed with a gold-mounted malacca cane; while at York his worship is equipped with a silver-mounted oak stave, which has marked his authority for hundreds of years.

From time immemorial, the mayor of Brightlingsea has been elected in the parish church belfry; and the retiring chief magistrates of both Bournemouth and Hanley imprint a loving kiss on the countenance of the incoming mayor.

The mayor of Grantham is tapped on the head with the town clerk's hammer; and at Dunstable the time-honored custom of "bumping" is observed.

Weighing is the less trying ordeal to which the mayor of High Wycombe has to submit, and he is better off, perhaps, than the lord mayor of Birmingham, who has to assume his sweetest smile and face the camera immediately after his election.

A public holiday is observed at Newcastle-under-Lyme, where the newly-elected mayor is publicly proclaimed from the famous Market Cross—a custom observed for 754 years.

A mayor's duties are numerous, and, in many cases, curious. He has to refrain from taking a too prominent part in politics—though this is only an unwritten law; he has to preside over meetings of the council, open bazaars, entertain and be entertained at public dinners, give receptions, and preside at the local police court.

In some places he receives a salary, and in others he pays dearly for his year of honor. The mayoralty of an aristocratic London suburb cost its possessor over $7,500; while Mr. John Webster, who was mayor of Sheffield in 1906-7, spent only $25.

The lord mayor of London gets a salary of about $50,000, but always spends a great deal more; whilst the lord mayor of Liverpool has $10,000, and the lord provost of Edinburgh $4,000.

During her year as mayoress of Portsmouth, Miss Doris Foster celebrated her sixth birthday; and when she occupied a similar position at Cardigan, Miss Gwynneth Bowen had seen four summers.

Womanly pains, head pains, in fact any pain anywhere can be completely stopped in twenty minutes with one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about the formula. It is printed on the box—and it can't be bettered. Try one dose and be convinced. Box 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Interesting Facts of New York City

ONE baby born every three and one-half minutes every day in the year to the way New York City did her share in 1907 toward the propagation of the human species. Deaths occurred only at the rate of one in five and one-third minutes, and from that it will be seen that the big city would be able to grow with considerable rapidity, even if immigration ceased. Accidents last year resulted in 3,919 deaths; there were 264 murders and 711 suicides. There was a marriage every eight and one-third minutes. The largest single cause of death was consumption, which had 6,989 victims. Organic heart disease caused 7,237 deaths.—Human Life.

So it seems that organic heart trouble is next to "consumption" in the cause of deaths—and yet people will continue to drink coffee when the ablest men in the medical profession have time and again stated that "caffeine in coffee is frequently the direct cause of organic heart trouble."

Well informed physicians will tell you that as a food beverage—when boiled for 15 minutes. Builds up coffee-worn nerves and tissues—strengthens the heart, clears the brain and makes the red, red blood of good health.

The real proof of anything is in the testing, so why not quit coffee for ten days or two weeks and drink Postum—you can prove the facts for yourself.

SOME HARD KNOCKS.

Woman Gets Rid of "Coffee Heart."

The injurious action of coffee on the heart of many persons is well known by physicians to be caused by caffeine. This is the drug found by chemists in coffee and tea.

A woman suffered a long time with severe heart trouble and finally her doctor told her she must give up coffee, as that was the principal cause of the trouble. She writes:

"My heart was so weak it could not do its work properly. My husband would sometimes have to carry me from the table, and it would seem that I would never breathe again.

"The doctor told me that coffee was causing the weakness of my heart. He said I must stop it, but it seemed I could not give it up until I was down in bed with nervous prostration.

"For eleven weeks I lay there and suffered. Finally my husband brought home some Postum and I quit coffee and started new and right. Slowly I got well. Now I do not have any headaches nor those gnawing weak heart. We know it is Postum that helped me. The doctor said the other day, 'I never thought you could be what you are.' I used to weigh 97 pounds and now I weigh 132.

"Postum has done much for me and I would not go back to coffee again for any money, for I believe it would kill me if I drank it. Postum must be boiled long enough, sometimes we pig, say, about a half hour and with cream in it." Read "The Road to Wellville," found in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

VOL. XXXIII NO. 18 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY JANUARY 21, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Sir Wilfrid Promises Help to the French-Canadian Congress

Ottawa, Jan. 20.—A civic reception was given to the delegates attending the French-Canadian congress last night in the Russel theater. The speeches were given in both English and French. Among those present were: Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Elzear Taschereau, Sir James Grant, Senator Belcourt, Mayor Hopewell, Hon. Charles Murphy, Hon. Frank Cochrane, Hon. Rodolph Lemieux, Judge Constantineau, Mr. H. B. McGiverin, Mgr. Routhier, Hon. Adam Beck, M.P.P., and P.M. Cote.

The inaugural address of Senator Belcourt, as president of the congress, dealt with the mission of the organization. Mainly and formost the mission was the education of the French-Canadians.

AS TO BI-LINGUAL SCHOOLS.

The proposed introduction in the Ontario schools of a bi-lingual system of education was the main feature of the addresses.

"It is well to know English in order to be in a position to appreciate the beauties of our French language" began the premier. "it is the greatest language in the world."

After French, he stated, came the English language, which was a necessity in Canada in order to earn a livelihood. He feared he had paid too little attention to the educational affairs in Ontario, but he would co-operate with the congress in their work. The French-Canadians he declared, did not wish to impose on anyone, nor did they wish anyone to impose on them. Protection was one of the objections of the congress, and in this it was just fied.

Mayor Hopewell in a short speech extended the freedom of the city to the delegates.

Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of mines and colonization, addressed the gathering. he said he had been brought up among French-Canadians and had always found them excellent neighbors. Speeches were also delivered by Hon. Adam Beck and Mgr. Routhier. During the evening a message from the pope was read, in which he sent his blessing to the delegates attending the congress.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS.

The afternoon session of the congress was again held behind closed doors. L'Abbe Leclaire, of Chute a Blondeau, made a strong speech on temperance, which can be summed up in the four words: "Temperance, but not prohibition."

Reports for East and West Ontario were read by J. A. Doyon and L'Abbe Bebel, respectively.

The main points of the resolution passed at last night's session, which was practically approved by the assembly. The report is to be submitted to the Minister of Education. The meeting was held behind closed doors, not even the French press being admitted. The chief points in the report are:

1. That there is no rational program of bi-lingual teaching officially authorized.

2. That no account is taken of the French language in official examinations.

3. That the French-Canadian children are forced to limit their studies to primary matters, with the result that an exceptionally low level of instruction was obtained by them.

4. That the French-Canadians pay their share of taxes towards the secondary schools, no profit being obtained by them except by sacrificing their language.

5. That bi-lingual schools receive only a small proportion of the Provincial subventions.

6. That the system of divisions of revenues, which is all to the advantage of Public schools, necessitates low salaries in the Separate schools, due to the paucity of resources, thus attracting only young girls, wishing to fill a position which will enable them to marry after a few years teaching.

The French, however, do not blame the English, in whose spirit of justice they have full confidence; their only desire, it was said at the meeting, was to develope among the French proper qualities and educational culture.

Fate of Government in Hands of Rural Electors

London, Jan. 20.—Tomorrow sees the last borough pollings. Today is the continuation of county pollings. The fate of the government and the budget is in the hands of county electors. The Conservatives expect to win back some rural seats, but even were there large defections in the counties, the Conservatives will not have a majority, but it might be so weakening to the Liberals as to render them powerless in the next parliament.

The Best Family Newspaper.

An ideal newspaper for the American home must be habitually clean and high-minded, it must offer something of interest to every member of the family, and it must present daily the news of the whole world in authentic and readable form. A large contract, you will say. Well, the newspaper, that comes nearest to filling it in the West is the Chicago Record Herald. Its moral tone is always high; its news service is unsurpassed, and probably no other newspaper in the United States has so brilliant an array of special features suited to the tastes and needs of every member of the family.

Business and professional men have long regarded the Record-Herald as the best paper for their own reading because of its unequalled faculty for getting all the news in the world and putting it into the briefest possible form for the busy man. They also esteem it for the reliability of its financial, agricultural and market reports. Young men perhaps find its greatest attraction in the excellent sporting department, which fills four entire pages on Sunday and a page or more on other days. Wives and mothers emphatically prefer the Record-Herald on account of its well-conducted feminine departments—its daily recipes and menus, its daily fashion news and hints for home dressmaking, Mme. Qui Vive's pungent and sensible beauty talks, Marion Harland's famous page and the rest of the good things that make up the handsome Woman's Section in the Sunday paper. Children enjoy the Little Nemo and other Comic Section pictures, with the bright stories for boys and girls every Sunday. And all the family together can enjoy the interesting travels and special articles of William E. Curtis. Mr. Kiser's humor and verse, the serial stories and other similar features outsize the news columns.

The Chicago-Record Herald has every right to call itself the best all-round family newspaper in the West.

Sensational Racing Yesterday in Six Heats for the 2.35 Class

Seven Horses started in the 2.16 Class and were Bunched All the Way Home—J. Wilkes Makes Wonderful Spurt—Hard Race in 2.35 Class

Peterborough's Racing Association like the Agricultural Association, is being pulled out of the hole, and will soon be on a sound financial basis and will attract crowds like it did in the olden days. Yesterday's races were almost perfect. Every heat was a race and the horses that won did so because they were the best horses. The racing association under the new management deserves great credit. They boldly entered the circuit, offered purses for two days' races and they got the horses entered and the first lot were started yesterday. A crowd of some 500 spectators will testify that better races were never held here and better could not be wished for.

The 2.35 class had four starters and they had to go six heats to decide the winner. Every heat was a hard race and the men on the sulkies drove their horses to the limit. The first two heats were nip and tuck between Joe Patchen 2nd and Flying Jib, each taking one. The first heat was in 2.17¼ and the horses were tuckered. In the third heat Furioso came to the front and by a hard race won out and also took the fourth heat. Then Patchen came back for a win, Furioso having acted badly. Flying Jib gave Patch a hard go but he could hardly make the grade. The sixth and last heat was a repetition of the fifth. A lot of small bets were made on the race, and had there been a booky on the track he would have cleaned up well.

The 2.16 class caused a sensation in the first heat. There were seven starters and J. B. Wilkes drew sixth position and had to trail the poll horse. He was kept in the back ground until after the first half could not pull away from the bunch, when he began to work his way up and just as he came around the last bend into the stretch he let out and with a wonderful burst of speed he came home a winner amid the cheers of the crowd. McAdams Jr., who drew the pole gave Wilkes a hard go but the final burst was not there. After that Wilkes took the race in his own hands, although he was not allowed to sleep at any time. The seven horses were always bunched and the race belonged to anyone who had the speed for the finish. There was a lot of clever driving which was necessary to prevent accidents. Harry Direct, the local horse made several good showings, but seemed to get in wrong and

Great Encouragement for the Unionists

London, Jan 20.—The complete returns from the eighty-one constituencies, mostly counties which voted yesterday, show that a wave of tariff reform has taken possession of these districts, the result being that the Unionists made remarkable gains all along the line. This has given the party great heart, and they are entering into the fight in the remaining constituencies with even greater spirit than ever with the hope that, if they cannot wipe out the Liberal majority, they will at least throw the Radical party into a state of dependence on the Nationalist element. This would, undoubtedly, result in another appeal to the electorate at an early date, when it is believed tariff reform would carry by an overwhelming majority over the Coalitionists.

Lindsay has Game Stored Away—Listen!

The first intermediate hockey match of the season will be played in Lindsay street rink on Friday evening between the Lindsay champs. and their old rivals, Peterborough. The Lindsay players, under the management of "Bill" Stoddard have trained hard and faithful for the past couple of weeks, and are in the pink of condition. The team, although not as strong as last year's champions, will no doubt give a good account of themselves, and are confident of defeating Peterborough for the district honors.

The players on the line-up have all had considerable experience with a couple of exceptions. The new man in the nets from Port Hope, is tooted as a wonder. "Pacer" McDougall is in town, and if a permit is secured for him, he will strengthen the team considerable. If Lindsay win their district, which no doubt they will, they will give a good account of themselves in the semi-finals and will be knocking at the door when the championship is decided.—Lindsay Warder.

In the calendar year of 1909 a total of 164,261 immigrants came to Canada as compared with 148,700. The immigration from the United States totalled 90,996, an increase of 34,000.

The Coboconk Line Sold by the G.T.R

Lindsay, Jan. 20.—It has been whispered around town and reported on fairly good authority that the well known railroad builders, Messrs Mackenzie & Mann have purchased the Coboconk branch of the G.T.R. system, and that it will be handed over to them on May 1st, 1910. It is also stated that Mackenzie & Mann have also secured running rights over the G.T.R. from Beaverton to Lorneville until such time as they can build connection with the main line of the Canadian Northern Railway at some point along the shores of Lake Simcoe.

Unionists Pleased with Their Victories

The London Borough Elections Were Brought to a Close Yesterday.

London, Jan. 20.—A succession of Unionists gains without a single loss marked the belated returns from yesterday's elections to parliament, received up to 1.30 o'clock this afternoon.

At that hour the state of the parties was: Government coalition—Liberals, 129; Laborites, 23; Irish Nationalists, 47.

Opposition—Unionists, 154.

In today's returns received at the same hour, the Unionists had gained 12 Liberal seats.

The contest at Westminster today brings the London borough elections to an end, as the sitting member, W. L. A. B. Burdett-Coutts, Unionist, is assured of re-election. The Metropolis in the new parliament will have 33 Unionists against 26 Liberals. The proportions in the new House were 39 Liberals and 22 Unionists.

From now on interest will center in the results in the provinces.

The Unionists are not counting upon striking gains in Scotland or Wales, but W. Ormsby-Gore, Unionist, son of Lord Harlech, adds a notable breach yesterday in the solid Radicalism of the principality by winning Denbigh district from one of the most ardent of the Welsh Nationalists, A. C. Edwards.

FORTY-SEVEN VOTE TODAY.

Forty-seven constituencies balloted today, among the more prominent candidates being J. Henniker-Heaton, Unionist, for Canterbury, of penny-post fame; Timothy M. Healy, Nationalist, for Louth; Thomas W. Russel, Liberal, for Tyrone, and Jos. Albert Pease, Liberal, for Essex, Saffron Walden division, chief Liberal whip.

—The Conservative papers today accuse Premier Asquith of having tricked the Irish voters on the subject of Home Rule. They declare that he promised Home Rule before the election, and that on the strength of this promise, the Nationalists issued their address to the Irish in England asking for support for the Liberals. As soon as the Irish votes were cast, however, the Premier, it is charged, hedged and practically withdrew his promises.

If King's Brother were at Ottawa

New York, Jan. 18.—The Times says editorially:—There are reasons why a large number of Canadians desire the appointment of the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General. The social influence of the residence of the King's brother at Ottawa would be enormous. The duke is a popular man, in spite of his retiring disposition, and he has an English gentleman's traditional tastes.

"The capital would wake up. There would be more gaiety in its social life than there has been since the memorable term of the Marquis of Lorne and his Royal wife. Ottawa would become, perhaps, a continental fashionable center.

"Lloyd-George and Burns may be brought to consider that one member of the Royal family in Canada will make one less at home."

Stetson Followers in Final Battle

New York, Jan. 19.—The First Church of Christ, Scientist (the one recently set into turmoil by the proceedings which ended with the ejection from the church of Mrs. Augusta Stetson) has its annual business meeting tonight. It is the first meeting since the Stetson troubles. Tonight the last stand will be made by the upholders of Mrs. Stetson. The opposition, which calls itself "the church party," believes that the Stetson party has no more chance than the Republicans have in Mississippi.

V. O. Striekler, the first reader of the church since the deposition of Mrs. Stetson, will preside. The principal business at the meeting, which will be held at Central Park West and Ninty-sixth street, is the election of four members of the Board of Trustees. There are nine trustees; the terms of three expire each year. This year there is an additional vacancy.

The present board is strongly pro-Stetson. Mrs. Susan Thomas, whose term does not expire this year, is the only one who was in sympathy with the anti-Stetson propaganda. If the so-called "church faction" triumphs tonight it will mean that a majority of the board will be anti-Stetson and the last vestige of authority in church affairs will be taken from the Stetson sympathizers.

The "church party" had a meeting at Duryea Hall last night and nominated the following to be trustees: Benjamin Bailey, Arthur O. Probst, Charles O. Dean and Mary Beach White.

It is believed that the full membership of the church, nearly 1,200 will be at tonight's meeting.

LAX IMMIGRATION.

Annual Report of Ontario Inspector of Prisons and Insane Asylums Shows Startling Figures.

Although the foreign-born number only 17.2 per cent of the population of Ontario, they compose 26.1 per cent. in the insane asylums.

The percentage is much higher in commitments to jail 36.6 for foreign born, double their proportion of the population.

The percentage is still higher when the commitments to the Central Prison are taken, 42.8 as against 57.2 of native born.

The figures are given in the form of charts in the annual report on hospitals for the insane, in order to emphasize the need for more care being taken by the Dominion authorities against indiscriminate immigration.

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impended appatently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous! Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were relieved of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

SURVEY PARTY.

Are Taking Soundings of the Scugog and Sturgeon Lake.

The Trent Valley survey party have commenced work on the winding Scugog and Sturgeon lake for the purpose of finding the area of the basin. They will do as much work as possible while the ice remains, as it is impossible to use a boat in the summer time. Soundings are being taken through the ice for the purpose of securing the depth. After completing the Scugog river the party will move to Bobcaygeon where they will sound the east end of Sturgeon Lake. After the completion of the work a chart will be drawn, showing all sand bars, rock and shallow water that will be of a great convenience to boat owners.

SENT THE BAD ONES BACK.

Province Deported 263 Undesirable Persons During One Year.

During 1908 the Province of Ontario deported 263 "undesirable persons," according to the official report on prisons and asylums, issued yesterday. In the two previous years 87 and 19 respectively were the figures.

The report speaks of the necessity existing for the Federal Government having some of their medical inspectors trained in psychiatry.

Mr. S. A. Armstrong, deputy provincial secretary, submits charts which show the alarming proportions of English and foreign-born inmates of Ontario's prisons and asylums.

Ottawa Retains Cup Defeated Edmonton

THE RING

Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—That Al Kaufman is not destined to become the world's champion is vouched for today by every fight fan who last night saw him defeat Philadelphia Jack O'Brien in six rounds of gory fighting, before the National A. C. Kaufman canbot hit hard enough; he is not clever enough; he does not know enough about the fine points of the game.

Kaufman beat O'Brien—beat him badly. But he couldn't get enough steam behind one of his blows to put out the Philadelphia dancing master. He tried hard, for he remembered that fatal seventeenth round out on the coast, when O'Brien put him out and he wanted revenge. But, though youth was the victor, youth couldn't make O'Brien take the count.

It was a rattling good fight, for what, O'Brien lacked in strength, he made up in agility, and clever boxing. His hands showed the effects of 500 fights. His knuckles were swollen so that a look a pain came over his face every time he essayed to land a crushing blow on Kaufman. He hit the Californian at will, but the blow only made the 'Prince boy smile. His chin was adamant.

The man presented a strange contrast as they entered the ring. Kaufman, tall, slender, unmarked, round muscled, towered over the flabby, battle-marked O'Brien.

The first round ended with Kaufman forcing things. The Californian rushed with a will, taking punishment but giving more. In the second he went after the Quaker with a vengeance, and kept O'Brien ducking to cover. O'Brien seemed to have lost his sense of direction and distance.

In the third O'Brien rallied, and rushed things, swaying Kaufman's head from right to left. It was a great rally, but it couldn't save O'Brien. In the fourth, Kaufman danced up, and sent O'Brien to the mat, but Jack came up like a jack-in-the-box, but could not make a blow stick, while Kaufman bored in with rights and lefts, and kept O'Brien on the run. In the fifth and sixth Kaufman forced matters, although a little wild at times. He tried hard to put O'Brien out, but the force wasn't there. O'Brien rushed into a clinch whenever he was in danger.

There is considerable talk today of matching the men for a distance go. O'Brien today declared he was not in good physical condition; while Kaufman declared he was sure he could put the Philadelphian out in a 20-round affair.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. E. Emerson, of Guys Hill P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea and disorders of the stomach and bowels, Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

ALWAYS FEARS DEATH.

Czar's Life Continually in Danger—The Persian Shah's Belief.

Wherever he is, wherever he goes, the Czar of Russia is surrounded day and night by police and troops or by battleships and police patrols, says an English writer.

Nor is the precaution unnecessary. Without this strict guard his life would not be worth an hour's purchase. There is always at least one plot on foot for his assassination, and numerous attempts upon his life have been made. But so far the keen and restless watch over him has been so successful that he has never actually come face to face with violence.

It is for this reason perhaps that he has that personal fear of death from which so many rulers are conspicuously free. The German Emperor, for example, goes about continually without any very effective escort and has consequently looked the would-be assassin in the face over and over again. Whatever may be his faults, the Kaiser has no lack of personal courage.

But even his iron nerve may break down on occasion. When he came to England on the death of Queen Victoria a photographer managed to get close to his carriage window, and the loud click of the camera sounded so like the cocking of a revolver that the Kaiser for a moment changed color.

One who saw the attempt made in Paris on the life of the late Shah of Persia says: "The would-be assassin jumped upon the step of the Shah's carriage and levelled a revolver straight at the head of his victim, pulling the trigger twice, but ineffectually. The Shah himself, looking directly into the barrel of the weapon, was the only spectator of the incident who was wholly unaffected. As motionless as a graven image, the only expression upon his face was one of a slightly contemptuous amusement, and when his assailant was removed he dismissed the congratulations of the officials with an airy wave of the hand, as though the matter were too insignificant for notice."

Answering the more formal felicitations that followed later on, the Shah remarked that if his death were not ordained by fate he could not walk unscathed among the united assassins of Europe, while if it were so ordained all the soldiers in France could not save him.

Bunyan's Memorial in Abbey.

Subscriptions are being raised to placed a stained glass window in Westminster Abbey in memory of John Bunyan. The dean has placed at the disposal of the executive committee one of the largest windows in the north transept of the abbey, and designs for the window have been approved. The cost is placed at £1,000, of which only half has been raised.

John Bunyan is read by millions of people all over the world. One might almost confine the statement to Canada. There are hundreds of thousands at all events here who have derived from Bunyan's great Dream one of the finest lessons in literature, and all that it implies. Many of the leading writers now rank Bunyan as the greatest writer of English prose, his strong earnest simplicity, and dramatic imagination standing practically unrivalled.

Not In Love.

The cashier of a French bank entered the private office of the president nervous and agitated.

"Sir," he says, "I have something on my mind which I feel myself compelled to disclose, though for months I have striven to conceal it." The president turns pale. "The fact is I love your daughter!"

The president breathes more freely. "Ah, you love my daughter! Do you ever make any errors in your books or in counting your cash, find yourself abstracted, eh?"

"Never, sir," with pride.

"Then, sir, I must decline to encourage your suit. You are not really in love."

Kept Dodging.

There was a chicken to be killed for Sunday dinner at the Cranes'. Mr. Crane did not like to wring its neck; likewise he shrank from using an axe.

"I have it," he finally decided. "I'll shoot it. So, armed with his trusty gun, he took the chicken to the woodshed. Little Robert, anxious to be in at the death, followed. By and by Robert's mother, hearing no sound, stepped to the back porch and called, "Robert, hasn't your father killed that chicken yet?"

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts in a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a beccafico, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

Transmigration of Souls.

Dear Johnnie—What caused him to renounce theosophy? The last time I saw him he was claiming to be the reincarnation of his grandfather.

Second Johnnie—Yes. He firmly believed that he was the reincarnation of his grandfather, but people began dunning him for money they had lent the old gentleman fifty years ago, and he dropped the theory like a hot potato.

Good at Learning.

Mrs. Post—Do you think you'll smoke when your older, Johnnie? They say it makes one awfully sick at first.

Johnnie (aged ten)—I don't expect any bother over it, mother. It wasn't the slightest effort for me to learn to swear.

Wasn't Necessary.

"Our paper is awfully exclusive," said the lofty one to another who had just moved into the adjoining flat. "Is yours?"

"Oh, no," replied the other. "We say anything to be ashamed of."

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all dealers.

GOVERNMENT OF JAPAN

Sure to Annex Korea.

Tokio, Jan. 14.—The possible annexation of Korea to Japan continues to excite wide interest and discussion. It may be stated upon the most reliable authority, however, that the Government of Japan has no immediate attention of taking steps looking to the annexation of Korea.

That annexation is very probable at some time in the not very far distant future is certain, but the policy of the Japanese Government, it is said, is the same as it was when Prince Ito was the resident-general of Korea, which means that if the Koreans lend themselves to the Japanese protectorate in such manner as to enable Japan to develop the resources of Korea and make of Korea a valuable ally, actual annexation will be indefinitely postponed, otherwise it is the only step remaining.

TO OPEN PORT ARTHUR.

Tokio, Jan. 14.—The decision of the Japanese Government to open Port Arthur as a free commercial port of entry has been under consideration for a considerable time, and while no official announcement has been made on the subject, it is learned from very reliable sources that the plan will be consummated in a very short time.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS : J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER : R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY : C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places : Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Okio, these giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons : First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities ; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $30.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Calgary and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures : A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 2-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring, three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 60c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity ; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends,is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50 ?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank,and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators,write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as references of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

LORDS VERSUS COMMONS.

How the Houses Have Fared In Former Famous Fights.

The whole of Britain is now anxiously watching to see what the Lords will do with the budget, and in view of the challenge of the Commons to alter or reject it, it is interesting to see how big encounters of a similar kind have fared in the past. The first great occasion of such a fight in modern times was when the Lords rejected the famous Reform Bill of 1832. That bill, as was quite easily seen, would alter for ever the superior standing the House of Lords had hitherto held in the constitution, so important would be the influx of new blood, new types of men, new methods, and new ideas into the Lower House. Therefore the majority of the Lords opposed the Reform Bill tooth and nail when it came before them.

Its rejection by 199 to 158 set all England aflame. There were agitations, scenes of violence, and outbreaks galore. Lord Grey estimated that at least 9,000 crimes owed their origin to that rejection. The Lords persisted in their course, and at last the King —William IV.—himself intervened, regularly or otherwise, by requesting, in a private letter to them, that the peers who opposed the bill should withhold their votes, and let it pass, so as to allay the tumults and threatened revolution which were disturbing the peace of the land.

Though there was tremendous opposition by the House of Lords to the repeal of the Corn Laws in 1846, and though time after time it declared it would not allow the act to go through, yet some very strong speaking at last by men of the stamp of the Duke of Wellington on what had happened before, and what the Government might do again, by using the kingly prerogative, brought the peers to their senses ere it was too late, and they acquiesced in the passage of the act.

Serious was the crisis, if not so terrible as in some other cases, when the Lords refused to pass the act for Disestablishing the Irish Church in 1869. Very deep was the feeling of the House of Peers against this act, and just as determined was the majority of the Commons and the Cabinet that it should be passed. It seemed certain for a time that the Lords would give the bill its coup de grace, and agitation with violence began again to rear its head, when, suddenly, it was rumored that it was the resolve of the Government to have new peers created in sufficient numbers to swamp the objectors if the Upper House any longer refused to bow to the people's will as shown by the Commons. This, for once more, swayed the peers, and the second reading was finally carried in the Lords.

Excitement ruled high, and striking things were seen, when the House of Lords took its courage into its hands, and fought resolutely against the Act for Abolishing Purchase in the army in 1871. This act, it is true, did not gain any great majority in the Lower House, and, of course, nearly all the peers were opposed to it, as it meant so much to many younger sons and relatives of the upper classes. Under the guidance of the then Duke of Richmond, they agreed not to pass the bill, and that peer raised a clever amendment, which did not pledge the House absolutely to rejection, nor to firm opposition, but stated that the peers wanted to know more about, and to consider duly, the Government's other plans for the army before they decided to pass the act.

The next great fight between the Houses was on the Ballot Act of 1871, when the Lords, seeing at last that resistance was useless, finally agreed to pass the measure, if it was accepted at first as an experiment only, for a term of eight years.

The Government consented, and as the Ballot Act got through. In 1888 this act was, of course, renewed indefinitely.

Guarding the Tower.

The Tower of London is where the Crown Jewels are kept. At a cost of several thousands of pounds it has been made absolutely impregnable against all the assaults of the modern burglar.

Immediately an alarm is given all the gates and doors in the Tower are instantly closed by pressing a button. There are several of these buttons—in the governor's room, at Scotland Yard, and in places known only to a few responsible officials.

Even the massive gates of the Middle Tower, through which visitors have to pass, weighing several tons, can be closed by electricity and prevent the escape of everyone within. At the same time an alarm bell rings to warn warders, police, and soldiers to prepare themselves for any emergency.

As may be expected, in the portion of the Tower where Britain's Crown Jewels are shown to an admiring pub-lic the precautions for their safety are carried out in a most elaborate scale. Should any visitor be daring enough to show an inclination to appropriate Queen Alexandra's latest treasure, the Cullinan diamond, one of the listeners on duty in the room has merely to press a button, whereupon the heavy door closes, the alarm bell rings below, the outer gates slam and lock, and every person within the Tower is instantly cut off from the outer world.

Saw Sow Introduced.

There was an interesting little incident in the Commons' chamber at the opening of the session. Mrs. King, the mother of W. L. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, sat in the Speaker's gallery and witnessed the ceremony of introducing of her son to the House. She saw her father, the famous William Lyon Mackenzie, introduced to the Legislature of Upper Canada in the '30's, years ago.

All Making the Best of It.

"Young Smiggins was so troubled about his debts that he joined a don't worry club."

"Yes?"

"And he found its membership made up chiefly of the men he owed."

Felt Like the Comet.

"And this man's case is what?" we asked the attendant in the sanitarium.

"He imagines that he is Halley's comet," is the reply.

"Halley's comet?"

"Yes. He thinks he is growing brighter all the time."—St. Louis Star.

A Mistaken Proverb.

Heiress (signing her will)—It's just as well to take the precaution, as "only the good die young," you know.

Lawyer—Ah, I always think that there's a mistake in that proverb. It should be "only the young die good."—London Opinion.

A Stage Manager's Fiasco.

The house bill of the Imperial theatre of La Roche-sur-Yon announced for the evening performance "La Tour de Nesle," a five act melodrama, and "La Soeur de Jocrisse," a one act farce. The drama had been disposed of, but the low comedian was missing and could not be found. What was to be done? A luminous idea finally entered the manager's mind. The orchestra played an overture, then another, then a third, then a polka and finally a quadrille. At last, when the audience had grown quite obstreperous, the stage manager appeared. He addressed the three conventional bows to the spectators and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, you are anxious, I know, to listen to 'La Soeur de Jocrisse.' The piece has just been acted, but through an unaccountable oversight on the part of the stage hands they forgot to raise the curtain."

For many years ivory manufacturers were trying to devise a machine for turning out a billiard ball as nearly perfect as possible and at the same time avoiding waste. Among those who strove to perfect such a machine was Mr. John Carter of the firm of John Carter & Son, well known ivory manufacturers. One night, after Mr. Carter had been striving to solve the problem for some time, he suddenly awoke his wife by shouting out, "I have got it," and rushed downstairs into his study, where he made a drawing of the last knife for the want of which he had been so long waiting in order to complete his machine. It appears that he had fallen asleep and dreamed about the machine, and in the dream, the solution of the difficulty was revealed to him.—London Answers.

And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. The groom's gift to her was a pearl ring, and to the best man, Mr. Claude Rogers of Peterborough, gold cuff links.

Mrs. Farrell in apricot satin and lace, with red roses, held a reception after the ceremony, when a buffet luncheon was served, and later in the evening the bride and groom left for New York and Washington, the bride traveling in Wisteria diagonal serge, and mink hat and furs. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Cousins will reside at 32 Laburnam avenue, South Parkdale, Toronto Star.

A CAPTAIN OF INDOLENCE.

He Managed to Dodge Both Work and Matrimony.

By H. S. FRANK.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Gabe was lying upon his back, his hands clasped under his head, gazing unthinkingly at the sky. He was twenty-five years old and barefooted.

Overhead a buzzard floated upon motionless wings, and Gabe's eyes followed it as far as they could without causing his head to move.

If he had any thought that was strong enough to be called an ambition it was to be a buzzard, for a buzzard was not forced to flap its wings to fly.

Times had been going somewhat hard with him of late. For one thing he had had to think, and the prospect was that before long he might have to do.

Cooper's daughter was now of age, and the understanding between the families had been that some time after Mary Bet was old enough these two should marry in order to save the seven acres on one side of the slope being separated from the nine acres which joined and crept over and down the other side.

Cooper was arbitrary, and Gabe's father, under the influence of Cooper, would be just as despotic.

Then Mary Bet was pretty—there was no denying that—and more than once Gabe's heart had thumped tremendously in her presence. In that state he had even looked about her cabin uxtically, it may be hopefully.

But Mary Bet did not like work herself. He had found the ax lying beside three or four uncut branches her father had dragged in and the seven or eight chickens pecking about without a sign of coop or shelter.

By that time his heart was again beating tranquilly, and he had viewed the scene with dispassionate forethought. Married to Mary Bet he would have to cut wood and perhaps make chicken coops and it might be would even have to plant a corn and potato patch.

The thought, made permanent by the persistent hints of Cooper and his father, had harassed him for days past, and this morning, feeling the need for absolute, unthinking rest, he had come out to this sunny spot where he could lie in his favorite attitude, with his hands clasped under his head.

But alas for plans! As the buzzard floated slowly beyond view and the unthinking eyes following it began to grow dreamy and heavy there came a sudden rasping interruption. It was Cooper admonishing his father.

"I tell ye," the strident voice was saying, "this thing's goin' on too slow. 'Fust we know somebody 'll be steppin' in, an' then where'll our two estates be? Divided. There's that Bill Tanner already comin' up to see Bet an' she 'lowin' him.

"Pshaw! He'd be for carryin' her way down to his cabin in the valley, an' likely 'a not they'd be for sellin' my seven acres some day. I tell ye, Mose, ye must be stirrin' up Gabe. He's a good boy and won't never be goin' off, an' if he's got a single wicked habit I've never heerd on it.

"I'll see the preacher this very day an' have him come up in two weeks. We'll have 'em ready by that time. I'll have to get Bet some new shoes, an' ye must say about Gabe's gettin' his hair cut. It's pretty tolerble long an' nuridy for a weddin'. An' we'd better be askin' all the folks to come."

Gabe had forced himself as deep as possible into the leaves, and he lay with bated breath until the voices and footsteps had died away toward Cooper's cabin.

Then he groaned and removed his hands slowly and despairingly from beneath his head. He must think and think quickly and hard or he would be lost.

Bill Tanner was peeling bark in the valley. He was a worker—not in the ordinary acceptance of the word perhaps, but from the slope point of view. Gabe went to him there.

"Hello, Bill," he began affably. "Gettin' quite a heap, ain't ye?"

Bill nodded gruffly. He had no objection to Gabe personally—only that he was welcome on the Cooper cabin, and that was enough.

"Hello," he responded. "But I 'low we'd better come some other day. I'm too busy to talk now."

"That's all right," graciously. "I don't mind seein' folks work. Comin' up tonight?"

"Where?"

"Cooper's, of course," with a grin. "But there's no need to get mad. Look at the look on the other's face. "I ain't here to pinch ye. I come down to sell my taters proper. What's ye give?"

It was Bill's turn to grin.

"I've heard 'bout right many prices," he said. "It's two acres an' old Cooper blowed it with his mass an' now

Positive Guarantee.

There will be a demand for years to come for the beautiful picture "The Soul's Awakening," issued by the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. There will also be many sorely disappointed when very soon they are told that another copy can be had. It is a wonderfully charming picture, it touched the heart of mankind. If placed in a show window almost every passerby will stop at first sight of it, study it, and go away feeling better for having seen it. But there is no reason for being without a copy in your own home. The publishers positively guarantee that for some weeks yet they will mail a copy to every person who remits a dollar for a year's subscription to the Family Herald and Weekly Star. Those who have already subscribed are sure of it. Those who have not should do so now, and be sure, for they will certainly want a copy if they ever see it.

Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. Exhibition Watched by big Crowd

A good sized crowd of parents and friends of the boys were at the Y.M.C.A. last night to witness the young fellows go through their gymnasium work. This was a special night for the public and it was free to all for the purpose of demonstrating to the parents the benefits and advantages of the gymnasium for the boys. The physical director pays particular attention to them and works hard and so do the boys. The program included only the regular floor work. There were forty-five boys on the floor and they gave a splendid exhibition of class work and gymnastics.

President J. C. Shook made a very happy address, pointing out to the parents the special benefit of the work from a physical standpoint and the advantages of membership in the Y.M.C.A. from all points of view. He appealed to the parents to give their boys the opportunity to attend the Y.M.C.A. and participate in these benefits.

An exciting exhibition game of basketball was played between the Y.M.C.A. working boys and the College late class. The teams were evenly matched and some clever and fast work was done. The students, however, won by a score of 10" to 9.

Agricultural Grounds and Buildings Needed

How much money will the city of Peterborough or the Peterborough Agricultural Society expend this year upon the buildings and grounds of the Agricultural Society? Last year the society put up a hard fight for new grounds and buildings and the officers endeavored to induce the city to take hold of the fair project. The effort was not immediately successful but it had the effect of creating a renewed interest among the citizens and resulted in a largely increased gate receipt. The agitation bore fruit and it should be renewed this year. The Agricultural Society is now well upon its feet and will meet with more favor in the eyes of the public. If the city took over the charter it would prove a money-maker from the start and it is time now for some of the city's money to be invested in productive enterprises. Enough money has been sunk in non-productive enterprises and the taxes are consequently climbing higher every year.

The Agricultural Society is a business proposition and one that pays dividends both directly and indirectly. The town of Welland has awakened to the fact and the society has been empowered to expend $15,000 in buildings alone. Toronto makes big money out of its exhibition and Peterborough will make equally as much in proportion to the capital invested.

Citizens Favor the Purchase of Chemical Engine to Fight Fires

In speaking with several citizens recently it has been learned that the general feeling is for a chemical engine in the fire hall. The chief requested the Fire, Water & Light Committee to get one this year, but he allowed other things to take precedence, although his request did certainly receive the cold shoulder from some of the committee. Still the chemical engine is the most important machine today for fighting fires. A great majority of the fires could be successfully overcome with the chemical engine, while a great deal of time would be saved and damage by water reduced to the minimum. The chemical engine is as important and necessary, if not more so, in fighting fires in private houses as in the big stores, factories and hotels. The man with a small house and a little furniture would feel the loss just as much if his little home was destroyed as would the merchant if his stock was destroyed. It seems therefore, that the argument of some of the Fire, Water and Light Committee in favor of the poor man is very bad. A chemical engine and a couple of more men at the central fire hall will meet all requirements for several years, and the expense will be nothing like the addition of a new hall in Ashburnham would cause. The suggestion of the new fire station across the river has been considered more as a joke than anything else. When the Fifth Ward has grown it may be a good thing, but at the present time the population is not going that way.

The Reduction of Hotel Licenses

(To the Editor of The Times.)

I hope every citizen of Peterborough has read Mr. A. W. Cressman's letter recently published, showing why licenses should be reduced to eight or even less in Peterborough, and how easily he has overturned the arguments—rather excuses—of the lawyers representing the liquor interests. It taxed the ingenuity of some of our cleverest lawyers at the council meeting to show even an excuse for continuing the present number of bar room licenses. Who are fighting against license reduction? Why mostly those who are paid to talk against it, and those are either in the business or indirectly profiting by it. We need have no fear in regard to providing accommodation for farmers and others. Is it the bar room that furnishes shelter for the farmer's horse or is it the stables and sheds? Does the public sleep and dine in the bar room? One would almost think he did to listen to the advocates of the bar. Do away with the bar and you eliminate, to put it mildly, much that is an offence to the eye and ear of respectable men and especially so to a refined woman.

I will admit that the hotel proprietary, without the bar, of the near future, may not be able—at the expense of the poor families of the inebriate—to sport so many fine horses and wear diamonds, but he will be a good prosperous and useful citizen, looking well to the wants and comforts of the traveling public. His success will depend upon this part of the business and not upon the bar. Be not deceived by the sophistical arguments of the liquor interests. The bar room has never ad-

Unionists Now Lead Liberal and Labor---Making Great Strides

Analysis of the Latest Returns Shows that Tariff Reform is Receiving Emphatic Endorsation--Seventeen Seats Retained by Unionists Doubled Majorities

London, Jan. 21.—The results from the county polls so far declared has, according to prominent Liberals, "staggered us."

It is not denied that the results will be very serious. If the Conservatives should win another 30 seats the balance of power will be in the hands of the Nationalists, and some Liberals do not deny that the position of affairs in that case would be one of great difficulty and gravity.

The Liberals attribute their defeat in the counties ffirst to the landlords warning their employes that if the Liberals are returned they will be dismissed; second the parsons have been doing all possible in order to prevent a settlement of the education question on national lines.

Summary of Results

Net Unionist gains over Liberal, 69

The Liberals and Laborites together have 181 seats to the Unionists 181. Besides these there are the 56 Nationalists.

Their success in the industrial centers led the Liberals to hope for a series of victories in the agricultural constituencies, but the result show that they had good reason for disappointment.

The result at London University was Magnus, Unionist, 2,625; Ridgeway, Liberal, 1,932.

TWO MORE ELECTED.

In Louth North, Healy, the Ind. Nat., polled 2,432, and Hazelton, the Nat., 2,333.

In Brecknockshire, Robinson, the Liberal polled 6,335, and Devereux, Unionist, 3,865.

On the other hand in 15 seats retained by the Liberals the majorities dropped from 26,209 to 24,340, a net loss of 1,869.

The Unionists scored even more heavily in the seats they gained. In 16 seats they changed a Liberal majority of 10,745 into a minority of 12,284, a total turnover of 25,029.

Peterboro' Won First O. H. A. Game

(Special to The Times.)

Lindsay, Jan. 21. — Peterborough won the opening game in the intermediate O.H.A. series here tonight by a score of 3 goals to 2. A good crowd of spectators were present and they were greatly disappointed to see their boys trimmed. It was a hard fought battle from beginning to end, and the players had to work hard. The ice was soft and towards the end it got slushy so that it was very difficult to carry the puck or to shoot on the nets, hence the small score.

At half time each team had scored only one goal, but in the second half Peterborough demonstrated better staying powers. Derocher in the nets and McDougall at cover-point put up star games for the visitors and broke up many rushes and combinations which threatened to be dangerous.

The next game in the series will be played in Peterborough next Friday night when the local boys hope to give a better account of themselves and pull out a victory.

The teams lined up as follows:

Peterborough.		Lindsay.
	Goal.
Derocher		Gamble
	Point.
Campbell		Taylor
	Cover.
McDougall		Carew
	Rover.
Ray		Stoddard

It was agreed that the road should be built by the Pauling Company, British constructoss. American engineers and a proportionate share of American materials are to be used. The ultimate cost of the road is estimated at about $50,000,000.

Trent Valley Canal Northern Outlet

Movement Started to Induce Government to Rush Completion of the Canal.

National Importance and Benefit of Trent Canal Has Been Established.

Once ore the north municipalities have started a movement to induce the Dominion Government to rush the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. Every man, woman and child in Ontario have heard and read about this canal for nearly half a century, and $6,000,000 have been expended on it already, but so far as through traffic is concerned it is useless. All the money has been spent on the interior. Neither end are open and even with every effort put forth now the object cannot be obtained for two or three years. Thus the action of the northern municipalities to bring pressure to bear upon the minister of railways and canals and the Dominion Government.

To Peterborough city and county and every municipality within the county this movement is of the utmost interest. None will benefit more or even as much as will Peterborough. This city is the natural distributing point for all the rest of the route. This is the largest manufacturing center on the canal and the greatest consumer of cereals from the West. What the completion of the canal means to Peterborough alone is sufficient to cause every citizen to become enthused over it, and to lend their individual and collective aid in bringing about the accomplished fact.

The national importance and benefit of the Trent Canal has been established. No longer is it necessary to harp upon that string. The minister of railways and canals, although that minister has been often changed, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the whole government realized the truth. They need encouragement nevertheless and it is up to the people of Ontario to furnish that encouragement.

Peterborough, aside from the benefit to be derived from the through traffic, has sufficient local, and even selfish reasons for going after this work. It will mean the upbuilding of the cereal and flour mills. It will mean the reduction of freight rates on practically all outgoing and incoming manufactured goods. It means a lower rate on raw material. It means a lower rate on coal and that item alone will benefit every householder every year to the extent of fifty or seventy-five cents on each ton.

So far as this city is concerned the opening of the northern end is of even more importance than the lower, for the reason that the city will have access to the grainery of the Dominion by direct water route and that means the erection of elevators here instead of on the floor. Geo. P. Graham, M.P., Minister of Railways and Canals, and to the Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, P.C., M.P., Premier of Canada."

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Failure in Liver Activity a Cause.

There are thousands on the verge of serious kidney trouble. Bright's disease, diabetes, etc., who like Mr. Jeremy J. Perry, of New Glasgow, were attributing their physical decline to every other than the true cause.

In a recent letter he says: "My kidneys, perhaps a result of dyspepsia, got all out of order; they ached excessively. I had constant thirst, and my body showed signs of wasting, despite an appetite in the early stages of my trouble, ample enough to sustain the body. I decided to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills and have great satisfaction in stating that they have completely cured me. An immediate decline in the volume of urine was the most noticeable result at the beginning, and this was soon followed by a regular action of the bowels. It was a great boon I assure you, to get rid of so pressing a desire to drink, drink, as was the case with me last summer.

"No question remains in mind that the liver was the cause of my ailments: I am sure that no pills for kidney, liver or bowel trouble can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I urge their use to all my friends."

No other medicine is so certain to cure trounles of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. You are sure to be cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse any substitutes. Price 25c. per box, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

No Black Handers Wanted in Canada

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—Hon. Mr. Oliver's Immigration Bill gives the government power to absolutely prohibit the entrance of Asiatics, and to deport summarily members, or men, not Canadians, suspected of being members of the Black Hand Society, the Mafia or Chinese Highbinders. It is understood that the government will raise the entrance tax on all Asiatics, save Chinese and Japanese, from $200 to $500 in order to keep out the Hindus.

TWENTY-NINE DROWNED

Marshfield, Ore., Jan. 21.—Rushing through the heavy fog that enshrouds the coast, in response to a wireless appeal for help that came too late, the steamship Queen, is now reported to be close to the wreck of the Southern Pacific Czarina, which broke in two on North Spit Coos Bay late yesterday afternoon. Twenty-nine out of the crew of thirty of the Czarina's company are believed to have been drowned, while one man, Assistant Engineer Harry H. Kentzel, is in the local hospital suffering from exposure, having been washed ashore, following a vain attempt to swim. He was picked up unconscious, but thanks to his strong constitution he will recover.

A Triple Murder in New York City

New York, Jan. 21.—A triple murder was revealed yesterday in an obscure flat in the heart of New York's East Side at dusk. Two women and a man are the victims. They had been garged with silk handkerchiefs and their heads crushed with hammers or an axe. The bodies were left fully dressed. A whimpering bull terrier was the only life in the flat. Robbery was the motive, or else it is another case of Black Hand. Salvatore Scalpone, a well-to-do young Italian barber, his wife and a middle-aged woman, believed to have been Mrs. Scalpone's mother, are the victims. Scalpone's failure to appear at his shop started an investigation which resulted in discovery of the crime.

CHOIR ENTERTAINED.

To an Oyster Supper by Mrs. McClellan the Organist.

At the conclusion of the choir practice in St. Andrew's church last night Mrs. McClellan, organist, entertained the members to an oyster supper served in the guild room. A full attendance of the musicians was present and a very pleasant evening was spent. The choir sang several choruses, and at the close a resolution of appreciation was unanimously tendered Mrs. McClellan. That lady made a fitting acknowledgement of the kind words spoken.

RACES TODAY

Instead of Yesterday on Account of the Soft Weather.

Owing to the very soft weather and the consequent condition of the track the Racing Association decided to postpone yesterday's races until this afternoon. It was impossible to put them on yesterday, and as the members of the association were desirious of carrying out the program they waited for a day.

The horses are all waiting over and the same classes and the same entries will be on today's program. If the weather is at all favorable the crowd should be a bumper one on account of the crowds into the market.

D RAILS USED.

Put Into Commission Yesterday at the Charlotte Street Crossing.

Semaphores and D rails at the Grand Trunk Railway crossing on Charlotte street were put into commission yesterday. This when in operation, makes it impossible for an accident to take place at this point, as far as the railway trains and street cars are concerned. With the street car having the right of way the semaphores are up and the D rails closed. On the approach of a railway train or engine the gates are put down, the D rails opened and the semaphores lowered. After the train has passed the gates are put up first then the semaphores, and lastly the D rails are closed. One lever operates the D rail and another the semaphores, and these, with the gates are in charge of the gateman.

Fred Whitcroft Has Signed with Renfrew

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—Fred Whiteroft, the brilliant rover of the Edmonton team, whose work was one of the big sensations in the Stanley Cup series, which closed last night, will finish the season with the Renfrew hockey team. One hour after the close of the big game last night Whiteroft signed a Renfrew contract at the Russell House. Whiteroft is understood to be getting the same kind of a salary as tempted Fred Taylor to leave Ottawa and Lester Patrick to forsake Nelson.

Renfrew is negotiating with Hay Millar and Bert Boulton, of the Edmonton team, and may land them to day. The others of the Edmonton seniors will likely go back to the West today. Millar and Boulton said last night that they would accompany them. Ross is going to Iroquois to visit friends and Field will leave the party at Winnipeg.

Whiteroft wired home yesterday asking permission to stay, and it was granted him.

The Edmonton players came out of the Stanley Cup series in surprisingly good shape. Whiteroft and Miller had a few bruises, but none were serious enough to require medical aid.

The receipts last night reached $2,800.

30,000 Men will Eat No Meat or Eggs

Clevelaod, O., Jan. 21.—Thirty thousand workingmen and business men have now asigned the anti-meat petitions, according to F. W. Sebelin, the shop foreman who is holding the strike against the eating of meat. To this movement was added today a strike against eggs.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 21.—The ranks of the abstainers from meat eating were augmented today by 500 Omaha workmen who placed themselves on a vegetable diet.

St. Louis, Jan. 21.—Three hundred and sixty-five stationary engineers have signed a pledge to abstain from eating meat for thirty days. Similar pledges have been signed by employes of several manufacturing concerns.

MOTHERS BLESS ZAM-BUK.

Read How It Gives the Little Ones Ease.

A most important thing for mothers to watch is the treatment of rashes, chafed or chapped places, etc. When you put an ointment on to a child's skin it gets into the blood through the powers just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach. Did you ever think of that? How important, therefore, that the salve or balm should be pure! Zam-Buk is absolutely pure; contains no animal fat; no mineral coloring matter, no acid astringents; no burning antiseptics—yet it is antiseptic! It is purely herbal, and thus meets all the needs of the skin in that superior way in which nature always provides.

Mrs. R. Gentleman, of 1090 St. James street, Montreal, says: "My two-year-old daughter has eczema for over six months, on face and body. Doctor didn't cure. We tried various remedies in vain, but could give the little one no ease. When Zam Buk was tried it was very different. It soothed the pain and the irritation, and the child ceased to scratch. Perseverance with Zam-Buk brought a complete cure."

Mrs. C. W. Howerbank of 128 Denison avenue, Toronto, says her baby's face was covered with burning eruption. Little one was terribly pained—scratched and made the places very bad. Zam-Buk cured.

Scores of similar cases could be cited. Zam-Buk should be in every home, because it heals sores, stops pain, and ends skin diseases. Eczema, itch, ulcers, bad legs, poisoned wounds, abscesses, cold sores, cracked hands, scalp sores, whether in children or adults, are cured by Zam-Buk. It is also a cure for piles. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send a one cent stamp (to pay return postage) and we will mail you free a trial box.

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

And Here is the Proof—A Solemn Statement from a Four-years' Cripple, Who Says "Nerviline" Did It.

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

WELL-DISPOSED BACTERIA.

One of the services performed for the farmer by the Ontario Agricultural College is that of introducing him to friendly bacteria. For instance he learns of those bacteria that hide in the soil, assist in the process of decomposition, and thus help to render plant food available to the growing crop. Another species forms little excrescences on the roots of such plants as clover, alfalfa, peas, beans and vetches. This variety draws upon the nitrogen in the atmosphere, which is a valuable food plant, and stores it up in the roots.

Professor S.F. Edwards has shown us the lactic acid bacteria at work souring milk, ripening cream, and giving the butter its flavor and keeping qualities. In the dairy strict cleanliness and the maintenance of proper temperatures foster the helpful bacteria. Filth and carelessness introduce the harmful species that produce inferior butter and cheese.

Bacteria play their part in the drying, smoking and salting of meats, in the preserving and canning of fruits, in the making of cider and vinegar, in the making of bread, and in a hundred other useful capacities. In order to do their work well they must have the most favorable environment. The best farmers are those who are careful as to personal cleanliness and as to the clean condition of their houses, stables and domestic animals. On first thought a knowledge of the minute organisms known as bacteria may seem too special and technical for the tiller of the soil to acquire. Nevertheless, an understanding of the scientific wherefore of doing things is essential to intelligent agriculture. The application of skilled methods to the tilling of the soil is increasing the product of the farm by millions of dollars.

KAISER KNOWS

More About British Navy Than Ministers Do.

New York, Jan. 18.—Writing of "William the Sudden" Kaiser of the Germans, without the awe the usual beholder shows when speaking of an almost mystical personage, "an English woman at the Prussian court" in the current number of Hampton's Magazine, declares the Kaiser is an ardent lover of peace, an ardent foe of women voters, and a deep lover of family.

The writer criticises the Kaiser's efforts to foist bad opera on the Berlin people and, when they refuse it, saying "the taste of the Berlin public is deplorable." The Kaiser, the writer declares, does not understand good music, and likes nothing better than a grapaphone uttering comic songs.

The writer asserts that the Kaiser is a keen lover of his wife and children, a canny, even boisterous friend; a keen story teller, with the laugh of a peasant; a democratic man withal, who, when away from home and pressed for time does not hesitate to send picture postal cards to the Empress instead of letters.

"It is not true that William burns the midnight oil over State papers and projects for the good of the people. He is singularly regular in his personal habits, retiring always, unless during a ball, at 11 o'clock.

Good prizes are being offered and are on exhibition in the window of Mr. R. H. Campbell's store.

FREAK CATALOGUING.

British Museum Has a System That Few Can Fathom.

It may seem ungrateful in an old reader who has reaped so many benefits from the great library in Bloomsbury to find fault with the arrangements, and if I stood alone in this complaint I would retain my isolation, but the grievance is ventilated by many.

In the first place, I and J are treated as the same letter, as U and V are. That was all right when the catalogue was begun and was in manuscript, but now that printing has superseded handwriting the obsolete fashion of cataloguing Jones and Ives under the same letter or Vale and Unwin as having the same initial might be discontinued and the modern usage adopted.

In the second place, anonymous works are catalogued according to a bewildering system, the object of which seems to be to hide the identity of the work.

Take the case of the valuable little book with the following title: "An Account of the Origin of Steamboats, in Spain, Great Britain and America and of Their Introduction and Employment Upon the River Thames Between London and Gravesend to the Present Time"—i. e., 1831. One would think that it would be catalogued under "Steamboats," that being the main subject, but no—it is catalogued under "Spain." I am told the rule is to take the first proper name.

That rule, however, is not applied in the next case. A well written little book published in 1907 is entitled "Devon, the Shire of the Sea Kings." "Devon" would seem to be the natural heading, but no—in the catalogue it will be found under "Great Western Railway."—London Notes and Queries.

Broke the Combination.

The father of Judge W. H. Wadhams had a chicken coop and a dog and a stable hand. It began to look to Mr. Wadhams as though some one had discovered the combination. So he kept the coop and the stable hand, but he got a new dog. Next day the gent old negro who groomed the Wadhams horses came to him.

"You los' you affection foh me, boss?" he asked.

"No, Scipio," said Mr. Wadhams. "I like you as well as ever."

"Then," asked Scipio peevishly, "why don't you tie old Rover in de chicken coop stid of dat new dorg?"—Argonaut

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 20,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Okis, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.65 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $30.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of one chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 20,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Tenewater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

GOOSE RANCHING.

How Fat Livers Are Grown For the Market at Toulouse.

Around Toulouse in France goose ranching is the peasant's great source of wealth. Twice a week to the goose market are brought thousands of live geese, so fat that they no longer try to waddle, but just plant where they are placed. This Toulouse goose is a notable product of selection. Where the ordinary domestic bird averages 9 pounds, that of the Toulouse varies between 26 and 32 pounds, when scientifically fattened for their livers.

Livers weighing 1 1-2 pounds are not particularly rare. The average liver weighs under three pounds. The potting establishments of Toulouse and Nerac pay peasants or geese speculators from 30 to 60 cents per pound for these "foie-gras" (fat livers). In the Toulouse market a live bird brings from $3 to $4.50, while phenomenons that weigh up to 35 pounds sell as high as $6 to $7.

Up to its 18th month the goose lives free, jogging through the fields for food. Fanciers, who go in for "magnificent pieces," products of intensive fattening, let them run until they reach their second year. Then comes the great change in the goose's life and he or she, who roamed at leisure, is suddenly cooped up in a cage so narrow that there is not room to turn. The floor is strewn thick with straw so that the bird sinks into it up to its breast. It is warm, dark and silent. Should the faintest cackling from the barn reach its ears its spirit would be troubled against fattening to the highest point.

In feeding, the farmer takes the goose between his knees, forces its beak open with a funnel, and pours in a lot of Indian corn. It is like loading and ramming a gun. Three times a day the farmer loads the bird. A goose can digest over a quart of corn a day during five weeks. Some digest 50 quarts in 35 days. The corn is not soaked, but, to facilitate digestion, a little water is given. Some add salt and cornmeal; others give soup, milk, and even a little ammonia. Sulphite of antimony helps to fatten, but is only used by experts, being dangerous.

During this time the bird scarcely moves; every child knows when the fattening is finished. The tail spreads like a fan, the feathers no longer touch each other; it is time to sell the goose for its liver. It is a vastly over-grown liver, but that is all right.

An Australian Fairy.

It is on account of her bewitching dancing that Saharet, whose wonderful performance at the London Coliseum has created such a stir, has been so termed. Saharet is of Australian birth and English parentage and is generally conceded to be the finest acrobatic and Spanish dancer on the stage. Curiously enough, no one taught her how to dance, and all she knows of the art is the result of her own efforts. She trained herself by creating wonderful spirited movements, with the aid of a barrel-organ as an accompaniment, and when that was wanting she sang to herself a suitable tune. She has traveled all over the world, and considers that the greatest compliment ever paid to her was that of a Frenchman, who said she was exactly like the Empress Josephine in the latter's younger days. "Ah, but if I had been Josephine," said Saharet, laughingly, "Napoleon would never have left me for Marie Louise, and then—who knows?—he might not have had to go to St. Helena after all."

Pretty Bad Writing.

Rufus Choate is said to have been as bad a writer as Horace Greeley. A new house of Mr. Choate's being under construction, he had arranged to obtain designs for an ornamental chimney piece from a certain quarter. There was a long delay, but at last there came a letter from Choate which was really an intimation that he had been unable so far to obtain those designs. But the workmen at once began to construct the chimney piece. Choate's letter had been understood as a sketch of it.

Swallowed His Model.

"Object" drawing has brought a new anxiety into the schools. In certain districts youngsters may be seen moving schoolward with hatchets, carvers, hammers, chisels, etc., as material for their drawing lessons. The other day, just as one of these lessons was about to begin, a small boy was found standing tearfully at the headmaster's desk.

"I've swallowed my object," he explained, with an alarming gulp.

"What was it?" asked the master anxiously.

"A banana," replied the would-be artist, with a final gulp.—London Fun.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Encouragement.

"Why don't you offer your heart and hand?"

"I fear she would turn me down."

"I don't believe it. She has given you enough encouragement."

"Why, she never gave me the slightest encouragement."

"Get out! I heard her telling you yesterday that her mother did not allow her to accept anything of value from young men."

Teaching Baby to Walk

Never encourage a baby to try to walk if he seems unwilling to learn. The sockets of the joints are very shallow in tiny children and the bones so feebly connected that they are easily dislocated. Besides, bowed legs are very much easier to avoid than to cure, and standing before the legs are strong enough to bear the weight of the body may result in permanent deformity.

Royal Christmas Cards.

The Christmas cards which will be sent out this year by the King and Queen have been specially painted for Their Majesties.

King Edward's Christmas card recall the knightly days of King Arthur and the Round Table. The scene is laid in King Arthur's great hall in the palace of Camelot.

Queen Alexandra has chosen a scene for her Christmas card in which another Queen of England played a part in which our present Queen excels. It is in showing the tenderest feelings for the helpless and the oppressed. The scene is the well-known incident when Queen Philippa pleaded for the lives of the citizens of Calais who had conducted its defence for twelve months against the forces of King Edward. The greatest of the Plantagenets stands with a purple robe thrown over his armor, while his gracious Queen kneels at his feet and implores him to show the greatest of all royal prerogatives—mercy.

The Prince of Wales has selected the incident in the Temple Gardens when the scions of the Houses of York and Lancaster plucked each a red and white rose to wear as their badges in the coming struggle. The Princess of Wales has chosen Sir Howard Davies' picture of Alfred the Great being taught to read by his mother, Queen Osburga. The German Emperor, as usual, comes to London and Messrs. Tuck for his greeting card. This year the Kaiser's thoughts are evidently on the sea, as his Christmas card is a reproduction of the scene when Henry VIII. set off on the Great Harry for the Field of the Cloth of Gold. The Empress of Russia, the Queen of Spain, and the Queen of Italy, have all three chosen a Madonna and Child.

A Spelling Obstacle Race.

To test the spelling capabilities of fifty applicants for junior clerkships in the offices of the Sydney Water and Sewerage Board, they were called upon to write from dictation this paragraph:

"This celibate was a licentiate in medicine, and held other scholastic diplomas. His characteristics were idiosyncrasies personified — one day taciturn, the next garrulous. To-day his facile pen evolves a sapient sketch in piquant satire of some literary genius; to-morrow an encomiastic effusion on an illiterate voluptuary. His studies on concrete science were exotic; his researches in natural history esoteric, if not chimerical."

No fewer than forty-three out of fifty candidates came to grief in this artfully-designed spelling obstacle race.

At the next meeting of the board a member doubted whether ten out of fifty Oxford M.A.'s, if suddenly called upon to write out the same, would succeed in negotiating every one of the words successfully.

Womanly pains, head pains, in fact any pain anywhere can be completely stopped in twenty minutes with one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about the formula. It is printed on the box—and it can't be bettered. Try one dose and be convinced. Box 25c. Sold by all dealers.

WITH THE CURLERS.

Only One Game in the Bonspeil Yesterday—Tankard Games on Monday.

Very slow progress is being made with the local bonspeil. Of the first draw in the primary there are still five games to play. While only two or three games have been played in the second draw. The weather has been bad ever since the opening and the ice reached the limit last night when it required all one's strength to get the stones to the rings. Only one game was played last night between R. Hicks and J. E. A. Fitzgerald, the latter winning by a score of 12 to 9. It was not curling at all. The weather promises to stiffen up at once and it should be in good shape for Monday and the curlers are urged to get their games pulled off at once.

The tankard rinks will go to Lindsay Monday morning to finish the games there. They will meet Bobcaygeon first and expect to have a pretty stiff contest. If they win they will then go up against the Lindsay bunch and — well there is no telling what will happen.

The next excitement will be the district cup games which will be played here next week, and these games promise to be first-class exhibitions and no doubt will draw a crowd of spectators.

M.H.O.'s Duties.

At an early date the Property and Health Committee will take up the question of the duties of the medical health officer and have them definitely settled upon. During the past year there have been several cases upon which the council would like included in the M.H.O.'s list of duties. It may be necessary to increase that official's salary as new duties will mean more work and more expense.

Remove the Slush.

Ald. Hicks, chairman of the Board of Works Committee, started Street Commissioner Harry Evans after the snow plow last night for not turning out to clear away the slush which was several inches deep on the walk. The snow plow contracts call for the removal of slush, and at the price the citizens are paying they should not be called upon to splash through such slop.

"Only five bottles rid my system of all traces of catarrh, and I have not noticed the slightest trouble for several months.

Medical Inspection.

Although the weather last night was anything but pleasant there was a very fair attendance at the lecture in the Normal School given by Prof. A. P. Knight of Queen's University, on "The Medical Inspection of Schools." The Normal students were greatly benefitted by the talk which was one of a series given during the term.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all dealers.

License Reduction

ded to the comfort or accommodation of either the farmer or the public but rather their discomfort. Look down our streets, do we need dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, etc? The stores are there to supply the demand. Do farmers and the public need hotel accommodation? Depend upon it their needs will be met by men who are always looking for an opening to make an honest dollar, and who will be glad to go into the hotel business, and who will make money too, and that with out the bar room? Why should they not be able to make money when the charge is $2 per day and upward when so many are keeping boarders at from $4 to $5 per week—60 to 77c. per day.

No man representing the public in an office today can afford to disregard the ever growing temperance sentiment, which is as a mighty wave of the sea sweeping the bar rooms from our country. Half of Ontario has no licensed bar rooms and the other half are fighting for license reduction. The people of Canada have spoken with a trumpet voice, "Awake thou that sleepest"—"Let us awake to the help of the poor fellows who are held captive as it were with chains of iron, by the quenchless burning thirst for drink. Let us arise I say and break those shackles, removing the temptation and let those captives go free. Free to clothe and feed their suffering families.

The people of Peterborough by great and mighty majority have asked for the total abolition of the bar, and undoubtedly will not be satisfied with a less reduction than asked for by the Temperance Moral Reform League which considering the great vote, is most reasonable and we feel sure that our council of level headed men will give effect to the will of the people.

License Commissioners will Carry Out By-law if Council Passes It

A meeting of the West Peterborough License Commissioners was held on Saturday night when the board was organized for the year 1910. Dr. M. A. Morrison was re-elected chairman, and Inspector Jos Stewart was re-elected secretary. The question of license reduction was taken up and the following letter was prepared and sent to the City Council:

To His Worship the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Peterborough:—

Gentlemen,—The question has been raised as to the attitude of the License Commissioners regarding a reduction of license bylaw. Our position has always been to carry out the will of the people as expressed by the representatives in council and any bylaw passed by your council limiting the number of taverns and shop licenses will be binding upon this board.

Signed,

M. A. MORRISON, Chairman.

Saturday's Snow Storm worst of the Season

Saturday's blizzard was the worst this city has experienced for a long time. Early that morning the wind was high and a lot of rain fell, but about 11 o'clock it started to snow, and the snow never ceased until late that night and the wind blew a hurricane and drifted the snow as fast as it fell. As a result the street-railway system was tied up. A noble effort was made to keep the cars running during the afternoon although the rails were very slippery, but along about six o'clock the temperature was lower and the snow drier and the wind filled up the tracks faster than the sweeper could clear them. It was impossible to move the cars and it was a late hour before the line was opened up again. The snow plow gang was kept busy on the sidewalks and they had their really first work of the year but the walks were all cleared in time for the people to get to church yesterday morning. The trains had a lot of difficulty and on Saturday night they were running hours late. It was the worst storm of the season but the sleighing will be improved and will likely remain until spring.

Fire Escapes on Schools

The recent fire in St. Clair Ave. school, Toronto, which had such serious results, for so small a fire, emphasizes very strongly the seriousness of the negligence of the Board of Education in not providing fire escapes. The fire drill is a good thing in its place. Earth is very good in the garden, but it is very bad on the parlor carpet. So is the fire drill very bad when the doors and stairways are blocked with flames and smoke.

It happened that two of the children injured were sons of a former Peterborough resident who had only removed to Toronto a few months ago. That matter brings the fact home and causes the local people who have children at the schools to ask "Are there fire escapes on the Peterborough schools." Without making any special investigation we can say "No! there are no fire escapes on Peterborough schools." We have visited during the past year all the schools and do not remember seeing a single fire escape. Yet there are schools two and three stories high and class rooms on every floor. Hundreds of children are cooped up in the schools with no means of escape if a fire should take advantage of the school authorities and successfully block all the inner corridors and stairways. Fire is no respecter of rules and regulations. Neither is an explosion.

The Board of Education will be criminal negligent if they do not take warning by the Toronto fire, and the many other fires of recent date, and provide for the children every known means of escape in time of emergency. The fire drill, should be kept up, and, also, should the new drill of climbing down a fire escape be adopted.

Paris is Alarmed by Dangerous Floods

Paris, Jan. 22.—The flood of the Seine threatens to assume the proportions of a catastrophe. The water at 2 o'clock had risen a foot since morning. The foundations of many buildings and notably the Eiffel Tower have been infiltrated, and the structures are in danger of collapsing.

Railroad, telegraph and telephone communication is interrupted throughout eastern France to-day by the floods. Many bridges have been swept away, and canal traffic has been abandoned. The streets in scores of cities and villages are under water. Lille, Chalons and Troyes suffered most.

PARIS IS ALARMED.

The situation in Paris promises to be worse than yesterday as the Seine continues to rise rapidly. It is expected that the river will reach its maximum flood to-morrow. There is sixty-one feet of water in the new subway between Place De La Concorce and Passage De La Trinite. A portion of the Boulevard of St. Germain above the subway has caved in. Hundreds of factories have been inundated.

THE FIREMEN'S SALARIES.

Members of the Department Should Receive Larger Salaries.

How many men are there who will accept a job which requires them to be on duty 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and 52 weeks in the year for the munificent sum of $599 per annum or less than $10 per week? No doubt lots of employers would expect to get men for that price and would never pay more, no matter how well the work was performed, unless compelled to do so. Peterborough's fire department is paid on that basis, and a man has to work for a whole year before he gets an increase of $50. When times are hard and work scarce men will, through force of circumstances, accept such a job until a better is offered. But when work is plentiful and wages are better and hours are shorter and the employment more interesting, only the scum can be secured for such a job as fireman at $10 per week.

Chief Howard notified the Fire, Water and Light Committee in his annual report that he found it difficult to retain the services of good men at $10 per week and he recommended that the scale of wages be increased. The chief was perfectly correct in his recommendation and the Fire, Water & Light Committee, in the interests of the city, is called upon to give the recommendation its most serious consideration. The city cannot afford to trust its property to incompetent workmen and the council cannot afford to treat this matter lightly.

Aside from the proper protection of property, in which every ratepayer is interested, a man cannot live and support a family on $10 a week. The council, or an employer either, who is getting value from an employee, has no right to ask a person to work for that price. Every alderman in the council would consider it an insult to be asked to live on $10 per week. Lots of men will work for a time but they have a reason for so doing and at the first opportunity they will leave and another vacancy has to be filled and another man has to be taught.

Small salaries for efficient work is a bad policy no matter whether the employer is a city, a company or an individual. The employer will always be the loser in the end. No man has to work for nothing, and it is a fool's idea to think they do.

$10 per week for street work, rough labor, etc., with 8 or 10 hours' service, and 6 days a week, may be all right. But $10 a week for 24 hour service is next to a disgrace. The minimum wage for firemen should be raised to $624 a year, or $12 per week, with substantial increases each year until a maximum of $800 is reached for firemen; and officers and special men approximate by higher.

Ald. Morgan, chairman of the committee, was instructed to gather information from fire departments in other cities and when he reports back to the committee, as he will no doubt do at an early date, his colleagues will be better able to see where they stand.

MUSIC ARRIVED

For the Madrigal Club and First Rehearsal on Tuesday Night.

On Saturday Mr. R. Gliddon received the music for the Madrigal Club from Dr. Ham, Toronto, conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir. The selection was Dudley Buck's "Hymn of Praise," and Dr. Ham stated that the Madrigal Club was welcome to anything in the Mendelssohn Choir's library. He was very glad that Peterborough was waking up and would be entered in the Earl Grey competition to be held in Toronto on April 4th. The first rehearsal will be held in the Conservatory of Music on Tuesday night.

Nationalists are in a Position to Control the Next Parliament

The Liberals Now Despair of Outcome—Unionists Get Popular Vote—Place Thirty-two Seats to Their Credit Out of Fifty-Six Contests Friday

London, Jan. 22.—The Unionists place 32 seats to their credit out of 56 contests yesterday for members of parliament, the returns from which were received today.

The Liberals take 20 seats, the Nationalists 3, and the Laborites 1.

The Unionist gains are 19 and the Liberal 2. The latter are the only gains that the government has made during the past four days. With yesterday's returns complete, the state of the parties is:

Opposition—Unionists 217.

UNIONISTS GET POPULAR VOTE

Out of the 56 seats, the results for which are being announced today, the Liberals in the last parliament held 47 and the Unionists only 15. Accordingly, the opinion that these English counties favor the Tories, as shown by the turnover of seats, appears pronounced enough.

Turnovers of from 3000 to 4000 votes from the Liberals to the Unionists are common.

Henry Chaplin, who was regarded as the archpriest of tariff reform before Chamberlain took the field, was re-elected for the Wimbledon division by over 5200 majority.

This is not so great as his previous majority, but Chaplin's opponent in 1907 was a woman suffragist who was unable to poll a great part of the Liberal vote.

The tariff reformers also made a substantial inroad upon the heretofore solid free trade ranks of Yorkshire. Three Yorkshire seats have been placed to the credit of the Unionists today, and two of these seats were held formerly by the Liberals.

Summary of Results

Unionists	217
Liberals	179
Labor	33
Nationalists	64
Unionists gains	100
Liberal gains	12
Labor gains	1

Liberal Mob Enraged wrecked a Store

London, Jan. 22.—Enraged by an exhibit of imported goods, displayed as a tariff reform argument, a Liberal mob attacking a shop at Combe rifling it and destroying the goods. The police had a terrific battle to prevent the store itself being fired and when they attempted to arrest the ringleaders they were driven back and some of them were pushed through the windows of the store.

The goods were piled in the streets and burned all the neighboring houses being endangered by the flames.

There were many individual clashes between Liberals and Conservatives, and the affair became a pitched battle before police reinforcements came up and the streets were cleared.

Drank Champagne No Water Available

Marseilles, France, Jan. 22.—After an eventful voyage, the I. & O liner Oceania, bound for Bombay, put in at this port. Near Cape Finistere the Oceania fell in with a French schooner yacht which was flying signals of distress. Communication was established, and the yacht signalled "Short of water. Want doctor." A heavy sea was running, but after some difficulty one of the Oceania's boats was launched and put out to the distressed vessel. It was found that she was the Argus, fifteen days out from Dieppe, bound for this port For three days the crew had no water, and had been "reduced" to living on champagne and claret. Some of the crew were suffering from fever, and these were attended by the doctor. The Oceania's boat made two trips to the Argus. In exchange for water the crew of the Argus gave away a large quantity of wine to the Oceania's crew, saying that they were tired of it.

THERE'S SORROW HERE

As a Result of the C.P.R. Wreck Near Sault Ste. Marie.

The awful wreck on the C.P.R. at Spanish River, near Sault Ste. Marie brought sorrow to Peterborough as well as to many other cities and towns in Canada. Among the list of dead and missing is Rev. Mr. Childerhouse of North Bay. Mr. Childerhouse has for years been an intimate friend of Mr. and Mrs. J. Reyner, 541 Gilmour street.

Mr. Robert Burroughs, district manager of the Bell Telephone Company at Sault Ste. Marie, was one of the injured passengers. His face was badly cut, and he suffered severely from bruises about the body. Mr. Burroughs was connected with the Peterborough branch some years ago and will be remembered by many here.

COUNCIL MEETING

To Settle the License Reduction and for Other Business.

The council will meet tonight in a committee of the whole and it is expected that the license reduction problem will be settled. There has been a great deal written upon this subject, most of it pure nonsense and illogical and read by very few if any of the aldermen. Nevertheless a great deal of interest is taken in the question and the action of the council is awaited anxiously. It is hard to predict what will be done, but one thing is certain, viz., that a big effort will be put forth to have the matter entirely left in the hands of the License Commissioners. If this matter is finished in time the aldermen will take up some of the business matters.

HORSE RACES OFF.

Second Day's Program has Been Cancelled.

The program for the second day of the Peterborough Ice races has been declared off. They were postponed until Saturday but that day was so stormy that the association decided to call them off altogether for this year. The only days racing was very successful and the association has a nice little sum to start on for the spring meet. Had the weather been favorable the success would have been much greater than any meet for several years. Horse racing in Peterborough is beginning to pick up and the new organization is greatly encouraged.

EASE FOR PILES!

"I Used to Suffer, But——"

This is the experience of a lady who used to suffer from this terrible ailment, but found a cure. The writer is Mrs. E. Boxall, of 97 Scott St., St. Thomas. She says: "I consider it my duty to write of the benefits derived from using Zam-Buk. For some months I was a constant sufferer from bleeding piles. I used a great many ointments, but got no relief until I tried Zam-Buk. It cured me, and I have had no return of the trouble. Since my cure I have advised several others suffering from piles to use Zam-Buk, and in each instance have had satisfactory results."

If you suffer from this ailment apply Zam-Buk at night before retiring and you will be satisfied with the trial! A contributory cause of piles is often constipation, and a mild laxative will greatly aid the operation of Zam-Buk. For fistula, inflamed patches, and sores due to blood poisoning, etc., Zam-Buk is equally effective. It is a soothing, cooling balm, which stimulates the cells beneath the epidermis and epithelium to natural action. It relieves the tension which is the cause of piles tension which in the case of piles causes such acute agony, and in all respects will be found eminently satisfactory.

Zam-Buk is also a cure for eczema, ulcers, cuts, burns, bruises, rashes, chapped hands, frost bite, cold sores, bad leg, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Mad with Jealousy Man Stabs Sweetheart and Her Friend

Toronto, Jan. 22.—Crazed with jealousy rage because the girl whom he had been paying attention for several months would have no more to do with him, having heard that there was Italian blood in his veins, Joseph Schell, said to be employed in the King Edward Hotel barber shop, Saturday afternoon stabbed, perhaps fatally, both his sweetheart Margery Harvey and Nettie Bennet, her chum and room mate in their room at 75 Shuter street.

IN THE HOSPITAL.

The story told by Nettie Bennett as she and the Harvey girl lay in the emergency ward of St. Michael's Hospital, is that they had come to their room at 3.30 o'clock from the Temple restaurant, where they both were employed. Schell had said he was coming but had been advised to keep away by the Bennett girl. He came in later and Joseph Peters, 617 West Queen street, and Ralph Telfer, 88 Crescent road, also dropped in. All were sitting there together when the row began.

HAD BEEN QUARRELLING.

Schell, who had been quarrelling with Margery for over a week, began his protests again and finally struck her. The Bennet girl went to her assistance, but was herself struck and thrown away. As she sat crying in a chair, Schell came to her and tried to quiet her. Failing in this he suddenly drew a clasp knife and stabbed her in the arm and under the left shoulder blade. He then turned upon Margery Harvey and stabbed her twice in the left forearm and in the breast over the liver.

Blood spattered over the walls, floor and furniture, and the women screamed in terror. Neither of the men in the room made any move to assist the girls according to the Bennett woman.

HEARD SCREAMS BELOW.

James McLaughlin, who lives in the house, was in his room on the floor above. He heard the screams and rushed down stairs. He burst open the door and got between Schel and the Harvey girl, whom he was still attacking savagely. She fled into the street and shouting for he let go. Schell rushed past McLaughlin downstairs and out into the street.

MAN TAKES FLIGHT.

Policeman McConnell, who was on the beat, happened along just then, and being told that Schell had fled to Queen street and gone east, pursued in a buggy which was passing, and pressed into service. Policeman Older, who was also on the beat, aided by Peters and McLaughlin, took the girls to Dr. W. J. McCollum's office at 94 Shuter street, and first aid was rendered by Dr. Kilgour while the ambulance was summoned, when they were hurried to St. Michael's hospital.

Meanwhile the detectives were notified and despatched to the scene. There they secured a photograph of Schell and his former address on Front street, Buffalo, N.Y. All the exits from the city were immediately stopped and the detectives are scouring the city for the man who fled without his overcoat or hat. His arrest is expected momentarily.

WOUNDS ARE SERIOUS.

At the hospital it is not thought that the wounds will prove fatal, although they are very serious.

Stock and Seed Judging Course Opens Today

Beginning this morning the carriage shop of Mr. George Fitzgerald corner Brock and Water streets, will be the scene of activity for three days. The three-day course in stock judging and seed judging will be held there and everything is in readiness. The live stock will be judged at Mr. Fitzgerald's, and the seeds in the Market Hall, where tables and chairs are in readiness.

Since everyone likes horses and would like to know more about the subtle knowledge of judging this particular class of stock, the classes in horse judging in other places have often received the largest attendance but while the horses are probably more attractive, the other classes will also be found to be most interesting. Each and all of the sessions will be found to be well worth attending. The seed judging work especially will reveal many things that they had not thought of before, to those who attend.

Farmers and others interested in this work will act in their best interests by attending as many of the sessions of the short course as possible and should arrange if at all convenient to attend them all.

The evening meeting called for Tuesday, January 25th, in the Collegiate Auditorium, bids fair to tax the accommodation of this hall. In view of the suggestion that Prof. G. C. Creelman, B.S.A., M.S., of the Ontario Agricultural College, should become leader of the Ontario Opposition, many will be especially anxious to take advantage of this opportunity of getting to know Mr. Creelman. As a speaker, he is popular with all classes. He is sure to be well received on this his first appearance before a Peterborough audience.

Titled Lady Had Grit Took Situation in Store

London, Jan. 22. — Among the thousands of women who have flocked to shops years a-shopping on Oxford street, during the past few months few, if any, have guessed at the identity of a smart assistant in the sales department known to her friends as Mme. Julie.

It has just leaked out that she is Lady Affleck, the wife of Sir Robert Affleck, a baronet, who a few years ago met with financial misfortunes.

APPLIED FOR POSITION.

Only a few of Lady Affleck's personal friends with Mr Gordon Selfridge and Mr. A. W. Best, the staff superintendent knew of the real social position of Mme Julie. When Selfridge's opened in the spring many thousands of people applied for positions on the staff. Among them was Lady Affleck. She told Mr Best the story of her life, and mentioned that she had spent thousands a year in shops. She was, she said, prepared to take any situation that might be offered by Selfridge's.

STRUCK WITH HER GRIT.

"I was," said Mr. Best, "so struck with her grit and determination under misfortune that I decided to give her a trial and appointed her a 'critic,' that is to say, she opened an account with Selfridge's, and proceeded to make purchases in all the various departments, and give us her criticism a written report.

"In this position she proved a great success. Her former experience served her in good stead, and her reports were full of excellent criticism of the various departments in which she made purchases. The result was that I eventually gave her a position in the costume department as saleswoman and an excellent saleswoman she has proved herself to be."

THREE THOUSAND ACRES

Lady Affleck was a Miss Julia Georgiana Prince, daughter of Mr. John Sampson Prince. She was married to Sir Robert Affleck, who was the seventh baronet, in March, 1896. Nine years ago Sir Robert sold the Dalham Hall estate, near Newmarket, to the late Mr. Cecil Rhodes for $535,000. Dalham Hall has been the seat of the Affleck's for a couple of centuries. It is a stately house built during the reign of Queen Anne by one of the Bishops of Ely. The estate comprised 3000 acres. It was largely lost through being tied up in litigation.

The Reduction of Hotel Licenses

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—Permit me to call attention to some absurd misstatements regarding license reduction, made by Mr. W. H. Moore in Saturday's press.

We do not accuse Mr. Moore of wilful misrepresentation, but it is regrettable that a citizen of his standing is not better informed on a public question of this nature.

His first paragraph deals with a list of second-hand bar room echoes, which he rightly says would be idle to discuss. Then why name them?

Mr. Moore claims that the cutting off of half the licenses would not lessen the appetite—not diminish treating.

The advocates of license reduction the citizens of Peterborough as represented by over two thousand ratepayers and not a few lobbyists as some would like to infer) do not claim that reduction will lessen these evils per bar room.

What we do claim is, that eight barrooms will not do as much harm as eighteen, ten men will yield to the temptation when passing a bar room, where one will go around a block to find one.

If "plague spots" are to be a compulsory evil inflicted on the majority, then the fewer the better. It stands to reason that eight will produce less pestilence than eighteen.

Mr. Ackerman testified to a great improvement after the license was off in the vicinity of his factory. If Mr. Moore's argument was correct, they ought to have licensed two bars to produce this good result, as he states that reduction will "redouble the evil," and this is the man who talks about "reasoning backward."

Mr. Moore states that these eighteen or twenty barrooms are like a delta in a river. It is universally admitted that the barrooms are tributaries to this great stream of evil, here the beginners start on the downward voyage. If you want to see the delta, go to the deposits, the black list, the almshouse, the asylum, the prison, the sediment of wrecked character and ruined homes, the finished article of the only business that is ashamed of its product.

We claim that the fewer the tributaries the smaller the stream and it is not "Reasoning backward."

A LIBEL ON THE FARMER.

The farmer comes here for business reasons, regardless of hotel accomodation. Hundreds come in by boat and train, and there is no class of men so eager for the overthrow of the liquor traffic as the farmer, and over one hundred teams were offered here for polling day—not a dozen as stated.

The farmer comes here because of better markets, better prices, greater variety of goods, etc., and if the hotel keeper is feeding the farmer's horse at less than a profit, he will still come when the price is right and pay his way the same as any other gentleman. He has no desire to profit by licensing pitfalls for his city brother.

But then the whole thing is merely a horse shed argument. Experience proves that in barless towns the farmer's wants are better supplied than ever.

As a last resort Mr. Moore appeals to the old revenue argument. If we must have the blood-tax, the council can submit a bylaw to have the license fee increased to one thousand dollars or more.

If as he states "the amount consumed will be much the same," the additional fee will not be a hardship on the remainder.

When cities like Toronto can get along with one bar to three thousand, London one bar to nearly eighteen hundred, Ottawa one bar to fifteen hundred, Peterborough's present rate of one to nine hundred is much beyond the limit of necessity so called.

It would be well for the council to note if Mr. Moore is speaking from the standpoint of public welfare, or if he an agent for one of the hotel properties he remarks are merely a professional impression for his clients.

Yours truly,
A. B. CUNNINGHAM.

In A Shadow

Invetegate Tea Drinker Feared Paralysis.

Steady use of either tea or coffee often produces alarming symptoms as the poison (caffeine) contained in these beverages acts with more potency in some persons than others.

"I was never a coffee drinker," writes an Ill. woman, "but a tea drinker. I was very nervous, had frequent spells of sick headache and heart trouble, and was subject at times to severe attacks of bilious colic.

"No end of sleepless nights—would have spells at night when my right side would get numb and tingle like a thousand needles were pricking my flesh. At times I could hardly put my tongue out of my mouth and my right eye and ear were affected.

"The doctors told me I was liable to become paralyzed at any time, so I was in constant dread. I took medicine of various doctors and no end of patent medicines—all to no good.

"The doctors told me to quit using tea, but I thought I could not live without it—that it was my only stay. I had been a tea drinker for 25 years; was under the doctor's care for 15.

"About six months ago, I finally quit tea and commenced to drink Postum.

"I have never had one spell of sick headaches since and only one light attack of bilious colic. Have quit having those numb spells at night, sleep well and my heart is getting stronger all the time."

A boon to Stock Raisers

We Know How to Cure Colic, Distemper, Colds, Swellings, Etc.—

Saves Thousands Each Year.

It is a matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse-owner and stock-raiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly sick.

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Fullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years:

SAVED $1,000 BY NERVILINE

"Several years ago when my horses took colic I used to give them Cayenne Pepper in a few cases only did it help, and because I had no proper means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Wendling, of Brockville, Ont., had in his racing stables with "Nerviline," so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000.00. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died, had it not been for Nerviline. I have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practical horseman proved beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Give Nerviline a trial. It's good for man or beast, internally or externally. 25c per bottle or five for $1.00. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MR. ASQUITH'S PROTEST.

The Premier of Great Britain is a man who weighs his word carefully, and importance must attach to his dignified protest against the importation into the British contest of foreign and colonial opinion. As to the latter he says: "We are agreed in our affection for the colonies, in our desire for every way compatible with the interests of the people of this country to cement the Imperial fabric, to tighten the bond and deepen the common sense of attachment, of loyalty and affection, but the colonies, and the wise, prudent, and far-sighted statesmen who govern their destinies would be the first to deprecate that any kind of pressure should be exercised by them on the free judgment of the people of this country.

We guard jealously our own right to manage our own affairs and fight our own battles, and we should undoubtedly resent any interference in our elections by persons who reside, do business, and have their main interests outside of Canada. We ought to be careful not to give our friends in the United Kingdom cause for complaining that we are meddling with their domestic affairs.

We have no right to interfere. Neither the Lloyd-George budget nor any substitute that might be proposed for it would levy taxation upon us. The House of Commons which is now being elected will not legislate for Canada. The law-making power, so far as Canada is concerned, is entirely in our own hands. Our laws are made by the Dominion Parliament and by the Provincial legislatures. Each of these bodies in its own field is virtually supreme. There is no proposition that the British Parliament shall trench upon the power and authority of any of them.

As to the tariff, Canadians will have no right to complain if the people of the United Kingdom adhere to free trade, adoption protection with a preference to colonial goods, or without such preference. We have exercised to the full our right to tax British goods imported into Canada, and the preference which we gave in 1897, and enlarged afterwards, was purely voluntary, the result of our own action, and not of interference from Great Britain.

It is true that Canadians are interested in certain aspects of British politics, but that does not release us from the restraints imposed upon us by good sense and good manners. The British Parliament is an Imperial Parliament, but it is also a domestic parliament. By far the greatest part of its business is the making of such laws for the United Kingdom as are made for us by our own parliament and legislatures. If we jump into the fight over the tariff, upon the pretext that it is an Imperial affair, we cannot seperate that from other issues, such as the position of the House of Lords, education, liquor licenses, and the taxation of land.

So deep and widespread is the interest in the election that no one expects us to refrain from thinking, speaking, and writing about it. All that can be done without plunging into the campaign, making personal attacks upon the ministers, or sending cables advising the nomination of a certain candidate. The provocation that drew the protest from Mr Asquith must have been serious, and it is to be hoped that it will not be repeated. Minding one's own business is one of the best recipes for promoting friendly relations among the free nations composing the Empire.

One of Field's Jokes.

Edward Everett Hale greatly enjoyed a joke which was perpetrated on him by Eugene Field. Field celebrated one of Dr. Hale's visits to Chicago by giving a luncheon in his honor and inviting a number of prominent persons to meet him. "Field was aware," said Dr. Hale, "that I was a temperance man, and therefore I was somewhat surprised to see that the table on which the luncheon was served was very abundantly supplied with bottles labeled 'Whisky,' 'Brandy' and 'Champagne.' But when these bottles came to be uncorked they were all found to contain nothing but water!"

Effective.

A Chicago judge recently rebuked a person who was sitting in the courtroom with his feet placed upon the table by sending him, through a bailiff, a piece of paper on which he had written the following query: "What size boots do you wear?" The feet were at once withdrawn.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. RELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Olin, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 60 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $12.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of one chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 2-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.20 to 2.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as references of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in these concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

TO SAVE THE OLD TRAILS

HONORE A. JAXON OUT ON HISTORICAL MISSION.

Riel's Former Secretary Is Going to Ottawa to Ask the Government to Reconstruct the Roads of Pioneer Days In the West—Many of Them Are Surrounded by Romantic Stories of the First Settlers.

Honore A. Jaxon, prominent in the stirring days of 1885 as the secretary of Louis Riel, passed through Winnipeg recently, accompanied by Mrs. Jaxon, on his way to Chicago and thence to Ottawa where he has a certain mission to perform. The purpose of his visit to Ottawa is to gain the co-operation of the Government in the preservation of the old trails of the West, and the spots of historic interest which are scattered throughout the three prairie provinces.

Honore Jaxon, who returned to the West after 28 years spent practically in exile in the States, has for the greater part of the past two years been making a tour of the West accompanied by Mrs. Jaxon on a prairie schooner, with a teper of his own design for shelter. He has visited, in his wanderings, Saskatoon, Batoche, Duck Lake, Carlton, Prince Albert, Battleford, Snake Plains, Jack Fish, Edmonton, Red Deer, Calgary, Macleod, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Swift Current, Moose Jaw, and Regina, and the country between, and has adhered as nearly as possible to the old trails, which were laid out by the plain hunters, with unerring instinct for direction and accurate knowledge of the country many years ago.

"I found to my regret, however," said Mr. Jaxon, "that many of those fine historic old trails had been fenced off, or ploughed up, and that places of historic interest throughout the West had been desecrated or torn down altogether. The Government highways which were formerly surveyed along the route of least resistance, and by which a communication was kept up between the settlers, whose place can never be filled by the railways, have been leveled by the plow, so that a few bushels of grain may be grown. Such a thing is pressing materialism too far. How can we plume ourselves upon the glories of the Northwest when we allow such vandalism to go unchecked?

"The value of the trails to the communistic spirit," continued Mr. Jaxon, "cannot be overestimated. In the old days we knew each other well in the Northwest, and each man greeted his fellow on the long trails as a friend. Now we are confined to the communication of the railroads. It doesn't seem to have occurred to those who are plowing and breaking and fencing out those old land marks, that in so doing they are not only breaking up a means of communication which is of great value, but that they are also violating the original promises to the Indians to the effect that the old trails should not be cut off. To this day the old chiefs resent the trespass as a particular manifestation of the white man's bad faith. The great test of the civilization of any country or nation has been its roads, and the country which neglects its highways characterizes itself as being very young indeed."

The trails to which Mr. Jaxon had special reference were roughly as follows: The old Carlton trail, used for many years by the plain hunters, which ran from Qu'Appelle to Edmonton, via Prince Albert, Carlton, Batoche, Duck Lake, Battleford, Frog Lake and Fort Pitt; the Whoopup trail, from Edmonton to Calgary, Macleod and across the border to the old whisky fort, from which the trail got its name; the Sounding Lake trail, one of the most romantic, by the Sounding Lake to the forks of the Red Deer, and thence to Calgary; the Swift Current trail, by which Col. Otter came to the rescue of Battleford in 1885, and which runs from Swift Current by way of Saskatchewan Landing, the Eagle hills and the Mosquito reservation to Battleford; the Green Lake trail, from Carlton to Green Lake, over which thousands of tons of supplies went north, and thousands of tons of furs came south in the old days, and which was known as the great north trail; and the Pelly trail from Qu'Appelle to Fort Pelly. Nearly all of these with the exception of a few to the southwest Mr. Jaxon found to have been to a greater or less extent, broken up.

"There is still enough left of the old trails, however," said Mr. Jaxon, "to rescue them from oblivion, and what I purpose doing, if I can obtain the moral backing, is to form a society for the preservation of the trails and historic landmarks of the Northwest. If the Government will not appropriate a sum for the purpose, then, perhaps, certain private gentlemen of means can combine to help in the cause. Anyone who wishes to take part in the undertaking may communicate with me at the general delivery at Ottawa.

"I remained for 28 years in the United States," concluded Mr. Jaxon, "and never during that time had I any idea of taking out naturalization papers. My heart was always in the Northwest. One of my chief regrets on my return was that I did not see my father alive. I have been taking many photographs of the old places and old-timers, and am just like a man who has been up in the North for two years and has returned with his pelts. I have procured many photographs of value and have compiled many things of historical interest during my trip."

Distance of the Pleiades.

It was calculated some years ago by the leading astronomers of Europe that Alcyone, the star in the Pleiades around which the sun and the whole solar system are thought to be revolving, was about 344,000,000,000,000 miles from us, a distance that it would take light about 163 years to travel, going at the rate of 186 miles a second.

A Marquess's Eccentricities.

The announcement that the Marchioness of Anglesey is to marry again recalls the eccentricities of the late marquess, who found an income of $500,000 insufficient to maintain his extravagant ends. He change his dress every hour of the day, and always changed his jewels to match his attire. His servants were dressed in rich, barbaric garb, his chauffeur being attired as an Indian Prince. The marquess wore a pink dress-suit for dinner, and bought jewels indiscriminately. He was often taken in, many paste baubles being foisted upon him by unscrupulous dealers, who persuaded him that they were genuine stones.

An Australian Fairy.

It is on account of her bewitching dancing that Saharet, whose wonderful performance at the London Coliseum has created such a stir, has been so termed. Saharet is of Australian birth and English parentage, and is generally conceded to be the finest acrobatic and Spanish dancer on the stage. Curiously enough, no one taught her how to dance, and all she knows of the art is the result of her own efforts. She trained herself by creating wonderful spirited movements, with the aid of a barrel-organ as an accompaniment, and when that was wanting she sang to herself a suitable tune. She has traveled all over the world, and considers that the greatest compliment ever paid to her was that of a Frenchman, who said she was exactly like the Empress Josephine in the latter's younger days. "Ah, but if I had been Josephine," said Saharet, laughingly, "Napoleon would never have left me for Marie Louise, and then—who knows?—he might not have had to go to St. Helena after all."

Pretty Bad Writing.

Rufus Choate is said to have been as bad a writer as Horace Greeley. A new house of Mr. Choate's being under construction, he had arranged to obtain designs for an ornamental chimney piece from a certain quarter. There was a long delay, but at last there came a letter from Choate which was really an intimation that he had been unable so far to obtain those designs. But the workmen at once began to construct the chimney piece, Choate's letter had been understood as a sketch of it.

Parallel with this is the legend that one of Napoleon's letters home from Poland was interpreted as a sketch map of the held of the campaign.

IF PEERS WERE POOR

MOST OF ENGLAND'S LORDS COULD TURN A PENNY.

Several of Them Are Expert Sea-Captains, and Many Are Capable of Earning a Livelihood at Literature —There Are Also Some Notable Financiers In the British Upper Chamber and Some Land Agents.

In spite of the dismal prognostications in which certain wealthy peers have been indulging as to the probable effect of the budget on their incomes, it is unlikely that many of them would be unable to make both ends meet by their own exertions even were they reduced by a hard-hearted Chancellor of the Exchequer to the painful necessity of earning their own living.

Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, for instance, could easily obtain employment as a chauffeur or garage attendant were he to be deprived of his estates in Hampshire, while Lord de la Warr is another peer who is equally at home whether steering a 60-horse-power motor car or a dainty racing yacht.

Quite a number of peers could earn a very good living amongst those that go down to the sea in ships. Lord Brassey is a case in point. Not only is he one of the foremost authorities in the Upper House on maritime matters, but he also holds a master's certificate from the Board of Trade, and has sailed many thousand miles in his famous yacht the Sunbeam. Another peer who is quite at home on the briny is Lord Dunraven, whose name was once in everybody's mouth as that of a challenger for the America's cup.

Many members of the Upper House, were they to be suddenly deprived of their inherited incomes, would doubtless turn their attention to literature and journalism, among those who have earned distinction in these fields being the Duke of Argyll, Lord Rosebery, and Lord FitzMaurice. In addition to these aristocratic lights of the literary firmament, there are, of course, in the House of Lords many men who owe their position to their brilliant work as professional journalists and newspaper proprietors. Most prominent among these, perhaps, are Lord Northcliffe, founder of the halfpenny press, which has done so much to revolutionize newspaper methods, and Lord Burnham, an ex-proprietor of The Daily Telegraph. In this connection it is interesting to note that the late Marquess of Salisbury in his younger days used to eke out his not over lavish allowance as a younger son by brilliant contributions to The Saturday Review.

Except as directors and "guinea pigs," few members of the Upper House would be able to make much of a living at commercial or financial pursuits but there are some conspicuous exceptions, notably Lord Avebury and Lord Rothschild, while the Marquess of Londonderry, an ex-Postmaster-General, has had considerable practical experience as a colliery proprietor.

Sporting peers whose ancestral hen roosts had been robbed would doubtless seek posts in connection with their favorite sports and this market would probably be overcrowded, for there are a large number of occupants of the gilded chamber who would be eminently qualified to act as trainers, huntsmen, or gamekeepers.

Among prominent peers whose knowledge of racing matters might procure them profitable employment might be mentioned Lord Durham and the Duke of Portland, while several noble lords who at present act as masters of foxhounds would be able to earn their living in the humbler, but equally important, post of huntsman.

Even if he had not his profession to fall back upon, the Lord Chancellor might still turn an honest penny as marker at a racquets or tennis court, he having been in his day one of the best amateur exponents of these games, while a post in the world of athletics could also be found for Lord Desborough, the founder of the Olympic Games.

Another occupation which peers shorn of their ancestral revenues might be glad to take up is that of a land agent. Earl Carrington, for instance, the present popular President of the Board of Agriculture, is probably excelled in practical knowledge by very few professional land agents, while another peer who is an adept in agricultural pursuits is the famous scientist, Lord Rosy.

From these examples it will be easily seen that peers, even if they do take life easily on occasion, are by no means the incompetent drones they are sometimes supposed to be. Indeed it may be said that there are few jobs which could not be performed by some handy man in the House of Lords. Even firemen are not unrepresented, the well-known Sussex peer, Lord Egmont, having at one time served in the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, while Lord Lonsdale is the energetic chief officer of a brigade in the provinces.

Dark Skins and Heat.

Staff Surgeon Oswald Rees of the British navy says the negro's color gives him an advantage over the white man in the stokehold as well as in the sun. "In the sun," this authority explains, "dark skins resist heat better; in the stokehold it radiates heat better." Dr. Rees says the little thin man loses heat much more rapidly and therefore is a much better stoker than is the larger and more fleshy man.

MRS. J. R. ORMOND

Died Suddenly in Victoria, B.C., on Saturday Morning.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. J.R. Stratton in her bereavement caused by the sudden death of her mother, Elizabeth Strachan Blair, wife of Mr. J. R. Ormond of Victoria, B.C., which took place on Saturday morning. On Friday a telegram was received that Mrs. Ormond was critically ill, and on Saturday, another telegram was received announcing her death. Mrs. Ormond resided in Peterborough for many years and will be remembered by the old residents. She was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and when she came to this country she was married to Mr. Ormond in Quebec. They resided in Montreal for a time and then came to Peterborough where Mr. Ormond conducted a jewelry business for years. He sold out here and went to Winnipeg about 30 years ago during the Winnipeg boom where he was very successful. Some seven or eight years ago he retired from business and moved to Victoria, B.C., on account of the climate and that has been the family home ever since.

The late Mrs. Ormond is survived by her husband, four daughters, Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough; Mrs. A. F. Gooding, Kenora; Mrs. J. T. McDonald, Victoria, B.C., and Miss Ormond, who lives at home; and two sons, Messrs. A. E. Ormond and O. B. Ormond of Victoria, B.C. One daughter, Dollie, and one son, Jas. B., are dead. The funeral will be held this afternoon.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 21 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY JANUARY 25 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Dr. Young's Account Not Paid by Board of Health Annual Meeting Held

Dr. A. W. MacPherson, medical health officer in his first annual report pointed out to the Board of Health the necessity of a scavenger system for the city be said he had received many complaints of unsanitary premises and upon investigation found the same to be justified. The city water and milk are both good and there is a marked absence of infectious diseases in the city. The doctor also dealt with the other important branches of his department.

The first meeting of the Board of Health for 1910 was held yesterday morning.

It was decided to take no action on the account of Dr. Young for $400, which was sent back to the Board of Health by the council.

Several important recommendations were made in the report of Dr. MacPherson.

Those present were His Worship Mayor Morrow, Messrs. James Murty, James Edgar, and Drs. McNulty and Young.

On motion of Mr. Edgar and Dr. Young, Dr. Burnham was re-elected chairman, and on motion of Mr. Edgar and Dr. McNulty, the mayor was elected chairman pro tem.

S. H. Mitchell was heard in regard to an account for groceries. On motion of Dr. McNulty and Dr. Young, the payment of the account, $19.46, was confirmed.

A letter was received from S. R. Armstrong, city clerk, giving an abstract from a report of the Finance Committee adopted by the City Council, returning an account from Dr. Young for $400, and stating that Dr. Young was not engaged by the city.

Dr. Young retired while this matter was being discussed. It was moved by Mr. Edgar, seconded by Mr. Murty, and carried that no action be taken on account from Dr. Young.

An account of $1.25 from the Higgins Hardware Co., was ordered to be paid when certified, and an account of $1 from White Bros. was ordered to be paid.

It was moved by Mr. McNulty and seconded by Mr. Edgar, that the secretary notifify the physicians of the city of reporting all cases of contagious diseases, which the law requires them to report.—Carried.

Judging Dairy Cattle for Milk Production

A big crowd of farmers and dairymen were in the city yesterday attending the three-day course in stock and seed judging. There were farmers from around Norwood as well as from the immediate vicinity of the city and the afternoon proved to be a most profitable one. Mr. Fitzgerald's carriage shop at the corner of Water and Brock streets made an ideal place in which to hold the classes. A tier of seats was fixed up on one side and an extra floor was put in on the other for the cattle to stand on.

The afternoon was devoted to instructions on and judging of dairy cattle. It was practical from beginning to end. Mr. Moore of Central Smith, the well-known breeder of Holsteins for dairy purposes, brought in three cows and two calves for the benefit of the classes.

Mr. C. F. Daly, assistant to Mr. Putman, took charge of the class, and in opening he instructed the farmers upon the different features to be considered in judging dairy cattle for productive and he pointed out the relative values of each. He started at the head which indicates constitution and character, and he went over the whole cow to the tail. A dairy cow wants a thin long neck, sharp shoulders, well raised spine and lots of space between the hook bones and the hook and pin bones. One of the most important features is the udder and he explained the importance of watching that part. The dairy cow requires large heart and lung capacity and a large bread basket. Mr. Daily then had those present examine the animals and about three-quarters of an hour was spent in this way. Then the result of the judging was given. The three cows were lined up and the opinion of the audience was asked as to each cow, and why they favored the different animals for their respective positions in that way the most information was drawn out and the most benefit derived.

At the conclusion Mr. Moor announced that the cow given first position had given 11,000 lbs. of milk the past season, the second cow 9,390 lbs., and the third cow 9,160 lbs. He tests his herd regularly and in the last three years had increased the average production of the herd 400 lbs. of milk, and 60 lbs. of butter fat. That is the advantage of cow testing. For a dairy herd there are three essentials, viz., breed, weed and feed. First get the breed, next weed or cull out the poor animals, and third feed properly for milk and butter production.

TODAY'S PROGRAM.

The program for today is:

9.30 a.m.—Judging light horses, in Fitzgerald's carriage shop.

1.30 p.m.—Judging heavy horses with a score card, in Fitzgerald's carriage shop.

2.30 p.m.—Seed judging in the Market Hall.

8 p.m.—Public meeting in the Collegiate Institute.

SEED JUDGING

Contest Held in Market Hall Yesterday Morning.

The seed judging contest in the Market Hall yesterday morning was largely attended. The class was in charge of Mr. T. G. Raynor, B.S.A. of the seed branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Of those in attendance that were interviewed each characterized the session as being fine, interesting and profitable. The first part of the work was to analyze a grain of wheat, the different parts were shown and described by means of charts and from the wheat before those in attendance. A sample of feed wheat was then laid before each member of the class who picked out and detected the various weed seeds it contained. Among other things Mr. Raynor pointed out that Bladder Champion seeds of which were found in this sample, is a common and most obnoxious weed in this locality. Oats were then dealt with, samples being examined thoroughly and judged by means of the score card.

Five Hotel Licenses will be Cut Off Down to "Unlucky Thirteen"

Aldermen Move Many Motions and Mayor Morrow Had to Vote on All but One—Only Three Supported the Moral Reform League's Request—Shop Licenses Remain at Four

The number of hotel licenses in Peterborough will be reduced to 13. This was the result of the aldermen's consultation last night. In other words there will be five licenses cut off as the Cavanagh House has already lost its license leaving only 18 licenses in the city. The result was only accomplished after many motions had been made and lost.

The number of shop licenses will remain at four.

Those present were Mayor Morrow Aldermen Phelan, Gillespie, Bradburn, Turner, Buller, Hicks, Graham, Metheral, Morgan, Batten, Duffus, and Duncan.

Two letters were received and read, from Rev. J. G. Potter, president of the Moral Reform League, and Mr. H. P. Kennedy. Both these letters were in reference to the reduction of the liquor licenses in this city. Mr. Potter's letter asked that the number of hotel licenses be cut from 19 to 8, and that the number of shop licenses be cut from 4 to 2.

A letter was also read from Mr. A. B. Cunningham, secretary of the Moral Reform League, stating that the league would provide boarding stables and sheds for the accommodation of farmers.

His worship then asked the council what they wished to do with the question of license reduction.

Ald. Morgan stated that he was in the same position as he was a week ago. He read a number of reasons why the number of licenses should be reduced.

Ald. Morgan then moved that the number of hotel licenses be reduced to eight.

Ald. Bradburn stated that he thought that the motion went too far. He said that a reduction of licenses created a monopoly.

Ald. Bradburn moved in amendment that the number of hotel licenses be reduced to 15. Ald. Graham seconded it.

Ald. Batten said he believed both motions went to the opposite extremes. He moved that the number of licenses be cut to 12. Seconded by Ald. Duffus.

Ald. Duffus said he did not vote for a reduction to 8, nor for the matter to be left to the Committee of the Whole. He was ready at any time to discuss and decide the question. He claimed that a reduction of licenses to the extent of eight would hamper accommodation. If the Moral Reform League would agree or guarantee to provide sufficient accommodation he would vote for a reduction to eight.

He agreed with Ald. Batten that the number be reduced to 12 or 13, and he seconded Ald. Batten's motion.

Ald. Metheral suggested that the License Commissioners be asked to make a substantial reduction and not name the number of licenses.

Ald. Hicks agreed with Ald. Batten and said that a reduction of licenses would cut off only the incidental drinking and probably that is what should be cut off first. He did not believe in hampering accommodation. His own opinion was that the number be redueed by six or thereabouts.

Ald. Phelan did not agree in striking off 7, 8 or 10 licenses by a single stroke of a pen. There are good hotels in this city and the past year or two has seen a great change in the management. He would support Ald. Bradburn's motion.

The motions were then put.

Ald. Morgan's was first put, reducing the number to 8.

Ald. Buller suggested that as there was a difference of opinion that the number of licenses cut off be 5.

He put that in the form of a motion, seconded by Ald. Duncan.

Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Graham moved that the number of licenses be 14.

Ald. Morgan then withdrew his motion and moved another motion, viz. that the number of licenses be reduced to 12.

An effort was then made to get the council unanimous on 13, but unsuccessfully.

Six votes for Ald. Buller's motion and the mayor declared it lost.

Six voted for Ald. Batten's motion that the number of licenses be reduced to 12, and the mayor declared the motion lost.

Ald. Morgan's motion to reduce it to 8 was lost, only two voting for it.

Thus all the motions were lost.

Ald. Hicks then moved that the number of licenses be reduced to 13.

Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Buller moved that the number be 14.

Ald. Bradburn's motion was lost by the vote of the mayor.

Ald. Hick's motion was then put and resulted in a vote of six to six, the same as the others, and the mayor declared it carried.

SHOP LICENSES.

Ald. Hicks opened the discussion on the shop licenses and stated that he would vote against any motion to reduce the number as it could not effect any good.

Ald. Morgan moved that the shop licenses be cut to two. Ald. Turner seconded it.

Ald. Hicks moved that the number of shop licenses be left at four. Ald. Metheral seconded the motion.

Ald. Morgan's motion was put, first and was lost by a vote of 3 to 9.

Ald. Hick's motion was then carried.

Up in Arms Against High Cost of Living

New York, Jan. 24.—New York today is in the thick of the fray for a reduction in the high cost of living. A grand jury investigation into the meat question is pending, a prosecutor's inquiry into the cold storage situation has been begun, meetings in protest against high prices for food products have been called, and pledges of abstination from meat are being numerously signed. The move to refrain from meat eating, while playing a considerable part in the local campaign, is not deemed so important in many quarters as some other phases of the movement against high prices. Considerable stress is being laid upon the investigation of the relation of cold storage to increased cost of food products to the consumer, while probing into the alleged meat combine is expected to develop interesting data for remedial action.

They retain fifteen seats previously held out of a total of seventeen contests. Of the other two seats one went to a Unionist and the other to a Nationalist. The position of the parties this afternoon was as follows: Government coalition—Liberals, 200; Laborites, 33; Nationalists, 69, Opposition—Unionists, 219.

David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, and author of the budget, which led to the general elections, was re-elected from Carnarvon Boroughs, but his majority was 146 less than in the last general election.

In the Romford division of Essex where the Liberals in the last election received a majority of 6,656, Sir J. H. Bethell, the Liberal candidate, only secured re-election by 1,957 on a total vote of 44,406.

Successful Social.

A very successful social was held at St. John's Sunday school rooms last night by the Young People's Association. A very interesting program was given including bandaging of fractures and wounds by the young ladies and gentlemen who have been attending ambulance classes.

Berates Church for Inciting Revolt

Paris, Jan. 22.—Premier Briand intervened in the debate on the school question in the chamber of deputies last night and was roundly applauded. In his speech he blamed the church for reopening the agitation in France when the question was in a fair way of settlement.

Rejecting the counsels of moderation by many bishops, members of the clergy and a great majority of the Catholics, the premier said, the church had launched a war upon the public schools of France, by deliberately inciting the pupils to revolt and caused untold hardships upon poor by forcing parents to remove their children from the schools.

To Hold Dominion Convention at Ottawa

Ottawa, Jan. 24.— The Dominion convention of the Conservative party will be held in Ottawa commencing on June 15th. This was decided this morning at the meeting of the General Committee on arrangements and which represents all the Provinces. There were some advocates of Winnipeg, and it had been favored by the sub-committee of the caucus, but on a vote the majority stood for the capital as the most suitable place for such a gathering and this was finally agreed to unanimously. Details will be arranged later.

Jack Johnson and Fred Simpson Held Concert

Toronto, Jan. 24.—An usual Jack Johnson, the heavyweight pugilistic champion, who is starring the show at the Star Theater, was doing things. Hardly had he arrived at the theater when he was served with a summons to appear at Brantford on Wednesday morning next for excessive speeding with his auto last August.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," said Johnston, to the officer. "Just think of me being arrested for something that happened six months ago."

"You're not arrested," replied the officer, "only summoned."

"I'll be there," concluded Johnson, who quietly folded up the paper, and slipped it into his pocket, as he has done with other papers many times before.

Mayor Morrow Host at an Enjoyable Function

Annual Supper a Feature of the Year—Great Prospects for Peterborough Outlined by the Aldermen

His Worship Mayor Morrow was the host last night at one of the most enjoyable suppers that has been given in Peterborough for a long time. It was the annual mayor's supper and it was given in Hooper's Palm Gardens. The guests composed the members of the council, the city officials, representatives of the Water Commission, the City Trust Commission, one or two private citizens and the press. Altohether about twenty gathered around the festive board and did justice to the splendid menu provided. The speeches were not lengthy but they were all filled with a joyous optimism which forecasts utmost harmony in the council and civic circles and advancement of the city's and citizens' interests.

His Worship Mayor Morrow occupied the head of the table with Messrs. James Stevenson, the father of the council and of the City Trust Commission, W. H. Moore and T. F. Matthews around him, while the other guests sat immediately in front where his worship could keep a fatherly eye on them.

The toast list was not long but there were many to respond to and during the addresses many important projects were introduced and if the aldermen carry to a successful issue half of the matters spoken of they will have established a resort and will have earned the public's gratitude. His worship spoke of the C.P.R. coming to Peterborough from the Georgian Bay, putting this city on a direct through route to the Canadian West and lessening the carrying distance by 100 miles over the other large centers of the Province. This he stated was of the utmost importance to Peterborough and the counc will take up the matter with the C.P.R. at a very early date.

Ald. Bradburn espressed the hope that the council keeps within its appropriations this year. Last year's council did. All the committees kept within their appropriations, although some very very small.

Mr. T. F. Matthews stated that the Water Commissioners have completed their construction work at the new dam and are now putting in the machinery. They find on the authority of a Montreal engineer that they will have a surplus of 1600 electric horse power to be developed at the new dam.

Ald. Turner mentioned many important items he intends to bring up this year. The main feature was that the Power Committee will be a live issue and he intends to have results to show at the end of the year.

Mr. W. H. Moore stated that the City Trust Commission completed their estimates for 1910 yesterday and the demand on the city this year will be $78,000 or $6,000 more than last year.

Mr. James Stevenson told of the very interesting times they had financing for the city away back in the '50's and '60's.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth told of the Industrial Commissioner will be Appointed Early This Year

Peterborough will have an industrial commissioner to be appointed this year, and appropriations will be made in this year's estimates. Furthermore the council will take the matter up definitely in the near future. Mr. D. O'Connell addressed the aldermen last night and aroused not a little enthusiasm among them. They have decided to go into the matter and try the scheme. Further information will be given from time to time.

A deputation from the Board of Trade was present at the Committee of the Whole Council last night. Mr. D. O'Connell acted as spokesman and expressed the board's desire to cooperate with the council in connection with the appointment of an industrial commissioner. He briefly outlined the ideas of the board and stated that Mr. Ryerson Ritchie late of Cleveland and Detroit, had consulted with a number of them and given them some very valuable information. Mr. Ritchie had been industrial commissioner or chairman of the Committee of Commerce. He is now with Boston and has been very successful, and has a thorough knowledge of how to locate industries. He will be in the city in a short time and it would be well to get further information from him.

Mr. O'Connell said that in making an appointment that they select a young man of education and capacity and develop him. The Board of Trade would be very happy to meet with and discuss the details with the council.

Mr. W. H. Moore agreed with what Mr. O'Connell had said.

Asked by the mayor what they thought would be required for the first year.

Mr. O'Connell and Mr. Denham thought that half a mill or about $4500 would be ample. The commissioner's salary would probably be $2500 and the balance used for his traveling expenses and for literature.

Ald. Bradburn heartily approved of the appointment of a commissioner at once. Better do it now than six months later.

A resolution approving of the appointment of a commissioner and a recommendation to the council that provision be made in the estimates for the necessary expenses was moved by Ald. Gillespie and Ald. Duncan seconded it. The motion carried.

Mr. D. O'Connell delivered a very strong and stirring address on Peterborough and its advantages.

The whole matter of the Quaker Oats Company's proposition has been left in the hands of a special committee to arrange and report to the council on Friday night, when it is expected that everything will be ready for the council to accept it.

Mr. W. H. Denham, superintendant of the Quaker Oats Company, waited upon the Committee of the Whole and went fully into the proposition his company have before the council, which is briefly to close Quaker St. and erect an $180,000 store house.

Mr. J. C. Shook was present representing the Dickson estate. That estate owns a triangular piece of property adjoining Quaker street. They did not wish to retard the progress of the city or of the Quaker Company, but their property would be injured. He suggested, however, that a street from Brock to Murray along the top of the bank be given in lieu of Quaker street.

Ald. Turner said he could not see where the closing of Quaker street would injure the Dickson Company's property at all. Their property cannot be reached from the east anyway without the aid of a flying machine or some locomotive power to climb a very steep hill.

Ald. Hicks suggested that a committee be appointed to visit the property and see what can be done.

Ald. Gillespie moved that the mayor, Aldermen Graham, Bradburn and Hicks be the committee. Ald. Duncan seconded the motion. The committee to meet Mr. Denham and Mr. Shook, and then wait upon the County Council.

The mayor asked if the council would agree to Mr. Denham's request if he and Mr. Shook could agree on the street allowance.

The aldermen were generally agreeable.

The question of closing Quaker St. was brought up by his worship, who stated that the city could not give a street to a company without submitting a bylaw, but could sell it, or exchange it for another street.

The question of the value of the street came up and will have to be decided upon later.

The motion was then put, leaving the whole matter in the hands of the special committee to arrange and report back to the council on Friday night.

WANTED TO VOMIT.

A Condition Involving Both Liver and Stomach That Was Quickly Cured By Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"The doctors told me my sickness was caused by complications of the stomach and liver," writes Mrs. E. P. Pourraine, well known in William sport. "The least little error in eating would cause nausea, and after a time actual vomiting was easily excited. I grew very thin, pale, with dark lines under the eyes; my strength so failed that even light housework quite exhausted me. Of course with a large family, I could not afford a doctor all the time, and when in deepest despair, I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. From the very first they acted wonderfully, and I experienced a desire for food and ate my meals with a relish. After a while my system became quite regular, and that horrid sick feeling only came now and again. This made me persevere, and it was a good thing I did so, because the continuation of Dr. Hamilton's Pills was the means of giving me my health again, and I am now the happiest woman I know."

Dying of Cholera

Local Physician Says Thousands Dying in Europe Can Be Saved With Proper Medicine.

What is it that keeps down cholera, cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or live druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

LETTER NO. 4272

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there was never a time that our house was without 'Nerviline.' In the summer time, when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. Mr. father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the house as Nerviline."

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Belcher, a well known resident in Batteress, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it today, keep it on and for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

HEAD OF THE FIRM.

So far England alone, aside from Wales, Scotland and Ireland, has given a majority in favor of Tariff Reform and against the Budget and Home Rule. With the borough elections concluded, and the counties stampeding to the Unionist column, the prospect is that the final results of the polling will show a considerable purely English plurality against Mr. Lloyd-George, and in favor of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals.

England contains three-quarters of the population of the British Isles; and it shelters the bulk of the wealth and of the industrial activities of the United Kingdom. Therefore, the Unionists are saying that, with a small majority made up wholly outside of England, Mr. Asquith will not be justified in trying to force through the Budget or Home Rule, or the emasculation of the House of Lords. There is the authority of the only living Liberal ex-premier for holding that no wise statesman would attempt a radical alteration in the constitution without the consent of the predominant partner.

In support of this view it may be argued that the directors of a joint stock company should not reverse the company's policy against the expressed wishes of the stock holders. The analogy may not be a joint stock company. Its government may not be a board of directors. Nevertheless, there is a point in the contention that, with an adverse majority in England, and a small aggregate majority, exclusive of the Nationalists, the Asquith Administration will find itself impotent.

Get Well First

Don't risk even a penny—until health first returns.

And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick will cost of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help.

And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are potent only there and in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unrestrained and uncertain medicines?

Thousands upon thousands have to-day gratefully voiced Dr. Shoop's Restorative. When the stomach nerves, or the heart or kidney nerves fail, they can no more know how quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever. They know that when Dr. Shoop's Restorative health fails it always will return. Then Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that first test bottle. And that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted. But write me first for an order.

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line to-day for I have contracted only with one druggist in each town. Then you can get a full treatment of the remedy you need, at your druggist's, on my say so. Then if you believe you are entitled to it, you pay him. Then he pays me. Then I pay you. That's all. You take no risk. You need not even write a letter unless you wish to. Then which book you want. The numbered below will surely open the way to health for those who are not well. Then you are perfectly free to consult me from my free records and my physician. My advice and the book both are free—and without cost.

Then Pay For

Purchase a card or write from me will close some serious ailment. I have found chronic troubles of thousands of my private prescription practice. Then surely worth your simple request to write me while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $16.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of one chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our statements concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as references of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 25.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

A SCOTTISH LEGEND.

The Story of the Knight With the White Feather.

TWO COURAGEOUS WARRIORS.

Heroic Alexander Hume and His Still More Heroic Fellow Soldier and Protector—The Sad Sequel to the Battle That Was Lost.

The heraldic arms of the Scotch town of Selkirk show a woman seated on a tomb, on which is also placed the Scottish lion. The legend told about the arms is this: King James IV. of Scotland, who was about to invade England, needed recruits for his enterprise. The town clerk of Selkirk, William Brydone, tried his best to aid his king by persuading his fellow countrymen to enlist in the royal cause. So earnest was he that he is said to have moved over a hundred lusty Scots to join his standard. Among these was one of the name of Alexander Hume. This man was a shoemaker of the town of Selkirk. He was strong, stalwart, bold and an excellent workman. Brydone was very glad to welcome him, as he reckoned him quite the best man of the hundred, and his comrades, who were also brave men and true, cheered him as he appeared among them, such confidence had they in his wisdom, prudence, valor and strength.

Hume's wife, Margaret, was a fine young woman and very fond and proud of her brave, strong husband. Now, Margaret did not at all like this proposed invasion of England. She felt that it would mean great trouble to the Scotch people, who would certainly be vanquished by their strong enemy, and the thought came to her that her own brave husband might perhaps lose his life in the struggle. She therefore used all her best efforts to keep him at home. She pleaded in vain. Alexander was firm. At last she held up to his face their little five-months-old daughter and asked who would look after the child if he should die and who would keep her from misery and misfortune.

Hume loved his wife and child, and these appeals brought the tears to his eyes, but they did not break down his resolution, which he had girt about him as armor. Nothing could move him to become untrue to his king and country.

Finding that no entreaties could move him, Margaret at last gave way to anger and told him that his eager desire to be thought the bravest man of Selkirk would not supply the child he was bound to work for with a bite of bread. She said even more than this. Her tones grew higher, and one word led to another, as you know it will, until the couple parted in anger, he to the field of battle and she to remain at home.

Alexander had not gone far before it flashed across the mind of his wife that perhaps she might never see him alive again. Unable to control herself, she flung the child into its crib and rushed out of the house. She must see her husband again and get from him one parting glance or word of reconciliation. She hurried through the town, she sought everywhere for him, but he was nowhere to be seen. He had gone off with his comrades. The poor wife wept bitterly. Her grief was deep.

Hume and his fellows were soon engaged in battle. He displayed the greatest bravery. Wherever he went numbers of the enemy fell. In every direction upon the field of battle he was seen. His companions kept well up to him, and in particular one man who had lately joined the party. This man fought with a courage equal to that of Hume himself, keeping continually beside him and defending him in many perils. Once when an Englishman from behind drew very near to the Scot this soldier struck the cowardly fellow to the earth just as he was inserting his spear between the chaps of Hume's armor. Hume called to the brave fellow and demanded his name, even in the midst of the fight, but the stranger said that that was no matter.

This generous soldier wore a leather jacket and an iron helmet, in which there was placed a small white feather. Wherever Hume fought on the battlefield there might be seen beside him the iron helmet and the white feather.

At last the battle ended in defeat for the Scotch, who scattered in all directions. Hume, who, with other soldiers, was obliged to lie concealed in the forest for some time, took the first opportunity of inquiring after his faithful attendant. But all his inquiries were without avail. He could not trace him. Nothing could be learn of him but that he had disappeared when the fight was over.

Alexander Hume hurried to his cottage. He was anxious to see again his beloved wife and bestow upon her the kiss of reconciliation. When he reached it he listened at the door, and his heart beat fast. He had kind words to say to her from whom he had parted in anger, and his deep wounds needed dressing. He lifted the latch and walked in. All was still. No wife came to meet him; no child's cry met his ear. On looking round the room he saw seated in an armchair the knight who had fought so bravely beside him in the battle, wearing the same leather jacket, iron helmet and white feather. That person was Margaret Hume. She was dead and clasped in her dead arms the little child.

Be conciliatory and considerate if you hope to win conciliation and consideration.—Ward.

The Nickel Fisher.

"No up to date American newsboy call learn something in Berlin," writes a New Yorker from that city. "One of the popular sellers of newspapers in this town is a gray haired, tall, soldierly looking man, who has adopted an original method. He has the papers attached, one copy of each publication, to a long fishing rod, on the top of which there is a little pocket for coins. People on sidewalks and at upper windows may be served by means of the rod. They help themselves to the paper they desire, deposit their money in the little bag, and the used paper is replaced by another from the stock which the old man carries in a bag slung over his shoulder. The children in the district where he does business call him the 'nickel fisher.'"

Naming Men-of-war.

The big battleships of the United States navy have thus far been named after the states of the Union and the cruisers for the cities. But the department has a good rule by which the names of men who in the past distinguished themselves in the service can be bestowed on the smaller craft. Thus the memory of five naval heroes has just been honored in the designations of the five new torpedo boat destroyers authorized by congress.

Street Names.

Paris' street with the longest name is La Rue des Pretres-Saint-Germain-l'Auxerrois. In Brussels is La Rue de la Montagne-aux-Herbes-Potageres. The Belgium metropolis has a suburb bearing the name Ongeschuperdenlievercokkernoljestratt. Holland eclipses these with Alblasserdamsevierdendeopstoekersvergaderinlokaal, which signifies "the meeting room of the street lamp lighters of Alblasserdamm."

Escaped.

Mother—Where is Mr. Asher? I thought you were going to play something for him.

Daughter—Ah, the wretch! As I was putting the children and the dog out of the room he slipped out with them.

Orderly.

Mr. Frontpew—I am glad you belong to our church choir, my dear; it is such an orderly organization. I never see you whispering to one another during services.

Mrs. Frontpew—No; none of us are on speaking terms.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

No Need of Fire Escapes in Most of the Schools

As a result of the fire in the Toronto Junction school, and of the enquiries of local parents, and of The Times drawing the attention of the Board of Education to the need of proper and adequate protection for the children in case of fire in the local schools, it is pleasing to note that the Board of Education has made a move. Yesterday Fire Chief Howard was requested by the board to inspect all the schools and present an official report to the board. The chief consented and in company with Messrs. Louie M. Hayes, chairman of the board, John Crane, chairman of the Supervision Committee, A. Mowatt, Public school inspector, and City Engineer T. A. S. Hay, they visited most of the Public schools. The chief remarked last night that in most of the city schools outside fire escapes were not necessary owing to the provision made on the inside. There were a couple of instances, however, where he could recommend outside fire escapes.

This is good news for all parties and the parents particularly will be easier as a result, but they will await the chief's report and the action of the board.

Much Good will Come from Free Judging Course

That a world of good should result from the short course now being held in this city, is the unanimous opinion of all those who have attended the various sessions of the course The work yesterday morning was confined to light horses. Mayor Morrow's roadsters and R. H. Leary's hackneys were the subjects judged; they served as to examples to illustrate the points brought out by Mr. MacRae, who was in charge of the session.

It was surprising to note the great interest taken by the crowd that attended. At least 250 attended the session yesterday morning. The short course movement is as yet only in its infancy. When such interest is being taken as in this particular event, it would be idle to predict just where the movement will end. From present appearances it may be practically taken for granted that Peterborough next year will be able to hold a five-day's course as is now customary at Lindsay. Many of those in attendance are from a distance, several having come over 25 miles, and they are staying for two or three days to take advantage of the instruction offered.

Mr. MacRae of the Live Stock Commissioner's staff, Ottawa, amply demonstrated himself to be a master of his subject. Comments to the effect that he knew what he was talking about were common, and the fact contributed not a little to the intense interest that was taken in what he had to say. At the outset Mr. MacRae dwelt upon the different breeds of horses. He said that the Hackney was the leading sire of carriage horses, the standard bred for road horses, and the thoroughbred for saddlers. The different kinds of horses were then described. The different points, and the conformation looked for in these various classes were outlined and explained. What types to breed to get these various classes were then taken up. The horses previously mentioned were afterwards placed by those in attendance after which their reasons were given and a general discussion followed.

SEED JUDGING.

While it may be said that Mr. MacRae is a master of his subject, viz. horses, Prof. C. A. Zavitz of the Ontario Agricultural College, who had charge of the seed judging work yesterday afternoon, may most aptly be termed a past-master of his specialty, seed grain.

The professor dealt with those crops most important to Peterborough county. The crops most generally grown in this county are oats, peas, barley and winter wheat, their importance in the order named. Each man in attendance at the session in the Market Hall was provided with five individual samples of oats of different kinds. These were used to illustrate the importance of variety, and to demonstrate the difference in results secured from large, medium and small seed, both for seed and feed purposes. He dealt particularly with the per cent. of hull, or in other words the quality of oats of the different kinds. Striking comparisons were made between Banbeney oats, which have 24 per cent. of hull and the Early Dewson, which possesses 36 per cent of hull—a difference of 12 pounds of meal in favor of the former oat, when the comparison is made on 100 pounds of grain of the two varieties. While this was true of the samples before the students, it was equally true of these varieties as generally grown.

During his remarks, Prof. Zavitz brought home clearly the fact that, while oats are the most commonly grown in Peterborough county, and throughout Ontario, there is probably no other cereal about which so little is known, and regarding, which many people judged wrongly. The oat crop, he said, was capable of great improvement in Peterborough county, as well as throughout Ontario.

Particular attention was given to the study of barley. Much emphasis was laid upon the importance of selection and special mention was made of one variety originated at the Ontario Agricultural College — the "O.A.C. No. 21" barley. This variety is considered to be the best barley grown in Ontario at the present time. It is a six-rowed, stiff-strawed, heavy yielding barley which is usually quite free from rust and weighs well per measured bushel.

The many who took advantage of the afternoon session on seeds came away more firmly convinced than ever that this short course is the best thing that has yet come to this county in the interests of abetter agriculture.

Mr. Frank Moher, Reeve of Douro, Selected as Warden for the County

Was the Unanimous Choice of the Members of the County Council at Their First Session Held Yesterday Afternoon—Standing Committees were Struck

Mr. Frank Moher, reeve of Douro, was unanimously chosen warden of the county for 1910. The new council held its first session yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, and got down to business at an early hour. As soon as the warden was elected a special committee was appointed to strike the standing committees for the year and the most of the afternoon was occupied by that committee.

Those present were:

John Henry Garbutt, deputy reeve of Smith.
C. Porter, reeve of Otonabee.
John Young, reeve of Ennismore.
J. J. Tanner, reeve of Lakefield.
W. G. Howden, reeve of North Monaghan.
Robert Shaw, reeve of Harvey.
J. Knox, reeve of Havelock.
Archie Brault, reeve of Norwood.
W. H. Comstock, reeve of Asphodel.
Frank Moher, reeve of Douro.
T. Graham, reeve of Smith.
W. B. Stuart, deputy reeve of Otonabee.
C. J. Darling, reeve of Dummer.
W. Tucker, reeve of Burleigh and Anstruther.
W. Hales, reeve of Chandos.
C. Coben, reeve of Galway and Cavendish.
Jas. Russel, reeve of Belmont and Methuen.

Clerk M. Elliott took the chair and declared the meeting open. He introduced the five new members and then called for nominations for warden.

Only man was nominated, viz. Mr. Frank Moher, reeve of Douro, and he was elected unanimously by the following resolution,—

Moved by Mr. Coben and seconded by Mr. Brault, that Mr. Moher be warden for 1910 of the county of Peterborough.—Carried.

The warden-elect was accompanied by the mover and seconder to the ante-room, where he rode the goat and donned his robe of office and later took the warden's chair.

Warden Moher then stated that he appreciated the honor thus conferred upon him, and he hoped that he would earn the confidence imposed in him. He asked that all the members co-operate with him in making this year the most satisfactory in the county's history. If the members of the council are united the business is bound to be transacted properly. The first business to be taken up at this session was the appointment of the standing committees, and he hoped that the best qualified men in the council would be made chairmen.

The minutes of the last regular session were carried and adopted.

Auditors were appointed for 1910 as follows:—Messrs. Calder and Casement.

A committee was then appointed to strike the standing committees as follows;—Mr. Porter, chairman; Messrs. Shaw, Brault, Coben, Stewart, Knox, Hales, Darling, Graham and Russell.

Wonderful Advance of Agriculture in Ontario for Past Few Years

WARDEN FRANK MOHER

Warden Frank Moher is receiving the hearty congratulations of his host of friends upon his elevation to the presiding officer's chair which is the greatest honor within the gift of the county. The ratepayers of Douro are particularly joyful. Mr. Moher is a very popular resident of that township and has been all his life. He was born and brought up there and has been known to all the residents from boy hood. His popularity is deserved for he has always lived a life at which no one can point the finger of scorn while on the contrary it has been an example to many. As a farmer his superior is hard to find. He is conscientious and thorough and has been successful. In public life he has displayed qualities of business capacity that have earned for him an enviable reputation and which justified the ratepayers of his township and of the county in placing him in the position he now occupies. That Frank Moher will make good as warden is assured. He has the ability and he has had the experience in municipal life. At his back is a strong council who will co-operate with him in carrying on the business of the county in a most satisfactory manner.

A brief sketch of Warden Moher is given below:

Born in Douro 37 years ago.
Lived there all his life.
Educated in Douro and the Norwood High school.
Entered public life first in 1904 as councillor when he was elected at the head of the poll.
In 1905-'06 he was elected reeve by acclamation.
In 1907 when the new act governing the county council came into force he was opposed for the reeveship by Mr. Dennis Maloney, and was elected by a small majority.
In 1908 Mr. Maloney was successful in defeating him.
In 1909 he again contested the township with Mr. Maloney and was elected.
In 1910, the past election Mr. Maloney opposed him, but was defeated by a good majority.
Mr. Moher first entered the County Council in 1907 as reeve of Douro, and that year he was chairman of Roads and Bridges Committee.
In 1909 he again represented his township in the County Council, and that year was chairman of the Printing Committee.
In 1910 he was elected warden of the county by a unanimous vote.
Mr. Moher will yet be sent as representative of the county to either the Toronto or Ottawa governments.

An Italian Murder in Railway Camp

Cobourg, Jan. 25.—A most brutal murder took place this morning about ten o'clock, near the village of Grafton, seven miles east of Cobourg. It occurred at an Italian camp among a gang working on the construction of the Canadian Northern Railway.

From details received it appears George Meronto, who was on the inside of the house used by the Italians, fired with a Winchester rifle, instantly killing Frank Marino and seriously injuring two others of his countrymen. Meronto has so far eluded his pursuers. Crown Attorney Kerr and Chief Ruse, of Cobourg, have left for the scene.

Paris Tries to Stem the Flood---People Flee in Terror

Paris, Jan. 25.—The military authorities this afternoon made arrangements to dynamite the Alma bridge, as the continued rise of the Seine makes it almost inevitable that driftwood and wreckage will lodge against the bridge and form a disastrous dam, flooding the entire city.

The bridge is one of the most beautiful structures across the Seine.

Reports from the river Saone section say that the stream is now a raging current miles in width. The villages of Ouroux, Gigny, Marnay, La Caloone, and Epervierre, along the Saone, were inundated this afternoon, the people fleeing in terror. There is said not to be a score of persons remaining in the fire towns.

It is still raising and the Seine continues to rise at the rate of half an inch an hour.

A Painful Accident.

Yesterday Mr. Hannah, father of Mr. Ernest Hannah, owner of the Princess Theater, was unable to attend to business owing to a very painful accident he sustained on Monday evening. As the former was coming from the cellar below the Princess, after he had attended to the furnace he happened unfortunately to let the trap door, covering the cellar stairs to fall as he emerged. The edge of the heavy door struck him on the lower jaw. A serious wound was the consequence, and three teeth in the lower jaw were loosened. A medical man was called and sewed up the wound that resulted from the accident.

President Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College Delivered a Brilliant Address.

Mr. MacRae of the Agricultural Department, Ottawa, Dealt With Live Stock and Dairy Cattle.

There has been more agricultural talk in Peterborough the past few days than in any one given time in the history of the city. Much credit for this is due Mr. Duff of Norwood, who organized and carried through the three days' judging course here this week and who arranged for and managed the public meeting in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall last night.

The hall was about three-quarters full, a much larger crowd than was anticipated, and the audience included many ladies and Peterborough citizens. The program was particularly interesting to all classes, inasmuch that the addresses dealt more with the results and what caused the results than with the details which are more thoroughly worked out in the colleges, schools, farmers' institutes, schools, and farm literature.

The different speakers pointed out what had been accomplished by the constant and ever increasing campaign being carried on against the natural enemies of the farm and the farmer, and for the improvement of the farmer and his household. At the same time the agriculturists and their wives received great encouragement and inspiration and they realize more fully the great necessity of adapting business methods to the farm, the same as all other enterprises.

Last night's program was an exceedingly interesting one from beginning to end. His Worship Mayor Morrow occupied the chair, and he opened with a few remarks that demonstrated that he had a wider knowledge of farm and farm produce than one would expect from a city bred man.

A number of musical selections were given by Miss Pringle and Miss Welsh, and these were enjoyed by all.

Mr. H. C. Duff of Norwood, district representative of the Ontario Department of Agricultural for Peterborough, made a very happy address expressing his pleasure in the way the people of this district are taking hold of this work.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.P.P., East Peterborough, who was largely instrumental in getting the Agricultural school established at Norwood, was the next speaker, and he congratulated Mr. Duff and the farmers upon the progress they were making.

Mr. MacRae, representing the dairy department of Ottawa, dealt particularly with the dairy interests. In opening he remarked that in all the five years that he had been traveling the Dominion, and attending meetings he never had the pleasure of attending one that created so much interest as the three days' judging classes here had. As to dairy cattle he said that the first and all important feature was the feed. If cows are not fed enough and the proper food they were a losing proposition and the farmer might better get out of business at once. Get the feed right then start raising the standard of the herd and at the same time start culling out the unprofitable animals. Whether a cow is profitable or not is very easily and cheaply ascertained by the cow-testing system which is now being so profitably and generally adopted. He remarked on the progress the Eastern Ontario farmers had been making the past year or two and he looked for great results in the near future.

PRESIDENT CREELMAN.

President G. C. Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College, was the main speaker of the evening, and he delivered an eloquent and inspiring address. No one could listen to him and not feel that there was a great deal in the farm that had never been brought out. He dealt particularly with the work that is being done by the college at Guelph in the way of educating and assisting the farmers. Not only the thousand or more students within the college walls, but many thousands of farmers throughout the Province who receive, read and study the bulletins and literature sent out from time to time, and who write for information and for seed grains and who exchange information as to crops. In has gained a wonderful reputation the college today there are 22 different countries of the world represented among the students. Ontario all over the world is an agricultural Province and this has only been accomplished by delivering the goods.

Through the efforts of Prof. Zavitz the average yield of oats in Ontario has been increased 19 bushels per acre. We hear and read a great deal about the wonderful and all important crops from the western provinces. But Ontario farms in 1908, produced in cold cash 60 per cent. more farm produce than all of the Canadian west combined from Manitoba to the Rocky Mountains. Ontario is the banner province and there is no getting around that fact.

The department of agriculture in Ontario, has recently made a specialty of drainage and in the last three years they have drained 32,000 acres and today the college cannot begin to keep up with the work. As a result of this drainage those 32000 acres have produced on an average $20 per acre more than formerly.

Mr. Creelman touched on the various departments of the college and gave a small idea of what wonderful results are being achieved every year.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

BIBLE CLASS.

Held Annual Meeting at Home of Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr.

The annual meeting of Mr. J. J. Turner Jr.'s Bible class, in connection with St. Luke's church, was held last night at Mr. Turner's residence and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The reports presented by the retiring officers were the best yet and showed a great earnestness in the work. The contributions were consistent and liberal. The program for this year's work was outlined and it was decided to hold the annual excursion on July 1st as usual.

The following officers were then elected:—

Hon. Pres.—Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.
President—J. J. Turner, Jr.
Vice—H. Moore.
Treasurer—Violet Whittaker.
Rec.-Sec.—Miss Moore.
Sick Committee — Miss Florence Butcher Miss Pearl Mitchell, Miss Carrie Whittaker, Mr. Moore.
Organist—Miss Charlotte English.
Asst. Organist—Miss F. Butcher.

Asks Government to Hold Inquiry Into High Price of Foodstuffs

The Speech from the Throne at the Opening of the Legislature Speaks of the Remarkable and Continuous Advance in Costs of Foodstuffs

"The remarkable and continuous advance in the price of food-stuffs and of many articles of household use, has attracted and certainly merits public attention. It has already caused hardship in many households, and promises to add grievously to the burden of living, especially in our cities and towns, except in the cases of people of large incomes. It would seem that prompt and thorough enquiry is necessary with a view to the possible suggestion of a remedy. Obviously this condition of affairs, affecting the people of the Dominion of Canada as a whole, comes within the purview of the Dominion Government and Parliament, and it is to be hoped that such enquiry will be instituted."

Toronto, Jan. 25.—The foregoing is, perhaps, the most important paragraph in the speech from the throne which was read at the opening of the second session of the twelfth Parliament of Ontario this afternoon.

MR. HASSARD RESIGNS.

As Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. to Enter Commercial Life.

Mr. Hassard, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., has tendered his resignation as the head of that institution. A meeting of the executive committee was held last night, and after hearing Mr. Hassard's statement decided to accept it.

The resignation is to take effect not later than April 1st, but just as soon before that as another secretary is secured.

Mr. Hassard, it is understood, intends entering commercial life. He has received a splendid offer from a Toronto firm and will accept it. He has been in the city for about a year and during that time has won many warm friends, while he is respected by all. His departure will be regretted by the citizens as well as by the members and management of the Y.M.C.A. But all will wish him the greatest success.

PRIZES PRESENTED.

In Farm and Dairy Special Farms Competition.

A very important feature of the meeting in the Collegiate Institute last night was the presentation of the cups and prizes to the winners in the Peterborough County Special Farms competition. These cups and prizes were donated by Farm and Dairy, assisted by Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., and Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie. Farm and Dairy undertook to create a desire for idealizing farms and opened a competition for Eastern and Western Ontario and a special competition for Peterborough county.

The winners of these prizes were:—

Mr. G. A. Breddin, Norwood.
Messrs. J. H. Moore & Son, Central Smith.
Mr. J. H. Garbutt, Smith.
Mr. Birdsall, Birdsall.

Mr. Cowan, manager of Farm and Dairy, made the presentation, and each of the winners made a short speech afterward.

High Prices Topple in the United States

New York, Jan. 25.—Milk, eggs, and butter led the procession of receding food prices here today. Nation-wide agitation aided by potent local influences have brought about the drop. Meat, too, is on the decline, following a greatly reduced consumption in protest against its excessive cost.

If the movement to curb the alleged trusts controlling important food products and thereby lower the cost of living, State anti-monopoly laws are to be invoked. Today a special grand jury, whose particular office will be to consider the effect of combination among dealers in foodstuffs, was sworn in.

While it is expected first to deal with the alleged milk combine, the meat question is likely to be put to it strongly and possibly the whole scope of the food situation will be taken in. Milk is down a cent a quar taken in. Milk is down a cent a quart already on at least two big dealers' routes. Butter in the best qualities has been cut 5 cents a pind, and eggs are off 5 cents a dozen in local markets. A great mass meeting to protest against high food prices is held in Union Square today.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Failure in Liver Activity a Cause.

There are thousands on the verge of serious kidney trouble, Bright's disease, diabetes, etc., who like Mr. Jeremy J. Perry, of New Glasgow, were attributing their physical decline to every other than the true cause.

In a recent letter he says: "My kidneys, perhaps a result of dyspepsia, got all out of order; they ached excessively. I had constant thirst, and my body showed signs of wasting, despite an appetite in the early stages of my trouble, ample enough to sustain the body. I decided to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills and have great satisfaction in stating that they have completely cured me. An immediate decline in the volume of urine was the most noticeable result at the beginning, and this was soon followed by a regular action of the bowels. It was a great boon I assure you, to get rid of so pressing a desire to drink, drink, as was the case with me last summer.

"No question remains in mind that the liver was the cause of my ailments: I am sure that no pills for kidney, liver or bowel trouble can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I urge their use to all my friends."

No other medicine is so certain to cure troubles of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. You are sure to be cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse any substitutes. Price 25c. per box, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Mr. H. E. Waddy left yesterday afternoon for Chicago and western points in the interests of the Brinton Carpet Company.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Invaluable to Every Farmer

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of Nerviline around the stable, has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist.

NERVILINE CURES COLICKY HORSES

"To cure colic, indigestion and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth the same class as 'Nerviline.' Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop."

James E. Mc Cullough,
Stock Breeder, etc.

You will not regret using Nerviline—but see you get it and not some thing else, 25c. per bottle, or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

PENSIONS AND SELF-RESPECT.

Mr. Donald McMaster, one of our Canadian candidates in the British election told an audience that old-age pensions would weaken the fibre of the British nation. Some body asked him whether the fibre of Mr. Gerald Balfour was weakened by the receipt of a pension of £1,200. Mr. MacMaster said the question was insulting. Why? The worn-out laborer has as good a claim to his pension of pence as Mr. Gerald Balfour has to his pension of pounds, has just as warm human feelings, and just as good a right to immunity from insult.

As a matter of fact the old-age pensions do not pauperize or diminish the self-respect of the recipient. They give as a right what was formerly given as charity. They leave the pensioner his personal liberty, and let him spend his money himself instead of confining him to a workhouse. They release him to a certain extent from the necessity of going to the squire and the parson for doles of blankets and coals. And it is just because the pensioner's self-respect and independence are increased that the feudal magnates do not like the pensions although they are afraid to oppose them openly.

BEHOLD TWO MEN.

Canada has boasted few greater heroes than Conductor Tommy Reynolds, who distinguished himself in the fearful wreck of the passenger train at Spanish River. One of those trapped in the dining car, when it fell from the bridge and crashed through the ice into the chilly waters below, he did not for a moment lose his presence of mind. The Soo Express was broken into scattered fragments, but he was still in charge of No. Seven and responsible for the lives of the passengers. This was evidently how the situation presented itself to him. He displayed a cool self-possession, an heroic courage, an instantaneous resourcefulness, and absolute mastery of himself and rapidly moving circumstance of which the nation, the race and humanity have a right to be proud.

Last Saturday's newspapers also chronicled something regarding the travels and sufferings of Bishop Stringer of the Yukon. A man of culture and refinement, he chooses to spend most of his life far removed from the comforts and advantages of civilization. He leaves the cold North to carry the consolations of religion to the natives of the Arctic circle. On a recent expedition he was reduced to the verge of starvation, and subsisted for a time on soup made by boiling his moccasins. Conductor Reynolds and Bishop Stringer are men—men of Homeric mold. Cleric and layman, they are living proofs that the British race has not lost its virility—that the iron has not yet gone out of the commingling of bloods that is called Anglo-Saxon or Anglo-Celtic.

MR. ASQUITH'S PROTEST.

The Premier of Great Britain is a man who weighs his word carefully, and importance must attach to his dignified protest against the importation into the British contest of foreign and colonial opinion. As to the latter he says: "We are agreed in our affection for the colonies, in our desire in every way compatible with the interests of the people of this country to cement the Imperial fabric, to tighten the bond and deepen the common sense of attachment, of loyalty and affection, but the colonies, and the wise, prudent, and far-sighted statesmen who govern their destinies would be the first to deprecate that any kind of pressure should be exercised by them on the free judgment of the people of this country.

We guard jealously our own right to manage our own affairs and fight our own battles, and we should undoubtedly resent any interference in our elections by persons who reside, do business, and have their main interests outside of Canada. We ought to be careful not to give our friends in the United Kingdom cause for complaining that we are meddling with their domestic affairs.

We have no right to interfere. Neither the Lloyd-George budget nor any substitute that might be proposed for it would levy taxation upon us. The House of Commons which is now being elected will not legislate for Canada. The law-making power, so far as Canada is concerned, is entirely in our own hands. Our laws are made by the Dominion Parliament and by the Provincial legislatures. Each of these bodies in its own field is virtually supreme. There is no proposition that the British Parliament shall trench upon the power and authority of any of them.

As to the tariff, Canadians will have no right to complain if the people of the United Kingdom adhere to free trade, adoption protection with a preference to colonial goods, or without such preference. We have exercised to the full our right to tax British goods imported into Canada, and the preference which we gave in 1897, and enlarged afterwards, was purely voluntary, the result of our own action, and not of interference from Great Britain.

It is true that Canadians are interested in certain aspects of British politics, but that does not release us from the restraints imposed upon us by good sense and good manners. The British Parliament is an Imperial Parliament, but it is also a domestic parliament. By far the greatest part of its business is the making of such laws for the United Kingdom as are made for us by our own parliament and legislatures. If we jump into the fight over the tariff, upon the pretext that it is an Imperial affair, we cannot seperate that from other issues, such as the position of the House of Lords, education, liquor licenses, and the taxation of land.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do me out of Remedies?

Will you tell some sick friend of this remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's restorative and its popularity.

For 30 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments over where in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quietly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought them nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not use the Stomach, Kidney or otherwise the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the failing, faltering, feeble or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician side to say to the doubting sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, when maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some certain ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the medicine to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 2-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 16.94 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 26.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in these concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

A COURT OF REVISION will be held on the ninth day of February, 1910, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening at the City Council Chamber, for the purpose of hearing complaints against the proposed assessment or the accuracy of frontage measurements, or any other complaints which the person interested may desire to make, and which is by law cognizable by the Court.

Dated at Peterborough, the 24th day of January, 1910.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

One of the Most Powerful Combinations

In Great Britain it is admitted that the liquor trade is among the most powerful of the influences arrayed against the Government. Brewers and distillers, with enormous fortunes made out of the business, are ready to contribute largely to a campaign fund which is virtually a fund for the defence of their privileges.

In the United States we see a similar influence exerted by manufacturers and others who have a pecuniary interest in the upholding of protection. Protection has kept the Republican party in power in the United States without interruption except for Cleveland's two terms of office, and even during those terms the Wings of the tariff reductionists were clipped.

The influence is not measured merely by contributions to campaign funds. The workman is threatened with loss of employment, the "solid men," the men prominent in finance and industry, pass the word around that ruin will follow tariff reduction. The message is carried about from one circle to another; the fear of disturbance of business spreads from the bank manager to the clerk, from the railway president to the brakeman.

The people listen to orators like Bryan, but finally decide to "vote for their jobs."

Shaiuld the protectionists ever

Should the protectionists ever score a victory in Great Britain, the Conservative party would have at its side, in addition to the liquor trade, the whole force of the protected interests. Such a combination of forces would go far to secure for the Conservative party in Great Britain a monopoly of power similar to that enjoyed by the Republican party in the United States. It is difficult to conceive even of a Gladstone making headway against an army so entrenched.

Womanly pains, head pains, in fact any pain anywhere can be completely stopped in twenty minutes with one of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about the formula. It is printed on the box—and it can't be bettered. Try one dose and be convinced. Box 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Wire post card racks to hold 200 cards, only 15c. Times Bookstore.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 23 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY JANUARY 27 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Patrick Cranley's Family will get $500

The city solicitor, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, received instructions from the Legal Committee last night, to arrange a settlement with the estate of Patrick Cranley, on the lines suggested by their solicitors, Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, viz., that the city pay the estate of Cranley $500.

It will be remembered that Patrick Cranley fell off an unprotected bridge in Ashburnham last fall and died from the effects of the injuries sustained, Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, were instructed by the family to issue a writ against the city claiming $2,000 damages. A subsequent letter was received by the city in which an offer to settle for $500 was made. On the advice of the city solicitor the offer was accepted.

DOG BYLAW.

Ald. Turner introduced the question of amending the present dog bylaw or passing another one prohibiting the running at large of dogs. There was considerable discussion, and like the anti-local optionists, the dog fanciers had very little to say in favor of dogs running at large. But they contended that it was a sort of a necessary evil and largely on account of sentiment Ald. Turner was induced to allow the matter to stand over for the present.

HATTON SUIT.

There was some discussion over the threatened suit against the city by Mr. G. W. Hatton, for damages to his horse and rig on Concession street last fall, but on the advice of the city solicitor the city will defend the suit.

ADVERTISING MATTER.

The committee went thoroughly into the necessity of getting out advertising matter for the city for the purpose of distribution among the excursionists of the city, especially during the summer months. All were in favor of the move and the city clerk was ordered to prepare something and get prices. One price has already been received for $150 for 10,000 copies of a phamplet of which a dummy was submitted.

More Supplies Granted the Fire Department

The Fire, Water and Light Committee spent an evening at the fire hall last night finding out what it will be necessary to purchase this year to improve the equipment of the department and to keep up the equipment already there. Chief Howard submitted quite a long list, which represented an expenditure of over $3000. Many of the items were left off for another year, but quite a number have been granted and will be included in the estimates for this year. In addition to the items granted a week ago the following were decided upon last night:—

Six mattresses, to be renewed or repaired.
Seven pairs of rubber boots.
Ten rubber coats.
Six storm windows for the dormitory.
New linoleum for the game room.
Ten pair of blankets.
Material for improving and altering the stables.
Steel or iron sleigh tracks for the trucks in winter.
Six lanterns.
Two tarpaulins.
One and a half dozen couplings.
Telephone cabinet.
Automatic door openers for the big doors.

The chairman is to look into the matter of the electric alarm repeater. This machine is the latest style and will save the cost of a man and will give the alarms exact. It costs about $300.

The chairman will also look after the painting of the outside of the building.

West Ends won from T.A.S. Strathconas beat Keene

A fair sized crowd saw the City League games last night. The first on the program was Strathconas vs. Keene, and resulted in a score of 12—2. At half time it was 8—2. The Strathconas scored seven before Keene got any. Then Keene took two, and the Straths got one just before half time. In the second half Keene was shut out, while the Commissioners got four.

The second game between the West Ends and T. A. S., was exciting and fast. It was also pretty close until towards the end. The first half closed with the score at 2—1 in favor of the West Ends. The second half Oldham-s bunch opened out and got five goals while the Abstainers got only 3 leaving the score at 7—4 at full time.

A Big Drop in Prices in New York City

News from the stock markets in the United States and Canada is a little more encouraging. The boycott instituted by American cities and the campaign against the excessive prices for meat carried on by the press of both countries is beginning to have its effect. The packers and stockmen are climbing down from their high perch. Evidently they fear government investigation. The prices in Toronto stock yards were easier yesterday and they will likely drop still further. This ought to have a good effect, so far as the customers are concerned, in Peterborough on the prices, which are almost beyond the means of the average man. Meat is a necessity and the manipulators of the meat market have been taking advantage of it. The retail prices have been advanced periodically two and three cents a pound. householder will get a pound of, say, tenderloin, today for 20c. Tomorrow it will be 22c. A few weeks ago it was 16c. Practically all meats have advanced the same and it is time a reduction was made.

WHEN DINNER COMES.

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way towards helping in the digestive process and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a Texas grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby.

"When I have no appetite for breakfast, and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner.

"My little 13-months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts." WOMAN ASSAULTED.

At Toronto While en Her Way to Peterborough.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Charged with assault on a woman from Hamilton, last Saturday night in the yards at the Union Station, Chas. Jones, a C.P.R. car cleaner, was arrested yesterday forenoon at West Toronto, by Detective Armstrong, at the request of Staff-Inspector Kennedy.

It appears that the woman was on her trunk. She followed him, being she alighted from the train here and the accused where she could find her trunk! She followed him, being a stranger in the city. She then enquired where she could get a cup of tea and he told her he would get it for her. He helped her into a car and closed the door, and it is there that the assault is supposed to have been committed.

The woman was seen in the yard and was arrested on a charge of trespass, and it was then that the story leaked out. The railway officials discharged Jones from their employ, and he was about to leave town when arrested.

Truancy Officers are Needed in the County, Says Inspector Lees

Frequent Changes of Teachers and Irregularity of Attendance on the Part of Pupils are Most Serious Obstacles to Progress in Our County Public Schools

When the County Council resumed yesterday afternoon, Mr. Sherman of Victoria County, was present, and addressed the members with a view to establishing a claim of damages against the county on account of his horse going through Pigeon Lake bridge last fall. Mr. Sherman was driving home in the evening last fall when one of his horses was drowned and the other disabled. He asked the county to reimburse him for the horse that was drowned which he valued at $175.

It appears that on the night in question the bridge was in good shape at seven o'clock in the evening! Soon after a big storm came up and parted the bridge, and Mr. Sherman's team drove into the opening.

The matter was referred to the Joint Committee to take up with Victoria county and the city of Peterborough.

School Inspector Richard Lees presented his report as follows.

To the Warden and Council of the County of Peterborough.—

Gentlemen,—I beg respectfully to submit my report on the work of the schools for the past year.

During 1909 there were in operation 100 rural schools in five of which assistant teachers were employed. There were also one continuation school with two teachers, making a total of 107 teachers in the rural schools. There were three Public schools and two continuation schools in villages with a total of 21 teachers.

As formerly, the two most serious obstacles to progress, are frequent changes of teachers and irregularity of attendance on the part of pupils. For this irregularity, there are various causes, but by far the most serious, is indifference on the part of parents. Children are allowed out of school for the most trival reasons, and often for no reason at all. There is everywhere, great need for a rigid application of the Truancy Act, which is at present, practically a dead letter so far at least as the rural schools are concerned. The act gives to every township council the power to appoint one or more truant officers for the municipality, and in case this is not done by the council before February 1st, boards of trustees may appoint their own officers. The powers and duties of these officials are fully defined. It is earnestly to be desired that every township council in the county, will exercise this privilege and appoint as truant officers, men who can be trusted to perform efficiently and fearlessly the duties of their office.

The frequent changing of teachers is also a serious evil. It is to be hoped that when the new system of granting certificates is fully established, and there is a larger proportion of permanent certificates, this will, to some extent, disappear. The most important measure of advance, however, will have to come from the sections in the form of a determination to recognize merit and efficiency by a willingness to pay better salaries. As things are now arranged, the difference between the cost of securing an experienced, qualified teacher and one of the cheaper class without qualification, is very largely borne by the grants, so that the difference to the section is comparative ly small. It is to be hoped that trustees and ratepayers will soon wake up to a realization of this fact.

The grants for the year have been liberal. The total amount exceeds slightly that received in 1908, and was $11,793.08.

During the year two buildings were erected, one in the new section, No. 14 Douro, and the other in No. Chandos. The former is of cement blocks and the latter frame. They are both good buildings modern in design, and will meet the requirements of the sections for many years to come. A special grant of $150 was made by the minister from the assisted schools fund to assist the trustees of No. 5 Chandos. A number of other sections are contemplating building, and may do so this year.

The three continuation schools of the county have all increased to the standing of two teacher schools. The attendance at these schools now totals about 130, showing that they are being appreciated by the people for whose benefit they are maintained. They are all doing excellent work and are worthy of the confidence of the communities in which they are located. The greatest difficulty encountered has been that of securing suitable qualified teachers.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your most obedient servant,

RICHARD LEES,
Public School Inspector.

Presbyterian Churches Held their Annual Meetings Had Successful Year

The three Presbyterian churches held their annual meetings last night and all of them proved to be very gratifying and encouraging. There have been increases in membership and in giving in all departments.

ST. PAUL'S.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's congregation was held last night when a large number were present and took a great interest in the proceedings. The past year has been a most successful and encouraging one. Every department by their reports showed an advance both in the work accomplished and in the finances. The four retiring members of the Board of Managers, Messrs. Adam Hall, Jas. Connal, T. A. S. Hay and W. T. Ferguson, were re-elected. The net membership of the church is now 882. During the past year 123 new members were received. 22 were dismissed with certificates, 10 were removed by death, and as a result of the revision of the membership roll 42 names were struck off. Fuller details will be given tomorrow.

KNOX CHURCH.

The people of Knox church have every reason to congratulate themselves upon the splendid progress they made last year. The annual meeting last night brought out reports from all the departments showing big advancements. A large number were present and took a keen interest in the proceedings. After devotional exercises, Rev. Mr. Keith was elected to the chair and one of the most important things the congregation did was to increase his salary $100 per year.

Reports were presented by the following organizations;—

The three mission circles.

Mission Band, showing receipts of $9.20.

Boys' Club, with a membership of 90, raised $47.34, and have on hand $26.84.

The Young People's Guild raised $155.62, and have on hand $12.53

The Sunday school report showed a big increase in every way. Sheriff Hall, who was superintendent for so many years, was elected honorary superintendent for life, as a mark of appreciation of his valuable services by the school. The school raised during the year $240.30.

The W.F.M.S. raised $52.72.

Ladies' Aid raised $235.

The Building Committee presented a statement of the finances in connection with the work done on the new church last year.

The Board of Managers showed total receipts of $2,192, and they have a balance on hand of $60.27

The missionary treasurer showed receipts of $305.48. This sum is distributed among the various societies of the church.

The session report was presented by Mr. G. R. Kennedy, and was very encouraging.

At the conclusion of the business refreshments were served.

ST. ANDREWS.

The seventy-sixth annual meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's was held in the lecture hall of the church. After devotional exercises led by the Rev. J. G. Potter, Judge Edmison was elected chairman of the meeting. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. John McClelland, and were adopted.

All the reports were of the most encouraging nature. The session's reports was read by Mr. Richard Lees, clerk of session, and congratulated the congregation on the harmony and good will prevailing among the people of the congregation. The loss sustained by the death of Mr. Wm. Fowler, was referred to in suitable terms. There are 254 families under pastoral overnight, and a membership of 517; 40 members being added during the year. The session fund showed receipts amounting to $59, and disbursements $57.80.

The Ladies' Aid Society reported through Mrs. George Laing and the work of the ladies elicited the well merited applause of the congregation. During the year they had completely renovated the manse and paid for the building of the colonial verandah, which has added so materially to the appearance of the church property. Other societies reporting were the Women's Foreign Missionary Society; Young Ladies' Mission Band, Willing Workers, Mission Band, Sunday School Association, Young Men's Guild, the choir, the Young People's Society; all showed a healthy progress. The managers' report was presented by Mr. Andrew MacFarlane, chairman of the board. It was the best report in the history of the congregation, and the managers came in for a share of the general congratulation. It was as follows:—

Mr. John McClelland was re-elected on the Nicholls Hospital Board and Charity Board, and Mr. Richard Lees appointed Hall trustee.

Italian at Cobourg now Faces Charges of Two Murders

Cobourg, Jan. 26. — Confronted with two charges of murder and one of attempting to murder—the victims in each case being fellow countrymen—George Meconto, the Italian, was arraigned before Magistrate Holland here this afternoon for the preliminary hearing.

Crown Attorney Kerr presented some evidence, but the principal witnesses will probably be summoned first to give evidence at the inquest before Coroner Elliott, of this town. The inquest was formally opened this afternoon. It will be continued at Grafton, near the scene of the shooting in the construction camp of the Canadian Northern Railway.

Reports from the jail indicate that the prisoner is very quiet this morning. He seems to feel the extreme seriousness of his position.

Many Wrecks on European Coasts

London, Jan. 26.—Practically the whole of Western Europe is today in the grip of a severe storm with blizzards, floods, and hurricanes causing damage that will run into the millions and a heavy loss of life. ern co The northern, westerner and southern coast lines, from Copenhagen to Brindisi, Italy, are dotted with wrecks that tell of the storm's fury.

SWEPT BY FIERCE GALES.

There have already been numerous reports of drownings, both on the seas and in the land floods. In addition to the terrible flood that now covers one-third of France, the north part of Spain is now suffering a like calamity.

Italy and Southern Spain have been swept by fierce gales, which have blown down scores of houses, killed an immense amount of live stock, and wrought incalculable damage to vineyards and orchards at least thirty are known to have been killed in these sections.

Avalanches in the Alps and in North Germany and Scandinavia have blocked the mountain passes and roads, and have isolated a number of towns.

SITUATION IN FRANCE.

Paris, Jan. 26.—Hopes for a change in the weather that would relieve the terrible flood situation were met today by a heavy snow and a rising temperature that melted the snow as fast as it fell.

The weather bureau promises no relief. Not only are the local conditions the most menacing, but reports from other sections of France and Western Europe indicate that no improvement is likely for several days.

Soup and bread line, the inevitable result of the destitution wrought by the flood, formed in Paris today.

The situation in Paris is so appalling that no accurate estimate of the extent of damage has been attempted. It is roughly estimated that 50,000 men are unemployed in the city and suburbs and that at least 200,000 homes have been flooded.

FACTORIES ALL CLOSED.

Not a factory along the Seine which is the greatest commercial artery in France is in operation. The damage to the river front factories alone will be several millions, with every indication that tremendous additional loss will be suffered.

The Paris-Orleans railway was completely tied up today. The Gare De Invalides, in the Quai T'Orsay, was flooded, and people were driven from the waiting rooms.

The subway under the Champs Elysee has suspended.

The government today began making requisition on all vacant houses in the city for the homeless.

FLOODING THE VAULTS.

The vault under the July Column in the Place Bastile in which rest the Sarcophagi containing the bodies of the heroes of the Bastile, is threatened by the flood. Pumps are in operation to prevent the water gaining the vault.

Several houses along the Avenue Versailles and the Quai De Passy were reached by the flood today, necessitating the vacating of the premises.

Want Asquith to Continue Premiership

Summary of Results

Unionists elected	254
Liberals elected	238
Laborites elected	37
Nationalists elected	72

London, Jan. 26.—The strongest business interests in England are today bringing pressure to bear on Premier Asquith to continue the premiership, regardless of the size of the Liberal-Laborite majority over the Conservatives. The possibility of an immediate election in the event of the Liberals refusing the ministerial control is considered a menace to the industrial and financial life of the nation that every effort will be made to keep the new parliament in session at least until May or June.

So far England alone, aside from Wales, Scotland and Ireland, has given a majority in favor of Tariff Reform and against the Budget and Home Rule. With the borough elections conceded, and the counties stampeding to the Unionist column, the prospect is that the final results of the polling will show a considerable purely English plurality against Mr. Lloyd-George, and in favor of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals.

England contains three-quarters of the population of the British Isles, and it shelters the bulk of the wealth and of the industrial activities of the United Kingdom. Therefore, the Unionists are saying that, with a small majority made up wholly outside of England, Mr. Asquith will not be justified in trying to force through the Budget or Home Rule, or the emasculation of the House of Lords. There is the authority of the only living Liberal ex-premier for holding that no wise statesman would attempt a radical alteration in the constitution without the consent of the predominant partner.

In support of this view it may be argued that the directors of a joint stock company should not reverse the company's policy against the expressed wishes of the vast majority of the stock holders. The analogy may not be a joint stock company. Its government may not be a board of directors. Nevertheless, there is a point in the contention that, with an adverse majority in England, and a small aggregate majority, exclusive of the Nationalists, the Asquith Administration will find itself impotent.

A trip down Stewart street in the South Ward will reveal dozens of these curs chasing every delivery rig, every milk wagon and baker's rig, and snarling and barking at the drivers and horses until it is almost impossible to know whether one is coming or going. A screeching locomotive is like music compared with the diabolic noises made by the so-called house pets that are out of sight when the assessor comes around, and which never pay taxes. Dogs are becoming almost as numerous and obnoxious as sewer rats is old London. Ald. Turner's bylaw should not only prohibit dogs running at large but should amend the dog tax and make it $5 for a male dog and $25 for a female dog. Then a bonus should be offered of $5 per head for every dog killed that has not a tag on it. Drastic measures are needed to check the over-production of mongrel and half wild dogs.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impended apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous! Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. VOL. XXXIII NO. 23 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY JANUARY 27 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Patrick Cranley's Family will get $500

The city solicitor, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, received instructions from the Legal Committee last night, to arrange a settlement with the estate of Patrick Cranley, on the lines suggested by their solicitors, Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, viz., that the city pay the estate of Cranley $500.

It will be remembered that Patrick Cranley fell off an unprotected bridge in Ashburnham last fall and died from the effects of the injuries sustained, Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, were instructed by the family to issue a writ against the city claiming $2,000 damages. A subsequent letter was received by the city in which an offer to settle for $500 was made. On the advice of the city solicitor the offer was accepted.

DOG BYLAW.

Ald. Turner introduced the question of amending the present dog by-law or passing another one prohibiting the running at large of dogs. There was considerable discussion, and like the anti-local optionists, the dog fanciers had very little to say in favor of dogs running at large. But they contended that it was a sort of a necessary evil and largely on account of sentiment Ald. Turner was induced to allow the matter to stand over for the present.

HATTON SUIT.

There was some discussion over the threatened suit against the city by Mr. G. W. Hatton, for damages to his horse and rig on Concession street last fall, but on the advice of the city solicitor the city will defend the suit.

ADVERTISING MATTER.

The committee went thoroughly into the necessity of getting out advertising matter for the city for the purpose of distribution among the excursionists of the city, especially during the summer months. All were in favor of the move and the city clerk was ordered to prepare something and get prices. One price has already been received for $150 for 10,000 copies of a phamplet of which a dummy was submitted.

More Supplies Granted the Fire Department

The Fire, Water and Light Committee spent an evening at the fire hall last night finding out what it will be necessary to purchase this year to improve the equipment of the department and to keep up the equipment already there. Chief Howard submitted quite a long list, which represented an expenditure of over $3000. Many of the items were left off for another year, but quite a number have been granted and will be included in the estimates for this year. In addition to the items granted a week ago the following were decided upon last night:—

Six mattresses, to be renewed or repaired.
Seven pairs of rubber boots.
Ten rubber coats.
Six storm windows for the dormitory.
New linoleum for the game room.
Ten pair of blankets.
Material for improving and altering the stables.
Steel or iron sleigh tracks for the trucks in winter.
Six lanterns.
Two tarpaulins.
One and a half dozen couplings.
Telephone cabinet.
Automatic door openers for the big doors.

The chairman is to look into the matter of the electric alarm repeater. This machine is the latest style and will save the cost of a man and will give the alarms exact. It costs about $300.

The chairman will also look after the painting of the outside of the building.

West Ends won from T.A.S. Strathconas beat Keene

A fair sized crowd saw the City League games last night. The first on the program was Strathconas vs. Keene, and resulted in a score of 12—2. At half time it was 8—2. The Strathconas scored seven before Keene got any. Then Keene took two, and the Strathe got one just before half time. In the second half Keene was shut out, while the Commissioners got four.

The second game between the West Ends and T. A. S., was exciting and fast. It was also pretty close until towards the end. The first half closed with the score at 2—1 in favor of the West Ends. The second half Oldham-s bunch opened out and got five goals while the Abstainers got only 3 leaving the score at 7—4 at full time.

A Big Drop in Prices in New York City

News from the stock markets in the United States and Canada is a little more encouraging. The boycott instituted by American cities and the campaign against the excessive prices for meat carried on by the press of both countries is beginning to have its effect. The packers and stockmen are climbing down from their high perch. Evidently they fear government investigation. The prices in Toronto stock yards were easier yesterday and they will likely drop still further. This ought to have a good effect, so far as the customers are concerned, in Peterborough on the prices, which are almost beyond the means of the average man. Meat is a necessity and the manipulators of the meat market have been taking advantage of it. The retail prices have been advanced periodically two and three cents a pound. householder will get a pound of, say tenderloin, today for 20c. Tomorrow it will be 22c. A few weeks ago it was 16c. Practically all meats have advanced the same and it is time a reduction was made.

WHEN DINNER COMES.

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way towards helping in the digestive process and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a Texas grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby.

"When I have no appetite for breakfast, and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner.

"My little 13-Months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts." Read the little book. WOMAN ASSAULTED.

At Toronto While on Her Way to Peterborough.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Charged with assault on a woman from Hamilton, last Saturday night in the yards at the Union Station, Chas. Jones, a C.P.R. car cleaner, was arrested yesterday forenoon at West Toronto, by Detective Armstrong, at the request of Staff-Inspector Kennedy.

It appears that the woman was on her trunk. She followed him, being she alighted from the train here and the accused where she could find her trunk. She followed him, being a stranger in the city. She then enquired where she could get a cup of tea and he told her he would get it for her. He helped her into a car and closed the door, and it is there that the assault is supposed to have been committed.

The woman was seen in the yard and was arrested on a charge of trespass, and it was then that the story leaked out. The railway officials discharged Jones from their employ, and he was about to leave town when arrested.

Truancy Officers are Needed in the County, Says Inspector Lees

Frequent Changes of Teachers and Irregularity of Attendance on the Part of Pupils are Most Serious Obstacles to Progress in Our County Public Schools

When the County Council resumed yesterday afternoon, Mr. Sherman of Victoria County, was present, and addressed the members with a view to establishing a claim of damages against the county on account of his horse going through Pigeon Lake bridge last fall. Mr. Sherman was driving home in the evening last fall when one of his horses was drowned and the other disabled. He asked the county to reimburse him for the horse that was drowned which he valued at $175.

It appears that on the night in question the bridge was in good shape at seven o'clock in the evening. Soon after a big storm came up and parted the bridge, and Mr. Sherman's team drove into the opening.

The matter was referred to the Joint Committee to take up with Victoria county and the city of Peterborough.

To the Warden and Council of the County of Peterborough:—

Gentlemen,—I beg respectfully to submit my report on the work of the schools for the past year.

During 1909 there were in operation 100 rural schools in five of which assistant teachers were employed. There were also one continuation school with two teachers, making total of 107 teachers in the rural schools. There were three Public schools and two continuation schools in villages with a total of 21 teachers.

As formerly, the two most serious obstacles to progress, are frequent changes of teachers and irregularity of attendance on the part of pupils. For this irregularity, there are various causes, but by far the most serious, is indifference on the part of parents. Children are allowed out of school for the most trival reasons, and often for no reason at all. There is everywhere great need for a rigid application of the Truancy Act, which is at present, practically a dead letter so far at least as the rural schools are concerned. The act gives to every township council the power to appoint one or more truant officers for the municipality, and in case this is not done by the council before February 1st, boards of trustees may appoint their own officers. The powers and duties of these officials are fully defined. It is earnestly to be desired that every township council in the county, will exercise this privilege and appoint as truant officers, men who can be trusted to perform efficiently and fearlessly the duties of their office.

The frequent changing of teachers is also a serious evil. It is to be hoped that when the new system of granting certificates is fully established, and there is a larger proportion of permanent certificates, this will, to some extent, disappear. The most important measure of advance, however, will have to come from the sections in the form of a determination to recognize merit and efficiency by a willingness to pay better salaries. As things are now arranged, the difference between the cost of securing an experienced, qualified teacher and one of the cheaper class without qualification, is very largely borne by the grants, so that the difference to the section is comparatively small. It is to be hoped that trustees and ratepayers will soon wake up to a realization of this fact.

The grants for the year have been liberal. The total amount exceeds slightly that received in 1908, and was $11,793.08.

During the year two buildings were erected, one in the new section, No. 14 Douro, and the other in No. Chandos. The former is of cement blocks and the latter frame. They are both good buildings modern in design, and will meet the requirements of the sections for many years to come. A special grant of $150 was made by the minister from the assisted schools fund to assist the trustees of No. 5 Chandos. A number of other sections are contemplating building, and may do so this year.

The three continuation schools of the county have all increased to the standing of two teacher schools. The attendance at these schools now totals about 130, showing that they are being appreciated by the people for whose benefit they are maintained. They are all doing excellent work and are worthy of the confidence of the communities in which they are located. The greatest difficulty encountered has been that of securing suitable qualified teachers.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your most obedient servant,
RICHARD LEES,
Public School Inspector.

Presbyterian Churches Held their Annual Meetings Had Successful Year

The three Presbyterian churches held their annual meetings last night and all of them proved to be very gratifying and encouraging. There have been increases in membership and in giving in all departments.

ST. PAUL'S.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's congregation was held last night when a large number were present and took a great interest in the proceedings. The past year has been a most successful and encouraging one. Every department by their reports showed an advance both in the work accomplished and in the finances. The four retiring members of the Board of Managers, Messrs. Adam Hall, Jas. Connal, T. A. S. Hay and W. T. Ferguson, were re-elected. The net membership of the church is now 882. During the past year 123 new members were received. 22 were dismissed with certificates. 10 were removed by death, and as a result of the revision of the membership roll 42 names were struck off. Fuller details will be given tomorrow.

KNOX CHURCH.

The people of Knox church have every reason to congratulate themselves upon the splendid progress they made last year. The annual meeting last night brought out reports from all the departments showing big advancements. A large number were present and took a keen interest in the proceedings. After devotional exercises, Rev. Mr. Keith was elected to the chair and one of the most important things the congregation did was to increase his salary $100 per year.

Reports were presented by the following organizations:—

All the reports were of the most encouraging nature. The session's reports was read by Mr. Richard Lees, clerk of session, and congratulated the congregation on the harmony and good will prevailing among the people of the congregation. The loss sustained by the death of Mr. Wm. Fowler, was referred to in suitable terms. There are 254 families under pastoral oversight, and a membership of 517; 40 members being added during the year. The session fund showed receipts amounting to $59, and disbursements $57.80.

The Ladies' Aid Society reported through Mrs. George Laing and the work of the ladies elicited the well merited applause of the congregation. During the year they had completely renovated the manse and paid for the building of the colonial verandah, which has added so materially to the appearance of the church property. Other societies reporting were the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, Young Ladies' Mission Band, Willing Workers, Mission Band, Sunday School Association, Young Men's Guild, the choir, the Young People's Society; all showed a healthy progress. The managers' report was presented by Mr. Andrew MacFarlane, chairman of the board. Italian at Cobourg now Faces Charges of Two Murders

Cobourg, Jan. 26. — Confronted with two charges of murder and one of attempting to murder—the victims in each case being fellow countrymen—George Meronto, the Italian, was arraigned before Magistrate Holland here this afternoon for the preliminary hearing.

Crown Attorney Kerr presented some evidence, but the principal witnesses will probably be summoned first to give evidence at the inquest before Coroner Elliott, of this town. The inquest was formally opened this afternoon. It will be continued at Grafton, near the scene of the shooting in the construction camp of the Canadian Northern Railway.

Reports from the jail indicate that the prisoner is very quiet this morning. He seems to feel the extreme seriousness of his position.

Many Wrecks on European Coasts

London, Jan. 26.—Practically the whole of Western Europe is today in the grip of a severe storm with blizzards, floods, and hurricanes causing damage that will run into the millions and a heavy loss of life. From the northern, westerner and southern coast lines, from Copenhagen to Brindisi, Italy, are dotted with wrecks that tell of the storm's fury.

SWEPT BY FIERCE GALES.

There have already been numerous reports of drownings, both on the seas and in the land floods. In addition to the terrible flood that now covers one-third of France, the north part of Spain is now suffering a like calamity.

Italy and Southern Spain have been swept by fierce gales, which have blown down scores of houses, killed an immense amount of live stock, and wrought incalculable damage to vineyards and orchards. At least thirty are known to have been killed in these sections.

Avalanches in the Alps and in North Germany and Scandinavia have blocked the mountain passes and roads, and have isolated a number of towns.

SITUATION IN FRANCE.

Paris, Jan. 26.—Hopes for a change in the weather that would relieve the terrible flood situation were met today by a heavy snow and a rising temperature that melted the snow as fast as it fell.

The weather bureau promises no relief. Not only are the local conditions the most menacing, but reports from other sections of France and Western Europe indicate that no improvement is likely for several days.

Soup and bread line, the inevitable result of the destitution wrought by the flood, formed in Paris today.

The situation in Paris is so appalling that no accurate estimate of the extent of damage has been attempted. It is roughly estimated that 50,000 men are unemployed in the city and suburbs and that at least 200,000 homes have been flooded.

FACTORIES ALL CLOSED.

Not a factory along the Seine which is the greatest commercial artery in France is in operation. The damage to the river front factories alone will be several millions, with every indication that tremendous additional loss will be suffered.

The Paris-Orleans railway was completely tied up today. The Gare De Invalides, in the Quai D'Orsay, was flooded, and people were driven from the waiting rooms.

The subway under the Champs Elysee has suspended.

The government today began making requisition on all vacant houses in the city for the homeless.

FLOODING THE VAULTS.

The vault under the July Column in the Place Bastile in which rest the Sarcophagi containing the bodies of the heroes of the Bastile, is threatened by the flood. Pumps are in operation to prevent the water gaining the vault.

Several houses along the Avenue Versailles and the Quai De Passy were reached by the flood today, necessitating the vacating of the premises.

Chest Inflamation

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, NERVILINE but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

CURES CHEST COLDS.

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE SHIPPING COMMISSION.

The bill introduced into the House of Commons by the minister of labor to provide machinery for the investigation of combinations in restraint of trade contains a provision of the most significant importance to the business community of the country.

It is one which will extend the investigations to combinations by transportation companies whether by land or on sea. The Railway Commission has done notable work in the regulation of transportation problems on land, and it is a decided step forward for the Government to extend its supervision to marine transportation.

While, of course, it will not be possible for the Dominion to control any shipping contracts made on the other side of the Atlantic, it will be possible for it to so legislate as to prevent the enforcement of unfair contracts in the courts of Canada, and the Atlantic shipping trust ought to be the first combination in restraint of trade to be investigated.

The facts and figures presented to the Government the other day by the representatives of the Boards of Trade of Montreal, Toronto, and Quebec show a clear combination on the part of the shipping companies which discriminates against Canadian ports. The North Atlantic conference, as it is called, is even now reported to be again contemplating a tightening of the screws, and it ought to be given timely warning that if it continues its unfair treatment of Canadian shippers it will receive drastic treatment so far as it lies in the power of the Dominion Government to administer such punishment.

SHORTAGE OF TIMBER.

Apparently the world approaches a shortage of timber. Prof. Somerville's recent paper upon this topic, before the British Association, shows that Great Britain pays each year $135,000,000 for imported timber and, although the United States of America exports wood and wood products to the value of $100,000,000 per annum, she has to pay as much for imports. In Europe, Sweden and Russia are, of course, the chief timber exporting countries, but in both cases the vast inroads on supplies is seriously felt, and exports are being appreciably reduced. There are, of course, Canada and Siberia, but in Canada wood is being used up at a rapid rate.

Lord Raglan and His Beer.

Lord Raglan, Governor of the Isle of Man, during a discussion on the Children's Bill in the Manx Legislative Council, expressed the view that the clause prohibiting the supply of all intoxicating liquors to persons under 16 was too grandmotherly. A member remarked that he thought it a good thing. Lord Raglan: "Lord, bless you, I drank bucketfuls of beer before I was sixteen. (Laughter.) The council struck out a proposal to repeal an obsolete ecclesiastical ordinance that children pulling horses' tails should be set on a wooden horse for two hours and whipped. A clause was inserted prohibiting the grant of street traders' licenses to girls. The bill was passed.

A Stage Manager's Ruse.

The house bill of the Imperial theater of La Roche-sur-Yon announced for the evening performance "La Tour de Nesle," a five act melodrama, and "La Soeur de Jocrisse," a one act farce. The drama had been disposed of, but the low comedian was missing and could not be found. What was to be done? A luminous idea finally entered the manager's mind. The orchestra played an overture, then another, then a third, then a polka and finally a quadrille. At last, when the audience had grown quite obstreperous, the stage manager appeared. He addressed the three conventional bows to the spectators and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, you are anxious, I know, to listen to 'La Soeur de Jocrisse.' The piece has just been acted, but through an unaccountable oversight on the part of the stage hands they forgot to raise the curtain."

How it is a Dream.

For many years ivory manufacturers were trying to devise a machine for turning out a billiard ball as nearly perfect as possible and at the same time avoiding waste. Among those who strove to perfect such a machine was Mr. John Carter of the firm of John Carter & Son, well known ivory manufacturers. One night, after Mr. Carter had been striving to solve the problem for some time, he suddenly awoke his wife by shouting out, "I have got it," and rushed downstairs into his study, where he made a drawing of the last knife for the want of which he had been so long waiting in order to complete his machine. It appears that he had fallen asleep and dreamed about the machine, and in the dream the solution of the difficulty was revealed to him.—London Answers.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Wilmifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 90 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.65 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $10.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of one chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 90c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are local owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 28.39 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in these concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

Queer Hotel Employees.

"Down in Kentucky," said a traveling man, "there was a negro hotel porter with only one arm, but he could carry the heaviest trunks just the same. He'd use his one hand and his teeth in lifting the trunks."

"I once stopped at a hotel in Texas," said a doctor who lives at the Shirley, "where they had a deaf and dumb man who was employed as an entertainer. Each night he'd play the piano and sing while the guests ate supper. The funny part of it was he'd always be on the key, although he couldn't hear a note."

The manager of the Shirley spoke up at this point. "Speaking of queer hotel employees," he said, "I guess I once knew the queerest on earth. He was employed at a hotel in a small Michigan town. The man had lost a leg in the war and had a wooden stump. It was on account of this wooden leg that he was employed at the hotel."

"What had the wooden leg to do with his working at the hotel?" somebody asked.

The manager cleared his throat and replied, "Why, you see, they used him to mash the potatoes and"—

They stopped him right there.—Denver Post.

Who Writes References?

"How in the world do other folk live?"

"What other folk?" asked her friend.

"Why, the other folk who write the references. Take that last cook I had. She gave me the best written reference I ever saw and also the telephone number of the woman who gave it to her and for whom she had worked for more than a year. I called up the woman, and she was enthusiastic. 'Why, I'd take her back again in a minute if she'd come,' was her ultimatum, and before she reached that she praised the cook up to the skies. She said she was a splendid pastry maker, soups were her specialty, her desserts were always delicious. The best dessert I ever got out of that girl was a plain cornstarch. Her soups were like dishwater, and everything between was equally bad. And now look at the waitress I have! Her reference was a marvel. She was refined, the writer stated, and quiet and neat. She knew just what to do without being told. I never saw anybody so careless and indifferent as that girl. She never knows a thing that I haven't told her at least a dozen times. I have to keep my eye on what she does all the time. Am I such a frightful crank, or what is it? How in the world do other folk live?"—New York Press.

Royal Christmas Cards.

The Christmas cards which will be sent out this year by the King and Queen have been specially painted for Their Majesties.

King Edward's Christmas card recall the knightly days of King Arthur and the Round Table. The scene is laid in King Arthur's great hall in the palace of Camelot.

Queen Alexandra has chosen a scene for her Christmas card in which another Queen of England played a part in which our present Queen excels. It is in showing the tenderest feelings for the helpless and the oppressed. The scene is the well-known incident when Queen Philippa pleaded for the lives of the citizens of Calais who had conducted its defense for twelve months against the forces of King Edward. The greatest of the Plantagenets stands with a purple robe thrown over his armor, while his gracious Queen kneels at his feet and implores him to show the greatest of all royal prerogatives—mercy.

The Prince of Wales has selected the incident in the Temple Gardens when the scions of the Houses of York and Lancaster plucked each a red and white rose to wear as their badges in the coming struggle. The Princess of Wales has chosen Sir Howard Davies' picture of Alfred the Great being taught to read by his mother, Queen Osburga. The German Emperor, as usual, comes to London and Messrs. Tuck for his greeting card. This year the Kaiser's thoughts are evidently on the sea, as his Christmas card is a reproduction of the scene when Henry VIII. set off on the Great Harry for the Field of the Cloth of Gold. The Empress of Russia, the Queen of Spain, and the Queen of Italy, have all three chosen a Madonna and Child.

A Spelling Obstacle Race.

To test the spelling capabilities of fifty applicants for junior clerkships in the offices of the Sydney Water and Sewerage Board, they were called upon to write from dictation this paragraph:

"This celibate was a licentiate in medicine, and held other scholastic diplomas. His characteristics were idiosyncrasies personified—one day taciturn, the next garrulous. To-day his facile pen evolves a sapient dictch in piquant satire of some literary genius, to-morrow an encomiastic effusion on an illiterate voluptuary. His studies on concrete science were exotic; his researches in natural history esoteric, if not chimerical."

No fewer than forty-three out of fifty candidates came to grief in that artfully-designed spelling obstacle race.

At the next meeting of the board a member doubted whether ten out of fifty Oxford M.A.'s, if suddenly called upon to write out the same, would succeed in negotiating every one of the words successfully.

THE KING'S ORDER.

It Was Obeyed, and Yet the Monarch Was Not Happy.

When King Gustavus III. of Sweden was in Paris he was visited by a deputation of the Sorbonne. That learned body congratulated the king on the happy fortune which had given him so great a man as Scheele, the discoverer of magnesium, as his subject and fellow countryman.

The king, who took small interest in the progress of science, felt somewhat ashamed that he should be so ignorant as never even to have heard of the renowned chemist. He dispatched a courier at once to Sweden with the laconic order, "Scheele is to be immediately raised to the dignity and title of a count."

"His majesty must be obeyed," said the prime minister as he read the order, "but who in the world is Scheele?" A secretary was told to make inquiries. He came back to the premier with very full information. "Scheele is a good sort of fellow," said he, "a lieutenant in the artillery, a capital shot and a first rate hand at billiards." The next day the lieutenant became a count, and the illustrious scholar and scientist remained a simple burgher.

The error was not discovered until the king returned home. His majesty was indignant. "You must all be fools," he exclaimed, "not to know who Scheele is!"—Argonaut.

The Broadax.

A city man who went out into the Ozarks to learn to make railroad ties was asked by a native whether he was right or left handed.

The city man replied: "I'm wise to this left handed monkey wrench business. I'm from the city, but I know there is no such thing as a left handed broadax." But he was wrong. A broadax is beveled on one side only. A left handed man must have an ax with the bevel on the left side.—Kansas City Times.

All Against Him.

A tailor who was defendant in a case tried in court seemed much cast down when brought up for trial.

"What's the trouble?" whispered his counsel, observing his client's distress as he surveyed the jurymen.

"It looks pretty bad for me," said the defendant, "unless some steps are taken to dismiss that jury and get in a new lot. There ain't a man among 'em but what owes me money for clothes."

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five to ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

IT FLASHED FOR THROCMORTON.

And Revealed the Secret of His Sweetheart's Murder.

By BUSHROD C. WASHINGTON.

"Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked the clerk of twelve solemn faced men in the jury box. "We have," responded the foreman, handing a folded paper to the clerk, who read aloud the indorsement on the back. "We, the jury, find the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, as charged in the indictment."

"William Throcmorton," said Judge Smithson, with judicial sternness, "after a fair trial, defended by able counsel, you stand convicted of the cruel and deliberate murder of Olive Graham.

"It has been shown that the young woman had promised to become your wife. Her parents, confiding in your honorable intentions, had recognized you as her accepted lover, and the door of their home was open to you.

"While the motive in your crime is not apparent, the facts which fasten it upon you are linked into a chain of circumstances strong and incontrovertible.

"You stood with Olive Graham on the porch of her home; an instant later her cry for mercy was heard by her parents above the storm then raging. Hastening to her assistance, they found her murdered body on the slope of the hill a rod from the door.

"You were taken soon after, as it were, red handed, the bloody knife with which the deed was done having been found upon your person.

"You have pleaded 'not guilty,' but have not disproved a single fact the state alleged against you.

"The penalty of your crime as by statute fixed is death. Have you anything to say why the sentence should not be pronounced?"

Throcmorton was a pink of physical manhood, well knit, erect, with a character as straight as his form. He held a medal from "the management" and was the wearer of a watch, the gift of grateful passengers when he was taken from the wreck of his engine. "Throc," as they called him, was more than liked. He was loved by the grimy roadmen.

When the last word fell from Judge Smithson the character of the man and the stubborn facts of the case stood in solemn contrast. In such a contest character must lose.

The eyes of Throcmorton shone straight into the eyes of the judge. There was nothing of the bravado in his manner, neither tremor nor sign of weakening.

"If it please your honor," responded the prisoner, rising as he spoke, "it will shock you and all present when I say I mourn for Olive Graham and am innocent. But what is it worth to say it in the face of the evidence? Had I sat with the jury I must have come to their verdict. I am ready, your honor, for the sentence."

* * * * * * * *

Moved by some sudden impulse, the judge turned to the sheriff and said in a faltering voice: "Remove the prisoner and return him for sentence to the bar of this court. The day and hour the court will later indicate."

* * * * * * * *

Old Graham was a pensioned track inspector, who loved the thunder of trains and scream of whistles.

He had built his house thirty feet from the roadbed. Just back of it and extending down to the track was an abrupt twenty foot cliff of shale, the perpendicular face of which was smooth. It was in front of it that they found the body of Olive.

No. 40, just ran out of the roundhouse, had backed up and coupled to the St. Louis express. It was Tom Doyle's pet engine.

Doyle was looking from the cab window for the signal to start. As an engineer he was a good second to Throcmorton. He was Throc's next friend and was to have been best man at his wedding.

He believed Throcmorton was innocent because he couldn't believe otherwise. But there were the facts, and when he thought of them there was a lump in his throat.

Ted Eisle, Doyle's fireman, had just raised the grate when a squad of the boys came by.

"What's the news?" asked Ted.

"Throc's guilty an' got to swing," came back from the crowd.

"Fifty juries couldn't make me believe Throc killed Ollie Graham," said Doyle, emphasizing with his fist on the window sill.

The day had been sweltering, clouds had gathered, and the night was black.

It was down grade, and Tom Doyle, with hand on throttle valve and eye on the rails, was ready to slack at the curve.

The storm had burst, and just as the engine struck the curve a flash of lightning and the focus of the headlight met full on the face of the cliff. The sight Tom Doyle saw made him reel and grip the lever.

* * * * * * * *

"A letter for Mr. Absalom Conway!" called out Goggin, the worthy proprietor of a gambling den in one of the big cities, putting emphasis on "Mr. Absalom." "That's you, Ab, I reckon," he added, tossing him the letter.

Mr. Conway eyed the letter full a minute and, looking nervously over his shoulder, tore the envelope.

Friend Ab—They say my nerves is broke an' I miss' run half time or throw up. I'll divvy my runs with you, an' if my nerves don't mend yours is the job for good. Right away you must come. An' it's yours I am.

TOM DOYLE.

* * * * * * * *

In the cab of No. 40 sat Absalom Conway to divide the run with Doyle. Ted Eisle was fireman. There was distant thunder; big drops began to patter and the wind raised. A storm was on.

"Jump into the cab, Ted, just 'fore we strike the curve," said Doyle below his breath as he put foot on the engine step.

Forked fire tore the sky, shattered telegraph poles and played in blue flames around the engine wheels as they sped onward.

A flash of tremendous voltage, and the cliff glowed white within the headlight's circle.

Conway's hand dropped from the lever, and he stood dazed and trembling.

"Me and Ted saw it, Ab," said Doyle. "In mercy's name, what made you do it?"

Before he could catch himself Conway exclaimed, "She jilted me, an' I swore she'd never marry Throcmorton."

"And how did Throc come by the bloody knife?" asked Doyle.

"I dropped it into his coat pocket as I dashed by him halfway back to town," replied Conway, who, becoming dogged, quit answering.

* * * * * * * *

The radius of a circle drawn in chalk on the smooth face of the rock marked the place where the headlight focused as the engine struck the curve.

A frame supporting apparatus had been set opposite by Professor White of the state university. It was connected by wires with the town power house.

Judge Smithson, members of the bar and representatives of the press were present. Old Graham and his wife stood by, Throcmorton supporting them, and Tom Doyle, with Ted, was much in evidence.

At a signal from Professor White an intense light from the apparatus was thrown upon the spot.

There was a suppressed exclamation as a picture appeared within the circle.

It was more than life size and became plainer as the light intensified.

There upon the face of the rock stood the grim counterpart of Absalom Conway. His right arm encircled Olive Graham's wrist, his left hand clutching the identical knife in half descended stroke.

"Lightning photography," said the professor, "is classed as a freak among natural phenomena. The picture can only be seen under light approaching in brightness the flash that fixed it."

WELL-DISPOSED BACTERIA.

One of the services performed for the farmer by the Ontario Agricultural College is that of introducing him to friendly bacteria. For instance he learns of those bacteria that hide in the soil, assist in the process of decomposition, and thus help to render plant food available to the growing crop. Another species forms little excrescences on the roots of such plants as clover, alfalfa, peas, beans and vetches. This variety draws upon the nitrogen in the atmosphere, which is a valuable food plant, and stores it up in the roots.

Professor S.F. Edwards has shown us the lactic acid bacteria at work souring milk, ripening cream, and giving the butter its flavor and keeping qualities. In the dairy strict cleanliness and the maintenance of proper temperatures foster the helpful bacteria. Filth and carelessness introduces the harmful species that produces inferior butter and cheese.

Bacteria play their part in the drying, smoking and salting of meats, in the preserving and canning of fruits, in the making of cider and vinegar, in the making of bread, and in a hundred other useful capacities. In order to do their work well they must have the most favorable envir-

Lured to a Park, Slugged and Stabbed

Toronto, Jan. 27.—Sedar Badchura a young Russian about 20 years of age, was the victim of a serious trick on the part of an Italian last night. Lured to High Park on the pretence of searching for a boarding house, he was suddenly struck down behind by the man he was walking with, and stabbed three times with a blunt knife in the back of the head and neck.

None of the wounds were fatal, but were sufficiently powerful to stun him long enough for the Italian to go through his valise and get away. Robbery was the apparent object, but it failed, as what money the man had was hidden.

Bachuria cannot speak much English, and the short time he has been in this country he has spent near Sudbury and North Bay with railway construction gangs. Tiring of this, he decided to come to Toronto, and arrived at the Union Station last night about 5.30.

Owing to his ignorance of English and unfamiliarity with the city, he wandered about the waiting room for some time before he decided what to do. At last an Italian, taking him for a countryman, accosted him. On finding out that he was a Russian, the Italian offered to take him to a boarding house where he would find a number of boarders of his own nationality.

This pleased the Russian, and the two became quite chatty so far as their common knowledge of the English language permitted them. They must have gone west on a College street car to High Park and walked south to the Lake Shore gate.

Here the Italian stopped for a minute, and the next instant Badchura felt himself struck on the back of the head. He fell in a stupor, and was merely able to observe without preventing the Italian going through his valise hurriedly. Apparently he was in search of money, for after a rapid inspection of each garment, he would throw it down, and finally, satisfied that there was nothing to be gained, he threw away the satchel and ran.

Badchura by this time had become strong enough to shout for assistance, and a woman came and assisted him down to Devin's boathouse.

County Constable Simpson and Policeman Burns were summoned, and both city and county forces are working on the case. The wounds were made with a blunt knife and are not serious.

Peterborough to Play Keene in Second Round for the District Cup

The curlers this year are certainly up against it with the weather man. Every time an effort has been made to pull off a game the weather turned mild and only half of it could be played. The Tankard rinks had to make a crack at it and then did not have keen ice. The District Cup series were postponed once and yesterday the first round only was pulled off in No. 2 district. The ice was then too soft and the second round was postponed until probably Monday although it depends upon the weather.

When the six clubs started yesterday afternoon, the ice was fair, but before they finished it was soft and sticky, and only second-rate curling could be played. The results for the first round were as follows:

Peterborough.	Port Hope.
W. J. Read	B. Brimicombe

Wm. Lang	W. Oke

SECOND ROUND.

As a result of the draw for the second round Peterborough will play Keene and the winner will play Lindsay that club having drawn a bye. If there is any luck going at all Lindsay gets it. They will come on fresh to meet the winners for the finals, and thus have a big handicap. Even at that Peterborough intends to win and bring the cup to the Charlotte street rink for next year. The local club have two good rinks in the district and it will take the Lindsay rinks all their time to defeat them.

INSOMNIA.

Leads to Madness If Not Remedied in Time.

"Experiments satisfied me, some 5 years ago," writes a Topeka woman, "that coffee was the direct cause of the insomnia from which I suffered terribly, as well as the extreme nervousness and acute dyspepsia which made life a most painful thing for me.

"I had been a coffee drinker since childhood, and did not like to think that the beverage was doing me all this harm. But it was, and the time came when I had to face the fact, and protect myself. I therefore gave up coffee abruptly and absolutely, and adopted Postum for my hot drink at meals.

"I began to note improvement in condition very soon after I took on Postum. The change proceeded gradually, but surely, and it was a matter of only a few weeks before I found myself entirely relieved—the nervousness passed away, my digestive apparatus was restored to normal efficiency, and I began to sleep restfully and peacefully.

These happy conditions have continued during all of the 5 years, and I am safe in saying that I owe them entirely to Postum, for when I began to drunk it I ceased to use medicines."

MONTREAL'S WINTER CARNIVAL.

Formally Opened Yesterday With Brilliant Fetes.

(Special to The Times.)

Montreal, Jan. 27. — Montreal's great winter carnival opened today under conditions of a most favorable character. For ten days there will be a succession of brilliant events well calculated to impress upon the minds of visitors the indescribable attractions of a Canadian winter. Skiing, hockey, curling, skating, tobogganing and snowshoe races—none of the favorite winter pastimes of the Canadian people will be lacking. In all of the contests the best outdoor athletes of the Dominion are entered. Speedy skaters of wide reputation will take part in the contests on the St. Lawrence, and John Rudd, the famous Norwegian ski acrobat, will be seen in daily exhibitions.

The features of today's program was the formal opening of the ice palace, the fairy-like and glacial structure erected on Fletcher's field, and which will be the center of festivities throughout the carnival. Tomorrow night will come the storming of the Ice Palace, when the snowshoe clubs will meet on Mount Royal, tramp down the mountain amidst a blaze of fireworks and make a concerted attack on the glittering white palace. The attack will be repulsed from within by fireworks, the whole scene winding up with a grand illumination and pyrotechnic display.

Address to Mr. J. C. Brown from County Council---Reports Presented

Address Spoke in Terms of Warm Appreciation of the Splendid Services Rendered by Mr. Brown---May be Put on Superannuation List---Good Roads' Committee

One of the interesting features of yesterday's County Council meeting was the presentation of an address to Mr. J. Coyle Brown, recently retired as public school inspector. The address spoke in terms of warm appreciation of the splendid services rendered by Mr. Brown during the many years that he filled the office of inspector.

Mr. Brown made a fitting reply and thanked the members of the County Council.

The council also passed a resolution recommending the Provincial government putting Mr. Brown on the superannuation list as he had served very faithfully and efficiently for many years.

GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE.

A report from the special committee appointed to attend the meeting of the Good Roads Association in Toronto on Wednesday, December 22, 1909, was presented as follows:

In accordance with a resolution of the County Council, passed on Dec. 2, 1909, we attended a meeting held in the city of Toronto, on Wednesday, with the object of placing before the Provincial Government the advisability of increasing the present grant to roads under the county roads system, from 33 1-3 per cent. as it stands at present to 50 per cent. of the entire cost.

After the meeting the deputation which was a large one, waited on the honorable the minister of public works, and placed the matter as strongly as possible before him, and while he manifested a strong desire to improve the road system throughout the province, yet he did not give us any assurance that the increase asked for would be made as he considered that it would be a very heavy burden to place upon the finances of the province at present, but led us to believe that in the near future the conditions would be complied with.

HOUSE OF REFUGE.

The fourth annual report of the County House of Refuge Board of Managers was presented to the County Council yesterday morning and was as follows:—

Fourth annual report of the Board of Management of the County House of Refuge.

To the Council of the County assembled —

Gentlemen, — We, your Board of Management for the year 1909, respectfully beg to report as follows:

Up to and including December 31, 1909, there have been admitted to the House 50 inmates, of these 9 have been discharged or absconded, 12 have died, and on December 31, 29 remained in the House.

The twelve that died averaged 80 1-3 years of age.

During the year one inmate was removed to the provincial asylum, and we yet have one that is not properly speaking a fit subject for a House of Refuge.

Outside of the removal by death of several of the old people, there was not the amount of illness that prevailed in 1908.

Your board has made the requisite number of inspections provided by the rules and the results of our observations in the main, have been satisfactory, very little complaint having been made by the old people, and whenever made was generally the emanation of eccentricity.

Considerable permanent improvements appeared to be necessary and according to your provision in council, your board have had carried into effect that what they deemed necessary, namely:

Extending of one barn some twenty feet thereby making more adequate barn room and providing for logs underneath the new extension.

Also the building of a poultry house, which, after considering the capability of the old men to look after the fowl appeared to be and no doubt will be a paying investment.

Some other improvements were made, such as necessary grading and placing the electric light poles in back lane, thereby adding to the appearance of the front, by removing them from there.

We also had the outbuildings fitted out with electric lights, deciding it safer than coal oil lanterns, with very little more current expense during 1910.

There has been up to Dec. 31, 1909 paid out for permanent improvements, $778.68, and of course some accounts still not presented.

During the year 39,053 pounds of milk were produced.

December 31, 1909—Value of horses, $400; cattle, $580; hogs, $160; poultry, $50; machinery, $600.

Death and Destitution is Reported From all Over Europe.

London, Jan. 27.—Partial returns today from European seaports show that fully 200 vessels, mostly small fishing craft, have been lost in the storm of the last 48 hours, and that there has been loss of life in the sinking of at least half of these boats.

Italy, Spain, Germany and the Scandinavian countries all report tremendous loss in property and life with a greatly increased death roll feared from the isolation of many towns by high water and snow blockades. The situation is the most appalling that Europe has known in many years.

Belated vessels are arriving today in battered condition. Despatches from Naples say the waterfront there has been flooded and the quays wreck

TIBER IS RESTLESS.

At Rome the Tiber is threatening to inundate the city. The river has already overflowed many miles of territory and is causing huge damage

The interior of Spain is practically cut off from outside communication, and the extent of damage there cannot be ascertained.

Rescuing parties are searching for a dozen Alpine tourists, who have not been heard from for two days. Snow blocks many of the Alpine passes and makes it probable that many of the mountaineers and tourists have been cut off from escape.

Railway traffic in Denmark is badly interrupted and a half-dozen trains are reported inaccessible from snow blockades. The passengers in these trains are without food and fuel. The snow in Scandinavia is the heaviest in several years, and most of the smaller towns are isolated.

PARIS PARTLY AFLOAT.

Paris, Jan. 27.—With the thermometer below freezing point and the relentless river Seine continuing its devasting progress toward the top of the retaining walls, Paris awoke today to what may prove the most terrible day in her history, aside from the crisis presented by war.

What the end of the unprecedented flood will be none can say, but it is enough to know that never before has the gay capital been so sorely smitten in a physical way.

Miles of her boulevards, one of the city's chief points of pride have been washed away; many of the most notable structures in the city, to see which travelers have been wont to come from the corners of the earth have already suffered heavy loss and are in danger of collapse; fifty thousand are homeless and subsisting on scant provisions furnished by the city the industrial life of the city is completely suspended, and the one thought in the minds of the people is the imminence of a staggering calamity that may yet come, if the Seine continues to rise.

IS NOT GAY PAREE.

For once Paris has been sobered. The gay mood that permitted the people to look on the flood in its early stages as a spectacle for their entertainment has departed, and grim fear is now in the hearts of everyone, and is plainly written on the faces of all.

Every subway in Paris— and Paris has more underground tunnels of one sort and another than any city in the world—is now flooded. This is the cause of the enormous damage, a damage that in Paris alone is likely to run over $100,000,000. These subterrean rivers have caused the collapse of scores of streets, and are responsible for the water that now stands in varying depths over nearly half of the city.

Engineers declared today that if the waters immediately subside, it will take two years to repair the damage done in Paris "underground world.

PARK KEEPER SUICIDE.

The United Press correspondent witnessed the novel sight today of a flock of wild ducks swimming in the water that has now reached the branches of the trees in the Henry IV. Park on the Isle De La Cite, in the River Seine.

The aged keeper of this park committed suicide today when he looked upon the ruin that had been wrought. He had been seriously ill for several days, but left his bed today to see whether the terrible stories that had been told him were true. When he saw that the ravage of the park was complete he killed himself.

Police and soldiers are literally driving hundreds of the poor from their homes in the inundated sections to death in the collapse of their houses. Scores of these houses have already tumbled in.

Public halls, churches, school buildings, and even such magnificent structures as the Pantheon are being converted into refuges for the poor. Through the co-operation of the police, soldiers and Red Cross societies the thousands of destitute are being fairly well fed. Owing to the scarcity of food, coffee and rolls are the principal items in the rations. Huge coffee boilers are steaming on many of the street corners.

PROCESSION OF DESTITUTES.

Never before has such a depressing spectacle been witnessed as the almost constant procession to Paris of the unfortunates from the flooded environs. Thousands of these are coming to the city in the hope of finding food, shelter and medical attendance.

Scantily clad women, with babies in their arms, aged men pulling rickety carts containing their households effects, cripples carried on litters or riding in improvised carts, drawn in some cases by women and dogs, crying children and half crazed men make up the sad procession.

WOMAN DRIVEN INSANE.

Early today the police found a woman, driven insane by the flood, and her five small children almost frozen on the top of the Butte Chaumont in Park Hill. Her case is but typical of hundreds of others.

Future provision for the thousands who have been rendered absolute destitute by the flood presents a serious economic problem, though just how the authorities are concerned wholly with the present. It is a question of saving life now.

Cruel Woman Gets Two Years in Mercer

Toronto, Jan. 27.—Evelyn Fisher, or White, the young woman who procured Virginia Harrison, a 13-year-old girl for immoral purposes, using her as a white slave, and bringing about her ruin, was sentenced by Magistrate Denison this morning to one year and 364 days in the Mercer Reformatory with hard labor. Fisher who lived upon the disgrace of the woman, was committed for trial.

Praise for Canada's System of Banking

(Special to The Times.)

London, Jan. 27.—Sir F. Schuster speaking at a bank meeting, said that the Canadian banking system was highly efficient as well as very useful to the country generally.

Sir R. Best, addressing British farmers at their conference, urged upon them the necessity for increasing their wheat production, and avoiding the necessity for Britain relying on foreign countries for supplies of bread. He hoped ultimately to see a reciprocal preference arrangement throughout the empire.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Portage La Prairie Review, says:

The Review has received a copy of a special number of the Peterborough Times. It is called a "national industrial number," and is certainly a credit to the publishers.

Lindsay Coming with 300 "Rooters"

(Special to The Times.)

Lindsay, Jan. 27.—To encourage the locals in wiping out the defeat sustained here on Friday evening last a special G.T.R. train will convey the Lindsay O.H.A. intermediate team to Peterborough tomorrow evening. The train will leave the G.T.R. station at 6.45, returning the same evening. The tickets for the trip are being secured rapidly by the hockey fans, there being left out of five stores only three centers where the tickets can be purchased. Benson House, Fobert shoe store, and Gregory's drug store.

Another practice was conducted last evening at the Lindsay street skating rink between the intermediate players.

A permit has been received by Secretary Burgess for "Bettie" Burgess, of Fenelon Falls, who will play cover point for the locals tomorrow evening.

The game will be a fast one and whoever wins will have to travel some. The locals are out to do the trick, even if it is on the Quakers' ice.

Leaders in Legislature Refer to the High Cost of Food

Toronto, Jan. 27.—Following upon the suggestion contained in the speech from the Throne that the Dominion Government institute an inquiry into the high cost of food, that shall embrace conditions in all parts of Canada, the subject has become one of the live questions among the members of the legislature, and in the debates upon the floor of the House.

THE OPPOSITION LEADER.

In his address yesterday the Liberal leader, Mr. A. G. MacKay, referred to the clause in the speech, and suggested that some action by the Attorney-General of the Province might be called for.

"It suggests that the Dominion Government should do something," said Mr. MacKay. "Now if there are combines we should not shoulder the responsibility on the Dominion Government. If the farmer is making more than he did before, we have no right to complain. If the middlemen, however, are working a combination the attorney-general should get busy to break down these combines.

"I do not know, however, of any combine, although prices are undoubtedly higher than before."

SIR JAMES WHITNEY.

"The leader of the Opposition does not understand the government a position in regard to an inquiry into food supplies," said Premier Whitney in reply.

"Whatever may be the reason for the great advance, it is not a reason confined to one Province. There is nothing further from the thought of this government than to shoulder the responsibility on the Dominion government. We only suggested that an inquiry be made, and we hope it will be made. When we find out what the trouble is, we still have a chance to deal with the disease."

Mr. Allan Studholme, Labor member for East Hamilton, declared that "when food is soaring, as it is today, it is a matter of life and death."

Next Election will be on Home Rule Issue

London, Jan. 27.—Home Rule for Ireland will be the overshadowing issue in the next English election, according to an agreement that is reported today on the highest authority to have been reached between Premier Asquith and John Redmond the Nationalist leader.

According to this agreement the Liberals and Nationalists will work in unison in the proposed reformation of the House of Lords, in the budget fight, and in support of a bill to effect sweeping election law reforms. After these measures have been put through, the Home Rule bill will be introduced.

COULDN'T PASS COMMONS.

There will be no possibility of its passage during the next session, as it is believed that 20 per cent of the Liberals themselves oppose Home Rule, but the issue will be made the chief contention in the next election. The election reform bill it passed as now drafted will be of immense advantage to the Liberals and is counted on to keep them in power regardless of the storm of opposition that the Home Rule issue will arouse.

Politicans generally deem the compact between Asquith and Redmond the most important political agreement of recent years, and most of them are agreed that it practically insures Home Rule for Ireland within the next few years.

In the next parliament the question of Home Rule will be kept in the background as much as possible until the favorite measures of the Liberals are decided. Several of the Liberal leaders are still apprehensive over the Nationalists and are demanding that the most sacred pledges be obtained from them as to what legislation they will permit, before the Home Rule issued is passed.

The Montreal Meat Boycott

Montreal, Jan. 27.—Tonight the labor men of the city will hold a mass meeting in the Labor Temple, to make the necessary arrangements for a thirty-day abstinence from the use of meat on the part of the working men of the city, on account of the high prices prevailing.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Failure in Liver Activity a Cause.

There are thousands on the verge of serious kidney trouble. Bright's disease, diabetes, etc., who like Mr. Jeremy J. Perry, of New Glasgow, were actributing their physical decline to every other than the true cause.

In a recent letter he says: "My kidneys, perhaps a result of dyspepsia, got all out of order; they ached excessively. I had constant thirst, and my body showed signs of wasting, despite an appetite in the early stages of my trouble, ample enough to sustain the body. I decided to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills and have great satisfaction in stating that they have completely cured me. An immediate decline in the volume of urine was the most noticeable result at the beginning, and this was soon followed by a regular action of the bowels. It was a great boon I assure you, to get rid of so greasing a desire to drink, drink, as was the case with me last summer.

"No question remains in mind that the liver was the cause of my ailments: I am sure that no pills for kidney, liver or bowel trouble can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I urge their use to all my friends."

No other medicine is so certain to cure troubles of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. You are sure to be cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse any substitutes. Price 25c. per box, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

WIND ON THE STOMACH.

"A few weeks ago I ate some green vegetables and some fruits that was not quite ripe. It first brought on a fit of indigestion, but unfortunately it developed into hissoughs, accompanied by nausea and cramps. I was dreadfully ill for two days—my head ached and throbbed, I belched gas continually, and I was unable to sleep at night. A neighbor happened in to see me and urged me to try Nerviline Well, I wouldn't have believed that any preparation could act so quickly. I took half a teaspoon full of Nerviline in hot sweetened water, and my stomach felt better at once. I used Nerviline several times, and was completely restored."

NERVILINE STRENGTHENS WEAK STOMACHS

The above is from a letter written by G. E. Braun, a well-known stockman and farmer near Lethbridge, Alta. Mr. Braun's favorable opinion of the high merit of Nerviline is shared by thousands of Canadians who have proved Nerviline is simply a marvel for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, nausea and stomach disorders. Safe to use, guaranteed to cure—you can make no mistake in keeping Nerviline for your family remedy. Large 15c. bottles; five for $1.00 Sold everywhere. or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

NOT GROWING COLDER.

Earth's Climate Has Not Changed Within Historic Times.

During the last few years the supposition that the earth is growing colder has received a setback from the consideration of the consequences which result from the discovery of radium in the earth's rocks. If radium exists throughout the interior of the globe in the same quantities as where it appears in the surface rocks, then such is the volume of heat which it would render up that the earth ought to be growing hotter instead of colder. If, furthermore, the earth were slightly increasing in temperature, the amount of rainfall precipitated from the atmosphere would become greater rather than less, and as at the same time the amount of water shut up in the earth's rocks would also be forced out in greater quantities by increasing heat it would not be possible to suppose that the earth's surface was becoming drier.

Therefore the supposition that the earth has exhibited within historic time any general drying up or any tendency to revert to a glacial epoch has been regarded with more and more suspicion, and the hypotheses have been substituted that either the apparent variations of climate are local or else that they are the results of some seesaw of conditions, the causes of which remain to be discovered.

In short, whatever test be applied, it becomes extremely hard to show that the climate of any portion of the civilized world has appreciably changed within historic time.—London Post.

Fresh Air a Foe to Pneumonia.

Cold weather does not directly cause pneumonia, but it is an indirect cause. It causes injudicious people to shut themselves up indoors, closing windows and doors, so that they may be comfortably warm. Closed windows mean lack of proper ventilation, the indoor air soon becoming very foul. When this foul air is taken into the lungs it fails to impart the necessary health sustaining elements that inhaled air should; rather it poisons the body, lowers the natural resisting powers and creates fertile soil for the invasion and development of the pneumonia germ.

The thing to do is to stop lowering your resisting power. Quit poisoning yourself with foul air. Breathe good, pure air all the time, especially while sleeping. Keep your windows open day and night. Don't be afraid of cold air. Pure cold air does not cause pneumonia. It's dirty, foul air that causes the trouble.—Bulletin of Chicago Health Department.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Coffee Drinking in Switzerland.

The average annual consumption of coffee in Switzerland during the last three years has been about 8½ pounds. Coffee drinking is general among all classes of people. This is especially true of the working classes, who drink coffee for breakfast, again at 10 o'clock in the morning, for dinner as an afternoon refreshment, and many of them for supper, which makes the consumption very large in proportion to the population. The retail price of coffee ranges from 16 to 30 cents a pound, but the greater part of the coffee sold in the country is below the average grade, as the majority of the consumers are of the laboring class. The majority of the people do not drink tea. While chocolate is consumed in large quantities in Switzerland, it is not much used as a beverage, the most of it being used as food.

The Harvest of Polar Research.

One of the results of this tremendous accomplishment (the discovery of the north pole) in the relief to many minds in the reflection that hereafter the explorations in that region of the earth will be conducted with less strain upon human endurance and in the quieter paths of scientific research. Perhaps now, for instance, the somewhat neglected magnetic pole will receive the attention it deserves. And yet the restless and costly quest of the boreal unknown is not to be counted of waste of money, effort or life. The cultivation of an indomitable spirit and a herculean endurance has once not less valuable to humanity than any result of the patient inquiries of science.—Century.

Chair to Prevent Seasickness.

Hoping to lessen seasickness, Mr. F. Andruck has invented an air cushioned chair and had four of them set up on the aft promenade deck of the Blucher of the Hamburg-American line. Mr. Andruck was a passenger and gathered some testimonials from his fellow travelers who had used the chairs during the rather rough voyage. The new device resembles a barber's chair and, according to its inventor, neutralizes the rolling of the ship so much that seasickness becomes practically unknown. He hopes that his invention will be so successful that it will be fitted in future to sofas and beds on vessels.—New York Herald.

Birthday Greetings.

The date of one's birth is not a matter of common knowledge, but few secrets of this sort are hidden from the solicitors for the life insurance companies. One of the more enterprising has been sending out, timed to arrive on the correct date, a neat card with the following inscription: "Mr. Richard Roe—On this your birthday I wish you many happy returns of the day and all joy, happiness and success for the years to come. Very sincerely yours, John Doe." One has to look closely to discover the fact that the sender is an insurance agent, and at that the good wishes are not entirely unwelcome.—New York Sun.

PRICE OF FOODSTUFFS

New York, Jan. 25.—Milk, eggs, and butter led the procession of receding food prices here today. Nation-wide agitation aided by potent local influences have brought about the drop. Meat, too, is on the decline, following a greatly reduced consumption in protest against its excessive cost.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Olin, thus giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 1-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 60c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as references of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 26.20 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in these concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

THE VALUE OF MONEY.

Wise Mothers Teach Daughters How to Spend Judiciously.

When a girl reaches thirteen her weekly dime should be increased to 25 cents. Many small items of attire such as gloves, stockings, collars, she will be able to buy for herself through this addition.

Now the mother, having taught her wise spending, will begin to delegate some of her own duties to the child. She has to learn marketing properly. The mother takes the girl with her for some time on her buying expeditions; then she allows her to take the reins for a week or so, checking her where she sees a little wrong.

She learns inspection of goods, so that she can discriminate between good and inferior brands of groceries, meat, fish and the like. She learns how to buy and what to buy. Market tables she studies so as to find out beforehand what things are in or out of season and what the prices are. Then she is ready to meet any overcharge with the right knowledge.

She learns food values, knows what foods give energy and vitality and which form flesh and build up the body. She learns when to buy in quantity and also when not to buy in quantity on account of certain things deteriorating through keeping.

She learns the enormous difference that exists between a cash account and a credit account. The mother explains all this to her. Her own training with her little weekly income of a dime for all these years will have prepared the ground of her mind to receive it all, and she is an apt pupil, willing and ready to take her mother's place in the home at a minute's notice any time.

When she has the reins she gets her requisitions ready for the week and, with her mother, checks the items before going out to buy. She knows how to get the most for her money at the grocer's, the butcher's or the baker's and will not be enjoled into buying anything not arranged for.

She knows her income and its limitations and has learned how to restrict her wants rigidly. She will not give her orders blindly, but will see everything before she buys it. Meat, vegetables, groceries, milk, butter, eggs, fish, poultry—she knows their weak points and reveals them. The tradespeople serve her aright and respect her. She is a good judge and will get full weight in goods. She checks all bills before paying them, so as to detect any mistake either for or against her. She thus compels extra care in attendance on the tradesman's part.

A girl like this is a treasure her mother is not very willing to part with. It is a treasure easily attained, because girls love this marketing and delight in doing it. And it is just as well to take a little trouble to know how to do it well. Later on some lucky man will delight in his housekeeping treasure, too, and still later another generation of boys and girls may arise to bless not only their mother, but the grandmother who was the source of all her knowledge.

HINTS FOR THE TOILET.

A teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin to two tablespoonfuls of rosewater makes the celebrated "lait virginal."

Be sure that neither your hair tonics nor your face powders contain lead or arsenic, as they poison the skin and scalp.

Straight hair can be curled by moistening with quince seed, rolling in paper and holding until dry between hot tongs.

A dry skin should avoid the use of alkaline soaps, toilet powders or aromatic vinegars. They are too drying and cause the growth of wrinkles.

Never use anything but a blunt instrument around the nail. To scrape nail roughens surface and increases difficulty in cleaning. It also bruises cuticle in pushing it back from base of nail and causes hangnails.

Preparations of sulphur for the skin are not always beneficial. When used incessantly they often prove irritating. It is a good plan to apply the sulphur washes or powders at night, then in the morning add some soothing lotion to the wash water, as bran, almond meal or oatmeal.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Got a Prize.

Wertheimer, a London art dealer, was one day passing through Mayfair when he noticed a sale about to take place of the "furniture and household effects of a deceased nobleman." He walked through the rooms where dealers were critically examining choice specimens of undoubtedly genuine Chippendale and Sheraton, interspersed among early Victorian furniture, his eyes apparently dwelling on nothing. But when the sale was about to begin he asked the auctioneer if he would take $35,000 for everything in the house. The offer was accepted. "Now you can resell everything to me," said Mr. Wertheimer, "except this," and he took down from the mantelpiece a dirty ornament some nine inches high and put into his pocket. It was a piece of the rarest Dresden china, bearing the coveted mark of the wand of Auscultation, which he afterward sold for $60,000.

Canada's Manufactures.

The capital invested in the various manufacturing industries in Canada amounts to $834,000,000, an increase of 65 per cent. in five years; while the total deposits in chartered Canadian banks on November 30, 1909 equalled nearly $100 per capita for everyone, man, woman and child, as against $33 per capita ten years ago.

A Gentle Rebuke.

It was late in the year for strawberries, but Mrs. Beacon was determined to have some for Sunday dinner. Over the telephone came the news that they were "very fine, ma'am; very fine indeed." Being, however, a cautious housekeeper, she decided to look over the fruit herself, as the grocer was not always to be trusted.

"They don't appear very good," she said some time later, examining carefully a basketful. "They look"—here she extracted one and tasted it—"they look a little green. I don't know. Just let me try one." She took another. "I guess I'll take one box, please. You don't put very many in a box, do you?" she inquired.

"There was," said the grocer respectfully, "but there's been so many ladies looking 'em over that there ain't."—

"You may give me two boxes," said Mrs. Beacon.—Youth's Companion.

Lincoln's Religion.

I have never united myself to any church, because I have found difficulty in giving my assent without mental reservation to the long complicated statements of Christian doctrine which characterize their articles of belief and confessions of faith. Whenever any church will inscribe over its altar as its sole qualification for membership the Saviour's condensed statement of the substance of both law and gospel, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself," that church will I join with all my heart and all my soul.—Abraham Lincoln.

Queer Friends.

On board the Union Castle R. M. S. Goth on a voyage from the Cape to Teneriffe was a little monkey belonging to one of the stewards. It was very fond of sitting on the back of a tortoise, another ship's pet, while the latter crawled about the deck. Although rather ill tempered and snappish with people, the monkey was always friendly with the tortoise, which made no objection to being used as her steed.—Wide World Magazine.

The Little Thing Counted.

The Pastor (dining with the family)—Ah, yes, Brother Smithers, it is the little things of this life that count! Little Willie (in a loud whisper)—Maw, that's the sixth biscuit he's took.—Exchange.

There is no Quinine, nothing whatever harsh or sickening in Preventics These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets act as if by magic. A few hours—and your threatening cold is broken. Candy-like in taste. Preventics please the children—and they break the feverishness always. And least of all is the economy. A large box—48 Preventics—25 cents—Ask your druggist. He knows! Sold by all dealers.

Then there is supposed to be another local bonspeil before the season closes.

Curling Notes.

Harry Evans and Bowes skipp'd a couple of scratch rinks last night, the only game played, and they provided a lot of fun for the few spectators present. Bowes on the C.P.R. was seven up at the end of the eleventh end, but Evans got four in the 12th. He should have had six, but on the last shot he was wide and bumped the side instead of the two C.P. R. stones. The ice at the end of the game was getting quite keen although in the early stages it was soft.

MANY COMPLAINTS

About Wild and Savage Cars Roaming the Streets.

A citizen called at The Times office yesterday and wished to give encouragement to Ald. Turner in his effort to prevent dogs running at large. This citizen is still suffering from a broken rib sustained by a fall as a result of a dog attached to a sleigh running into him and knocking him down. He agrees with Ald. Turner that dogs are a nuisance and should be controlled.

A lady coming up from the C.P.R. station the other day was run into by a dog and a sleigh and knocked down. She has since been suffering from the shock and shaking up she got.

A well known resident of Water street talks of a contemptable cur on that street which worried him very much one night recently. The walks were slippery and the citizen had all he could do to stay on his pins anyway. The dog snapped at him and made several vicious attacks before he was finally driven away.

Reports of bad dogs are received almost every day from every part of the city, and many of the worst are the half-breed collies and the supposedly throughbred collies. It is time the council took action.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all dealers.

The Redemption of Tramp Kelly.

A Lesson That Was Taught by His Brother In Misery.

By WILLIAM ALFRED COREY

Copyright, 19.., by American Press Association.

Milwaukee Red had just rolled out of a box car, having arrived on a night freight from Seattle, and was thumping back doors for breakfast.

With one foot very conspicuously bound up in rags, an arm in a sling and an expression of countenance to correspond, he had applied at several doors without success when at the door of a poor little shack in a side street a woman with a foreign accent bade him enter.

"Holy smoke!" thought Milwaukee Red. "Is me power house workin' right? A warm set down already! Dat's sure goin' some. Dat beats de cold handouts a mile. Now, jes' watch little Willie punish de grub." And he hesitated not the fraction of a second; but, with a cheerful willingness born of a two days' fast, he followed the woman into the house.

But Red's bright vision of a table loaded with savory dishes only lasted until he got inside the door. The table was there all right, but in place of the smoking breakfast that Red's hungry imagination had conjured up there were only some fragments of loaves of black bread and a pitcher of water, while seated about the table were four half-starved children.

The woman explained to Red that they were themselves nearly starving, that she was a widow and that a grown son, her sole support, had wandered off months since in search of employment, but that she never turned a hungry man away unfed at least with such as she had and ended by bidding him sit up to their frugal board.

But Red did not move. He stood in the middle of the floor and stared as though hypnotized. He stared at the partly eaten pieces of dry bread, at the famished looking children, at the pale faced woman and at the room in general, wherein want was written everywhere. He stared for a full minute, and then, without a word, he turned and strode out of the room. And the woman noticed that he did not limp as he went out as he had done when he came in.

Outside, Red made for the nearest alley, divested himself of his "make-up," stored the bandages in a bundle for future use and started uptown. An inspiration had come to Mr. Red of Milwaukee.

He had been in Frisco many times before, and he knew the ropes at a certain cheap eating place south of Market street. Once in a moment of weakness he had accepted a position in the place for a few days washing dishes.

Red went boldly into a meat market and said: "I'm after de meat for Johnnie's hash factory. Johnnie sent me. Dey wants ten pounds."

The butcher looked at Red. "Just some tramp dishwasher at Johnnie's," he thought to himself. "He acquires a new one every other day. I'll chance it's being all right."

Red hiked with the meat, but not to Johnnie's. He next lay for a baker's wagon. Pretty soon one rattled past and stopped in front of a house. Red watched his chance, and as the driver went around the house with two loaves of bread he helped himself to four more, fresh warm ones from a bag up on top.

Butter and milk were next on his shopping list, and these he stole from back doors where the articles had been left, it being yet early in the morning and Red being an artist in this kind of foraging.

A half hour later the kind hearted though poverty stricken woman who had offered Red a share of what she had was surprised to find on her back porch the food he had collected, together with the following crudely written note:

"Deer Madam—Deve tings are for you but it was nothin' about it to nobody. Jes' tink de kids vas on it. A FRIEND.

The next morning another and similar offering was found on the porch and eagerly appropriated, the poor family supposing it to be the work of some charitably disposed person, as in fact it was, though the tramp who had called at their door was farthest from their thoughts.

These early morning donations continued with scarcely an interruption for three weeks. Some mornings there would be articles of clothing for both children and adults as well as food of the latter there was a great variety and great a variety, in fact, as the source from which it came.

"Wat yer rustlin' so hard fer all de time, Red?" asked Kelly the Bum one night when they met in an alley where some empty barrels afforded free lodgings.

"Got a fambly to support," was Red's terse reply.

"A which?" exclaimed Kelly, scarcely crediting his ears.

"A fambly," repeated Red.

"You [illegible] with as though he were [illegible]

Then Red had to explain the [illegible]

tion. "I ain't goin' to see them kids go hungry," he said, "not as long as I can rustle."

"You'll git pinched an' sent over de road fust thing yer know," warned Kelly.

"Can't help it none," said Red. "Them kids is goin' to eat as long as I'm here."

"Where does yer fambly reside, Mr. Milwaukee Red?" inquired Kelly, with a mock obeisance.

"Yes, Russian Hill," repeated Red. "Wat's remarkable about dose?"

"Nothin'," said Kelly, with forced effort to appear unconcerned. And then, after a moment during which neither spoke, he asked: "Where does them people live? Worked that section meself once."

Red told him the street and described the house, wondering the while, though not appearing to notice the strange effect the information seemed to produce upon his pal.

"An' yer been feedin' 'em for a month," mused Kelly.

"Yes, an' I'll be feedin' 'em for another month unless—unless her son comes back. Reckon he's bummin' somewhere same as you an' me. Didn't like to tell the old woman, though. Say, pal, if I had some kin folks o' me own to hustle fer I'd—I'd quit the road an' go to work."

Kelly did not answer at once. He seemed to have lost the power of speech and to be lost in thought, though Red knew him too well to try to force his ragged friend to unbosom himself.

Finally Kelly pulled himself together and said: "Well, must be goin'. Got a ben on. No, don't need no help. See yer tomorrow." And then he added impressively: "Red, whatever yer do, don't git pinched. Hear me? Keep yer eye peeled an' don't git pinched. S' long."

There was no denying it was a grim risk Red was running, as was indicated by the following news item which appeared prominently the next day in a city paper:

SNEAK THIEVES INFESTING HILL DISTRICT.

Recently sneak thieves have been plying their trade in the Russian Hill district so industriously that there is an insistent call for more police protection. Articles of food and clothing have been disappearing so rapidly in that neighborhood of late that it would seem a small army of these gentry are at work there. Groceries left at back doors in the early morning hours are being taken, clotheslines are being denuded and small neighborhood stores even are being entered and robbed in broad daylight. The police are laying for these miscreants, and a good, healthy penitentiary term awaits all caught in the dragnet.

And besides the risk which he knew he was running Red felt the weight of the responsibility which he had voluntarily assumed. Looking out for himself was an easy matter. Long experience had made him a past master in the high art of living without working. But looking out for himself and supporting "a fambly" were two different propositions.

However, he had not long to carry the burden. One morning—it was a week since Kelly's sudden disappearance—Red was surprised to find the poor woman awaiting him on the oft visited back porch.

Their surprise was mutual, for the woman at once recognized in Red the tramp with whom she had offered to divide her crust several weeks previous.

"And is it really you who have been doing this?" she questioned, as though doubting her senses.

"I reckon 'tain't nobody else, mum," said Red.

"How can I thank or ever repay you?" she said, her lips trembling.

"Oh, that is what I was waiting to see you or whoever brought the things about," said the woman. "We don't need help any more. My dear son Will"—and tears of happiness shone in her eyes—"has returned, and he got work yesterday. He's going to take care of us now. He was gone so long, and we didn't know where he was. But he says he'll never leave us again. We're all so happy! It seems as though you have brought us good luck. I want you to come this evening and see my Will. He'll be so glad to see you."

Red looked past the woman and saw a coat which he easily recognized as Kelly's hanging upon a peg just within the kitchen door. And his pal's strange behavior on the night of their last conversation was at once explained.

"Don't see how I can come, mum," he said, "but tell Kelly—I mean Will—that I'm glad he's doin' so well and to stay with his new job."

And before the happy woman could detain him or press upon him more words of gratitude Red was out the gate and gone.

But one day they saw an item in a newspaper about a tramp being run over by an automobile and lying in a hospital with a broken leg. Something in the reporter's reference to the man led those whom Red had befriended to think it was he. Going to the hospital, true enough, there was their old friend. As soon as he was able to be moved they took him home with them, and as they were now in a more prosperous condition they kept him till he had grown strong again. Then he insisted on going out to resume his tramps. They tried to persuade him to stay with them and get work, but he shook his head grimly and walked away.

Investigation Into Board of Works' Dept. re Recent Accidents

In connection with the Legal Committee's report read last night at the council meeting recommending that the city pay damages for accidents, Ald. Turner said that there was gross negligence on the part of someone and a vote of censure should be passed.

Ald. Phelan put the blame on the assistant street inspector, who, he said had nothing to do in the winter but to look after the snow plowing and the bridges in Ashburnham.

Ald. Morgan defended Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, and placed the blame on Ald. Phelan, who he claimed was responsible for all those holes and defective walks and bridges. He, Mr. Fitzgerald, was the busiest man in the city.

Ald. Hicks suggested that an investigation be held into the matter.

This met with the approval of all, and the Board of Works was authorized to look into the matter at once.

NON-UNION PAINTERS.

Firemen to Join the Painters' Union This Spring?

When Ald. Morgan presented the report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee it included an item for paint for painting the exterior of the fire hall. The men of the brigade are to do the work. At this point Ald. Duncan suggested that the firemen be requested to join the Painters' & Decorators' Union before they proceeded with the work. The aldermen all laughed.

NO COMMISSIONER.

Of Industry to Be Appointed Without Due Consideration.

Ald. Buller objected to the council appointing an industrial commissioner at the present time. He said those officials were being fired out in many other cities and before this city goes into such a thing very careful consideration should be given it.

The report of the Manufacturers' Committee was therefore changed referring the matter to the Committee of the Whole Council for discussion.

THE FINEST EMBROCATION.

Opinions of Champion Sports.

Hockey players, football players, and athletes in general are interested in Zam-Buk because it has achieved so many successes, and is regarded by the leading athletes as the finest balm and embrocation.

A bad sprain, a cut, a nasty bruise—all heal quickly when Zam-Buk is applied. Mr. Joe Kelley, the famous Toronto baseball "pro" is a great user of Zam-Buk. Mr. H. Lennon, the ex-champion lightweight wrestler never travels without it. Tom Longboat, Sherring, of Hamilton, Ashley, of the West End Y.M.C.A. and other prominent authorities on sport and athletics have from time to time expressed the same opinion.

If you have a cut, ulcer, or wound which is always troubling you, try Zam-Buk. Follow the instructions carefully, persevere for a proper length of time, and you will join the army who praise this great balm. It is equally good for skin diseases, blood poison, abscesses, rashes on face, chest, or other parts of the body, fistula, piles, etc. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c box.

Terrible Suffering of the Homeless in the Flooded Districts

Paris, Jan. 28.—The boiling waters of the Seine are still rising at the rate of an inch and a quarter per hour. There is a steady downpour of rain and the temperature is falling. Everywhere the situation is appreciably worse than yesterday.

When the day broke over Paris and the submerged provinces surrounding the prospect was a cheerless one. A heavy rain had set in, and a brisk breeze out of the north served to drive the flood to points which has heretofore escaped its invasion.

The temperature moderated today, and in some instances the suffering of the homeless ones was alleviated. Messages of sympathy from the outside, many of them accompanied with substantial financial contributions, was another feature of the situation which afforded causes for thanksgiving.

CUT OFF FROM THE OUTSIDE.

Telegraph communication with the outside was extremely defective today, and at times wholly interrupted. There is no direct communication between this city and England, and messages for Central Europe generally were diverted through indirect routes.

The morning found a great force of masons at work on the erection of a wall, which it was hoped would divert the flood from the historic hotel Lambert, and the famous hotel Lauzun adjoining. Both of these houses were built in the seventeenth century, the hotel Lauzun having been purchased by the city ten years ago and made over as a museum of art.

The Seine continued to rise today, and lacked but a few inches of attaining the greatest flood maximum on record. This was in 1615, and when the country was without the modern barriers which are designed to protect Paris and nearby points in such emergencies.

SEWERS ARE BURSTING.

The sewers with which the foundation of Paris is honeycombed, have complicated and added to recent flood disasters. The main sewers are eighteen feet in diameter, and the total length of this net work of drains is 900 miles. Under flood pressure these vast tunnels burst and frequently undermined the foundations of the buildings. As these tubes also contain water conduits, gas pipes, telegraph, telephones and power wires as well as the pneumatic postal tubes, the effects of a bursting sewer are widespread and serious.

Mr. Justice Clute Orders Release of Robt. Scott Perry

Toronto, Jan. 28.—Robert Scott Perry, laborer, of Lacombe, Alberta, was released from Peterborough jail today on the order of Mr. Justice Clute.

Perry, against whom his wife Mary Eleanor Perry obtained judgment for alimony in 1905, was arrested in Peterborough on January 11th, under the Absconding Debtors' Act, and remained in custody until discharged by his lordship today.

After hearing argument this morning, Mr. Justice Clute said that it was a disagreeable case.

PERRY'S SIDE OF IT.

Perry, in an affidavit, says that he returned from the West in 1903 and went to Thomasburg, Hasting county, to urge his wife to accompany him west. He says that he bought an organ for his eldest daughter on that occasion, and distributed $300 among the other members of the family.

"I was repulsed by my family," he adds. "I paid 25 cents a meal while I was with them, and was not even allowed to sleep in the house. I went west again, but wrote again by what channel I could remit, offering $400.

Perry says that his letters were returned to him unopened or ignored. Proceedings for alimony were taken against him in 1905, but as the trial came on while he was ill of pleurisy at Lacombe, he did not go to Belleville for the hearing, and Mrs. Perry got judgment by default.

"I never paid anything on account of the judgment, and refused, for the reason that I believed that there had been a misrepresentation of the facts to the court owing to my non-attendance at the trial.

HIS NEXT PEACE OFFERING.

Perry came back to Peterborough, Ontario, last New Years. He says he hoped to become reconciled to his family, and to persuade his wife to go back west with him. He sent $30 worth of groceries to the family, but a son said the provisions would be handed over to a charity, as the family did not need his assistance.

Finally, so Perry says, his sons of forced us withdraw the alimony judg-

London, Jan. 28.—There are only 28 elections to be heard from and the fight is full of sensational incidents.

The Unionists were credited today with four additional gains, giving promise of a close fight between the Liberals and Unionists for numerical superiority in the new parliament.

Premier Asquith this afternoon furnished the politicians with food for gossip when he started unexpectedly for the South of France, where he hopes for a period of quiet during which he may review the situation and develop his plans. His absence is likely to cause a postponement of the cabinet councils announced for early in the coming week.

That the position of the government is one of great uncertainty is not doubted, and experienced politicians are unwilling to predict its security for even a few months until the debate on the speech from the throne furnishes further evidence of the probable trend of the different factions composing the tripartite governmental majority.

The success of the Independent Nationalists, who probably have a total of ten seats, introduces the most interesting new factor. The feud between the Redmondites and the combined O'Brienites and Healyites promises plenty of diversion and the rival clans can be depended upon to check each other in the event of an unorthodox leaning.

MEAT BOYCOT SPREADING.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 29.—The meat boycott, which already has spread from ocean to ocean, will be given a further impetus Monday when the Western Hotelman's Prospective Association meets in Chicago. The hotelmen, it is said, propose to form a national boycott association for the purpose of cutting down the consumption of meat until the prices are reduced.

REV. FATHER MCFADDEN

Appointed Assistant Parish Priest to Douro Parish.

Rev. Father V. G. McFadden of the Cathedral staff, has been appointed curate to Rev. Father McGuire, who succeeds the late Father Keilty, as parish priest of Douro. The necessity of an assistant priest in Douro, is occasioned by Keene and Galway being included in the parish and the duties are too onerous for one person. Father James Toner, who has been acting temporarily at St. Joseph's church, Douro, arrived in Peterborough yesterday morning and succeeds Father McFadden on the Cathedral staff. Since his ordination Rev. Father McFadden has been attached to St. Peter's Cathedral and in the discharge of his duties has endeared himself to the members of the congregation and to many others whom he has met. One and all join in congratulating him on his promotion and trust that his endeavors in Douro, assisting Father McGuire, will be most successful.

CANTATA PRESENTED.

Good Crowd at St. Andrew's Sunday School Hall.

There was a fair-sized crowd at St. Andrew's lecture hall last night to witness the presentation of the beautiful cantata representing the different holiday seasons, which was repeated by the school by special request. Miss Bella King was again in charge of the affair, and she was ably assisted by Mrs. Peter Kerr. The choruses were all rendered with great spirit and the different parts were taken with credit to the performers.

At the conclusion Rev. J. G. Potter referred to the excellent work done by Miss King and Mrs. Kerr, and he called upon Miss Edith Kerr, who presented Miss King with a group picture suitably framed of those taking part. Miss Marjory Read presented Mrs. Kerr with a beautiful bouquet of pink roses. Then on behalf of the Sunday school Association Miss Jean Potter presented Miss King with a hand satchel.

Lindsay Turned Tables on Peterboro'

On a fine sheet of ice at the Brock street rink last night, the local intermediates went down to defeat before the fast septette from Lindsay. It was a fast, clean game, the penalties being for minor offences. It was a great surprise for the locals, as they had won from Lindsay in that town last Friday night.

The game started at a terrific pace and a couple of the Lindsay players appeared not able to stand it, and were benched forloafing. The first half ended 2—1 in favor of Lindsay. After the rest both teams came on strong, and Lindsay soon made it 3—1. The Peterborough bunch worked hard and shot time after time on the opposing team's goal, but the new man, Gamble, in goal was there every time and turned them aside.

Both teams were somewhat changed in the line-ups from last Friday. Peterborough appeared to have the best team work when they got going, but Lindsay forwards aided their defence by fast checking back, which was especially noticeable on the wings.

There were two disputed goals, one on each side, and the goal umpires were changed. Referee Livingstone handled the game well and kept the play very clean. An immense crowd filled the rink, among which were about 150 Lindsay rooters, who accompanied their team and who gave vent to their joy with numerous yells. Each team has now a win to their credit, and as both are evenly matched the next two games will be worth witnessing.

Peterborough play in Lindsay Monday night, and will work hard to offset their defeat of last night.

The teams lined up as follows:

Peterborough.		Lindsay.

Glover	Point.	Cote

Carrie Nation and May Maloy Fought a Round

Butte, Mont., Jan. 28.—Carrie Nation of Kansas, heavyweight champion hatchet weilder of the world, and Mrs. May Maloy, keeper of a dance hall, fought one round last night before a large crowd. A knockout was prevented by the spectators who stopped the fight after Mrs. Nation landed a vigorous right on Mrs. Maloy's jaw. The fight was declared a draw.

A large crowd followed Mrs. Nation through the red light quarter. The curious surged into Mrs. Maloy's dance hall and listened to a scathing denunciation of a pronographic oil painting that hung on the wall.

Mrs. Nation finally made a gesticulation similar to the movement that one might describe in throwing a tomahawk. Mrs. Maloy fearing that Mrs. Nation was about to destroy the painting screamed a tirade against the crusader and sailed into Mrs. Nation with both fists. Before Carrie could defend herself May had torn off the Kansan's bonnet and pulled her hair, keeping her attack well above the belt.

Mrs. Nation after having been figuratively rushed to the ropes, ducked a vicious left, sent a left to ribs, and then landed a vigorous right on May's jaw. Then the crowd fled.

Committees of the Council Have Their Work Laid Out For Them

Many New Questions Introduced Into the Council at Last Night's Meeting.

Liquor By-laws Carried

Fire Protection Bylaw Not Enforced—Quaker Oats Company's Agreement Refered Back to Com.

The council had a talking streak on last night and a whole lot was said but not very much was done. The Quaker Oats' Company's agreement goes back to the committee; the liquor license bylaws were passed, and a whole lot of other things were introduced and referred to committees to deal with.

All the members were present and Mayor Morrow occupied the chair.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from W. H. Gould, proprietor of the pool room on Water street, asking that the license fees be reduced. —This was referred to the Finance Committee.

The Single Tax Association wrote, giving some information re the object of their association, and asking the city of Peterborough to join them.—This was referred to the Finance Committee.

A letter in connection with the appointment of an industrial commissioner was received from Mr. W. H. Ruse. The letter told the council what to do and how to do it.

A letter from the Canadian Municipality Association was received.

J. R. Robertson asking for assistance for the Muskoka Hospital.

Mrs. Cadigan through O'Connell & Gordon, asked the city for damages on account of a sewer damaging her well.

TRENT CANAL.

A letter was received from the president of the Board of Trade of Orillia, asking Peterborough to join them in the move to have the northern end of the Trent canal completed at once.

Moved by Ald. Gillespie and Ald. Turner, that the city of Peterborough place itself on record urging the minister of railways and canals to hurry the work.

A copy of the resolution is to be sent to the chairman of the Orillia Board of Trade and a promise that Peterborough will do all in its power to assist the movement.

Reports were read and adopted from the several committees.

City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall read the agreement as prepared by him between the city and the Quaker Oats Co., for the closing of Quaker street, and other small requests to enable the company to erect a large building for the purpose of enlarging their plants. There were one or two points that Mr. Denham did not like. One, and the main one, was that the company waive all rights for damages to their property in case the city builds a high level bridge at Hunter street.

Ald. Phelan moved that the matter be refered back to the Committee to report on again at the regular meeting on February.—Carried.

It was moved by Ald. Hicks and Ald. Duncan, that the city clerk be authorized to advertise the closing of Quaker street and conveying it to the Quaker Oats Company.—Carried

DICKSON CO.'S PROPERTY.

Mr. W. E. Goodwill appeared on behalf of the Dickson Company in reference to sewer connection for their property north of Macdonnell street. All that block of land has been cut into building lots. Some of those lots have been sold and they ask the council to establish a septic tank for the reception of sewage.

The matter was referred to the Board of Works.

BYLAWS.

Ald. Hicks moved the first reading of a bylaw limiting the number of tavern licenses in the city. The bylaw was read a first and second and time and carried.

Ald. Hicks and Ald. Duffus moved the first reading of a bylaw limiting the number of shop licenses in the city to four. The bylaw was carried.

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Morgan moved a bylaw authorizing the City Trust to sell the property on Simcoe street given to the city for public library purposes by the Nicholls Estate, to Hon. J. R. Stratton for $11,000.

DAN SPENCE AMBULANCE.

Mr. John Comstock was present in reference to the Dan Spence ambulance. He claimed that if the city wished to operate an ambulance they should do so themselves and not give it to a person in opposition to them. He was satisfied if it were placed in the fire hall and operated from there.

The matter was referred to the property Committee.

It was then moved by Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Phelan that the mayor have authority to send deputations out of the city when he found it necessary, and that their expenses be paid on the mayor's certificate.

THE ASSESSORS.

His worship stated that the appointment of assessors had to be made at the regular meeting of the council in February.

Ald. Graham and Ald. Metherall moved that the city advertise for assessors.

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Phelan moved in amendment that the matter be left with the Committee of the whole council.

The amendment was put first and it was lost on a vote of 3 to 8. The motion was then carried.

Yeas and nays on the amendment were asked by Ald. Duffus.

Yeas—Phelan, Buller, Duffus.

HEATING MARKET HALL.

Ald. Turner said he thought it was high time that the market building be heated from a central system and thus do away with the stoves in the market hall and also to have it properly heated.

He moved that it be referred to the Property Committee to take it up with the City Trust Commissioners.

Ald. Morgan moved that the same committee take up the matter of a public lavatory under the market arcade. Ald. Buller seconded the motion and it carried.

SCAVENGER SYSTEM.

Ald. Turner brought up the matter of a seavenger system and urged upon the council the necessity of it.

He moved that the matter of a garbage bylaw be referred to the Property and Health Committee.—Lost.

BYLAW NOT ENFORCED.

Ald. Duffus gave notice of motion that he would introduce a bylaw regulating the safety of buildings in which any number of people are congregated.

Ald. Bradburn stated that three years ago a bylaw was passed covering all those matters if only the police would see that it is enforced.

Public At Home.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., gave a public at home in the Y.M.C.A. parlors last night and it was a decided success. A very large number took advantage of the invitation of the ladies to spend a social evening with them. A musical program was rendered by the leading artists of the city and it was greatly appreciated. His Honor Judge Hoyles occupied the chair and after the program refreshments were served.

Longboat Won.

Tom Longboat easily defeated Percy Smallwood in Pennsylvania last night in a twelve mile race. The time was not fast being 1.06.37.

Horse's Leg Swelled

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Marchiloo, from his home, Croft's Hill, P.O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

NERVILINE IS A TRUSTY LINIMENT

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, five for $1.00. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

UNION LABEL

SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1910.

SOON BE TEN MILLIONS.

Between 1891 and 1901 Ontario's population increased only about 68,000. In the eight years that have elapsed since 1901 Ontario's increased population has been close to the half million mark.

Other parts of Canada have shown proportionately large increases during the latter period, according to a recent census department estimate. Whatever the cause for Canada's disappointing showing in population increase during the last decade of the nineteenth century it is evident that such causes have now ceased to operate.

The present population of Canada is estimated at seven and one-half millions. The gains from natural increase and foreign immigration ought in a few years to bring it up to ten millions, and Canada will then enter on a long stretch which will ultimately land her, as the Ottawa Journal says, beside the great powers of the world.

AN ALARMING OUTLOOK.

A chart shows that by 1914 the consumption of cereals in the United States will have overtaken the production of grain. The president of the New York Central anticipates that only five years hence "the last vessel loaded with the agricultural product of this country will have left our shores, the great exporting grain elevators in our seaboard cities will stand empty, and this great nation, like the nations of the Old World, will be looking for a place to buy the necessaries of life." Alarmed at this prospect, Mr. Brown urges the expenditure of millions of dollars upon the establishment of agricultural colleges and upon the stimulation of field-production throughout the Union. The Ontario Government will make no mistake in spending money freely upon the College at Guelph, and upon the general work of the Department of Agriculture.

A GUARANTEE.

A copy of the beautiful picture entitled "The Soul's Awakening," size 19x24 inches, ready for framing, is still guaranteed to all who renew their subscriptions or become subscribers to The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal. Too much cannot be said of this lovely picture. It deserves all that has been said of it and more, too. A copy should be in every home in Canada and those who fail to make sure of a copy now will regret it after. It is safe to say that no one who has a copy would care to sell it for twice what he paid for The Family Herald for the year and the picture. One dollar pays a whole year's subscription to that great weekly, and picture is presented to each subscriber. Don't miss it.

The 1910 World Almanac.

One of the new books; is the standard reference book of all the colleges, schools and libraries, and for the banker and the broker, for the home and the office. It treats of subjects educational, agricultural and historical, of subjects political and statistical, scientific and general. Its compact pages give information to every known field of research; from a simple answer to a simple question it steps to a discussion of the heaviest problems of civilization. It is a book for the student and a book for the masses. Price 25c. (west of Buffalo and Pittsburg 30c.) by mail 35c.

STAYING YOUTHFUL.

Give Your Mind New Thoughts—Stop Worrying.

Whatever your age may be, begin now to think of yourself as in the dawn of new developments. Say to yourself many times a day that you possess more vital power, more mental force, more magnetism and charm than ever before in your life.

Say also that you are better loved and more fully appreciated for all your virtues and charms than ever before and that your ability to give and receive happiness is unlimited.

Then one moments which you have been accustomed to idle away or to employ in melancholy thoughts in improving yourself. Let this improvement be threefold until body and mind and spirit all radiate new brilliancy.

Give your mind new thoughts. Give your spirit new aspirations and feed your brain with some new purpose.

Keep up whatever accomplishments you possess. Cultivate new ones. Begin at forty, fifty or sixty even to study languages and music and art.

And instead of continually thinking about advancing age think about increasing qualities and charms. Instead of worrying over added years acquire over added occupations and means of enjoyment. Encourage the young to seek your society. Amuse and interest them, and this can be done only by keeping in sympathy with their ideas.

If you find your thoughts running along the line of criticism and disparaging comparisons of the young people of the day with those of your own morning time keep your ideas to yourself.

THE KISS HYGIENIC.

Not the Thing Poets Rave Over, but It's Germ Proof.

And now we have the kiss hygienic—an answer to those who have started a crusade against the kiss on the ground that it spreads contagion.

The kiss hygienic is made possible through the medium of a very simple little contrivance designed by a German genius named Herr Herman Sommer. It consists of a small ivory or metal frame, made something like a tennis racket, across which is stretched a bit of silk gauze. This gauze is soaked in disinfectant and then interposed between the kisser and the kissee at the psychological moment, and then—well, then follows the kiss robbed of all its terrors and but few of its delights, so the inventor says. There can be no exchange of disease germs in the kissing when this device is used. The disinfected gauze prevents that absolutely.

Of course this kiss hygienic isn't quite the old time kiss. For instance, the disinfectant isn't particularly agreeable to the taste even when its flavor has been concealed by perfumes, as the inventor advises. Then, too, the interposition of the device may seem something like the presence of a third party. Also the device raises a question that is highly embarrassing to the modest young woman—Shall she presume to provide herself with the contrivance in anticipation of the visit of the young man who is attentive to her, but who as yet is nothing more? Then, too, something of the spontaneity of the old fashioned kiss is likely to be lost, and also something of that thrill which poets have sung of the meeting of lip with lip.

But, then, with the alternative of kissing hygienically or not at all, it is not easy to guess what the world will say—at least that part of the world that is still young enough for romance. It will again offer thanksgiving that necessity is the mother of invention.

Few Women Stop to Consider Trifles.

If every woman stopped when she makes up her mind to buy a thing and asked herself, "Is it practical?" "Will it wash and will it wear?" "Is it worth the price?" many concerns now prospering and flourishing would have to go out of business. But the average woman does not do her shopping in that way. She sees something that she likes, something pretty, something that takes her fancy, and she buys it. And many of the shops where fancy trifles are to be had count upon this as one of their surest sources of big receipts. Like the man who drinks—it is not what he eats that costs the money, it is what he drinks. And with womankind in their dress it is not the staples of life which cost the most; it is the luxuries.

Improvised Basinet.

A mother who found herself without a crib for her infant daughter when on a visit bought an oblong wicker basket, such as are used by bakers to pack loaves of bread.

This was lined with several layers of cotton batting slipped between muslin sides and bottoms the exact size of the basket. The lining was tied in by small ribbons sewed on so it could be taken out and washed.

Not only could baby sleep in its bread basket at night, but it was just the thing to take out on the porch, to stand on a chair out of drafts or even to put on the grass on a rubber blanket when nurse or family were out in the woods or on the beach.

The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Sheop's Cough Remedy its marvellous curative properties. Tight stubborn or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid prescription—Dr. Sheop's Cough Remedy. And it is so safe and good for children, as well. Containing no opium, chloroform or other harmful drugs, mothers should in safety always demand Dr. Sheop's. If other remedies are offered, tell them No! Be your own judge. Sold by all dealers.

Your directors have pleasure in reporting that since the affairs of the Bank were last placed before you at the annual meeting of the shareholders in January, 1909, there has been a steady development in all departments of its business as is evidenced by the statement submitted.

During a considerable period of the year some difficulty was experienced in fully employing the Bank's funds at remunerative rates, but, as a result of improving trade conditions, and the harvesting of an excellent crop the demand for legitimate banking accommodation has increased, and there is every reason to expect a prosperous current year.

Following the policy of conservative extension, new Branches have been established in important Western centres, and at other points in Canada where it appeared advantageous to do so.

Offices were opened during the year as follows: At Victoria, B. C.; in Saskatchewan, at Guernsey, Hanley, Melville, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon; in Alberta, at Claresholm and High River; at the corner of Guy and St. Catharine streets, Montreal; in Ontario, at Malton, Rectory street, London; and in Toronto, at Deer Park, Wychwood, and near the corner of Lee avenue and Queen street.

The branch at Linwood, Ont., was closed in March last.

Desirable sites have been purchased in Calgary, Edmonton, Brandon and Moose Jaw, also at the corners of Queen street and Lee avenue, Bloor and Sherbourne streets, and Yonge st. and St. Clair ave Toronto, and at the corner of St. Lawrence Boulevard and Prince Arthur street, Montreal. It is the intention to erect suitable buildings on these properties at a reasonable outlay.

The new office buildings in Windsor and Fort William were completed and occupied in 1909.

The authorized capital stock of the bank at this time is $5,000,000, of which $4,000,000 has been issued and fully paid up. A bylaw will be submitted for your approval providing for a further increase of $5,000,000, which, together with the $1,000,000 already authorized, but not issued, will be offered to shareholders from time to time in such amounts as the expansion of business warrants.

You will also be asked to approve of a by-law changing the par value of shares from $40 to $100 each.

The directors, as is customary, have verified the Cash Assets, Securities and various investments entered on the accompanying statement.

In addition, the General Balance Sheet of the Bank as on the 31st December, 1909, detailed herein, has been checked, and found to be correct, including the auditing of all Foreign Accounts.

Every Branch of the Bank has undergone the usual thorough inspection during the year.

The report was adopted.

E. B. OSLER, President.

The thanks of the Shareholders were tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their services during the year, and to the General Manager and other officers of the bank for the efficient performance of their respective duties.

By-laws were passed authorizing an increase in the capital stock of the bank of $5,000,000, and changing the par value of the shares from $40 to $100 each.

The following gentlemen were duly elected Directors for the ensuing year:—Messrs. A. W. Austin, W. R. Brock, James Carruthers, E. J. Christie, J. C. Eaton, J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., W. D. Matthews, A. M. Nanton, E. B. Osler, M.P.

A MURDERESS DYING.

Consumption May End Remarkable Career.

Stockton, Cal., Jan. 29.—The second trial of Mrs. Emma Le Doux, convicted of having murdered Albert N. McVicar, her former husband, four years ago, is scheduled to begin here next week. During her long confinement in jail this woman has developed consumption and recently she has been reported to be in a serious condition. Whether her trial will begin next week or be indefinitely postponed will depend upon the reports of the physicians who have attended her.

The crime for which Mrs. Le Doux was once tried and sentenced to death, attracted attention throughout the country. McVicar, her alleged victim, is said to have threatened to make trouble between the woman and her second husband, Le Doux, whom she had married in the belief that McVicar was dead. In order to put McVicar out of the way she is alleged to have lured him to her home and killed him by administering poison in his coffee. The body of the victim was shipped in a trunk to San Francisco, where its discovery by employees of the railroad company led to the arrest and conviction of the alleged murderess.

THE TIMES' FINANCIAL PAGE---OF INTEREST TO THE CANADIAN INVESTOR

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Chin, thus giving us a chain of ele-vators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $18.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day—it means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Taber and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to 3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 80c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent, dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are operating in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are land owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful inquiries.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 18.84 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 26.29 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in those concerns to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

MRS. OSCAR STRAUS.

Wife of American Ambassador to Aid Jews in Turkey.

Mrs. Oscar S. Straus, wife of the American ambassador to Turkey, is said to have decided to make personal investigation of the leading Jewish communities of Turkey. She desires to make a thorough study of the economic conditions of the Jewish people in the empire. She is an officer of the Jewish Council of Women of this country and has done work for girls' homes and other philanthropic institutions. The problem of the Jewish poor in Constantinople and other cities has become one of interest to the very charitable people of this race, who never allow any suffering that they can prevent. Mrs. Straus will especially interest herself in the work that is being carried on to save the young Jewish girls.

Wedding Day Omens.

The bride who dreams of fairies the night before her marriage will be thrice blessed.

If the groom carries a miniature horseshoe in his pocket he will always have good luck.

Don't wear an opal. Some people declare that opals are lucky. History proves the contrary.

The bride who finds a spider on her wedding dress may consider herself blessed.

No bride if she would have good luck should bake her own wedding cake. To do so invites ill fortune.

Should a bride perchance see a funeral while being driven to the railway station prior to departing upon her wedding tour she should order the driver to turn back and start over again or else she will surely meet with bad luck.

No bride or groom should be given a telegram while on the way to church. It is a sign of evil.

To try on the wedding ring before the day of the marriage is considered very unlucky. And for the groom to drop it while placing it on the bride's finger is also held to betoken misfortune.

To lose the ring or even to remove it from the finger is another unlucky sign.

Don't Want to "Be Teacher."

Everybody remembers how superior the teacher used to look when she said in her most acid tone, "If any of you think that you can teach this lesson better than I can you may come up here on the platform and do so, but if I am going to teach it I wish to do so without interruptions," and so forth ad lib.

Of course nobody went up on the platform. Even the culprits who had been talking out loud in school made no move in that direction, but slunk down behind the fellows in front and had nothing more to say for a few minutes.

There is a little joke of this kind on the women.

A certain congressman, whose methods had been criticised by his women constituents, was the teacher.

Mrs. Sara Platt Decker is said to have refused the offer of A. W. Rucker to take his seat in congress. After her refusal he offered it to any other woman who would take it, the reason for his generosity being that the women politicians had criticised his work in congress. But none of the women cared to accept the offer, and now he will probably be left alone during the coming session.

Girl Bound to Get Education.

A strange story of a girl's determination to obtain an education comes from Clarkson, Miss. There is a girls' industrial school in Clarkson, and many of the pupils are so poor they are supported by the churches to which their families belong. The other day a girl seventeen years old drove a cow up to the school and said she had walked with the animal twenty-five miles and was seeking an education. She was asked what she intended to do with the cow, and in simple sincerity she replied, "I haven't any money, but I brought the cow to sell milk and pay my way through school." The girl was taken in, and arrangements were made for her to continue as a permanent pupil. She is the daughter of a poverty stricken mountain family. The cow was the family's most valuable asset, and the parents agreed to part with it to assist their daughter. Persons in Clarkson sent the girl home with the cow before she settled down to her tasks.

Aggravating.

When the late General Edward M. McCook lived in Pike's Peak he once presided at a dinner in honor of a famous Indian fighter.

Mr. McCook, as he then was, concluded his introduction of the Indian fighter with the words:

"I can find but one fault with the colonel's methods. I allude to his well known custom of enlisting in his regiment only baldheaded men. To aggravate the Indians' feelings so cruelly as that is carrying war too far."

Cheerful.

A certain philosopher used to thank God when he had the goat that it was not the toothache, and when he had the toothache he gave thanks because he had not both complaints at once.

What's in a Name?

To a certain southern town, on legal business, came a most pompous young lawyer, who, notwithstanding his name was McNaught, had an excellent opinion of himself. He found it necessary to talk with Squire Gardner, an unpolished justice, who had no good opinion of anything and especially of any one who had a good opinion of himself. The squire had never heard of his visitor till he called, and he was a poor hand at remembering names, but he was an expert in human measurements. The young lawyer proceeded promptly to say what he had to say, the squire listening, but watching. Presently he thought it was time for him to say something.

"Hold on, Mr. McCipher," he began.

"My name is McNaught," the lawyer stiffly corrected him.

"Excuse me, excuse me," apologized the squire and finished his remarks.

It was not long until the squire again felt called upon to speak.

"Well, now, Mr. McZero," he started in.

"I said my name was McNaught," the lawyer interrupted sharply.

Again the squire apologized, apologized profusely, and the lawyer concluded his consultation. He was not feeling very kindly toward the squire, but he thought it wise not to manifest his feelings and said goodby with a fair degree of politeness.

"Goodby, Mr. McNothing," said the squire, as innocent as a lamb, and as the visitor walked pompously out of the office the squire chuckled.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

All In a Garden Fair

The Evening Visitor Whose Presence Was Not an Intrusion.

By A. C. ROWSEY.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

It was a queerly placed little house, this old home, perched nearly a hundred feet above the wide asphalted street that had been graded through the hill crest to the river, a hundred and fifty yards distant to the west.

There was a ragged fringe of jagged rock from the street line up to the little garden in front of the old colonial house at the top of the man made cliff. Shaky with age, a fence of white palings ran along the edge of the precipice as if to fend off the hated city from the innocent, fresh country beauty that dirled over its rickety top with the street below.

For Nature was in league against the paling. She strived to cover the rocks with blossoming honeysuckle vines and gorgeous wistaria clusters and hang the sewers, like ripening grapes, in the enemy sides of the cliff where the dynamite had in tearing the live rock in twain opened wide crevices and gaping wounds in her side.

The top of the hill and the garden were reached by a long flight of wooden stairs—stairs weather worn and shabby for want of paint.

At the top of the stairs was a high gate.

Beyond the gate the city disappeared. No murmur of it reached you in the garden.

Here were deep woods of giant oaks, their bases carpeted with violets and strawberry blossoms and now and then masked by blackberry patches.

The garden was a mass of color. Great bushes of pink peonies flanked one side of the graveled walk from the gate, rivaling the array of white blossoms on the other side of the walk. The palings were hidden with blossoming Jacqmin roses and lilac bushes. In the center of the lawn was a bonny brier alive with tiny white flowers.

Out on the terrace Miss Snowden sat in her rustic rocker. A dainty sunbonnet protected her sallow face, just now pastured with a frown because of the fling her niece gave the gate as she burst into the garden.

Miss Snowden sighed plaintively as the girl came up the walk, her white tam-o'-shanter perched on the side of her head at a rakish angle in odd contrast to the prim, dressed flaxen hair drawn taut around the little head to the long braid dangling behind. She swung a roll of parchment tied with a blue ribbon in her hand and hummed a little song, as if there were no such things as an older aunt's nerves.

"Matter? Why, nothing, child," protested Miss Snowden, running her finger along the edge of her crocheting and beginning a new count.

The girl dabbed at her hat until it assumed a more dignified if not a more becoming poise.

"Mamma any better, aunty?" she asked. Then, without waiting an answer, she dropped on the lawn. "And who do you think was there?"

"I am sure I don't know. How should I?"

Miss Snowden worked furiously.

"Colonel Payson." The girl looked up shyly. "The one the papers are all the fuss about. You know, who's just back from the Philippines."

Miss Snowden did not speak.

"Think of him coming all the way up here to our dinky little commencement!"

"Josie!" gasped Miss Snowden, horrified.

"But it was dinky—awfully dinky!" persisted her niece.

"He's the loveliest man you ever saw, aunty—so tall and straight—and he walks with his shoulders thrown back and his head up. His hair is only just beginning to turn gray. I could see that all the older girls were stealing sly looks at him, but he didn't take any notice of them. He came right up to me and looked at me so queer. One would think he'd never seen a girl like me before. He shook hands with me and held my hand in his for a long while, still looking at me with that strange, wistful look. I wonder what he did in the Philippines to make him so famous. He must be awful brave."

"Indeed!" Miss Snowden muttered. She was thinking deeply as she bent over those crochet needles. The evening light was fading. The sun had transformed the river at the end of the street into a flood of flaming color. Had he recognized the child?

"Oh, aunty, I want to tell you something. I wish you would listen," broke in her niece. "He was awful nice, but—but"—

"But what?" asked Miss Snowden.

"He kissed me," the girl replied in an awestricken whisper, looking down at the river.

The elderly Miss Snowden quivered. She could not speak. Presently the girl, filled with embarrassment, plucked at the ribbon of her diploma, then slowly rose and went into the house, her cheeks flushed and her pretty head bowed.

The colors treated in the evening sky; dusky shadows appeared in the old garden. She sat, her head turned back and her eyes fixed upon the bonny brier.

"Aunty," called the girl softly from the house, "supper is ready."

The elderly Miss Snowden made no reply. The girl in the doorway stood waiting. Presently she stole into the shadows and glimpsed her aunt humbly in the lap of the elderly Miss Snowden.

"Forgive me, dear, Josie," murmured the elderly Miss Snowden. "Since I last taught you how evil lies deep"

"What is really up aunty?" The girl looked up pensively. "Every one [illegible] thought so. But it seemed all right."

"Josie!" the elderly Miss Snowden ejaculated in shrill horror. Her hand grew rigid upon the girl's head.

Years before there had been a wedding under Miss Snowden's roof. Then had come a baby girl, and, the mother being in delicate health, Miss Snowden had the entire care of the child. She used to bathe her and dress her, put her to bed at night and lie with her till she went to sleep. The girl baby had grown to be a girl when the young husband and father, who was a soldier in the service of the United States, sailed for the other side of the globe with his regiment and remained away a long while.

But the time came when he became impatient that he heard nothing of his wife and child. He sent a trusted messenger, who in due time returned with the news that they were both dead. He mourned for them and when he was ordered home with his command naturally sought the place where he had left them. It was a risky game Miss Snowden, who had sent back the report that his wife and child were dead, was playing. And now she had come to the end of pamable deception.

Some one was coming up the path.

A man!

He was opening the gate!

"It's he!" gasped the girl, rising in dismay.

She fled toward the house, leaving Miss Snowden to face the enemy.

He came leisurely up the path, stopping now and then to caress a peony in a reminiscent way.

"Well, sir! How dare you come here?" rang out the challenge from the rocking chair and brought him to a halt at the bonny brier.

"I am looking for the parent of a Miss Payson," he said quietly, "one of the young ladies who graduated from the high school today. I am Colonel Robert E. Payson. May I ask whom I am addressing?"

"I—I refuse to answer, sir!" responded the elderly Miss Snowden hesitatingly. "Your presence is an intrusion—a great intrusion."

He bent his head slightly and listened to the voice rather than the words.

"I know your voice," he said slowly. "It seems connected with something very distasteful. But I cannot place you."

He stood in profound thought for a moment.

"The reason I called," he said deliberately, "is rather curious. Eleven years ago I went to the Philippines, leaving a wife and a four-year-old girl. They were to follow when the country became settled. News reached me a year later that they had died. Little Miss Payson looked so much like my wife in her girlhood that it—it—well, filled me with a wild, unreasonable hope that perhaps there had been some mistake."

Miss Snowden preserved a venomous silence.

"These peonies, the honeysuckle, the wistaria," he murmured, moving about the garden, "all speak so strongly of my wife that it seems to me she must be here."

Miss Snowden's niece came down the walk from the house. Behind her, clasping her hand, was a slender little woman.

"Bessie, haven't you any more pride?" she cried shrilly. "Think, he never wrote when you were nearly dead! Think of the regret his corporal brought me! Think of his not coming home for all these years! Think of his never answering your letters!"

The colonel darted forward up the path.

Inside the house she hurried to the big old fashioned kitchen, locked the doors and from the cupboard drew forth a packet of letters and threw them into the range.

"They'll never know," she muttered, staring at the packet, feeling vaguely the shadows of coming damnation and isolation creeping upon her, while the vicious jealousy of years burned and flamed in her heart.

There was a gentle knock on the kitchen door after the knob had been turned. She did not heed.

"They've told each other," she muttered, "and now they know that I did it. He had no right to take her from me. I was so alone."

She sat in the kitchen chair and stared into the future.

And what did she see? For herself a lonely old age embittered by remorse, for her niece life for a few years with her reunited parents in the army post, then love, then marriage with a young officer and a group of rosy cheeked, bright eyed children springing up about her. Then she saw, but it did not enable her to throw off her selfish regret, that the other's gain was her loss, for a selfish nature cannot become a generous one. Colonel Payson and his wife left the scene of their enforced separation without reproach—indeed, without again seeing her.

How It Happened.

There was a man in our town
Who hunted for the gate,
But another fellow came along
And reached the long sought gait.

And when he found the gate was found,
With all his might and main,
He jumped into his auto top
And discovered it again.

Royal Christmas Cards.

The Christmas cards which will be sent out this year by the King and Queen have been specially painted for Their Majesties.

King Edward's Christmas card recall the knightly days of King Arthur and the Round Table. The scene is laid in King Arthur's great hall in the palace of Camelot.

Queen Alexandra has chosen a scene for her Christmas card in which another Queen of England played a part in which our present Queen assists. It is in showing the tenderest feelings for the helpless and the oppressed. The scene is the well-known incident when Queen Philippa pleaded for the lives of the citizens of Calais who had conducted its defence for twelve months against the forces of King Edward. The greatest of the Plantagenets stands with a purple robe thrown over his armor, while his gracious Queen kneels at his feet and implores him to show the greatest of all royal prerogatives—mercy.

The Prince of Wales has selected the incident in the Temple Gardens when the scions of the Houses of York and Lancaster plucked each a red and white rose to wear as their badges in the coming struggle. The Princess of Wales has chosen Sir Howard Davies' picture of Alfred the Great being taught to read by his mother, Queen Osburga. The German Emperor, as usual, comes to London and Messrs. Tuck for his greeting card. This year the Kaiser's thoughts are evidently on the sea, as his Christmas card is a reproduction of the scene when Henry VIII. set off on the Great Harry for the Field of the Cloth of Gold. The Empress of Russia, the Queen of Spain, and the Queen of Italy, have all three chosen a Madonna and Child.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!

And I will tell you why I say this.

It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free if it fails.

No one need risk even one single penny.

No risk, no chance, nothing whatever to lose from health by delay. For in but a few days, and without the risk of a penny, you can use either of my [illegible] Prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy.

Then why take any chance whatever?

Why purchase any medicine whose makers dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

And besides, I am not asking for you.

My "No Risk" plan is [illegible] Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Rheumatic Remedy are [illegible] in the land. They [illegible] drug store in the land. They [illegible] sell. We take the chances whatever be[illegible].

But seventy years for Dr. Shoop's medicines have become universally standardized all over America.

And I have [illegible] trusted home and family physician. [illegible] druggist in every city, village everywhere to accept my [illegible] yours. These selected druggists are [illegible] medicines with the sick—and the entire risk is mine alone.

But write me first for an order.

I have an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are not authorized to grant the 30 day test.

So drop me a line, please—and then save all disappointments and delays.

Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—if you desire. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan.

Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 30 years experience at the bedside in homes and in Hospitals. All phases of sickness and relief are told of here. They tell [illegible] "inside nerve" so far[illegible] Heart [illegible] Heart gives to the Heart its [illegible]. How the Stomach and Kidneys each have their inside or power nerve. How these organs surely falter when these governing or master nerves begin to fail. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to these failing nerves, and rebuilds and strengthens [illegible] restores the lost tone and power. It can alone help you—if it is within the power of medicine to do so. My best effort is surely worth a single request. So write now, while it is fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. STUART STRATHY,
General Manager.

Toronto, 31st December, 1909.

During the year the following branches were opened: Bruce Mines, Camrose, Caster, Chaplean, Didsbury, Drydem, Dunbrun, Forget, Gadsby, Gerrard and Main streets (Toronto), Gerrard and Jones (Toronto), Gleichen, Holden, Lyndon, Market Branch (Hamilton), Montreal, Vancouver, Vars, West Port William, Yonge and Richmond streets (Toronto), and Zealandia. One branch, Hepworth, was closed.

The General Manager's Address.

The General Manager, having read the foregoing report, made the following comments:

You can see by the foregoing statement that the Bank has made substantial increase in every department during the past year. The deposits now amount to $30,000,000, as compared with $25,000,000 a year ago, while, during the same period, the circulation of the Bank has risen from $2,000,000 to over $3,000,000. These additional funds have been used to the extent of over $5,000,000 to further the commercial needs of the country by an increase in loans to the public to that extent.

Out of the profits of the year we have been able to pay dividends amounting to $315,671.45, and together with the amount carried over from last year, after making the usual appropriations to Guarantee and Pension Funds of $10,000, and writing off $300,000 on account of Bank Premises, etc., we have added to Rest Account the sum of $300,000, making that Fund a little over 10 per cent. of the paid-up capital stock of the Bank, while the sum of $102,445.49 has been carried to the credit of Profit and Loss "New Account."

Cash Reserve.

You will notice by the statement the strong position which the Bank maintains as regards Cash Reserves. It is the fixed policy of the Bank to maintain a large proportion of its assets in a readily convertible form. This policy necessitates a large amount of funds at its disposal, to be employed at low rates. The Management of the Bank, however, considers it "the first essential that the Bank shall be at all times in a position to take care of its rapidly increasing clientele in all varying conditions of trade. That this policy is in the best interests of the Bank has been amply justified, the Bank being able during the recent times of an exceptionally tight money market to take care of all the legitimate wants of its borrowers. Our ability to do this has given the Bank a connection which is of inestimable value, not only in cementing old clients to the Bank, but in attracting new business towards us.

Canada's Resources Attracting Good Settlers.

We have been blessed with a bountiful harvest during the period under review, not only in one section of this great Dominion, but in all sections, the field cross alone yielding in money value about $423,000,000, not to mention all the other natural resources of this vast country. True it is, our population is very limited, considering the immense territory belonging to us; but a large tide of immigration has commenced to be attracted towards us. It is estimated that in the neighborhood of 90,000 American settlers alone, with perhaps $90,000,000 in cash, have settled in the North-west Territories within the last year, besides settlers from Europe, amounting roughly to another 50,000 souls.

It is a platitude to say that the potentialities of this country are not to be conceived of, and the prospects of the country are identical with the prospects of its financial institutions, and that your property will increase in value with the growth of the Country it is only reasonable to assume. The rapid settlement which will ensue by the completion of three Transcontinental Railroads will increase our population at an enormous rate, and who is bold enough to predict what proportions its commerce will assume say within the next ten years? The money markets of the world are open to us, investors abroad realising the intrinsic value of our securities and the increasing value which will naturally accrue to the same as the Country is developed. I sincerely trust we may so fulfill our obligations, private and corporate, to merit this confidence.

The Bank's Progress.

This Bank's ramifications have been extended during the past year by the opening of several new Branches. Amongst the most important, I mention Montreal and Vancouver. Our growing business demanded our occupation of these important points, and the growth of the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta has induced us to increase our sphere of influence in those Provinces.

The Capital of the Bank now amounts to $4,354,560, and the Rest Account to $2,800,000. It is interesting to note the growth of your property as compared with ten years ago:

	1899	1909
Capital paid up	$ 700,000	$ 4,354,560
Rest Account	70,000	2,800,000
Deposits	5,461,000	29,812,000
Circulation	631,000	3,000,000
Total Assets	7,535,000	39,963,000

The revival in all lines of business on this Continent is more or less apparent. It is natural that we should feel the mighty impetus which follows from a favorable state of affairs in our agricultural and other resources. We must not forget, however, that it is during such times we are apt to overshoot the mark of prudence in the matter of extensions. The inevitable cycle of bad times is bound to recur, and it behooves us to keep our commitments well in hand to prepare for other conditions when a policy of retrenchment will be necessary.

It will afford me much pleasure to answer any questions in connection with the statement which any of our Shareholders may see fit to ask.

The Vice-President's Address.

The Hon. J. R. Stratton, the Vice-President, spoke as follows:

The bank has been more than prosperous during the past year. Benefiting by the general advancement of all branches of business and receiving its full share of the advantages resulting from greatly improved conditions in the trade of the country, the Bank has been able to present to you a report which is as highly creditable to the management as it must be gratifying to the shareholders. At no time in its history has it presented more satisfactory results, nor has it ever been in as strong a position as it occupies to-day. Its reserves have been strengthened and its business largely extended. The deposits have greatly increased and the assets are readily available. The field of its operations has been extended and several new and highly important branches have been organized. A thorough revision of the working of the staff, and the management of the various agencies has been exercised, and your directors are in close relation to the business transactions and affairs of the Bank from the Head Office down to the smallest Branch. We have endeavored to bring the numerous details and many dealings of the various offices directly before the Board by means of systematic arrangement, in order that we may have an actual knowledge of what is going on in all the offices.

The Auditor to the Board.

The services of the Auditor to the Board have been devoted largely to this important work, and by his efforts we are enabled to pass upon the whole records of the Bank's business in an intelligent and effective manner. To illustrate I might mention the matter of credits. By systematic and exact reports which we receive every week your Board is informed of how credits are being dealt with, how far accounts are being paid off as they mature, to what extent credits may be affected by over-draft or change in securities, and how each Branch is progressing. By this method, no material move can be made without the sanction of the Board. The actual condition of important accounts is investigated from time to time and special reports concerning them are prepared and prescribed for such action as may be deemed advisable. Except in cases of small advances, every credit must be approved of by the Board on the fullest statement of the available facts. This method involves a large amount of work, but your Directors feel that they could not fully perform their duty to you and to themselves in any other way.

Economical Management.

Economy in every Branch of the business is insisted upon, and I am glad to say that in this we are assisted by whole staff. Saving has been affected in the matter of supplies by placing this class of expenditure in the hands of a competent and careful official in transferring and appointing Local Managers and clerks. In opening of new offices and in the division of the work there has been a decrease of expenditure wherever possible. In no case, however, has this desire for economy been allowed to impair the efficiency of the working of the Bank.

Branch System Extended.

During the year, owing to the largely increased business of the Bank, we found it advisable to open some important branches. In Vancouver, an Agency has been established in a central and highly desirable location. A property was purchased which has already considerably increased in value, and the Bank has opened there with every prospect of success. An office has been opened in Montreal under favorable circumstances, and several desirable points between these two large cities have been selected for our Branches. The results from the Western field thus opened up have been very gratifying, and have fully justified the action taken by our Directors. It will also be necessary to consider in the near future what steps should be taken to connect our system with the Maritime Provinces, thereby extending our financial relations and still further increasing our facilities for doing business in all parts of Canada.

The astonishing growth and extension of Toronto, and its business, demanded serious consideration. The most important move made here was the opening within the past few weeks of a Branch at the corner of Yonge and Richmond streets, in the office lately occupied by the Bank of Montreal. Already business of a most material character is coming to us at this Branch, and being in the centre of the commercial, financial, and trade locality of Toronto, this point will always be an important Agency.

Assets Sound.

I need not go into the details of the Annual Statement, which has just been read to you, and which you have had for some time past in your hands. I would like to point out to you, however, that we are able to add $300,000 to Rest Account, to contribute $20,000 in reduction of building and furniture account, to give $5,000 to Pension Fund for the benefit of disabled or old retiring officers, to add $5,000 to a Guarantee Fund to protect the Bank against loss by personal defalcation or losses through any member of its staff, and to carry something over $102,000 to Profit and Loss account.

In preparing this statement, we have dealt with the value of the Assets in a vigorous manner. There has been no hesitation in allowing most liberally reasonable provision for bad and doubtful debts, and I believe that no item has been knowingly placed among the assets at one dollar more than its actual and available value. We feel that the solidity and vital character of the Bank's business justified us using more than ordinary criticism on what might be treated as doubtful, and I believe that had we applied the ordinary test to the valuation of our assets, the net gains would appear much in excess of what the statement shows.

Gratifying Increase in Business.

At the last Annual Meeting the statement was [illegible] great progress might be looked for. I am delighted to say that this statement has been fully verified. We have made, so far as I am aware, absolutely no bad debts during the year, except in a few small accounts which may yet be realized. The whole twelve months present a record of credits well observed, debts promptly paid, and no losses. Our deposits have increased at an astonishing rate, and this, after all, is one of the great tests of public confidence and of stability in a Bank's affairs. Look for one moment at the facts. The increase alone in our deposits for the past year is nearly as great as the total deposits were ten years ago, then representing nearly fourteen years' accumulation. This year's addition to Rest Account is three times more than the total Rest of the Bank ten years ago. We have added to our Total Assets in 1909 a sum almost equal to the whole assets of the Bank at that period, and the increase in circulation for 1909 is equal to two-thirds the whole circulation of the Bank at the same period of comparison. In addition to all this you are now receiving an increase in dividend of 1 per cent. as promised, with ample provision against all contingencies. The promises held out a year ago have therefore been fully met, and we have no doubt that the future will bring equally good if not better results to every branch of the Bank's business. Notwithstanding the low rate of interest during the earlier part of the year and the abundance of available money, the earnings of the Bank have not suffered. We are able to increase the Dividend and maintain at the same time a strong position with regard to all other obligations and contingencies. The increase in Dividend is warranted by the condition of the Bank's affairs, and we felt that the interests of the shareholders should be kept in view, as the Bank has reached the stage when it can well afford to recognize these interests without impairing its ability to perform all its other obligations.

It is also a source of pleasure to know that the relations between the Bank and its Customers are so satisfactory that litigation is almost unknown to the Bank's record for 1909. The absence of legal proceedings shows the accounts to be in a healthy condition, for it is only in cases of bad or doubtful credits that the law has to be invoked. Prompt payment and good security are the chief reasons why the Bank has not required the aid of the Courts, and when you consider that nearly $40,000,000 are under the control and management of the Bank with tens of thousands of accounts in all parts of the Dominion, outstanding and current, and that only a few suits have been entered during a whole year, you will readily conclude that the financial condition is safe and strong.

The Building.

One of the best investments of the Bank continues to be the Head Office Building. Every foot of rentable space is occupied, and the rents are promptly paid. After paying all outgoings the Bank receives nearly 5½ per cent. net profit on the investment, or to be exact, 5.40 per cent. Rents appear to be increasing, notwithstanding the many new office buildings, and with our equipment and accommodation for tenants, there need be no fear as to the future revenue from this source. The other buildings also yield a good return and promise well for the future.

The staff, from the chief of the Executive to the messengers, are enthusiastic in their work, attentive to their duty, and efficient in every detail. Every office has been thoroughly inspected and full reports made to the Board thereon.

I now move that the Report for the year 1909 be adopted.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., seconded the motion. He pointed out that the Bank had risen from small beginnings to be one of the most important financial institutions in the Dominion. It had all the elements of sound progress and stability. The large deposits during the past year showed the confidence of the public. The absence of litigation proved that the debts were being promptly paid, as well secured, and the increase in the dividend, justified as it was, is the strongest evidence of the good earning power of the Bank. The Directors scrutinise every credit, except in very small accounts, and exercise their best discretion in determining the policy and conduct of the Bank's affairs.

The motion for the adoption of the report was carried unanimously.

It was moved by Mr. Geo. Le Riche and seconded by Mr. Geo. Watson that the thanks of the shareholders are due, and are hereby tendered, to the President, Vice-President, and Directors of the Bank for their attention to the interests of the Bank during the past year. Carried.

It was moved by Rev. J. S. Williamson and seconded by Mr. J. F. McKichan that the thanks of the Directors and Shareholders are due, and are hereby tendered, to the General Manager, the Assistant General Manager, and the staff of the Bank for their diligent attention to the interests of the Bank during the past year. Carried.

It was moved by Mr. Ed. Dickenson and seconded by Mr. J. J. Gibson that the ballot be now open for the election of Directors, and to be kept open until three o'clock, unless five minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued.

The scrutineers reported the following gentlemen duly elected to act as Directors for the ensuing year, viz., D. Warren, Hon. J. R. Stratton, C. Kloepfer (Guelph), W. J. Sheppard (Waubaushene), C. S. Wilcox (Hamilton), E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., H. S. Strathy.

The meeting then adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the newly-elected Directors, Mr. C. D. Warren was re-elected President, and Hon. J. R. Stratton Vice-President, by a unanimous vote.

FIRZY AND HER WOOERS.

A Ruse That Aided the Girl In Her Selection.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

The last rays of the sun softened the girl's red hair into a golden halo as she sat upon the log, her bare feet showing beneath the hem of her cheap print.

On the log beside her was a sunbonnet, and pressing against the sunbonnet was the heive of an ax such as only a very strong man was accustomed to wield.

The girl was evidently resting after a day of hard labor, for deep around her were scattered the still odorous pine chips, and on the other side of the log rose a huge pile of wood cut into two feet chunks to fit the regulation fireplace of the mountain log and mud cabin.

A handsome, powerfully built man had come down the mountain path barefoot and, as he seemed to think, unnoticed, for he stopped a few yards away and regarded the girl for some time with an air of admiring ownership.

"UP THERE THE MEN FOLKS LOOK OUT FOR THE WOMEN."

The man was at least six feet tall, and his sunburned arms, projecting from the short sleeves of his faded blue shirt, were large and muscular, fully in proportion to his other impressive dimensions. The muscles of his forearms ran down to his wrists like steel bands, and his shoulders seemed ever so slightly bent owing to the muscular development that caused his shoulder blades to project. His very movements bespoke his great power, but the expression in his face, in his eyes and the drooping lower jaw were evidences to the keen observer that the newcomer was not particularly ambitious. And his clothes confirmed this statement. Not only were they cheap and worn—that would have been to no man's advantage—but the knees of his trousers needed patching and brushing, and, furthermore, his ragged, uncut hair gave him a general appearance of unkemptness. Like practically all of the mountaineers and woodsmen of the vicinity, he wore no shoes, and years of barefoot existence had made the soles of his feet almost as tough as leather, so that he could walk so run over stony roads and mountain paths without the slightest inconvenience or pain.

The girl was leaning forward wearily, her chin in her hands.

In the sunlight her hair was beautiful, and her form, even in its dejected attitude, was graceful and pleasing.

The only appearance of feminine ornamentation was a pitiful attempt at a ruffle on the sunbonnet.

In spite of the arduous nature of her existence, which, of course, had not contributed to her physical advantage or development, the girl was undeniably pretty, and she had a certain grace in her movements which was decidedly uncommon in the poverty stricken region where she had spent her life.

"Don't stand there gawkin' all day, Hoke," at last called the girl pettishly, but without turning or raising her head. "You ain't no scared rabbit to patter along over the leaves and stop with one paw up, and I ain't no great to look at. How's all?"

"Tolerable," answered the man as he came forward sheepishly. "But I we'n't scared, and you needn't say you ain't no great to look at, Tirzy, for 'tain't so. I've come clear from Bear Lick to ask you what I asked last week. When are you going to marry me?"

"Don't know as ever," shortly.

"But your daddy's dead," earnestly, "and your cabin's plomb two mile from any other. You can't live here all by yourself, Tirzy. 'Tain't proper."

"And why not?" lifting her head defiantly. "Ain't I got a bigger truck patch than any man on the mountain? And ain't I kept it worked better? And didn't I help father build the cabin, cutting and toting the logs and wood and milk cows and do everything else that's sure enough work?"

"But what's the use talking," dropping her arms again listlessly. "There's no difference between you men folks. I think a heap of you, Hoke, like I said last week. You're big an' good natured and the handsomest man round, but all you've got in the world is a rifle and four dogs and a tumbledown cabin that's scarcely fit to live in, and I've heard you say yourself that you could drink more corn whisky than any man on the mountain and not show it.

"And you go barefoot, too, Hoke. Maybe I'll have to marry somebody sometime, but I need to say when a girl that I'd never marry a man who didn't wear shoes."

Hoke looked down at his feet reflectively.

"I don't reckon there's but one man on the mountain who wears shoes steady," he observed sarcastically. "Maybe he'd marry you if you asked him."

"You mean Ground Hog?" flashed back the girl instantly. "Well, he asked me last Tuesday, and I told him, like I did you, I'd study it over a spell."

Hoke looked at her incredulously for a moment, then threw back his head in a roar of laughter that echoed through the forest.

"Told him you'd study it over," he ejaculated between his bursts of merriment—"told Ground Hog that! Ho, ho! I'll sure have to let all the boys know!" Then instantly he became sober. "Why, Tirzy," he remonstrated, "it's scandalous! You're the handsomest and peartest girl on the mountain and the best worker. Any man would be glad to have you.

"And he," contemptuously, "he's just an outside easterner, coming here and fencing in land and digging in the dirt the whole endoring day, and he totes his truck stuff down into the valley on his own back and peddles it round. Huh! He couldn't hit a bear ten feet off with a shotgun, and he don't know and don't know the taste of whisky. Why, I 'low one spoonful would set him plumb crazy. But he does wear e-booze," prolonging the word derisively. "And you're going to study—'bout—him?"

"Yes, I am," quietly. "He knows how to work and ain't scared of it. And up where he comes from women folks don't milk and cut fireplace wood—up there the men folks look out for the women. If Ground Hog—I mean Mr. Allen—marries me, it won't be just because he aims to be more comfortable. But it'sh, there he comes now."

A man had suddenly emerged from the woods and was approaching them rapidly. Hoke was still standing several yards away.

As the stranger came to about the same distance an idea seemed to strike the girl, for she raised her hand warningly.

"Don't come any closer, either of you," she called. "I was down to Buck creek yesterday."

"Buck creek!" echoed Hoke, recalling a few steps. "Why, that's where they have the smallpox, and they do say it's terrible this season—everybody catches it that goes near."

"Yes; I've heard so," calmly.

"Oh, Tirzy, how could you?" And Hoke made a few more involuntary backward steps.

"I was obliged to, Hoke. I heard a girl I used to know was down there, and I wanted to find out for sure."

The stranger was now at her side, and Tirzy had noticed with an odd look in her eyes that he had not shown the least hesitation at her startling announcement.

"Well, I'll see you again, Tirzy," Hoke called from a still greater distance. "I hope you won't catch it, but I'm mighty afraid for you."

"I don't reckon there's much danger, Hoke," the girl returned. "For I didn't go across the creek. I just called, and a woman answered that 'twa'n't the girl I knew at all."

Hoke paused abruptly and was turning to come back when something in the attitude of the two, who were now seated upon the log, made him grind out a few words between his teeth and swing savagely into the woods.

ADVERTISED IN THE TIMES.

Disease of The Kidneys Brought on By Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Made a Well Man of Me.

I Cannot Speak Too Highly of It.

Mr. George King, 480 St. Denis Ste. Montreal, Canada, a well-known business man of that city, writes:

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were going would turn into Bright's disease, and after you have gone through the suffering that I have with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble, and have been cured you are pretty apt to remember the medicine that did the work.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottled made me well and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since. Every spring and fall I take a bottle of Peruna to keep me well."

MR. GEORGE KING

It is not until the disease has a firm hold upon the kidneys that the patient begins to realize that there is some derangement of these organs.

The slight backaches, the dullness of headache, and other trifling symptoms of kidney disease are overlooked.

They are not serious enough to detain the patient from his regular work.

Even when he discovers that the kidneys are affected, he does not recognize the disease only as being caused catarrh.

Catarrh is sometimes so very gradual in its approach and its earlier symptoms seem such slight discomfort that it is not noticed.

However, when it is once firmly seated in the kidneys it becomes a difficult disease to exterminate.

Indeed, catarrh of the kidneys is more serious than catarrh affecting some of the other organs of the body.

In the kidneys it is liable to terminate in Bright's disease or diabetes, both of which are recognized as very serious ailments, if not fatal.

The thing to be done, when catarrh of the kidneys is discovered, is to take some internal, systemic catarrh remedy, one that reaches the very source of the catarrh and removes the cause of the disease.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna. It reaches catarrh, no matter where it may be located in the body—whether in the more exposed membranes of the nose and throat, or whether in the remotest part of the kidneys.

That Peruna is always the safest and most reliable remedy for catarrh of the kidneys is proven by the many testimonials written by those who have experimented its benefits.

The testimonials given here are only specimens of the many testimonials on our records, pertaining to the relief afforded by Peruna in severe cases of kidney trouble.

Kidney Disease of Long Standing.

Mr. Samuel A. Foster, 1110 Tyrrell Ave., Kansas City, Mo., member I. O. O. F. and National Annuity Association, writes:

"I am a well man to-day, thanks to your splendid medicine, Peruna. I was troubled with catarrh and kidney disease of long standing when I first began using Peruna. I soon found I was getting better and continued taking it for four months. It cleaned out the system, leaving me well and strong and feeling better than I have in years."

Husband Seekers.

Hindu girls go through several superstitious rites in order to obtain a good husband. The "worship of Gauri, or Parvati, is the consort of Shiva, and on the twelfth day of the first month of the monsoon season, little girls between the ages of five and ten years form an earthern image of Gauri, and dress it up in clothes.

On either side they have set a vessel full of earth, in which they have sown wheat and barley. The morning of the twelfth, as soon as they get up, they go to the river side to bathe. Returning thence, they proceed to some place where all the female children of the village or quarter of the town are assembling, and thence the whole proceed together, singing songs, to the house of some Brahmin to whose care the image of Gauri has been entrusted.

They now worship the goddess with the sixteen prescribed ceremonials, making her presents, which fall as perquisites to the Brahmins. The mothers, or elder sisters of the girls, at this time prompt them to ask a boon of the goddess, and the children, one after another, say, "Gori Ma! Grant me a good bridegroom." The festival is not a little suggestive. It is not so poetic as that other festival celebrated by Moore, during which Hindu maidens float little lamps on the Ganges, and go away disheartened if the tiny lights do not reach the opposite bank in safety.

The Franklin Expedition.

The greatest tragedy of the Arctic, says a writer in The Boston Herald, was that of the Sir John Franklin expedition. Franklin sailed in 1845 with two ships, the Erebus and the Terror. They passed up the west coast of Greenland and were last seen in latitude 74 degrees 48 minutes. For three years nothing was heard of the party. Then expeditions were sent out, and the discovery after years of the records of the voyage as well as of many skeletons showed that the commander, officers and crews of the two vessels, to the number of 134, had perished to a man. Their fate was only finally revealed in 1854 by Dr. Rae of the Hudson Bay Co. and in 1860 by Captain McClintock.

"Three Nights."

Sir Henry Irving had a number of old pensioners who, though they had never risen above "deep-thinking" parts, yet considered they were infallible experts on matters dramatic.

Shortly before one magnificent but ill-fated Lyceum production, of which a certain super had no exalted opinion, Sir Henry Irving, towards the end of a rehearsal, had a long consultation with his two colleagues on matters musical and artistic.

A pessimistic veteran then called to a fellow-super and pointed out the distinguished trio to him with pity in his voice.

"Just look at 'em!" said he. "Poor old Sir 'Enry Irving, poor old Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and poor old Sir Alma-Tadema! Three bloomin' knights—and that's about as long as the belly piece will run!"

A "Fine Panama."

The Duke of Argyll has enriched the humor of the game with a new golf story. In opening the new club house at Helensburgh recently the duke commented on the picturesqueness of the situation occupied by the club house. It recalled to his memory an incident that occurred to himself one day when he said to his caddie that, on a certain course, a very fine view could be obtained. "Yes," said the caddie, with his arms akimbo, "it is a very fine panama."

PEOPLE FLEE IN TERROR

Paris Tries to Stem the Flood.

Paris, Jan. 28.—The military authorities this afternoon made arrangements to dynamite the Alma bridge, as the continued rise of the Seine makes it almost inevitable that driftwood and wreckage will lodge against the bridge and form a disastrous dam, flooding the entire city.

The bridge is one of the most beautiful structures across the Seine.

Reports from the river Seine section say that the stream is now a raging current miles in width. The villages of Ouroux, Gigny, Marnay, La Caloune, and Epervieres, along the Seine, were inundated this afternoon, the people fleeing in terror. There is said not to be a score of persons remaining in the five towns.

It is still raining and the Seine continues to rise at the rate of half an inch an hour.

Funny Accident.

A peculiar accident happened one evening recently on the Smith road, between here and Peterborough. A gentleman driving from Peterborough to Lakefield for the first time, took the wrong turn at the "Goose Neck" owing to the electric lights in the village, and drove down the side line to the river. Fortunately he was able to extricate himself from the dangerous position in which he was placed, and after considerable delay reached the village.—Lakefield News.

Quickness in Paying Claims.

It has been called to our attention the quickness in which the Prudential Insurance Company of America settled a claim on the life of Robert F. Heron, who died at his late residence, 112 Sophia street, at 1.30 a.m., January 26th. The superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company was notified at 9 a.m., and at ten minutes to ten the check was placed in the hands of the beneficiary It goes without saying that this act of promptness was appreciated in the hour of need of the bereaved family. Mr. Heron applied for insurance in above company and same was issued on December 13, having only paid eight week premiums in the Industrial Department.

DOMINION BANK.

Splendid Financial Report Presented at Annual Meeting.

In spite of the fact that during a long period last year it was impossible to find use for all the money they had at favorable rates, the Dominion Bank was enabled to pay a twelve per cent. dividend in quarterly instalments and transfer to the reserve fund $18,288.38, and carry forward in the Profit and Loss account $295,766.99. $150,000 was also written off the bank premises. The 39th annual meeting of the Dominion Bank was held in Toronto on Wednesday last, January 26, when the report of the directors was presented by the Secretary. A large number of the shareholders and directors were present and everyone was well satisfied with the splendid showing made for the year.

During 1909 new branches were opened at Victoria, B.C., Guernsey, Hanley, Melville, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon in Saskatchewan; Claresholm and High River, in Alberta; one in Montreal one at Milton, one at London, and three in Toronto. Provision has also been made for opening several others this year.

The Dominion Bank has issued $4,000,000 of the original capital of $5,000,000. The shareholders also passed a by-law authorizing the directors to increase the capital to $10,000,000. Another by-law was passed authorising the par value of the stock to be increased from $50 to $100 per share.

The bank at the present time is in an excellent financial position and the public has the greatest confidence in the management. This has only been stimulated by careful management and much credit is due Mr. E. B. Osler, the President and the General Manager and the Board of Directors.

The Peterborough branch of the Dominion Bank, under the direction of Mr. John Crane, has made rapid strides. Mr. Crane is personally a first-class manager and he is held in the highest regard by the Peterborough people. It is largely Mr. Crane's personality that has given the Dominion Bank an enviable position among the local financial institutions in such a short time. The future is very bright and the bank for will continue to get a large share of local business.

Mad Prosperous Year

Excellent Showing Made by the Traders' Bank.

In the statement presented to the shareholders at the annual meeting of the Traders' Bank yesterday increases are shown in all departments and the year will go down as undoubtedly one of the most successful in the history of the institution. The net profits for the year reached a grand total of $467,062.39, and, after the payment of dividends at the rate of 7 per cent. for the first three quarters of the year and 8 per cent. for the fourth quarter, was disposed of as follows: The sum of $200,000 was added to the rest fund and the balance of $162,443.40 was carried forward to the credit of profit and loss. The rest account now stands at $2,200,000. One of the outstanding features was the large increase in deposits, being 17.44 per cent. in excess of last year, or in round figures a gain of $4,426,000. At the end of the year the deposits had reached a total of $29,813,194. This is a splendid evidence of the confidence the public repose in this well managed and enterprising institution. A further testimony to the fine standing of the bank is to be found in the assets, which now amount to $39,963,906.11, or an increase over the previous year of $5,104,000, which in turn showed an increase over the preceding year of $1,130,000. "PILLS LIKE A FILE."

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure the Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valemeia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exerted on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitute. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or the Catarrhozons Co., Kingston, Ont.

Eight Killed Outright

And Twenty Badly Injured On a British Railway

Express from Brighton to London Wrecked at Stoat's Nest Station Saturday Afternoon

(Special to The Times.)

London, Jan. 29.—Three persons were killed and twenty others badly injured when an express train, running between Brighton and London, was wrecked at Stoat's Nest station this afternoon.

The express train was traveling at the rate of forty miles an hour when the locomotive left the rails. The two front cars were flung across the platform while the Pullman following them was pitched into the air and fell on the station. The remainder of the train was smashed to pieces.

Two railways, the Southwestern and the London, Brighton & Southern Counties, run from London to Brighton. The latter place is situated on the southern coast of Sussex, and is fifty-one miles from London. It is the chief watering place of Great Britain and is frequented every season by thousands of people from all parts of the British Isles and the continent.

Pays $160,000 for Title Wants His Money Back

(Special to The Times.)

London, Jan. 29.—Much mystery is thrown about a suit, Wyatt v. the Countess of Warwick, which is now before the king's bench court, over which the lord chief justice presides, and was postponed with the view of settling it out court.

Mr. Wyatt is a very wealthy brewer with social aspirations. The story goes that about a year ago he was told by a prominent member of the principal Tory Club, the Carlton, that if he wished to be made a baron, he would attain his ambition by paying $100,000.

Mr. Wyatt satisfied himself that the persons making the proposition could make good, and he agreed to pay $100,000 with the understanding that the baronetcy would be given him among the toyles and honors which the King conferred on his last birthday.

ANOTHER TOUCH.

Some time before the list was to appear Mr. Wyatt was informed by the person who had approached him originally that he must pay $60,000 to principals in the negotiations whom, it is said, he named as the Countess of Warwick and a high official of Buckingham Palace. The Countess of Warwick, who as Lady Brooke, was the "Babbling Brooke" of the Tranby-Croft scandal, is famous now for her socialistic tendencies.

HIS NAME OMITTED.

Mr. Wyatt objected to paying such a large sum until the baronetcy was "delivered." But his objections were overcome, and he paid it. But when the list of birthday honors was published his name was not on it. Naturally Mr. Wyatt was indignant and demanded his $60,000. He was persuaded that the coveted titled would be given him when the next list of honors should appear, and that it was withheld only because certain formalities had to be gone through.

Becoming suspicious, Mr. Wyatt made enquiries and learned that his name had not even been suggested to the King. So he brought suit to recover his $60,000.

Time to give Bernier A Hint to Keep Quiet

New York, Jan. 29.—The question of who has territorial possession of the North Pole has been revived again by Captain Bernier, who is here to attend the annual dinner of the Arctic Club of America tomorrow night. Capt. Bernier will ask Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier of Canada to request England, the United States, Russia, Sweden and Norway and Denmark—all maritime nations bordering on the Arctic Sea—to designate official representatives to accompany him on his forthcoming polar expedition, which is to leave Quebec on July 15 next. The principal object of the expedition, he said, will be for a division of the polar sea in order that Canada and the six, other nations may have their fishery rights properly defined.

Capt. Bernier will visit both Crocker Land, discovered by Peary in 1906, and Bradley Land, which Dr. Cook reported that he sighted, and, after raising the British flag, will proclaim them formally annexed to the Dominion of Canada. Great Britain, he said, formally ceded to the Dominion all islands in the Arctic Sea lying within its lateral boundaries.

Some one at Ottawa should give Mr. Bernier a tip to keep quiet. Canada's inalienable rights should not be conceded as a question of discussion at all.

TORONTO SAVINGS AND LOAN.

Company Celebrate the Close of First Quarter Century.

On Friday last the Toronto Savings & Loan Co., the largest purely local trust and savings institution in Canada celebrated the completion of its 25th anniversary. For a quarter of a century the company has steadily been climbing up grade and adding to its assets, while at the same time all the stockholders have been well looked after and are perfectly satisfied. Friday the annual meeting was held when the financial statement was presented. The usual dividend of 6 per cent. was paid quarterly and a bonus of 2 per cent. was added, making an 8 per cent. dividend. The year just closed not only marked the quarter century close but it was the best year in the history of the company. The net earnings were $124,120.31. Out of these was paid the dividend $40,000 was added to the reserve fund bringing it up to $68,000 or 68 per cent. of the paid up capital of $1,000,000. The assets during the year were increased $133,628.76 making the total $3,000,000 and when it is remembered that practically all that money is invested in Peterborough county, and most of it in the city, it will be seen what a powerful institution it is in the community. As a financial concern the Toronto Savings and Loan Company is perfectly sound, and within another two or three years its reserve fund will be equal to the paid up capital.

A large measure of the success of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company is due to the very efficient management of Mr. W. G. Morrow, who year after year has demonstrated his ability to occupy the position he does. He is conservative, yet he never loses a good opportunity and in this way he has built up the business until now it occupies a prominent position in the first ranks. A statement of the company's finances will be found on another page of this issue.

They were not, however, the five vags arrested in the east riding on suspicion of knowing something of the assault upon the Misses Macpherson, near Norwood, a couple of days ago. The gentlemen mentioned were attending a Liberal convention in Norwood, and no doubt a lot of the Conservatives think they should have been arrested.

Lessons We May Learn from Britain, Honor, Pluck and Determination

Dr. J. A. MacDonald Deals with the Land Question, the Social Life, the Country Life and the Personal Characteristics of the British—How Conditions there Should Help us in Canada

The largest Canadian Club dinner was the one held in the National Hotel on Saturday night. It was the first to be given this year and it was one of the best ever given. The dining room was filled, every chair was occupied and after the dinner a dozen or more who came in late got in to hear the address. Host Denison prepared a very fine menu and the dinner was thoroughly enjoyed while the service provided was all that could be desired.

Mr. D. O'Connell, the retiring president occupied the chair, and after a few remarks he introduced the newly-elected president, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, and he delivered an address that was interesting, eloquent, powerful and impressive. He was listened to with a sympathetic attention and as he drove point after point home he was warmly applauded. Dr. Macdonald will be welcomed to Peterborough any time he wishes to visit here.

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles was called upon to read the minutes of the last regular meeting. These were declared carried.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, the newly-elected president of the Canadian Club was elected to the chair.

He thanked the members very heartily for the honor done him by electing him to his position of honor. He considered it a privilege to be a member of the Canadian Club and a citizen of Canada the greatest country in the world, with unlimited resources. The Canadian people are descendants of two great nations, England and France and this should be an inspiration for every Canadian to strive for the better. We are very fortunate in having at our first public dinner such a distinguished public man as (Rev. Dr. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe. The speaker paid a high tribute to Dr. Macdonald, who has brought honor to Canada. Rev. Dr. Macdonald was then introduced.

DR. MACDONALD.

Dr. Macdonald said in opening that the object of the Canadian Club was to improve the conditions of life in Canada. The affairs in England at this time are particularly interesting to Canadians, hence the subject "Lessons Canada Can Learn from Great Britain," is appropriate. The speaker did not pretend to speak as an authority on things in Britain. That subject is too complex. Before one speaks with authority on anything he must know the history and conditions leading up to it. But what he had to say would be what he saw himself during his visit a few months ago as a delegate to the Imperial Press conference.

His first lesson was the question of the land. The land situation in England is full of instruction and warning to us in Canada. The land is the prime source of the nation's wealth, the basis of the people's wealth, all our great institutions have their roots directly or indirectly in the soil. The land is limited in area and fixed in location. It cannot be increased nor transported. One may build all the motor cars and it will make no difference to his neighbor. But if one man owns or controls all the land the rest will go without. That is just what has come about in Great Britain. A few men own or control practically all the land and the population has been driven from the country to the towns and cities and hives of industries. The land, although of very small area in Great Britain is no longer producing the new men to provide for the towns and cities. In Scotland the landquestion was partly brought about by the clan system and when that system broke the chiefs of the clans became the landlords of the estates. It has been shown that 90 per cent. of the land in Britain is owned by 3 per cent. of the people. Is it any wonder then that the land situation is acute. "God made the land for the people." Canadians need to remember that the time is coming when we may feel the pain of a landless people. And not the land only, but all the natural resources of the country ever made by God for the people—the fertility of the soil, the electric energy of the water falls, the ores in the rocks, the timber in the woods, and the fish in the waters. All are for the people, and no king or parliament or one generation has the right to alienate them from the uses of the people for all time to come. It is for this reason the land situation in Great Britain was pressed home to Canadians.

The second point was that of the social situation in British cities, and they are a warning to Canadians against the slums. If the same conditions are allowed the same results will follow. If the people are driven from the land they will congregate in the cities and then you have congestion and the slums, and the slums means a degrading of the physical, the moral life. The degeneracy of the slums has a direct effect upon the better classes and the tenor of the whole is lowered.

The depopulation of the home market forced Britain to seek the foreign market. In Britain only 10 per cent. of the employed are on the land. No wonder there is no home market.

The same conditions are beginning in Canada. In every one of our large cities the slum has started. All that is needed to create the slum is congestion, unemployed, drink and vice. Every Canadian should be warned against this condition.

The third point was that the decay of life in rural Britain is a warning to us to have care for life in rural Canada. No nation is strong that has not strength in its country communities. Cities are only artificial and have tended to social and moral decay from the time murderous Cain built the first city. Life in the city is being constantly renewed by the incoming from the country of new blood, new brains, new nerves new muscles and new morals. The great cities of Britain have been kept back from self-destruction only by the imports from the country. Great Britain's country would not support a large population. That is not what is needed. Britain needs a good population with good heart and a good name and good blood, and enough for seed. He told of one glen in the north of Scotland where only a few people live, but where the school is good and where 140 children are taught. That glen exports only educated people, and that is there boast.

If we would guard and encourage what is best in the life of the country we must join hands, all of us, to promote those conditions of life which will make country homes and country life attractive and satisfying, such as transportation, education and all those things which enrich the mind and encourage the heart.

The fourth point was probably the most important of all to Canada for it was the one which the individual must work out for himself and if that is done all the others will be easy. There are, said the speaker, certain characteristics of life in Britain which need emphasis in Canada. One of these is the pluck of the Englishman and his independence and determination to succeed. He instanced the shoe trade in England. Some six years ago the American shoes were on a fair road to destroy the English industry. The Englishman sized up the situation. He bought the American last and American machinery, and he is today not only supplying the English market but he is even beating out the American shoe in Boston itself.

Next is honor in public life and in private life. Take it all in all public life in Britain has a high standard of honor. This also applies to trade and he told of the great wool market in Inverness in Scotland which has been in operation for more than a hundred years. All the sheep raisers of the North of Scotland gather there and sell their wool. The wool is still on the backs of sheep, and there is never a contract signed. The word of the Highlander is stronger than any bond. He agrees to sell his wool at a certain price and to deliver it on a certain day at a certain place. The brokers are satisfied for they have never been deceived. With this the speaker compared the dishonesty practiced in Canada by the apple packers who put good apples on the top and bottom and the scabs and wind falls in the middle.

One of the perils of a new country is the decay of the moral fibre. Britain's marvellous prestige on all the continents and among all the nations is in no small degree due to that fidelity to trust and sensitiveness of honor which has been so great a characteristic of the race.

VOTE OF THANKS.

At the conclusion of Dr. Macdonald's speech, Mr. D. O'Connell spoke in which he said that we had had the honor of hearing Dr. Macdonald in a very classic, instructive address and the Canadian Club is to be congratulated upon its good fortune in hearing so distinguished a gentleman. He agreed with everything the doctor had said. The greatest characteristic of a nation should be a desire for learning, strict honor, integrity and self respect of the Scotch, the pluck and determination of the English. He then spoke of the characteristics of the Irish. They are the men who dream great dreams and give to the world the things beautiful in poetry and literature. We have here in Canada the advantages of all those people of the old world including the chivalry of the French. If we are to make our mark in Canadian history we must build up a code of ethics for ouselves that will show honor to every citizen. In concluding he moved to Dr. Macdonald the hearty and sincere thanks of the club for his eloquent and powerful address.

Dr. M. A. Morrison in seconding the motion congratulated the Canadian Club upon the honor of hearing Dr. Macdonald, and he was glad that Canada possessed men of such stature, high ideals, such learning and morals as the speaker of the evening.

The motion was put by President H. R. H. Kenner, and it was carried by loud applause.

Falls Heavily at Toledo, Ohio On Black Hand Men

(Special to The Times.)

Toledo, O., Jan. 29.—All of the 14 Sicilians charged with black hand conspiracy were found guilty by the jury in the federal court today.

Salvatore Lima, the chief of the band, was sentenced to 16 years' imprisonment; Sebastian Lima, his brother, and Giuseppe Ignoffo, his brother-in-law, were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment each. All of these lived at Marion, where the headquarters for the operations were maintained.

All of the 14 defendants were found guilty, but the court granted new trials to Agostini Marfai of Dennison, Vincenso Arrigo of Cincinnati, both fruit dealers, and Salvatore Rizzo, a section hand, living at Marion.

The others were sentenced as follows: Sevario Ventola of Columbus, two years; Salvatore Demma of Bellfontaine, two years; Antonio Vicearia, Dennison, two years. Colomaro Vicario Bellefontaine, two years; Orazio Rusfalo, Pittsburg, six years; Pippino Galbo, Meadville, Pa., four years; Salvatore Arrigo, Cincinnati, four years; Francesco Spadara, Cincinnati, two years.

All except Vicario started early this afternoon for Leavenworth Prison, in charge of eight deputy marshals, Vicario will be taken to Elmira.

They had used the mails to extort moneymoney from Italians of Ohio and Indiana.

Half-Drowned Paris Heaves a Deep Sigh of Relief

Paris, Jan. 29.—The River Seine is falling today at the rate of three-quarters of an inch an hour. The River Marne has dropped eight inches from its crest and the River Yonne eight inches. Hope is strong that the subsidence of all the vagrant streams will be rapid.

The high mark reached by the River Seine at Pont Royal was 31 feet 1 inch. This is the highest known record. The flood of 1615 is said to have attained its crest at 30 feet 6 inches.

Paris, Jan. 29.—The waters of the River Seine, after having reached an unprecedented height and caused great destruction, began to recede today.

The crest of the flood was reached at midnight. The water remained stationary until two o'clock, after which they fell slowly.

At 6 o'clock there had been a drop of two inches, according to an official statement issued this afternoon.

During the night the storm clouds disappeared and the weather cleared. This morning the sun shone brightly.

PLACE DU HAVRE A LAKE.

The situation is not so critical in the Place de L'Opera as in the region in front of the St. Lazare Station, where waters racing through the Rheu de la Grange-Batelieare subway, joining the flood of overflowed sewers, has turned the Place du Havre into a lake and made rivers of some sections of the Rue de L'Arcade, the Rue de L'Isly and the Boulevard Haussmann, in front of the Expiatoire Chapel, erected to the memory of the decapitated Bourbons.

All of the buildings within this quadrilateral have been evacuated and are surrounded by a cordon of soldiers.

SUFFERED FROM VIOLENT CATHARTICS.

The Warning of Mrs. Geo. C. Fox is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox, whose friends throughout the West are legion. In the following letter he expresses gratitude for signal service rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels, pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation; their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating, why they are mild, yet most searching.

"From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh purging pill, and instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, biliousness, constipation, bad stomach and keep the system in perfect condition."

Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills; sold for 25c, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THEATER JAMMED.

Isles Packed to the Stage With No Regard for the Law, or Public Safety.

There is one common law governing all places where the public gather, and every man, woman and child knows what that law is, and it is so simple that even the most ignorant appreciate the meaning. In places where the public gather, such as theaters, churches, halls, etc., the aisles must be kept clear. No one is to stand either in the aisles or at the back. A perfectly clear passage is to be maintained. The object of this is to prevent a catastrophe in case of fire or an explosion. But in one of the five-cent theaters on Saturday night the crowds were permitted to congregate in such numbers that the aisles and every available foot of standing room from the entrance to stage were jammed and once one got in it was impossible to get out until the crowd went out. The city police have several times received instructions to prevent infractions of the law by the theater people. Yet this theater is on the main street and the police pass it, or should pass it scores of times during the evening. The evil was allowed to exist, and had there been an accident in that theater to cause a stampede the results would have been too awful to contemplate. The wreck at Webbwood would have been as child's play. In justice to the public who patronize those places of amusement and entertainment; in the interests of public health, in the interests of public safety, the police should once more be instructed to visit the theaters during the busy hours and not so particularly during the early afternoon when only a couple of dozen patrons are inside.

STALLION AND BULL.

The West Peterborough Agricultural Society has decided to hold next spring a stallion and bull show at the Exhibition Grounds. Prizes of value will be offered as well as premium badges. Last spring a stallion show was held on the market square and although it was early in the season it proved a great success. Several thousand spectators were present and admired the handsome animals. Owing to the success achieved last year the society decided to branch out a little and the bulls will be exhibited this year as well. The exact date and the amount of the prizes will be announced later.

Lord Carrington to Follow Earl Grey

London, Jan. 28.—Lord Carrington is mentioned as the next Governor-General of Canada. The Daily Chronicle announces it and it is no doubt official.

Lord Crewe is likely to succeed Lord Minto as Viceroy of India.

The Duke of Connaught has been asked to open the next Toronto Exhibition.

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—No confirmation has been received here of the report that Earl Carrington will succeed Earl Grey as Governor-General of Canada.

Doubt is expressed as to whether the British Government has yet seriously considered the question of Earl Grey's successor, in view of the fact that the ministers have been scattered over the country for weeks addressing public meetings.

PRISONERS ARRIVE.

Henderson is Now Safe Behind the County Jail Bars.

On Saturday afternoon there was considerable excitement at the C.P.R. station and along George street to the county jail. Detective Reburn of the Provincial staff, in company with the chief constable and an assistant from Havelock, brought six prisoners from that town to the city One of the men was Henderson, the self-confessed assailant of the Misses Macpherson. He was handcuffed by himself. Then came three vags chained together and behind were two more vags. These five had been arrested on suspicion and are now being detailed by the officers, who consider it wisdom to rid the whole country side of the tramps who have been making things uncomfortable for the people lately, and women especially are afraid to go out or to be alone. The prisoners will all appear before Magistrate Edmison this morning or within the next few days.

Australia and the Dominion of New Zealand Cruisers to be Built at Once.

The Government Have Added $35,000,000 to Value of Fighting Force Since Last March.

New York, Jan. 29.—The Herald's naval correspondent writes:

Orders for two dreadnought cruisers, to be paid for by the Commonwealth of Australia and the Dominion of New Zealand are not to be delayed, but will be given out almost immediately, and these two vessels are to be completed by March 31, 1912. The result of this will be that the country will have 22 dreadnought complete when Germany will have 11 only, since it is now as nearly as certain as possible that the two ships Ersatz-Heimdall and Ersatz-Hildebrand, the first turbine-driven battleships for Germany cannot be completed before the summer of that year. Thus Great Britain practically is completing her dreadnoughts to what is called the two-keels-to-one standard.

When these two vessels have been ordered this country will have put in hand since March of last year, when the government made public announcement of the acceleration of the German program, ten dreadnought battleships and cruisers, twenty torpedo boat destroyers and an unknown number of submarines. It is a curious circumstance in regard to the parliamentary election that with this fact open to the knowledge of everybody the government should have been held to be backward on the navy question.

The orders thus placed represent a value of between twenty and twenty-five millions sterling, and it is quite certain that if the Liberals return to office one of the first things they will have to do is to find something like two millions sterling for the four contingent dreadnoughts ordered toward the end of last year.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all dealers.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. E. Emerson, of Guys Hill P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea and disorders of the stomach and bowels, Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

IRELAND'S POSITION.

The prospect that Mr. Redmond and his band of Irish Nationalists will hold the balance of power in the new Imperial Parliament recalls the fact that Mr. Parnell and his followers wrecked a former Liberal Administration. It was in 1885 that the Parnellites joined the Conservatives, and turned out the Gladstone Ministry. Lord Salisbury then formed his first government, which was to retain office till a general election could be held under the new Franchise Act.

Lord Carnarvon was appointed Viceroy of Ireland. He was known to have liberal views on Irish self-government. His personal relations with Parnell were friendly. During the period between the formation of the Salisbury Government and the elections, Carnarvon had two interviews with Parnell. These meetings were held with Lord Salisbury's consent. The heads of a home rule bill were talked over. No definite bargain was made by either statesman. Lord Carnarvon was careful to tell Parnell that he spoke for himself only.

When the elections took place the Irish vote in England and Scotland was cast for the Conservatives. They failed to win, and (as now) the Home Rulers held the balance between the two parties. Parliament met in February, 1886. Lord Salisbury declared for coercion. Thereupon the Irish members joined the Liberals on Jesse Collings' motion re agricultural reforms. Their motion turned out the Conservatives.

Gladstone then took office on a pledge to introduce Home Rule. He brought in his bill on April. It was was thrown out in the Commons. He appealed to the country in June, 1886, and was beaten by a majority of one hundred. It is possible that the nation faces similar stirring times. The Irish will hold the whip hand in the Commons. They want Home Rule, but at the same time they dislike the budget, and know that tariff reform would make Ireland prosperous. Failing to secure a sweeping measure of self-government from Mr. Asquith, they considerably might go over to Mr. Balfour, particularly if the Unionist leader saw his way clear to giving England, England and Scotland each a legislature to manage its own local affairs, thus leaving the Imperial parliament to deal exclusively with the larger national and Imperial issues.

We have no absolute confirmation of the sale, but have received it from what should be reliable authority.—Havelock Standard.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

PLAINT OF A SPINISTER.

An Unwilling One Asks Why Educated Women Don't Marry.

Unmarried women who would have liked to marry, but never had the chance, are not likely to confess the facts very frankly. The spinster who makes her plaint under the title "Why Do Not Educated Women Marry?" in a recent number of the Independent probably wouldn't have made it if she had been compelled to sign her name. But "An Unwilling Celibate" might be any one of millions of women. This celibate, therefore, regarding her case as typical in many ways, announces that she cannot understand why she has not been wooed. She thinks the standard by which men judge women must be wrong.

"When I look around at the homes, the pitiful, inadequate makeshifts that are called such, and when I read the record of the divorce courts and I then look at my unmarried friends I wonder if marriage is really a process of natural selection and invariably results in the mating of the fittest."

She is a college graduate, this celibate, and has met with fair success in teaching and writing. But as a young girl her happiest dream was of having her own home, husband, children, and "the renunciation has not been easy." She is "no beauty," but she has had compliments on her good looks and is a skillful dresser. She comes of an honorable family, was brought up to cook, keep house and sew, can play cards, loves to talk to men and is adept at outdoor sports. And yet she has had only one offer of marriage, and that an undesirable one, and she is "perilously near the danger line of thirty."

Many persons, she says, tell her that a woman "must never let a man guess she has any brains or knows how to talk anything but utter nonsense." She is unable to follow this plan—doesn't think it a "square deal" to a man. Yet men seem to like to talk to her, and they tell her it is "such a comfort to find a woman who doesn't want to talk nonsense all the time."

They come to see her and invite her to go to dances, theaters and upon moonlight walks, and they confide in her their love for Polly Jones or Sally Smith. "I am proud of their trust and confidence, yet I cry out against the essential impersonality of it all, as if I were a sort of embodiment of the earth mother."

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

When transferring a pattern for embroidery to silk hosiery slip a piece of cardboard inside the stocking, taking care not to stretch the silk at all. After adjusting the paper pattern in the proper place press with a hot iron and the work will be accomplished.

If you buy a petticoat ready made do not wear it with all the fullness the manufacturer gives it at the waist line. Remove the band and gore the skirt, leaving a little fullness at the back. This change will make the skirt far more comfortable than it would have been in its original form, and it will look neater beneath the dress.

One of the newest patterns in embroidery shows a table cover with a hemstitched border on two sides. The hems were ten inches deep. In the center threads were drawn to outline eight blocks, four on each side, with edges touching the hems. This brings the blocks in the center of the table. All blocks are embroidered in a different floral pattern, making it something original and at the same time attractive.

To baste lace or insertion first baste the material to be ornamented on stiff paper, then apply the lace to it and sew by hand or machine. To form yoke or cuffs of insertion cut the shape in stiff paper, then baste on the insertion, making it lie flat, and sew on the machine. One edge of the lace must, of course, be lapped over the other. The machine sewing gives a better finish than hand sewing and is much easier.

What to Buy For a Wedding Gift.

It is often a puzzling matter to decide upon just what to buy for a wedding present. The silversmith may always be relied upon to offer a suggestion in some of his wares. One of the newest designs of a famous New York firm in silverware is an asparagus set with dish, rack and sauce boat combined. The tongs for serving the vegetable are neatly fitted into their own place at the side of the dish. The asparagus set may be purchased either in real or imitation silver, and as the vegetable is served all the year round in its fresh state or canned the gift will be found very useful.

For Planked Fish.

Every one knows how hard it is to remove the plank on which fish has been cooked on any china or silver meat platter one may happen to own. Naturally it would never do not to serve the steak or fish on its plank.

Now some clever person has devised a nickel holder into which the plank is easily slipped. It comes to fit several sizes of plank, oval or oblong, and the holder is an attractive addition to the table setting with its carved ends. It has legs to keep the plank from resting on the table.

The tender leaves of a harmless lung-healing mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Sheop's Cough Remedy its marvellous curative properties. Tight rattling or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid prescription—Dr. Sheop's Cough Remedy. And it is as safe and good for children, as well. Containing no opium, chloroform or other harmful drugs, mothers should in safety always demand Dr. Sheop's. If other remedies are offered, tell them No! Be your own judge. Sold by all dealers.

The Western Farmer's Elevator and Milling Co. Ltd.

HEAD OFFICE—LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, CANADA.

CAPITAL, $100,000, DIVIDED INTO 100,000 SHARES OF $1 EACH.

DIRECTORS: J. GRAHAM, C. A. NEILSEN, G. J. SMITH.

MILL MANAGER: R. M. WATSON.

SECRETARY: C. G. BELL.

This company now offers the remaining 50,000 shares of their capital Stock to the public on the same terms as the first issue, viz.: price 60c. per share, payable 20c. on application, 20c on May 1st, 1910, and 20c. on August 1st, 1910.

Our first issue was for the purpose of obtaining money to erect three grain elevators of about 30,000 bushels capacity each at the following places: Bow Island, Winnifred, and Seven Persons. The shares were all subscribed for within eleven days of the issue of the prospectus.

The issue of the remaining 50,000 shares is for the purpose of obtaining money to erect two additional elevators—one at Burdett and one at Olds, thus giving us a chain of six elevators at towns for a distance of 80 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway to which is tributary OVER THREE MILLION ACRES OF THE FINEST WHEAT LAND IN THE WORLD, and to erect a mill of about 100 barrels capacity per day at Bow Island.

We have selected Bow Island as the most suitable place to erect our mill for two reasons: First, NATURAL GAS has been discovered near that place in enormous quantities; one well is the second largest in the world, and has a flow sufficient to produce 35,000 horse power constantly.

We have arranged to secure a supply sufficient to produce 100 horse-power for $1.05 per day of 10 hours. Consider this for a moment, compare this with mills at Lethbridge and other places where fuel costs from $10.00 to $20.00 per 100-horse-power per day. It means a clear SAVING TO THE SHAREHOLDERS of at least $17.00 PER DAY.

Another reason for selecting Bow Island is that it is the centre of our chain of elevators, and is the largest grain producing centre between Calgary and Medicine Hat. By building the mill joining our elevator we will be able to handle the grain into the mill in the most economical manner.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

To those who are not familiar with the elevator and milling business, let us give you a few conservative figures: A 30,000 bushel elevator will easily handle 150,000 bushels of grain during a season. The usual charge for handling the grain and loading into cars, including storage for 15 days is 2 cents per bushel, which will produce a revenue of $3,000 for each elevator, or $15,000 for the five. The charge for elevator storage is 3-4 of a cent per bushel per month, and, as many farmers hold their grain until the following spring, the elevators are always full all winter. Figuring three months' storage, that will produce a further revenue of at least $3,000, which brings the total earnings to $18,000.

The annual operating expenses cannot by any possible combination of circumstances exceed $4,750.00 for the five elevators, leaving us a net balance of $13,750.00.

Our mill, with a capacity of 100 barrels per day, and with flour selling at from $2.50 to $3.25 per hundred, and middlings at 75c per hundred, will, with wheat selling at 90c per bushel, give us a revenue of $63.00 per day, from which deduct $19.00 per day for operating expenses, and we have a net income of $44.00 per day, or over $14,000 per year. Our total net earnings will enable us, after setting aside a sum for sinking fund to pay 25 per cent. dividend on the capital.

We will always be able to keep our mill running at its full capacity; the mills in Lethbridge are running day and night, full capacity, and are behind with their orders.

Don't forget that we have NO COMPETITION—there is not an elevator or a mill in the territory we are entering in, and with the majority of the farmers giving us their support through being shareholders our unqualified success is assured.

With elevators and mills earning such enormous dividends, is there any wonder that shares in companies only two years old, for which 75c was paid at formation, are now selling for $1.50?

Elevator and milling shares are as safe as a bank, and pay much greater returns.

REMEMBER, we have been given FREE SITES at every place where we are erecting. These sites are valuable now, and a few years hence will be a considerable asset. The Town of Bow Island has exempted us from taxation for a period of five years.

You need have no hesitation in investing your money in this enterprise as the directors are local owners here and are large shareholders. They are determined to manage the company in a most economical and businesslike manner.

Another point for your consideration is that there are no dead-head or promoters' shares in this company. Not a share has been given away or sold for less than 60c.

There is not a single statement in this prospectus, which we cannot prove right up to the hilt.

If you have any doubts as to the earning power of elevators, write the Warehouse Commissioner, Winnipeg, for his annual report, and note particularly his remarks concerning Alberta elevators.

If you doubt our remarks concerning the supply and cheapness of natural gas at Bow Island, write the Superintendent Canadian Pacific Railway, Medicine Hat, who will confirm our statements.

You now have an opportunity to secure shares at considerably below par value, in an enterprise where your INVESTMENT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE, and where you are sure of the greatest return which an industrial concern can legitimately earn.

Our directors have had a long experience in the Milling and elevator business, all have been resident in Alberta for many years.

Our Mill Manager, Mr. R. M. Watson, of Teeswater, Ont., is an expert Miller.

Upon application we will give a list as reference of several prominent men in Ontario, including Bank managers who have invested in shares of this Company after making the most careful investigation.

As showing the profits an elevator and milling Company can earn, we give below a copy of statements of the three largest companies in Canada showing net profits for year ending August 31st, 1909.

Ogilvie 10.24 per cent., Lake of the Woods 24.44 per cent., Western Canada 21.69 per cent.

You cannot purchase shares for anything like par value in these companies to-day, nor will you in a short time be able to purchase shares in this Company at par value.

We advise early application as our last issue will soon be disposed of.

For any further information address the Secretary.

JOHN HAY'S FIRST SPEECH.

A Witty Response to the Toast "Our Countrywomen" at a Banquet in Paris When He Was Secretary of Legation in the French Capital.

By official proclamation President Johnson set apart the first Thursday of December, 1865, as a day of national thanksgiving. The American residents and visitors in Paris deemed it an occasion to be celebrated with more than usual ceremony. The result was that at 8 o'clock on the evening of the 7th of December some 250 of our countrymen sat down to a dinner in the spacious dining room of the Grand hotel in Paris, then regarded by travelers as the most elegant public dining hall in Europe.

After a succession of speeches the chairman closed the entertainment with a toast to "Our Countrywomen" and asked Colonel John Hay, then secretary of legation in Paris, to respond to it. As this was probably the first public speech Mr. Hay had ever made and though nothing he then said could possibly add any luster to his subsequent career, it may justly be said that it was more successful than the first public effort in oratory either of Sheridan or of Beaconsfield. He replied in part as follows:

"My Countrymen (and I would say my countrywomen but that the former word embraces the latter when ever opportunity offers)—I cannot understand why I should have been called upon to respond to this toast of all others, having nothing but theoretical ideas upon the subject to be treated—one, in fact, I must be presumed never to have handled. [Laughter and applause.]

"I have been called up, too, by a committee of married men. I can think of no claim I have to be considered an authority in these matters except what might arise from the fact of my having resided in early life in the same neighborhood with Brigham Young, who has since gained some reputation as a thorough and practical ladies' man. [Great laughter.] I am not conscious, however, of having imbibed any such wisdom at the feet of this matrimonial Gamaliel as should justly entitle me to be heard among the elders.

"So I am inevitably forced to the conclusion that these husbands cannot trust each other's discretion. The secrets of the prison house are too important to be trusted to one of the prisoners. So ignorance of the matter in hand has come to be held an absolute prerequisite when any one is to be sacrificed to the exigencies of this feast.

"I really do not see why this should be so. It is useless for husbands to attempt to keep this thin veneering of a semblance of authority. The symbols of government they still retain deceive nobody. They may comfort themselves with the assurance of some vague, invisible supremacy, like that of the spiritual mikado or the grand Lama, but the true tycoon is the wife. A witty and profound observer the other day said, 'Every husband doubtless knows he is master in his own house, but he also knows his neighbor's wife is master in here.' [Laughter and cheers.]

"Why should not you, husbands of America, admit this great truth and give up the barren scepter? Things would go much easier if you ceased the struggle to keep up appearances. The ladies will not be hard on you. They will recognize the fact that, after all, you are their fellow creatures, and you can be very useful to them in many little ways. They will doubtless allow you to pay their bills, take care of their children and carry their votes to the ballot box just as you do now.

"You had better come down gracefully, and, above all, let no feeling of discovered inferiority betray you into evil speaking of the domestic powers. There have been recent instances of distinguished gentlemen, no doubt instigated by rebellious husbands, who have recklessly accused these guardian angels of your fireside of being extravagant and frivolous. These things are never uttered with impunity. I would not insure the life of one who libels the ladies for less than cent per cent.

"Dicite justitium monili et non tempore Divae, which, as you may not understand the backwoods pronunciation of the classic warning, I will translate with a freedom befitting the day we celebrate:

"Now, all you happy husbands,
Beware the rebel's fate!
Live in obedience all your lives,
Give up your attorneys to your wives
And never stay out late."

[Laughter and cheers.]—From John Bigelow's "Retrospections of an Active Life" in Metropolitan Magazine.

The Alternative.

Constituent—Say, Bill, the salary that goes with my job isn't half enough to live on. Can't you use your influence to have it raised a little? Alderman—I'm afraid not, Jake. But I'll do better than that. I'll use my influence to have a cheaper man appointed to the place.—Chicago Tribune.

A Quick Thinker.

Bitterdorf—Here come two evil looking rascals. I shouldn't wonder if we were held up. Helen—I'm afraid so. By the bye, here's that dollar you lent me this morning.—Hoppendorfer Blatter.

NOT GROWING COLDER.

Earth's Climate Has Not Changed Within Historic Times.

During the last few years the supposition that the earth is growing colder has received a setback from the consideration of the consequences which result from the discovery of radium in the earth's rocks. If radium exists throughout the interior of the globe in the same quantities in which it appears in the surface rocks, then such is the volume of heat which it would render up that the earth ought to be growing better instead of colder. If, furthermore, the earth were slightly increasing in temperature, the amount of rainfall precipitated from the atmosphere would become greater rather than less, and as at the same time the amount of water shut up in the earth's rocks would also be forced out in greater quantities by increasing heat it would not be possible to suppose that the earth's surface was becoming drier.

Therefore the supposition that the earth has exhibited within historic time any general drying up or any tendency to revert to a glacial epoch has been regarded with more and more suspicion, and the hypotheses have been substituted that either the apparent variations of climate are local or else that they are the results of some scheme of conditions, the causes of which remain to be discovered.

In short, whatever test be applied, it becomes extremely hard to show that the climate of any portion of the civilized world has appreciably changed within historic time.—London Post.

Fresh Air a Foe to Pneumonia.

Cold weather does not directly cause pneumonia, but it is an indirect cause. It causes injudicious people to shut themselves up indoors, closing windows and doors, so that they may be comfortably warm. Closed windows mean lack of proper ventilation, the indoor air soon becoming very foul. When this foul air is taken into the lungs it fails to impart the necessary health sustaining elements that inhaled air should; rather it poisons the body, lowers the natural resisting powers and creates fertile soil for the invasion and development of the pneumonia germ.

The thing to

There is no Quinine, nothing whatever harsh or sickening in Preventics These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets act as if by magic. A few hours—and your threatening cold is broken. Candy-like in taste. Preventics please the children—and they break the feverishness always. And best of all is the economy. A large box—25 Preventics—25 cents—Ask your druggist. He knows! Sold by all dealers.

If your Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success in helping thousands everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

Eggs Tumbled.

Eggs took a tumble on the market on Saturday last for the first time in many months. Instead of their being 35c. and 40c. per dozen, they dropped to 33c. and fresh eggs at that. The pullets are beginning to lay as are also the old hens, caused partly by the fine weather of the past couple of weeks. Hen fruit should continue to fall now until the price gets back to normal, say 15c. per dozen.

A Free Market.

The County Council sanctions the way the city conducts its market. That is all very good. The individual farmers have a great many complaints to make about the market. No doubt the Countyt Council would pass a resolution supporting a free market, run any old way. But the City Council will run its own market and the Property Committee this year is quite capable of looking after it and making any changes that are deemed advisable.

Very Bad Man.

According to all the press despatches and police stories that man Henderson, assailant of the Macpherson women, is a very bad man. Every crime that has been committed that has baffled the police, every man not caught by the police is found to be Henderson. He is a wonderful criminal. Who knows but what he killed Ethel Kinrade, and who knows but that he committed the Barton murder? Blame him anyway. He does not appear to have any friends.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 27 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY FEBRUARY 1 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Dan Spence Ambulance Tenders are Called For

The property Committee will advertise for tenders for the Dan Spence ambulance, tenders to be in by April 1st next.

Those present were Chairman Ald. G. H. Duncan, Aldermen Batten, Morgan, Bradburn, Graham and May or Morrow.

The first matter taken up was a proposition from the Dickson Company who wished to exchange a small piece of property on Dublin street for a triangular piece belonging to the city on the river reserve and running down to the water's edge.

The chairman felt that the property asked for should bring the city at least $200.

Ald. Morgan thought that the city should get $400.

At any rate the city cannot sell the property or dispose of it until application was made to the government.

In the meantime it was decided to recommend that no action be taken.

The next matter brought up was the Dan Spence ambulance. The chairman said that Mr. Belleghem asked for some consideration for the use of his own ambulance while the Dan Spence ambulance was away being repaired.

There was a feeling that the Dan Spence ambulance should be changed about between Messrs. Belleghem and Comstock.

Ald. Batten gave the early history of the ambulance. He said when it came here some eight years ago no one in the city would give him storage room for it except Mr. Belleghem. That is how it came about that Mr. Belleghem got the ambulance.

Mr. Belleghem was present and was asked to address the committee. He said that he had nothing to say about charging for his ambulance while the other was being painted. He said he would leave the whole thing with the committee. He asked for nothing. It would take about six weeks to do the work, and he would not be able to take his ambulance out of the city during that time.

Mr. Belleghem recommended that the ambulance be painted a light drab instead of a dark color, as the dark color looks too much like a dead wagon.

Finally when Mr. Belleghem was asked how much he would take for the use of his own ambulance for the five weeks while the Dan Spence ambulance was being painted, he suggested 50c. a day or $3.50 a week.

Ald. Duncan said that he got word from Mr. Comstock stating that he would give the use of his ambulance gratis while the Dan Spence was being painted.

Ald. Morgan moved that the committee advertise for tenders for the Dan Spence ambulance, tenders to be in before April 15th. Ald. Bradburn seconded the motion and it carried.

Another motion was moved by Ald. Graham and Ald. Batten, that Mr. Belleghem's offer of $3.50 per week for the use of his ambulance while the Dan Spence is being repaired.—Carried.

The committee then adjourned until a later date when the duties of the medical health officer will be taken up.

Street Inspector Made Report on Removal of That Fatal Railing

The investigation by the Board of Works into the charge of negligence on the part of the engineering department did not bring out very much information. It was not an investigation at all. The street inspector was asked to state his position which he did in a letter to the city engineer, and which was read to the Board of Works. He assumed responsibility for removing the railing in question and his reason for not replacing it was that ex-Mayor Rush and Ald. Phelan both told him last winter or early spring that the sidewalks in Ashburnham would be built first thing, and to save expense the inspector did not build a new railing. The walks in Ashburnham were not built first and finally that street was withdrawn altogether. A new railing has since been built.

This brought up a discussion on the snow plow contracts. The aldermen thought the contractors should do more than they do. Street Commissioner Evans said if he was left to figure out a snow plow contract he would have to cover the whole city and have every one above, their snow off the walks. He would discard the snow plows but if that was not advisable have the people shovel their snow anyway after the plow has gone over it.

It was pointed out that it is next to impossible to keep a snow plow on the sidewalk when a drift has formed or where there is an embankment on one side. The street commissioner pointed out several difficulties be experienced during the winter. However the engineering department was requested to draw up a contract for next year that will improve the present system.

As for the dangerous places in the sidewalks and roads and to guard against further accidents and law suits the street inspectors were instructed to make careful inspection and notes and to report to the board from time to time.

Board of Works Requires $18,000 Much Permanent Work to be Done

Benson St. People Want Curb—Crude Oil for Street Sprinkling This Year —New Road Grader to be Bought—Stone for Street Work Also Wanted

The Board of Works held a session last night which lasted an hour and a half, and during that time a big bunch of business was put through. There is still a lot of work to be done. One special night will be taken for sewers and sidewalks. Another special night will be devoted to Mr. Willis Chipman's report on the South Ward sewer system.

Among the matters taken up last night was the appropriation for 1910 and it was decided to ask for $18,000, as there is a lot of permanent work to be done this year and it is an expensive policy to allow the streets to go back as has been necessary the past few years on account of small appropriations.

The Board of Works will also take up street sprinkling at an early date and the probability is that an experiment will be made with crude oil as that has proved to be very successful elsewhere.

All the members of the committee were present with Ald. Hicks in the chair.

BENSON STREET WALK.

Mr. R. J. Kidd was present and stated that they on Benson avenue believed yet that they had a grievance against the city. They have, however, an olive branch to hold out. He asked that the city build a curb from the Normal School to Smith street. If 85 the residents will pay for the walk where it is. Mr. Kidd said that he would fill it up to the curb and keep it in good shape in front of his place. This has all to be settled before the 9th of February, as they had got their notices already.

Aldermen Graham and Duncan moved that the engineer report on it at once.—Carried.

SEPTIC TANK.

Letters were received from Mr. Chipman in reference to the conferences on the Cameron Septic Tank Co., recommending that another meeting of the municipalities interested be held in a short time.

The Cameron Septic Tank Company offered to settle by the city paying five per cent. of the cost of the tanks. That would mean that Peterborough would have to pay $150 for the tank in Ashburnham which cost $3000.

It was moved by Ald. Duncan and Mayor Morrow that the chairman and city solicitor have power to deal with the septic tank matter.

MRS. CADIGAN'S WELL.

Mrs. Mary Cadigan complained about her well being damaged by the sewer pipes to the septic tank.

Engineer Hay stated that he could not see how the sewer could effect the well. He was satisfied there was no leak from the sewer.

The medical health officer is to get samples of the water and have it tested before taking action.

SOUTH WARD SEWER.

The report of Mr. Chipman on the South Ward sewer system will be taken up by the committee at a special meeting to be held at an early date.

The chairman was authorized to get the office supplies for the city engineer's office.

Mr. D. W. Dumble petitioned for a sidewalk on the inside of the tree line on Division street from John street. Left over until a later date.

Cement will not be advertised for this year for another month.

The city engineer reported that he could not find any drain on Brown street. There is an old wooden culvert on the G.T.R. property, but the city could not touch this. The report was received.

A crossing over Otonabee street, will be looked after first thing in the spring on motion of Aldermen Duffus and Duncan.

The Peterborough Light and Power Company were granted permission to make some changes of poles on Rubidge street in their poll line on the recommendation of the engineer.

Several applications for the job of foreman on the sewer work this year were received and placed on file until a later date.

ESTIMATES FOR 1910.

Chairman Ald. Hicks stated that he had been asked by the chairman of the Finance Committee to get his estimates in at an early date. He suggested that the engineering department be asked to prepare a statement based on the expenditures of the past few years. He thought that the board should when their appropriation is made, divide it into four items, viz., salaries, permanent work special work and incidentals. That would enable the board to know just where it stood at any time.

The chairman was instructed to look after the road roller and have it put in proper shape for the year.

CRUDE OIL SPRINKLING.

Ald. Metheral said that he thought that the committee should make a trial of the crude oil for sprinkling the streets. It had proved a great success in Toronto.

Engineer Hay said the street commissioners had gone to Toronto last November for a couple of days and got a lot of information which they are prepared to submit at any time.

NEW GRADER.

The engineer said the city needs a new grader of some kind. He saw photographs of an entirely new machine which cost only $60 and could be operated by one man and a team of horses. That company offered to send one here on approbation.

The chairman was authorized to have one sent here on approbation, and with power to buy it if necessary.

Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald. Graham that the Finance Committee be informed that the Board of Works requires $18,000 for this year.—Carried.

The city engineer and chairman was authorized to see Mr Larmonth about getting the stone in the river bed for the stone crusher, if not that the engineer have the teamsters gather the stone in at $3 per cord.

HOTEL MEN IN FIGHT.

Will Join the Boycott Against the Price of Meats.

(Special to The Times.)

Chicago, Jan. 31.—If a resolution to be brought before the Western Hotel Men's Protective Association, which assembled in convention here today, is adopted, the meat boycott will receive a decided impetus. It is proposed that the hotel men through out the country shall for the time being omit all meats from their menus, or at least take steps to discourage their patrons from eating meats until the prices are reduced.

CANADA AND FRANCE.

Commercial Treaty to go into Effect Tomorrow.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The Franco-Canadian trade treaty, which is regarded as the most important commercial agreement ever entered into by the Dominion of Canada with a foreign country, is announced to come into effect tomorrow. The treaty provides for a substantial reduction in the scale of duties on goods imported and exported between the two countries. The effect of the treaty on the foreign commerce of other countries, particularly the United States, is awaited with keen interest.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur is in a Weak Condition

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Hon. L. P. Brodeur, minister of marine and fisheries, is in a very weak condition today.

Mr. Brodeur had so far improved on Saturday that he was moved downstairs, but he had a relapse and had to be conveyed to his room again.

His case is not viewed with alarm, however, and it is expected that his recovery will be complete though tardy.

Amongst his callers during the last few days were Earl Grey and the Earl of Lanesborough.

As soon as Mr. Brodeur is able to be out he will go away for a rest, and it is not likely that he will be in the House again this season.

Two Girls Tell of being Stabbed

Toronto, Jan. 31.—Joseph Shall, the Italian charged with stabbing two girls, Nettie Bennett and Marjory Harvey, a week ago last Saturday in their room at 75 Shuter St., will be tried at the next sessions.

Marjory Harvey gave her account of the affair before Magistrate Denison today.

"We work in a restaurant on Queen street west," she said. "Shall came into the restaurant on Saturday afternoon."

"Do you know him well?"

"Yes, he sits at my table. He wanted me to go to Nettie. They had quarreled, and I was to see if the girl would not make up as he was going out of the city. I asked Nettie. She was very angry, said she wouldn't make up with him. I went back to the restaurant and told him. Then he asked if he might come to our room."

"And you told him?"

"That he couldn't."

"Did he come?"

"Yes."

"What did he do?" asked the magistrate.

"Two other men were with him. Joseph Peters was one. Shall struck her one. He struck me and I sat down with my face covered."

"Were you stabbed?"

"Yes."

A knife was produced a small pocket knife. She was stabbed twice.

Nettie Bennett, who was the more seriously injured of the two and just out of the hospital, was so faint this morning she was obliged to sit during the hearing of her evidence.

"Did Shall give you the wounds?"

"Yes. He came to the room and said that if I uttered a word he would stab me. He held the knife over my head."

"Did you see a knife?"

"Yes."

"And you were cut in three places?"

"Yes."

"Did you say anything to him about having heard that he had Italian blood in his veins, and on that account you couldn't have anything more to do with him?"

"I didn't tell him."

"But you said it to others."

She admitted that.

Joseph Peters in company with the Italian on the afternoon of the stabbing, told of seeing the girls struck with the knife.

"How many times?"

"He moved so fast I couldn't say. They had nothing to defend themselves with."

"That'll be enough to send him to trial," was the magistrate's decision.

Believe Girl Has A Spirit of Evil

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Jan. 31.—Great excitement has been caused among the French-Canadian farmers of New Zealand at the end of the island by the insanity of a young woman named Chinene, whom the people around believed to be possessed of the devil. They even called on the parish priest to perform the old ceremony of exorcism for the curing of those possessed of devils. She is about 20 years old and has been keeping house for her brothers, the parents being dead. When the eldest brother said he intended to marry a certain young lady of the district, Miss Chinene said she would as soon have a devil in the family as that girl. That night great noises filled the house and the brothers going to her room, declare they saw her floating in the air several feet above the bed. Finally she sank down on the bed and fell into a sleep. This same thing happened for several nights, the young woman talking in a strange tongue and also having clairvoyant powers by which she could tell people how much money they had with them and to repeat address es and contents of letters in their pockets. She was finally brought here to the asylum. Dr. Peter Conroy says it was a case of involuntary hypnotism by which the minds of those around were deluded.

Lindsay Has Big Lead on the Locals

Peterborough Intermediates are not yet out of the running for the O.H.A. honors, but Lindsay has again proved itself to be the better team and defeated the Petes again last night by a score of 9—4 in the Lindsay rink. Peterborough has one more chance, however, to tie the district by defeating Lindsay here next Friday night. In that case there would have to be home and home games. The probability, however, is that Lindsay will win here as they have demonstrated their superiority both here and in Lindsay. Of course the locals were handicapped last night by the absence of Glover, who was unable to get away, and of Busty, who has gone to play in Brantford. Even at that the Peterborough club might well get down to hard practice and try to win this district as it is not at all likely they will meet as strong a team until they reach the finals. If they get over the first jump they will be in better shape.

Last night's game was witnessed by a very large crowd. The rink was packed, including a good bunch from here who went down by special train The ice was in fine shape and the players exerted themselves to the utmost. The teams lined up as follows:

Peterborough		Lindsay
Delocher	Goal.	Gamble
Campbell	Point.	Cote
McDougall	Cover.	Green

All Paris Gets to Work Setting the City Aright

Paris, Jan. 31.—From midnight until noon today the subsidence of the River Seine averaged only about a third of an inch an hour. The weather, however, continued favorable with a rising barometer. The temperature was slightly lower. The recession of the waters in some of the streets was noticeable during the forenoon.

The situation at critical points was ameliorated to a considerable extent today, notably in the neighborhood of the St. Lazarre station. The engineers now hope to be able within a few days to shore up the underground workings and so prevent the collapse of streets and buildings which has appeared imminent for several days.

RESTORING PUBLIC SERVICES.

Beginning this morning the authorities concentrated their efforts on the restoration of the crippled public services, the repair of telegraph, cable and telephone lines, and the re-establishment of the now demoralized railway communication. There is no prospect of restoring the electric light and power systems this week Preparations have been perfected for cleansing and disinfecting the city. President Roux of the Pasteur Institute, in conference with other experts has decided upon a series of measures which will be carried out by the sanitary officials. The principal danger is considered to be from health authorities have had a house to house canvass made, warning the occupants against re-occupying room which have been flooded, until the same have been disinfected, and giving instructions that water must be boiled before being used. As the deposits of mud left by the waters are removed from the houses, quicklime will be plentifully used and the floors and walls cleansed and whitewashed or painted.

AVOID MALARIAL DISEASES

Dr. Debove, dean of the Medical Faculty of the Academy of Medicine, was comparatively optimistic today. He says that the pest of malarial diseases which enter the blood through the respiratory organs can be avoided. The principal danger is from typhoid, the germs of which may be received through the digestive channels if the impure water is drank.

OMAHA THANKS ROAD FOR GIFT.

Citizens of Nebraska Metropolis Voice Gratitude When Work Is Begun.

(Special to The Times.)

Omaha, Jan. 31.—Citizens of Omaha are extending whole hearted expressions of gratitude toward the Union Pacific Railroad Company for its gift to the city of a million dollar, 12 story, steel framed building, for which bids have already been asked by the railway officials.

Consideration of Omaha people in helping the Overland develop its terminal properties prompted the plan for the erection of the structure.

The building will have a frontage of 173 feet and depth of 97.

Jarvis Hunt, eminent architect of New York and Chicago, is the designer of the structure. All the Union Pacific offices now scattered about the city of Omaha, will be brought together under one roof.

Threatening feverishness with children is quickly and safely calmed by Preventics. These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets should always be at hand—for promptness is all-important. Preventics contain no quinine, nothing harsh or sickening. They are indeed, "the stitch in time." Carried in pocket or purse. Preventics are a genuine safeguard against Colds. 25c. NOT TRUE.

Proprietors of Local Theaters Say People Do Not Block Aisles.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

We the undersigned having seen the article in Monday's issue of The Times beg to protest most emphatically against the same. This article headed "Theater Jammed," said that on Saturday night in one of the 5-cent theaters the crowds were permitted to congregate in such numbers that the aisles and every foot of standing room from entrance to stage were jammed, etc. Now, Mr. Editor, in the first place, this article as far as our respective places of amusement are concerned, is absolutely untrue; again such a statement injures our business, by insinuating that the 5-cent theaters are unsafe. There is not a Saturday night but what we lose many dollars by refusing admission after our seats are filled. We never allow one man, woman or child to stand in or block our aisles. We fully endorse your statement that allowing the patrons to crowd the aisles is most unsafe. On this account we lose money by not allowing such a condition. We must respectfully but firmly ask you whether you referred to either the Princess or the Crystal in your article. If so we shall require you to prove your charge. We cannot afford to lose money by keeping the law and protecting our customers and then be accused of doing the thing we firmly insist shall not be done.

J. E. C. HANNAH.
W. A. EDWARDS.

The Times takes pleasure in publishing the above letter which speaks for itself. In our remarks of yesterday's issue we simply took the statements of a couple of reputable citizens who patronize the theaters and in the public interest we deemed it proper to publish it. One can readily understand that occasionally such places may be somewhat crowded and it is therefore the duty of the press to protest.—Ed.

GIVES CLEARNESS TO SKIN

Foods and Purifies Blood and Therefore Keeps you in Good Health.

Most women and some men try to remove yellowishness of skin, blotches, dark lines under the eyes by cosmetiques. Such means are as useless as disappointing. When the skin lacks clearness, particularly when the body is emaciated, it is simply the stain upon the skin of impurities in the bowels that are carried about by the blood. Sluggish activity is certainly the cause of bad complexion even if regularity should be pretty fair.

Better than any cosmetique, because they remove the cause of skin discoloration, Dr. Hamilton's Pills ensure inward cleansing and activity. In addition to their laxative action they are a true tonic to all the eliminating organs, liver, kidneys, bowels, and glands. Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the cause of all blood troubles that manifest themselves outwardly, and they fortify and strengthen the organs and thereby prevent a return of diseased conditions.

CHOOSES SPENCE.

University Council's Committee Selects Assistant Secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

The Committee of the University Council appointed to consider applications for the position of registrar of the University of Manitoba, yesterday unanimously decided to recommend to the council that W. J. Spence, now assistant general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Winnipeg, be appointed to the position.

Nineteen applications were considered by the special committee, which is a combination of the board of studies and the Finance Committee of the council.

The registrar ship became vacant through the resignation of D. M. Duncan. Mr. Spence, who is being recommended to succeed him, is an honor graduate in moderns of the University of Toronto, and also a medallist. When he came to Winnipeg about 12 years ago, he became a lecturer in French and German in the Wesley College. That position he held for about seven years, when he became educational director in the Y.M.C.A. He was later appointed assistant general secretary of that association, which position he now holds.

Mr. Spence is a son of Mr. John Spence, 260 McDonnell street. He was born here, and spent his early life in the city schools and at the Collegiate Institute. It is now twelve years since he left. His many friends here will rejoice in his promotion.

Peterborough Curlers Won the District Cup From Lindsay Rinks

The district cup returns to Peterborough, and the hearts of the local curlers are glad. In fact the club members are rejoicing and their feelings are shared by the citizens at large. The finals for the cup were played here yesterday afternoon when Peterborough won from Lindsay after a most sensational game. The rinks were fighting hard all the way through and the nearer the end of the game the less it looked like a win for the locals. At the finish Rev. Welsh and J. E. A. Fitzgerald were a tie but H. Foote was one up against F. J. Carew, thus the locals won out by a nose. In the early stages in both games Peterborough was well up and at the end of the 14th end, Rev. Mr. Welsh was eight down, but in the next four ends he scored in every end and tied the score. In the other game Peterborough was leading and the end was most exciting. When Harry Foote pulled out a victory it was greeted with cheers. It meant that Peterborough had won.

The rinks and scores were as follows:

Lindsay.	Peterborough
W. Knowlson	W. G. Read
F. Thomas	R. Hicks
W. Williams	W. M. Lang
F. J. Carew—17.	H. Foote—18
W. G. Ferguson	L. Hall
A. Terry	W. Taylor
J. A. Fisher	T. Brightman
Rev. Welsh—15	J.E.A.Fitzgerald—15

SATURDAY'S GAMES.

The semi-finals in the district cup games were played here on Saturday morning between Keene and Peterborough, resulting in a victory for the locals which entitled them to play Lindsay, the scores were:

G. Howson	R. Hicks
J. C. Read	W. M. Lang
W. Campbell—12	H. Foote 21

Three-Fifths Flood Suddenly Runs Dry

Toronto, Jan. 31.—What has happened to the "three-fifths" petition this year? Last session, and the one before, the petitions for the repeal of this clause were piled up daily on the clerk's desk, and within a few weeks ran over one thousand. Not a single one has been heard of so far in the chamber and no member appears to have any to present.

The old-timer which came second to the three-fifths, an amendment to section 606 of the Municipal Act, has also been absent so far. This was regularly sent in by municipal councils and asked that there be no liability for damages as the result of injuries from defective roads and walks unless they had been warned of the defect. The legislature has repeatedly refused to consider the change.

Croup positively stopped in twenty minutes, with Dr. Shoop's Croup Remedy. One test alone will surely prove this truth. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasant syrup —66cf Sold by all dealers.

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

And Here is the Proof—A Solemn Statement from a Four-years' Cripple, Who Says "Nerviline" Did It.

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only: large bottles, 25c., or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE ASSESSMENT ROLLS.

One of the most important civic offices is that of assessor, for his work is the basis of all our civic revenue. A dishonest man in this position would mean disaster to the finances of the city. In the gentleman who at present holds that position in Kingston and has held it for many years we have an official who is admirably fitted both in point of ability and character to do the work, but no man can do the impossible and it is impossible for Kingston's assessor or any other assessor to be absolutely correct in his valuation of the real estate of the different property owners.

The law recognizes this by arranging for an appeal from his decision to a Court of Revision where the appellant can have his assessment decreased if it is too high. But what about those cases where properties of nearly equal value may be assessed, say one of them for $2,000 and the other for $2,500, through no fault of the assessor, but simply from the impossibility of his keeping a fixed standard in mind at all times. The law makes provision to protect the property owner from over assessment; but the law makes no provision to protect the city from suffering loss by under assessment.

What can be done under such circumstances? The assessment rolls, of course, are open for the inspection of the public and any one who thinks that there are cases of under-assessment has the right to go to the rolls and find out for himself if this is the case; but as a fact no one ever does this. What is every body's business is in the end nobody's business.

It has been suggested that the assessment rolls should be printed and distributed for the information of the public. Then every citizen could compare his assessment with that of his neighbor and could easily decide whether there was any under-assessment or not. The cost of doing this would be considerable but it might be a means of so increasing the amount of our taxes as easily to repay the cost.

LOOKS LIKE WAR.

There has been a general impression since the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war that these two countries had come to an amicable understanding with reference to their respective operations in Manchuria. It has been the general belief that Russia was recognized as dominating the northern half of the disputed province, and Japan the southern half. While Russia has by far the larger resources, although badly defeated in the last encounter, it would seem that neither would be desirous of engaging in another conflict. Diplomatically both countries have expressed the most peaceful intentions, yet travellers who have recently gone over the trans-Siberian road make some surprising statements. According to these, Russia is making extraordinary preparations for something, and it is reported that the building of the Amur railroad is being hurried because of representations by Russian officers that a second war with Japan is imminent. Whether there be any truth in the assertion or not time alone can show, but it is asserted that Russia has half a million troops encamped in the vicinity of Lake Baikal. If such an enormous force is being maintained at such a significant point, it is evident it is massed there for a serious purpose. Despite the comparatively recent humiliating defeat Russia sustained at the hands of Japan, it is believed that the Muscovites will never abandon their ambition for territorial expansion to ports of the Pacific more available than Vladivostok for the requirements of war or commerce.

LESSONS FROM GERMANY.

It is interesting, and not a little humorous, to observe how the fiscal and industrial situation in Germany is regarded by both the Tariff Reformers and the Free Traders in the present electoral campaign in the United Kingdom. The former point to the German Tariff as having been the chief factor in the great commercial and industrial development that has taken place in the Empire since the adoption of its present fiscal policy. They declare that a similar policy would bring about equally favorable results in the United Kingdom, stimulating domestic industries, supplanting imported commodities by the native article, and providing the best and most effective remedy for the unemployment which has become chronic. The Liberals and Free Traders, on the other hand, draw a doleful picture of the condition of things in the German Empire which is due, in their opinion, to the protective policy there. They insist that the German working classes earn less wages and work longer hours than their British contemporaries, and pay more for the necessaries of life, so that their actual condition is much worse than it would be under Free Trade as it prevails in Great Britain. Figures it is said, will prove anything, and assuredly in the present election controversy that seems to be the case, if we are to accept as accurate the conclusions at which both parties arrive after having carefully studied their lessons from Germany.

INSTALLING THE MAYOR

English Towns Have Ritual Peculiar to Each.

The mayor of Lincoln, for instance, is duly elected by placing upon his finger an ancient ring, which for centuries his predecessors have worn. Should his worship send his ring to any school in the city the master is bound to give his pupils a day's holiday.

At Chichester the mayor is armed with a gold-mounted malacca cane; while at York his worship is equipped with a silver-mounted oak stave, which has marked his authority for hundreds of years.

From time immemorial, the mayor of Brightlingsea has been elected in the parish church belfry; and the retiring chief magistrate of both Bournemouth and Hanley imprint a loving kiss on the countenance of the incoming mayor.

The mayor of Grantham is tapped on the head with the town clerk's hammer; and at Dunstable the time-honored custom of "bumping" is observed.

Weighing is the less trying ordeal to which the mayor of High Wycombe has to submit, and he is better off, perhaps, than the lord mayor of Birmingham, who has to assume his sweetest smile and face the cameras immediately after his election.

A public holiday is observed at Newcastle-under-Lyme, where the newly-elected mayor is publicly proclaimed from the famous Market Cross—a custom observed for 784 years.

A mayor's duties are numerous, and, in many cases, curious. He has to refrain from taking a too prominent part in politics—though this is only an unwritten law; he has to preside over meetings of the council, open bazaars, entertain and be entertained at public dinners, give receptions, and preside at the local police court.

In some places he receives a salary, and in others he pays dearly for his year of honor. The mayoralty of an aristocratic London suburb cost its possessor over $7,500; while Mr. John Webster, who was mayor of Sheffield in 1906-7, spent only $25.

The lord mayor of London gets a salary of about $50,000, but always spends a great deal more; whilst the lord mayor of Liverpool has $10,000, and the lord provost of Edinburgh $5,000.

During her year as mayoress of Portsmouth, Miss Doris Foster celebrated her sixth birthday; and when she occupied a similar position at Cardigan, Miss Gwynneth Bowen had seen four summers.

One of Field's Jokes.

Edward Everett Hale greatly enjoyed a joke which was perpetrated on him by Eugene Field. Field celebrated one of Dr. Hale's visits to Chicago by giving a luncheon in his honor and inviting a number of prominent persons to meet him. "Field was aware," said Dr. Hale, "that I was a temperance man, and therefore I was somewhat surprised to see that the table on which the luncheon was served was very abundantly supplied with bottles labeled 'Whisky,' 'Brandy' and 'Champagne.' But when these bottles came to be uncorked they were all found to contain nothing but water!"

Effective.

A Chicago judge recently rebuked a person who was sitting in the courtroom with his feet placed upon the table by sending him, through a bailiff, a piece of paper on which he had written the following query: "What size boots do you wear?" The feet were at once withdrawn.

No Panic.

"We had a bad fire scare in church today."

"Good gracious! Was there a panic?"

Prodigal.

"That fellow seems to be extravagant."

"Hopelessly. He spends his own money just as if it were the government's."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Error of the Types.

The editor wrote that the speaker's address was "notable," but the printer spaced it wrong and it read "not able."—Kansas City Star.

Cool.

Diner (disgustedly)—See here! Everything on this table is stone cold! Waiter—Try the pepper and tabasco sir.—Boston Transcript.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Tell Some Sick One
It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?
Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought those nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not deny the Stomach, nor attribute the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When those nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the curtain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction, then, if you be the only physician able to pay to the medicine a visit. Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours.

Then only should the sick take any chances on any other medicine, unless maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer!

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is proved by the same standard "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Both are yours free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the Book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some matters of interest. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple asking.

So let me enroll you on order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 6 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember this tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

FREAK CATALOGUING.

British Museum Has a System That Few Can Fathom.

It may seem ungrateful in an old reader who has reaped so many benefits from the great library in Bloomsbury to find fault with the arrangements, and if I stood alone in this complaint I would retain my isolation, but the grievance is ventilated by many.

In the first place, I and J are treated in the same letter, as U and V are. That was all right when the catalogue was begun and was in manuscript, but now that printing has superseded handwriting the obsolete fashion of cataloguing Jones and Ives under the same letter or Vale and Unwin as having the same initial might be discontinued and the modern usage adopted.

In the second place, anonymous works are catalogued according to a bewildering system, the object of which seems to be to hide the identity of the work.

Take the case of the valuable little book with the following title: "An Account of the Origin of Steamboats, in Spain, Great Britain and America and of Their Introduction and Employment Upon the River Thames Between London and Gravesend to the Present Time"—i. e., 1831. One would think that it would be catalogued under "Steamboats," that being the main subject, but no—it is catalogued under "Spain." I am told the rule is to take the first proper name.

That rule, however, is not applied in the next case. A well written little book published in 1907 is entitled "Devon, the Shire of the Sea Kings." "Devon" would seem to be the natural heading, but no—in the catalogue it will be found under "Great Western Railway."—London Notes and Queries.

dren is quickly and safely calmed by Preventics. These little Candy Cold Cure Tablets should always be at hand—for promptness is all-important! Girl Eloped and Went Insane on Discovery

Toronto, Feb. 1.—Miss Thelma Abraham, who eloped from Chicago with Alfred Porges, is now in the Queen street asylum. The girl's story beginning with her departure from Chicago, and ending with her confinement in the asylum, shows plainly that in elopments where married men are concerned, the women get the worst of it.

About eleven months ago she succumbed to the attractions of Alfred Porges of Chicago, a married man and the father of two children. With him she left Chicago, and after traveling for some time, arrived in Toronto about three months ago. The pair lived at 30 Wilton avenue, and the girl supplied part of the money to furnish their apartments on a sentimental moment Porges sent one of his children $40, although up till this time he had carefully refrained from disclosing his whereabouts to his deserted wife.

The peace which shadowed the home of Mr. Porges in Toronto was rudely broken by the arrival of his wife, who swore out a warrant for his arrest, charging him with non-support. He appeared in the police court on January 21st, when his case was remanded until the 24th, the 26th, finally, the 27th, when it was disposed of by withdrawal.

The reason for the withdrawal lay in the fact that a settlement had been reached. An agreement was drawn up whereby Miss Abraham received $83 as a refund of the money she had invested in the furnishings of 30 Wilton avenue. Mrs. Porges consented to forgive an erring husband, and the authorities congratulated themselves upon the termination of the affair.

But the end was not yet. When Miss Abraham, in fulfilling her part of the agreement, went to the Union Station last Thursday to return to Chicago, she became so violently ill that she was removed to Grace Hospital. Her mind became deranged, and she was removed from the hospital to the Queen street asylum where she now is. The authorities there informed the press that she was quite insane and they could give no opinion as to the probable time of her recovery.

Large Increase in Bell Telephone Co's. Business

Mr. F. W. Doan yesterday received notice that the Bell Telephone Company had taken over the North American Telephone and Telegraph Company. He also received the formal notice of the boundaries of the new district of which he is superintendent, and the principal places embraced in the district are:

Peterborough, Omemee, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Uxbridge Markham, Port Perry, Millbrook, Port Hope, Cobourg, Colborne, Brighton, Trenton, Belleville, Deseronto, Picton, Napanee, Kingston, Tweed, Madoc, Havelock, Norwood, Hastings, Campbellford and Stirling. The smaller places adjacent to these will, of course, also be included in the district.

Except along the front the Bell telephone has not operated extensively between Peterborough and Smiths Falls, the district having been tapped by the North American Company, which is not part of the Bell system. The new district will be known as district 1, and Mr. Doan is the superintendent.

MOVING PICTURE

Machines Will Each Have to Pay $25 Per Year Now.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—By an order-in-council passed yesterday the fee for moving picture theaters, which has hitherto been $10 per year, irrespective of the number of machines employed, is now raised to $25 per annum for each machine. Hon. Mr. Matheson, provincial treasurer, states that the Government's object in raising the fee is to make the revenue derived from the picture theaters, as far as possible, meet the expenditures incurred in administering the Act passed last season for the control of such institutions. In the opinion of the government these theaters can well afford to pay the increased fee. The Act has been found to work very satisfactory, much of the danger formerly associated with machines having been obviated by the provisions of the legislation passed, while the theater proprietors as a class have been found very reasonable, and quite willing to meet the requirements of the government.

THERE'S LITTLE HOPE

High County Constable Cochrane has received word from the Toronto police that the prisoner, Henderson, who is in the county jail here on the charge of attempted murder in connection with the assault on the Misses Macpherson near Norwood, is wanted in Toronto on the charge of theft.

He has also been notified that the condition of the older of the two women, Miss Martha Macpherson, is regarded as very serious. She has taken a turn for the worse and her temperature is very high. Drs. Sutton and Pettigrew don't think that she will recover, and say she is not likely to live long. In the event of her death the charge of murder will be preferred against Henderson.

Wilful Murder Is Found by Jury.

ECZEMA

"For three long months I was not able to attend to my own needs; and for three weeks the eczema on my hands was so bad that I was unable to feed myself. I had to be fed as one feeds a baby, because I could not hold knife, fork, spoon or cup."

So says Miss Violet McSorley, of 75 Gore Street, Sault Ste. Marie, in telling how Zam-Buk cured her of eczema. She adds: "Hands, wrists and arms up to the elbows were covered with eczema. The itching and the soreness were nigh unbearable. As the disease developed, the skin actually peeled off, leaving raw sores. The palms, fingers, backs of my hands and wrists were all in this shocking state, and I was forced to sit in agony all the while. The raw sores were soon in a foul condition, and my finger nails, all except two, fell off. During the different stages of my trouble, I sought the advice of three different doctors and received treatment, but although getting slight relief at first, there was no cure. Amputation was at one time thought necessary, but the timely introduction of Zam-Buk prevented this fearful ending.

"Zam-Buk was recommended by a friend and we bought a supply. The first few applications gave me a little ease, but it was not until I had continued with it for some time that I felt a decided improvement. After that my cure went on quickly. Zam-Buk did what everything else had failed to do. Now my hands and arms are quite freed from the terrible eczema."

HOW ZAM-BUK IS SUPERIOR

Zam-Buk is entirely different to other balms, and as superior as it is different. Most salves are nine tenths animal oil or fat. Zam Buk hasn't a trace of animal fat in it. Most salves contain mineral coloring matter. Zam Buk is absolutely without! Many salves contain poisonous astringents. Zam-Buk doesn't.

Zam Buk is actually more powerfully antiseptic than crude carbolic acid. Yet it soothes, instead of causing smarting when put on a wound.

ZAM-BUK'S MANY USES

Zam-Buk heals more quickly than any other known preparation: eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, rashes, ringworm, scalding, itching, cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, sciatica, inflamed veins, tonsilitis, abscesses, chilblains, cold sores, etc. Best balm for baby's skin. Used as an embrocation, it gives relief in rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, and stiffness. Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

Too Much Time Spent on Science Do not Need a Gymnasium Here

The Board of Education will Make Representations to the Minister, Hon. Dr. Pyne—Fire Chief Howard's Report will be Acted Upon

Peterborough's Board of Education are going to buck the Department of Education for a yard or two anyway. The members, through Dr. Morrison, object to so much time being spent on science. They also object to building a gymnasium when the excellent one at the Y.M.C.A., can be had. Representations will be made to the Minister of Education in the near future with the hopes of getting things readjusted.

The Board of Education held its regular meeting last night and transacted routine business.

A report of the Finance Committee was read by Mr. John Crane in the absence of Mr. D. W. Dumble the chairman, recommending the payment of accounts.

The resignation of Mr. Hoffard was accepted, and Committee on Appointments was instructed to secure a successor.

The report of Fire Chief Howard on the safety in case of fires in the Public schools, was referred to the Property Committee to report on. Mr. L. M. Hayes drew particular attention to the door in the Central schools and other schools opening in instead of out. These are very dangerous in case of fire.

The report of the chief was also ordered to be published.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT

A report was received from the inspector of the Collegiate Institute and Dr. M. A. Morrison said that there were grounds for congratulating the principal, who had only been in charge for a year. As to the writing he said that the board had that in their own hands. They would have to start in the kindergarten class and continue all through the public schools. In the primary schools the pupils have altogether too much writing and they have no chance to pay attention to their writing. Next the schools are going wild over science. Students are spending altogether too much time in writing in their science books and have no time for other subjects. The doctor also strongly recommended that the board interview the minister of education in connection with the gymnasium required for the Collegiate, and point out to him the favorable arrangement which can be made with the Y.M.C.A. here. It would cost $25,000 or $30,000 to build a new building and it would be no better than what they have which costs only $450 per year. A deputation from the board will go to Toronto in the near future.

IDENTIFICATION OF BIRDS.

Mrs. Cumberland made enquiries in reference to the prizes of $2 and $1, he offered for the identification of birds. Mr. Kenner explained that the matter was given to the science master and the pupils have been working on it, and some very fine collections have been made and the winners decided upon. Mr. Cumberland will be asked for his money all right and he will be notified to that effect by the secretary.

FIRE CHIEF'S REPORT.

Peterborough, Jan. 27, 1910.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education—

Gentlemen,—As requested by a number of interested citizens and some members of your board, I have made a careful inspection of all the Public Schools in the city for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not your public schools should be equipped with fire escapes.

This inspection was made on January the 25th and 27th I was accompanied by Mr. L. M. Hays, chairman of your board, Mr. Robert Fair, and Mr. Mowatt, inspector of Public schools. And I beg leave to report

The majority of the buildings are so constructed that it will not be necessary to erect fire escapes on the outside of the buildings. The architect and builders of these schools have taken the precaution of providing a sufficient number of exits, and of sufficient width to enable the teachers and scholars to get out of the buildings in a remarkably short space of time.

There are two exceptions, however, I refer to the school in Ashburnham, where an outside stairway or fire escape would aid in clearing the school in shorter time. This stairway or fire escape could be built on the west side of the building. And also at the West Ward school a fire escape could be built on the east side of the building with good effect.

The King Edward school is well provided with exits, as at the present time only two stories of the building are in use. Should the Board of Education, at any future time have occasion to complete the building and occupy the third story I would most strongly recommend that before doing so they equip the building with solid and substantial fire escapes.

If you will refer to my report of an inspection I made on October the 22nd, 1908, you will observe that I drew the attention of the board to some of the doors in the schools, which open inwards. This is contrary to law. Some of the alterations suggested at that time have been carried out, but there are still a few doors that should be altered, and I sincerely hope these defects will be remedied at once.

At each of the schools we visited an alarm of fire was sounded, and it will be interesting to the public as well as the gentlemen of the board to learn that the fire drill in the city of Peterborough is far more efficient than it is in many other cities.

I submit herewith the time it took to clear the respective schools, and the number of scholars in each school as follows:—

Central Annex—150 scholars, 45 seconds.

Central School—285 scholars, 45 seconds.

Ashburnham School—215 scholars, 40 seconds.

Queen Alexandra—285 scholars, 52 seconds.

West Ward—150 scholars, 30 seconds.

South Central—450 scholars, 50 seconds.

King Edward—325 scholars, 44 seconds.

This is remarkably good time, and your principals and teachers are to be commended for the interest they take in the fire drill, and they should be given every encouragement.

I also wish to say that I found the basements of all the schools entirely free from waste paper or combustable rubbish, as I did on previous visits.

With the consent of the board I will give a copy of this report to the public press in order that the parents of the pupils may feel assured that the proper precautions are being taken.

All of which is respectfully submitted I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Department.

A communication was received from Mr. G. W. Hofferd, tendering his resignation on the Collegiate Institute staff to take place on April 1st.

Two Cobalt Miners Blown to Pieces

Cobalt, Feb. 1.—Sandy Christie and Jas. Hope, two miners were blown to pieces yesterday in the shaft of the Silver Leaf mine.

The two men went down the shaft about three o'clock to load some holes. The dynamite had been packed in and the fuses set. Hope lit one fuse, and before he noticed anything wrong, started a second. Some loose powder had evidently been left near the hole, for the flame from the end of the fuse leaped to the powder and an explosion followed immediately.

After the second hole had gone off the other men ventured down and found the two bodies terribly mutilated.

Hope was 27 years old. Christie was a foreigner working under an assumed name. Both have been at the Silver Leaf for some time.

The mine is under option to the Crown Reserve and the men were working for the Montreal Company.

Believes Asquith Won't Act And New Election at Hand

London, Jan. 31.—William O'Brien the leading Independent Nationalist, in a letter to a meeting in North Cork, said that if Asquith retains office at all—which Mr. O'Brien doubts—one of two things must happen:

1. The reconstruction of the Irish part of the budget from top to bottom, or

2. The Dillon-Devine party will only have a choise between following us to the lobby against the budget, causing the expulsion of the government from office or supporting the budget, thus sealing their own fate at the polls in the new general election that will soon be upon us.

DID ASQUITH DIFFER.

London, Jan. 31.—Politicians are today discussing eagerly the possibility that a difference has taken place between King Edward and Premier Asquith.

It develops that on last Tuesday the King invited Premier and Mrs. Asquith to pay a week's end visit to him at Windsor Castle, presumably to discuss the political situation. Such invitations are usually considered in the nature of commands, to disobey, which would amount to an affront to the King.

On last Saturday Asquith left for Cannes, France, for a brief vacation, and yesterday a court circular was issued announcing that Asquith was not present at Windsor "owing to his departure for the Continent."

As Asquith's actioam is said to be almost unprecedented, it is thought that he and the King may not be agreed over the policy to be pursued in the forthcoming parliament. It is believed that the premier would not have gone away under the circumstances unless something had occurred to make his acceptance of the premiership impossible.

The Walter Blythe Case

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Aylesworth made an explanation of certain statements which he had made in discussing the Blythe case. His remarks had been taken to mean that the governor-general accepted ministerial advice as to clemency in capital cases but not in other cases. The fact was that in capital cases the governor-general acted on the advice of the entire cabinet; in other cases on the advice of one minister, who in practice is always the minister of justice.

MOST ENCOURAGING

Is the Annual Statement of the North American Life.

The hundreds of policy holders in this district in the North American Life Assurance Company, will be pleased to learn of the very successful year that company had during 1909. The twenty-ninth annual meeting was held recently at the head office in Toronto, when the financial statement was presented and showed the splendid increase in the cash income from policies and interest of $133,117.95, the total being $2,078,-[illegible]5.40. The expenses of the company remain practically the same although the volume of business transacted has been greatly increased. The policy holders received on account (surplus or dividends) $138,-320.47, while the company paid for matured endowment and investment policies $327,111.96. In addition to these increases the assets, net surplus and amount of insurance have all increased. The North American Life Assurance Co., is as sound as any financial institution and it is constantly growing. Mr. G. B. Stevenson is the local agent and he is responsible for a part of the increased business. The district over which he is manager has added many new policies during the past year.

Thousands are Homeless Owing to Floods

Rome, Feb. 1.—The River Tiber has been rising steadily for several days, and today has attained an unprecedented height. The lowlands along the banks are flooded, and thousands are homeless.

Soldiers are carrying the inhabitants to the highlands, and the government is taking energetic measures to relieve the suffering. The inhabitants are panic stricken. The disaster is attributed to the near approach of Halley's comet, and world wide floods are predicted. Although the officials are working frantically in an effort to prevent damage to the site of the proposed world's fair and to erect dams whereby the flood will be deflected from the grounds, it is not expected that they will be successful. An announcement that the opening will be postponed until 1912 is looked for.

Reports from the head waters of the Tiber declare that the flood crest will be extraordinary high, and a warning to the towns along its bank to prepare for serious flood conditions has been sent broadcast.

Only One Entry Port for the Chinese

Boston, Feb. 1.—Hereafter Chinese immigration into the United States will be chiefly through the port of Boston, it is expected, following the closing last night of the three Canadian border stations at Malone, N. Y., Richford, Vt., and Portal, N.D., through which Chinese have been permitted to enter this country. It was the intention of the Department of Commerce and Labor to have all Chinese immigrants seeking entrance to the United States examined at Vancouver B.C., and to guard over the United States at Seattle, Wash.

The Canadian Pacific railroad, however, made arrangements to take the Chinese immigrants bound for eastern points in the United States across Canada to Halifax, N.S., send them to Boston by steamer and have them examined by inspectors here. Boston being a statutory port, cannot be closed on a departmental order.

DOG SHOW.

Movement on Foot to Hold One in the Near Future.

A movement is on foot among the dog fanciers to hold a local exhibition in the near future. There are at the present time probably 100 dogs in the city eligible for entry. For these cups and prizes will be offered. The object is to get the fanciers organized and to pave the way for a larger exhibition to be held another year. The times would suggest that a prize list for the dogs be added to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in the fall. If no building was available they might be benched in a large tent similar to that used for the poultry. The dog show at Toronto, London and other places has always proved one of the best paying side attractions and there is no reason why it should not be so here.

CURLING NOTES.

Neil-Sheppard Trophy Games on Thursday afternoon.

Tomorrow morning four rinks of local curlers will go to Orillia to play for the Neil-Sheppard trophy, and that night four rinks from Orillia will arrive here on the nine o'clock train and play four local rinks. The results of the two matches will count. This is one of the big events of the season and a lot of interest will be taken in the games.

After the Orillia games here on Thursday night Orillia will leave for Lindsay to play there on Friday afternoon.

The finals for the district cup may be played here this week as the returns must be in by Feb. 7th.

District No. 2b are playing in Kingston today and the winners of that district are to play the winners of Peterborough district.

FIVE GAMES.

Were Played Last Night in the Local Bonspeil.

The following are the results of the games in the local bonspeil played last night:

G. H. Giroux's rink defeated Dr. Wightman's rink by 14 to 13.

W. J. Thompson defeated C. N. Brown 12 to 8.

W. J. Read defeated D. Hall 16 to 12.

A. Hall defeated Dr. Greer 14 to 6.

R. Hicks defeated A. Moore 19 to 11.

DYSPEPSIA AS IT BEGINS.

This Stage Easily Cured.

One of the most common symptom of stomach disorder is a sense of fullness or lightness after eating. This indicates that the stomach needs help, belching of gas frequently follows, the tongue is coated, the bowels become irregular, until finally, in addition to the stomach distress, constipation adds its deadly influence in destroying health.

The treatment is simple and if employed promptly and reasonably persevered with, cure is speedy and permanent. Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills in full doses every second or third night, then three times a week, one pill at bed time.

The first effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills is to excite activity of the liver and kidneys. This cleanses the system and prepares the stomach for vigorous work. Gastric juice is abundantly secreted, digestion of food and not its fermentation, marks stomach activity with total absence of gas and removal of other symptoms of perverted action.

For good health, vigorous appetites and the best digestion, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. No other medicine will do so much good. Price 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. George Peacock, of Bellevue, Ohio, have returned home after spending their honeymoon with friends in the city.

THE WEATHER.

Southerly winds and milder.

McINTOSH'S TOFFEE.

An Opportunity is at Hand to Reap Some of the Handsome Profits.

John McIntosh's Toffee, situated, at Brockville, have put on the market for immediate sale 500 shares of preference stock at the par value of $100 per share. These are 7 per cent. cumulative preference shares and are as safe an investment as real estate while the dividend is that of a good industrial. McIntosh's toffee needs no introduction. Everyone knows what it is and has an idea of the extent of the sale it has. The Canadian factory is established in Brockville, and has a daily capacity of seven tons or 2555 tons per year. Something about the profits of the business will interest the investor. It costs to manufacture one case of 896 packages the sum of $14. This is sold to the wholesaler for $26.88, or a profit of 92 per cent. right off the bat. The dividends are sure and 7 per cent. is the lowest possible. The cheques are mailed on the first days of March, June, September and December. Write or wire your application to Morris, Edgar & Company, financial agents, 166 Bay street, Toronto. Fuller particulars will be found in the big adv. on another page of this issue, and it will pay everyone to look it up and read it.

LADIES AT HOME.

St. Andrew's Congregation Were Entertained Last Night.

St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid Society were hostesses of the congregation last night at a reception given in the guild hall. The hall was very tastefully decorated and presented the appearance of a large drawing room. A large number of the congregation were present and spent an enjoyable evening. An informal program of vocal and instrumental music was given and during the evening refreshments were served. Those taking part in the program were Messrs. F. R. Clarke, Gordon Wright, Miss Winslow of Toronto, Mrs. P. A. Kerr, Mrs. Chas. Gibson, Mr. George Lang, Miss Bessie Read, Miss Mary Porter and Miss Leary.

A vote of thanks was tendered the ladies, and on motion of Mr. G. A. Cornish and Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie Mr. Andrew McFarland responded on behalf of the ladies.

The evening was brought to a close by singing Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

A boon to Stock Raisers

To Know How to Cure Colic, Distemper, Colds, Swellings, Etc.—

Saves Thousands Each Year.

It is a matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse-owner and stock-raiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly sick.

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Fullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years:

SAVED $1,000 BY NERVILINE

"Several years ago when my horses took colic I used to give them Cayenne Pepper in a few cases only did it help, and because I had no proper means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Wending, of Brockville, Ont., had in his racing stables with "Nerviline,' so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000.00. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died had it not been for Nerviline. I have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practical horseman proved beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Give Nerviline a trial. It's good for man or beast, internally or externally. 25c per bottle or five for $1.00. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE CHORE CURE.

When a man suffers a nervous breakdown, the first thing that occurs to him and his friends is that he needs a rest. We are now assured upon the highest authority that is all wrong. Our authority is Samuel McComb, D.D., associate director of the Emmanuel Movement. He says, in an article in Everybody's Magazine, that a nervous breakdown is rarely brought about by overwork, but by work plus worry and insomnia. What the patient needs is not rest but a new method of working. Dr. McComb tells us how he cured a star actor of nervous breakdown by setting him to work at a simple and unremunerative but useful occupation.

Hence arises the thought that perhaps the modern man suffers from want of chores and household chores. There is no more wood to be sawed, no water to be pumped, no fires to be lighted every day, no horse to be fed and groomed. The simple and unremunerative but useful occupations are left for the people who cannot afford to have nervous breakdowns. In the old days when one business man wanted to communicate with another, he must put on his hat and take a walk, or write a letter with his own hand or send a boy. All these little acts had a tendency to break nervous tension. The old-fashioned errand boy may have been a blessing in disguise. The mind wandered freely over his universal characteristics—how he was always out when you wanted him, how slowly he traveled, how he went to the wrong place and delivered the wrong message, how he put Smith's letter in the envelope addressed to Jones. Through these delays the old-fashioned man was preforce a little bit of an idler. Modern invention while they serve his convenience, deprive him of the opportunity for little changes of occupation, and keep him at a higher state of tension. When he goes home, having no water to draw and no wood to saw, he thinks of his business or wonders whether he will sleep well, and so worries himself out of sleep.

Possibly in some modern sanatorium there will be provision for chores. The inmates will keep the place clean, attend to the garden and the chickens, do the marketing, and run the errands—all of which are just as good fun as golf, if you will only accept them in the right spirit. They will provide the guests with simple, unremunerative, and useful occupation, and drive away the blues according to the most approved principles of modern science.

Croup positively stopped in twenty minutes, with Dr. Shoop's Croup Remedy. One test alone will surely prove this truth. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasant syrup —66cf Sold by all dealers.

HELPING THE CHILDREN.

Between four and five thousand children have been rescued from conditions of cruelty, neglect and immorality by the sixty Children's Aid Societies in Ontario. They now enjoy the privileges of good homes, in which they receive kind training and wholesome influences.

When this work was first organized a large number of boys and girls were being demoralized by their environment. Begging and stealing were all too common amongst juveniles. Conditions are now greatly changed for the better. The aggressive work done by the societies in different localities accomplishes much in the way of helping the children to become good citizens. A Children's Aid Society acts as a moral tonic in a community. Parents who have been in the habit of neglecting their children soon learn that they must be more faithful to their parental obligations or their little ones will be taken away from them by the law.

The system established by the Provincial Secretary's Department and followed by the Children's Aid Societies has proved economical and effective. It saves many young people for the State. The maintenance of refuges and prisons is a very costly business, while a comparatively small sum of money suffices to remove a child from evil surroundings and place it in a properly safeguarded home.

NATURE OF BUSINESS

The Company manufactures John McIntosh's celebrated Toffees, the trade names of which are "Old English Toffees" "Treakle Toffee," "Vienna Toffee," "Butter Scotch" "Russian Toffee" and "Buttermild Toffee" as supplied to Queen Alexandra and the Empress of Russia. The business is particularly profitable, and possesses the advantage of being thoroughly established in Canada, as in all other large countries. An understanding of the profit and sale may be gleaned from the knowledge that over 22 tons daily or 8030 tons annually are consumed in Great Britain alone.

History of John MacIntosh's Toffee

The MacIntosh Toffee business was established some 40 years ago in the City of Halifax, England. Mr. MacIntosh commenced business absolutely without capital, boiling his celebrated Toffees in an ordinary kitchen pan on his cottage fire. To-day Mr. MacIntosh controls the largest and oldest Toffee manufacturing business in the world.

Imported From England and United States

Prior to the establishing of a factory in this country, over three cases or 2688 packages of MacIntosh's Toffee was consumed by Canadians daily. This business was done from England and the United States, without the assistance of advertising or local management.

BROCKVILLE WORKS

The Company's buildings at Brockville are large and commodious and are constructed and equipped in a manner suitable to the purposes of the business. The most modern machinery and special appliances installed guarantee a manufacturing capacity of 7 tons of John MacIntosh's Toffee daily or 2555 tons annually.

ACTUAL PROFITS

The cost of producing one case containing 896 packages of John MacIntosh's Toffee ready for sale is $14 00. Study these profits:

"It Is Those Who Invest at Time of Flotation Who Reap Large Profits."—My Opinion.

"I visited Brockville on January 14th and remained there four days. My sole object in going there was to investigate the works and business of John MacIntosh's Toffee, Limited. I studied the details of the business carefully, and in addition to finding a magnificently equipped factory in active operation, I found a good business, managed by men of sterling worth and sound reputation, who have a thorough and practical understanding of the business, gained at the works of the parent Company of John MacIntosh, Limited, Halifax, England, the oldest and largest Toffee Manufacturers in the world. The future welfare of these men is centred in the business and the results of their determination and effort will be the building of a large and important enterprise in Canada.—ATHOL GEORGE ROBERTSON.

REMEMBER—These Shares bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, with the opportunity of earning additional interest.

How to Come to a Decision—You have read the contents of this prospectus and having done so must realize that this offering is particularly good, that it constitutes an investment with all the safeness of a parcel of REAL ESTATE, while containing the interest bearing ability of a good industrial. Give Your Mind New Thoughts—Stop Worrying

Whatever you are sure we begin now to think of [illegible] as the dawn of new [illegible] Say to yourself many times each day that you possess [illegible] mental force more magnificent charm than ever before in you.

Say also that you [illegible] better loved and more truly [illegible] for all your virtues and [illegible] than ever before and that you [illegible] to give and receive happiness is greatest.

Then use moments [illegible] you have been accustomed to [illegible] away or to employ to [illegible] body thoughts in improving yourself. Let this improvement be threefold [illegible] body and mind and spirit all radiate new brilliancy.

Give your mind new thoughts. Give your spirit new aspirations and treat your brain with some new purpose.

Keep up whatever accomplishments you possess. Cultivate new ones. Be [illegible] at both [illegible] to study [illegible] and [illegible] and lectures of conference [illegible] all passing age [illegible] about to possess qualities and charms [illegible] mind of worthy and added years [illegible] over [illegible] and [illegible] of refinement. Encourage the [illegible] to seek [illegible] society, [illegible] and interest them, and this can be done only by keeping in sympathy with their ideas.

If you find your thoughts running along the line of criticism and disparaging comparisons of the young people of the day with those of your own morning time keep your ideas to yourself.

THE KISS HYGIENIC.

Not the Thing Poets Rave Over, but It's Germ Proof.

And now we have the kiss hygienic—an answer to those who have started a crusade against the kiss on the ground that it spreads contagion.

The kiss hygienic is made possible through the medium of a very simple little contrivance designed by a German genius named Herr Herman Sommer. It consists of a small ivory or metal frame, made something like a tennis racket, across which is stretched a bit of silk gauze. This gauze is soaked in disinfectant and then interposed between the kisser and the kissee at the psychological moment, and then—well, then follows the kiss robbed of all its terrors and but few of its delights, so the inventor says. There can be no exchange of disease germs in the kissing when this device is used. The disinfected gauze prevents that absolutely.

Of course this kiss hygienic isn't quite the old time kiss. For instance the disinfectant isn't particularly agreeable to the taste even when its flavor has been concealed by perfumes, as the inventor advises. Then, too, the interposition of the device may seem something like the presence of a third party. Also the device raises a question that is highly embarrassing to the modest young woman—Shall she presume to provide herself with the contrivance in anticipation of the visit of the young man who is attentive to her, but who as yet is nothing more? Then, too, something of the spontaneity of the old fashioned kiss is likely to be lost, and also something of that thrill which poets have sung of the meeting of lip with lip.

But, then, with the alternative of kissing hygienically or not at all, it is not easy to guess what the world will say—at least that part of the world that—is still young enough for romance. It will again offer thanksgiving that necessity is the mother of invention.

Few Women Stop to Consider Trifles.

If every woman stopped when she makes up her mind to buy a thing and asked herself, "Is it practical?" "Will it wash and will it wear?" "Is it worth the price?" many concerns now prospering

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Don't Risk even a penny—until health returns. And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick, "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help!"

And for 20 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and untertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the most successful used Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

When the Stomach or the Heart or Kidneys or Nerves fail, you now how Dr. Shoop's Restorative is [illegible] them back to health again. And best of all, they positively make no money risk whatever.

and flourishing would have to go out of business. But the average woman does not do her shopping in that way. She sees something that she likes, something pretty, something that takes her fancy, and she buys it. And many of the shops where fancy trifles are to be had count upon this as one of their surest sources of big receipts. Like the man who drinks, it is not what he eats that costs the money, it is what he drinks. And with womankind in their dress it is not the staples of life which cost the most; it is the luxuries.

Improvised Bassinet.

A mother who found herself without a cradle for her infant daughter when on a visit bought an oblong wicker basket, such as are used by bakers to pack loaves of bread.

This was lined with several layers of cotton batting slipped between muslin sides and bottoms the exact size of the basket. The lining was tied in by small ribbons sewed, so it could be taken out and washed.

Not only could baby sleep in its bread basket at night, but it was just the thing to take out on the porch, to stand on a chair out of drafts or even to put on the grass on a rubber blanket when nurse or family were out in the woods or on the beach.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 29 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

No Chemical Engine to Be Purchased this Year Two More Men Added

The city will not purchase a chemical engine for the fire department this year. The cost is too great. The initial cost is $2400 for the engine and $1000 for horses and harness and an additional four men on the staff. The committee thought it was up to the Fire Underwriters' Association to show some returns to the ratepayers before going into such an expenditure. The brigade, however, will be increased by two men. The Fire, Water and Light Committee put their business through in pretty good shape last night.

Those present were: Ald. Morgan, chairman; Aldermen Batten Graham, Metheral, and the fire chief, Ald. Buller and Mayor Morrow.

NO CHEMICAL ENGINE.

The first matter taken up was the chemical fire engine whether the city will get one or not. Chairman Morgan said that if the underwriters would give a reduction on its rates for all classes of buildings there would be no complaint from any one about the purchase of an engine.

Ald. Metheral showed receipts for insurance on Foresters Hall which called for an increase in the rate.

Mayor Morrow and Chief Howard gave instances of people who had reduction in their rates. There is a cause for all increases and the chief said that he would like to get hold of all such cases and he would look into them, and try and get them reduced.

Ald. Buller thought it advisable for the chairman and chief to go to Toronto and interview the underwriters.

Finally, however, it was decided to let the matter drop for the present.

MORE MEN.

The next matter taken up was the chief's request for six more men. He said that it was really necessary to have more. There was no use locking the door after the horses were stolen.

Ald. Metheral said that the volunteer brigade was only 16, and the chief said last year he could run it with ten men. The city has not grown much since.

The chief then suggested that two men be put on now and two in October.

The aldermen fell in with the idea of putting on two more men and if it was then found necessary to put on more the committee could do so.

Ald. Metheral moved that no additional men be added this year.

Ald. Graham seconded the motion.

Ald. Batten moved in amendment that two men be added. Ald. Morrow seconded it and it carried.

INCREASED SALARIES.

Next on the list was the request for increased salaries for the men. Ald. Graham said that now the extra men are added the city cannot afford to give any increase. The committee thought that they could not afford to increase the salary.

The chief then asked that the third year men be given $600 and that would give them something to look forward to. The chief then said that if Engineer Rankin did not get an increase he was going to resign. He now gets $600, but he is a first-class man and can easily get a job at more money.

Ald. Metheral thought that the engineer should be given an increase.

It was moved by Ald. Batten and Ald. Buller that Engineer Rankin be given an increase of $50 per year.

Moved by Ald. Graham and Ald. Metheral that the scale of prices for the firemen remain the same for this year.—Carried.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM.

Next came the requirements for telegraph alarm boxes on George street and in the West Ward.

Girl Has HadN o Trances Since Put in Asylum

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Feb. 1.—Margaret Cheverie, aged 19, of New Zealand, near Souris, the girl whose strange manifestations of metaphysical powers have for several months been the sensation of the community in which she lived, since having been brought to Charlottetown about two weeks ago and entering Falconwood Hospital for Insane, has at no time gone into a trance or exhibited any of the clairvoyant demonstrations that have been attributed to her. Dr. F. P. Conroy, an eminent physician here, who has been watching the case closely, is confident, however, that when she is accustomed to the surroundings there will be a return of the strange symptoms.

The case is one of the most wonderful on record. The general character of the girl shows her to be a most peculiar person, the eccentrics of whose mental make-up stamp her as different from any other subject of the kind within the knowledge of local physicians. She is described as an auto-hypnotist, with obsessive impulses, and she has the gift of clairvoyance and mind-reading while in the hypnotic state. It is when in the hypnotic sleep or trance that she manifests those peculiar faculties which have aroused the wonder of all the neighborhood and those who have heard of the case. The subject is liable to go into this state any time that she goes to sleep. She has lost will-control entirely and will do any thing that is requested. When in the hypnotic sleep, into which she falls without the aid of outside agency, she cannot be awakened, no matter what efforts may be made. This sleep may last half an hour or a day.

A SOURCE OF TERROR.

The reason she was brought to the city and placed in Falconwood hospital was not because she was considered insane, but because she has become a source of terror to the community in which she lived, through the fear of what she might do by incendiarism. She is accused of burning the outbuildings of her uncle, James Cantwell, at New Zealand. The fire took place at 5 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon. A week later her mother's barn was set on fire and also on Saturday at the same hour and the blaze was only extinguished after the hardest exertions.

ZAM-BUK CURES PILES.

Evidence From All Sources.

There are so many so-called "remedies" for piles that sufferers are often at a loss what to try. Piles are caused by distension of the hemorrhoid veins, and the tissues becomes highly inflamed, dry and sore. Zam-Buk cools and soothes the inflamed tissue and the healing essences in Zam-Buk penetrate the diseased parts, giving ease quickly and eventually curing the most obstinate case of piles.

Mr. George Harris of Virden, Man. says: "I suffered acutely from piles, but I am glad to say Zam-Buk gave me ease and brought about ultimate cure."

Mrs. S. Cook, 468 Pacific avenue, Winnipeg, says: "A month ago I was cured by Zam-Buk of a bad attack of bleeding piles to which I had been subject for a long time."

Mr. William Kenty, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N.S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles. The pain from these at times was almost unbearable. I tried various ointments, but everything failed to do me the slightest good. I was tired of trying various remedies when I heard of Zam-Buk but thought, as a last resource, I would give this balm a trial. I secured a supply and commenced with the treatment. In a very short time Zam-Buk effected what all the other ointments and medicines had failed to do—a complete cure."

Whenever there is inflammation or ulceration, there Zam-Buk should be applied. It heals ulcers, abscesses, festering sores, cold cracks, scalp sores, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises and all irritated, inflamed or diseased conditions of the skin and subjacent tissue. All druggists and stores, 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

AN ALARMING OUTLOOK.

Consumption of Cereals Overtaking Production of Grain.

A chart shows that by 1914 the consumption of cereals in the United States will have overtaken the production of grain. The president of the New York Central anticipates that only five years hence "the last vessel loaded with the agricultural product of this country will have left our shores, the great exporting grain elevators in our seaboard cities will stand empty, and this great nation, like the nations of the Old World, will be looking for a place to buy the necessaries of life." Alarmed at this prospect, Mr. Brown urges the expenditure of millions of dollars upon the establishment of agricultural colleges and upon the stimulation of field-production throughout the Union. The Ontario Government will make no mistake in spending money freely upon the College at Guelph, and upon the general work of the Department of Agriculture.

The Children's Aid Society Held Their Annual Meeting

Secretary Goodwill Presented a Report Covering the Year's Work And it Was a Big One—Officers Were Elected—Provincial Society to Take Children

There was a good attendance at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society yesterday afternoon. The meeting was held in the council chamber at four o'clock. President T. F. Matthews occupied the chair. The reports of the secretary and the treasurer were presented and were very satisfactory.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Peterborough, Feb. 2, 1910.

To the President and Members of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough:

I have the honor to present the annual report as secretary of your society. Another year's work has been done, and a large number of children in the city and county have been cared for by the society, and placed in foster homes. Also a large number, by reason of notices and warnings to parents to improve home conditions, have been materially benefitted. Perhaps more has been done in this latter direction during the last year than in any former year, and judging from the improvements already obtained we have reason to believe that the following of this policy will give excellent results.

Mr. Cochrane, the energetic agent, has been kept busy investigating and reporting cases, serving notices and making visits to see that the warnings are being observed. Mr. Cochrane has devoted a large amount of time and attention to the work, and with a thorough knowledge of the methods of our society, and, being sympathetic and tactful, he has performed his duties most efficiently.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry have continued to make improvements in the interior of the shelter, and have also improved the grounds. The shelter itself is maintained in the most satisfactory condition. Their work has been well and carefully performed. We have had a very large number of children in the shelter continuously during the year, and all have been looked after by Mrs. Henry in a kind motherly way, and there has never been a complaint during the year.

The outbreak of scarlet fever and chickenpox in the shelter, which necessitated a complete isolation for many weeks, made the work for our matron usually heavy, and the extra work in nursing and extra expense incurred in supplying medicines and otherwise should be recognized by the society.

It is with regret we have to record the sad event of the death of Mary Rosebush, aged seven years, a native of Belmont township, and who was the first patient in the shelter with scarlet fever. This little girl was made a ward of the society by Police Magistrate Edmison in Havelock, and notwithstanding the untiring attention, nursing and medical attendance, she passed away and was buried in the society's lot in Little Lake Cemetery.

A matter that calls for remark is the very large percentage of children placed in the shelter during the year from the county, involving an expense to this society of over $600. A delegation composed of Messrs. Campbell, Cochrane and Henry waited on the County Council and urged that the annual grant from the county of $250 be increased in view of the above facts, but I understand the council have not seen their way clear to accede to our request this year. The cases passing through our hands have been similar in nature to that of former years, and I will report verbally on a few of the most important.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. L. GOODWILL,
Secretary.

A telegram was read from Mr. J. H. Burnham, who was in Toronto, to the effect that Mr. J. J. Kelso would assist the society by taking several of the children now in the shelter, and place them in homes, and he promised to assist the society materially in other ways.

On the recommendation of the secretary, the society voted $50 to Mrs. Henry in appreciation of her services during the outbreak of scarlet fever and chickenpox last summer.

A committee to look after the clothing for the children in the shelter was appointed as follows:—Mrs R. F. McWilliams, convenor, Mrs West, Mrs. Montgomery, and Mrs. Gibbs.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The following officers were elected:
Hon. President—Mayor W. G. Morrow.
President—T. F. Matthews.
1st Vice—Mrs. Birdsall.
2nd Vice—Mr. Travers.
Secretary and Honorary Solicitor—J. E. L. Goodwill.
Agent—Geo. Cochrane.
Hon. Physician—Dr. T. H. Amys.
The Board of Managers was re-elected.

The 3-5 Clause To Be Retained

"This question is big enough and broad enough, and God knows it is serious enough, but I firmly believe that it has been kept back through narrowness and bigotry. I believe that this is almost gone, and I believe that in a shorter time than you imagine you will have local option throughout rural Ontario on a firm and sure foundation."

Toronto, Feb. 2.—Sir James Whitney used the above words in his reply to a large and unexpected deputation of temperance people who waited on him this morning. Every member of the deputation present represented a municipality where local option had been defeated by the operation of the three-fifths clause which formed their request.

After several speakers had expressed their views Sir James replied at some length. Hon. Mr. Hanna also spoke briefly.

Canadian Government May- Assist France in Her Distress

It is probable that Parliament will be asked to vote a sum to relieve distress in France caused by floods. The government, acting on the suggestion made in the Senate, has cabled M. Fabre, Canadian commissioner in Paris, asking him to ascertain if the French government will accept assistance from Canada.

If no objection is taken by France on the score of dignity an emergency vote will probably be put through Parliament without delay.

All Greenhorns On the Board

Montreal, Feb. 2.—Montreal has not had time as yet to recover from its surprise at seeing the whole Citizen's League slate elected at the municipal elections. The celebrated clique of "23" and the crowd that was singled out by the social commission has been routed and an entirely new council pledged to reform now takes charge at the city hall.

Aldermen who have had practically full charge of the city hall for years such as Ald. Proulx, Ald. Giroux, Ald. Dagnais, have been turned out of the city hall, and a few days ago this was looked upon as an impossibility.

A peculiar situation is that not a single member of the new Board of Control has ever been in city hall affairs up to the present time.

The latest figures for the mayoralty are:

Dr. Guerin, 24,837.
Senator Casgrain, 16,165.
Majority for Guerin, 10,682.

The Board of Control candidates stood thus;

Ainey, 30,805.
Dupuis, 34,055.
Wanklyn, 22,049.
Lachapelle, 20,564.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Cost M. P. P.'S $700 Each, Save Province $74,200

Toronto, Feb. 2.—A terrible suspicion is creeping over the minds of the members of the Ontario Legislature. It is beginning to look as though Sir James Whitney and the members of his government intend to get through all the business of the session in one calendar month.

Just how this will affect individual members will be seen when it is realized that under the legislature Act the indemnity of the members will be paid only at the rate of $10 per day, or a total of $300 for the session, instead of the $1,000 they have been accustomed to receive. Added to this there is a deduction of $4 per day to be made for every day on which a member is absent. It does not take an advanced mathematic to work out the problem of just how much the members stand to lose under this scheme, and to many of them the $1,000 they have been accustomed to receive is a very acceptable sum.

If the session should really come to a close inthirty days, it will cost each of the members the sum of $700, but on the other hand the Province will reach the respectable total of $74,200.

MONEY FOR NORMAL SCHOOL.

Provided for in Supplementary Estimates of the Province.

The supplementary estimates of the Province of Ontario for the fiscal year ending October 31st, 1910, contain several appropriations of interest to Peterborough. For the Peterborough Normal School the following is provided:

Grounds and walks (part re-vote)	$ 2,300
Repairs, alterations and additions	1,000
Fire protection	300
Total	$3,600

The public works estimates contains a grant of $3,800 for the Burnt River bridge on the Buckhorn road.

CURLING NOTES.

Peterborough and Brockville to Play for Championship.

In section B, district No. 2, Brockville won from Kingston yesterday in the finals by two shots. The game was somewhat similar to the one played here with Lindsay. One rink was tie and the other was tie until the last end and Kingston was lying shot. The Brockville skip lifted the shot and lay two. As a result Brockville and Peterborough will play off in Belleville on Monday next for the championship.

The skips who will go to Orillia this morning to play in the Neil Sheppard trophy games are Messrs. Neill, Morrow, Lang and Sturgeon.

The local club will tender an informal reception to the Orillia curlers this evening in the club rooms.

DERANGED KIDNEY ACTION

Causes Florid Skin Blotches, Flushings.

Mrs. Conrad Schmid, Hamilton, discovered what a great many women would like to know, the cause of redness, that unlike natural healthy color suffuses the entire face. It is humiliating indeed to a refined person to always present the appearance with "dram drinking." In writing of her case, Mrs. Schmid says: "Cosmetiques and local applications were quite useless. By reason of an aching pain in the back I was recommended by a friend to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills to relieve my kidneys. I discovered that failure of the kidneys to remove matter from the blood was the cause of my heightened color. Dr. Hamilton's Pills at once removed the cause of the pain and gave me a complexion that most young girls might envy. I have the most satisfactory proof that Dr. Hamilton's Pills not only regulate the organs, but purify the blood thoroughly."

No other medicine will so quickly clear the skin, cure pimples, eruptions and all blemishes. For general family use, as a blood cleanser and tonic laxative, Dr. Hamilton's Pills can't be excelled. Beware of substitutes. All dealers sell Dr. Hamiltons Pills, 25c per box, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

LAST CHANCE

For Peterborough to Put in a Claim for Intermediate Silverware.

The second game of the season between the Lindsay and Peterborough teams will be played at Brock St. rink on Friday night and by all accounts will be the hardest fought and most interesting of the series. Peterborough must win the game in order to keep in the running in the district and the locals will have on the strongest team that has represented them this season. It would be premature to give any information to the line-up at this stage, but there is a surprise or two for the fans as well as for the Lindsay team on Friday night and if the victory does not perch on the Peterborough banners it will be because she has forgotten how to perch.

Lindsay, of course, are confident of winning. The victory here last week followed by the big score which they piled up in Lindsay on Monday night makes them expect something easy on Friday, but that old problem in addition concerning chickens is brought to their attention. They will have the hardest game they have had this season, not excepting the battle in Lindsay two weeks ago when the Petes handed them a 3 to 2 defeat. The Midgets and their supporters will come down on a special train and a barrel of confidence, but the local team believe that they can turn the trick and tie up the district. It will be a game well worth seeing and should attract a big crowd.

FIVE GAMES

The scores in the local bonspeil at the Charlotte street rink last night were as follows:

J. E. A. Fitzgerald's rink defeated W. M. Lang's by 18 to 3.
W. E. Talbot defeated A. Hall 12 to 6.
D. Fraser defeated D. Davidson 13 to 12.
J. H. Counsil defeated T. F. Matthews 13 to 8.

What Will England Do? Everybody is Curious

London, Feb. 2.—The paramount question in all men's minds—a question which transends in importance the fate of the budget, or the destiny of the Church, or even the modification of the legislative union of the kingdom—is this: Has the general election sounded the death-knell of the system under which, good or ill, England has ruled, and been ruled, so long? Has the old order in deed, at long last, irrevocably changed? It is a question which each man answers in accordance with his own particular political prejudices.

But the true answer to this grave question must necessarily be dependent, in no small measure on the interpretation which the House of Lords itself puts on the result of the elections. For the functions of that House can only be altered, and the balance of power in the constitution can only be varied by, and with the consent of the Upper House itself. That consent can only be obtained in one of two ways. First, by the creation of a sufficient number of peers to swamp the present Unionist majority, or, secondly, by the voluntary, if reluctant, cession by the present majority of its present power of veto.

A COUP D'ETAT.

Disregarding for the moment the first alternative, as to which it may be said that considerable doubt is entertained, not only as to whether Mr. Asquith would feel justified in pressing such a solution on his majesty, but also as to whether the latter would feel justified in taking a step, so utterly unprecedented, as coup d'etat, it is proposed to consider very briefly the light in which, on the data before us, the peers may be deemed likely to disregard the verdict of the constituencies.

Mr. Balfour has, in his recent speeches, distinctly implied, if he has not explicitly stated, that the rejected budget must go through, but he has been careful not to utter a single word which can be construed as an expression of opinion that, on the question of the functions of the House of Lords, the verdict of the country has gone against theirs. Indeed, with naive simplicity he affects to be unaware that the question was in issue at all in the election contest. And, even with regard to the passage of the budget there is, so the writer is informed by a Unionist private member who is in a position to gauge the feeling of prominent Tory peers, no striking concensus of opinion that it should be allowed to pass, unless in substantially the same form that it was referred to the judgment of the country. The contention in short, is that, if the result of the election was a mandate from the people to the peers to pass the budget, it was not a mandate to them to pass more stringent and drastic proposals embodying largely inflated taxes, such as it is believed Mr. Lloyd George has in contemplation.

Biennial Conference.

The ninth biennial convention of the Bay of Quinte Conference Epworth League will meet in the Methodist church, Cobourg, on Feb. 8, 9, 10, 1910. It is expected that upon this occasion between 250 and 300 delegates will assemble in Cobourg, coming from the various districts of the Conference, viz., Cannington, Lindsay, Whitby, Oshawa, Cobourg, Brighton, Picton, Napanee, Peterborough, Campbellford, Madoc and Tamwort. The last biennial convention was held at Lindsay. Some of the best speakers of the Conference will address this convention.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, than the organ that this nerve controls will also fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by all dealers.

A couple of bus loads of Peterborough young people drove to Chemong last night and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jobe. A most enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and cards.

British Airship To Patrol The North Sea

London, Feb. 1.—The first British naval airship will be launched in a few weeks. The crew will consist of six officers and men from the "war" ship Vernon, and they are now under going a course of instruction.

The airship was designed by Spencer of Highgate, for the purpose of patrolling the North Sea. It will be of the rigid type and will be the largest of the kind in the world except the Zeppelin machine. A special feature is a magazine for carrying explosives. The engines will develope about 200 horse-power. The machine could carry from 20 to 30 men, but the crew is limited to six, in order to allow for as much war material as possible.

Mr. Spencer says:

"It is naturally something in the way of an experiment. It is enormously powerful and is the outcome of long and careful experiments. The latest known improvements have been incorporated as well as others which have not been made public. I am convinced that the selection of sailors as the crew is a step in the right direction. I have found that seamen make far better aeronants than soldiers."

Dying of Cholera

Local Physician Says Thousands Dying in Europe Can Be Saved With Proper Medicine.

What is it that keeps down cholera, cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or live druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, diarrhoea, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

LETTER NO. 4272

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there was never a time that our house was without 'Nerviline.' In the summer time, when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. Mr. father used Nerviline frequently to cure me on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the house as Nerviline.'

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Hatcher, a well known resident in Battersea, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it today, keep it on and for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

DEPUTY MINISTER OF RAILWAY.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham, by way of preface to his Intercolonial Railway statement, made fitting reference to his outgoing and also to his incoming deputy minister of railways. Mr. Butler, who has transferred his services to a private corporation, has been for several years the subordinate head of the department, and he has been for two of those years chairman of the Board of Management of the Intercolonial Railway. There need be no hesitation in according him a large share of the credit due to that board for the good showing Mr. Graham was able to embody in his speech.

Mr. A. W. Campbell, who succeeds Mr. Butler in both capacities, has already shown his fitness for such a position. Starting in his profession of civil engineer in a small city of this Province, he saw the necessity for an "good roads" propaganda, and by dint of persistent and intelligent appeals and expositions he has accomplished a great deal for which Ontario owes him a debt of gratitude. As deputy minister of public works for Ontario he has displayed a high order of administrative ability, and there is no reason to doubt that he will be equally successful in the wider field to which he has been called. The minister of railways has been fortunate in finding so soon a suitable successor to a rarely qualified official.

THE ASSESSMENT ROLLS.

One of the most important civic offices is that of assessor, for his work is the basis of all our civic revenue. A dishonest man in this position would mean disaster to the finances of the city. In the gentleman who at present holds that position in Kingston and has held it for many years we have an official who is admirably fitted both in point of ability and character to do the work; but no man can do the impossible and it is impossible for Kingston's assessor or any other assessor to be absolutely correct in his valuation of the real estate of the different property owners.

The law recognizes this by arranging for an appeal from his decision to a Court of Revision where the appellant can have his assessment decreased if it is too high. But what about those cases where properties of nearly equal value may be assessed, say one of them for $2,000 and the other for $2,500, through no fault of the assessor, but simply from the impossibility of his keeping a fixed standard in mind at all times. The law makes provision to protect the property owner from over assessment; but the law makes no provision to protect the city from suffering loss by under assessment.

What can be done under such circumstances? The assessment rolls, of course, are open for the inspection of the public and any one who thinks that there are cases of under-assessment has the right to go to the rolls and find out for himself if this is the case; but as a fact no one ever does this. What is every body's business is in the end nobody's business.

It has been suggested that the assessment rolls should be printed and distributed for the information of the public. Then every citizen could compare his assessment with that of his neighbor and could easily decide whether there was any under-assessment or not. The cost of doing this would be considerable but it might be a means of so increasing the amount of our taxes as easily to repay the cost.

INSTALLING THE MAYOR.

English Towns Have Ritual Peculiar to Each.

The mayor of Lincoln, for instance, is duly elected by placing upon his finger an ancient ring, which for centuries his predecessors have worn. Should his worship lose this ring to any school in the city the master is bound to give his pupils a day's holiday.

At Chichester the mayor is armed with a gold-mounted malacca cane, while at York his worship is equipped with a silver-mounted oak stave, which has marked his authority for hundreds of years.

From time immemorial, the mayor of Brightlingsea has been elected in the parish church belfry; and the retiring chief magistrates of both Bournemouth and Hanley imprint a loving kiss on the countenance of the incoming mayor.

The mayor of Grantham is tapped on the head with the town clerk's hammer; and at Dunstable the time-honored custom of "bumping" is observed.

Weighing in the less trying ordeal to which the mayor of High Wycombe has to submit, and he is better off, perhaps, than the lord mayor of Birmingham, who has to assume his sweetest smile and face the camera immediately after his election.

A public holiday is observed at Stowmarket-under-Lyme, where the newly-elected mayor is publicly proclaimed from the famous Market Cross—a custom observed for 764 years.

A mayor's duties are numerous and, in many cases, curious. He has to refrain from taking a too prominent part in politics—though this is only an unwritten law; he has to preside over meetings of the council, open bazaars, entertain and be entertained at public dinners, give receptions, and preside at the local police court.

In some places he receives a salary, and in others he pays dearly for his year of honor. The mayoralty of an aristocratic London suburb cost its possessor over $7,500; while Mr. John Webster, who was mayor of Sheffield in 1906-7, spent only $25.

The lord mayor of London gets a salary of about $50,000, but always spends a great deal more; whilst the lord mayor of Liverpool has $10,000, and the lord provost of Edinburgh $5,000.

During her year as mayoress of Portsmouth, Miss Doris Foster celebrated her sixth birthday; and when she occupied a similar position at Cardigan, Miss Gwynneth Bowen had seen four summers.

PLAINT OF A SPINISTER.

An Unwilling One Asks Why Educated Women Don't Marry.

Unmarried women who would have liked to marry, but never had the chance, are not likely to confess the facts very frankly. The spinster who makes her plaint under the title "Why Do Not Educated Women Marry?" in a recent number of the Independent probably wouldn't have made it if she had been compelled to sign her name. But "An Unwilling Celibate" might be any one of millions of women. This celibate, therefore, regarding her case as typical in many ways, announces that she cannot understand why she has not been wooed. She thinks the standard by which men judge women must be wrong.

"When I look around at the homes, the pitiful, inadequate makeshifts that are called such, and when I read the record of the divorce courts and I then look at my unmarried friends I wonder if marriage is really a process of natural selection and invariably results in the mating of the fittest."

She is a college graduate, this celibate, and has met with fair success in teaching and writing. But as a young girl her happiest dream was of having her own home, husband, children, and "the renunciation has not been easy." She is "no beauty," but she has had compliments on her good looks and is a skilful dresser. She comes of an honorable family, was brought up to cook, keep house and sew, can play cards, loves to talk to men and is adept at outdoor sports. And yet she has had only one offer of marriage, and that an undesirable one, and she is "perilously near the danger line of thirty."

Sage persons, she says, tell her that a woman "must never let a man guess she has any brains or knows how to talk anything but utter nonsense." She is unable to follow this plan—doesn't think it a "square deal" to a man. Yet men seem to like to talk to her, and they tell her it is "such a comfort to find a woman who doesn't want to talk nonsense all the time."

They come to see her and invite her to go to dances, theaters and upon moonlight walks, and they confide in her their love for Polly Jones or Sally Smith. "I am proud of their trust and confidence, yet I cry out against the essential impersonality of it all, as if I were a sort of embodiment of the earth mother."

Three Unique Social Events.

There will be a trinity of social gatherings in connection with the Murray street Baptist congregation during the present season. This church, consisting of about five hundred members, has been divided into three committees, the first consisting of all the members whose names begin with the letters A. to H. The second from I. to Q. and the third from R. to Z. These sections have assumed the responsibility of entertaining the rest of the congregation on the different dates. The first of these evenings will be held on Friday, February 11th. The A's to H's declare that the entertainment to be provided by their section will be equal to any evening provided by any organization this winter. Refreshments will be served in the school room after the concert. The public will be welcomed. The second section will have their evening in the month of March.

LOOKS LIKE WAR.

More Trouble Brewing Between Russia and Japan.

There has been a general impression since the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war that these two countries had come to an amicable understanding with reference to their respective operations in Manchuria. It has been the general belief that Russia was recognized as dominating the northern half of the disputed provinces, and Japan the southern half. While Russia has by far the larger resources, although badly defeated in the last encounter, it would seem that neither would be desirous of engaging in another conflict. Diplomatically both countries have expressed the most peaceful intentions, yet travellers who have recently gone over the trans-Siberian road, make some surprising statements. According to these, Russia is making extraordinary preparations for something, and it is reported that the building of the Amur railroad is being hurried because of representations by Russian officers that a second war with Japan is imminent. Whether there be any truth in the assertion or not time alone can show, but it is asserted that Russia has half a million troops encamped in the vicinity of Lake Baikal. If such an enormous force is being maintained at such a significant point, it is evident it is massed there for a serious purpose. Despite the comparatively recent humiliating defeat Russia sustained at the hands of Japan, it is believed that the Muscovites will never abandon their ambition for territorial expansion to ports of the Pacific more available than Vladivostok for the requirements of war or commerce.

THE CHORE CURE.

More Physical Exercise Needed for to Create Good Health.

When a man suffers a nervous breakdown, the first thing that occurs to him and his friends is that he needs a rest. We are now assured upon the highest authority that is all wrong. Our authority is Samuel McComb, D.D., associate director of the Emmanuel Movement. He says, in an article in Everybody's Magazine, that a nervous breakdown is rarely brought about by overwork, but by work plus worry and insomnia. What the patient needs is not rest but a new method of working. Dr. McComb tells us how he cured a star actor of nervous breakdown by setting him to work at a simple and unremunerative but useful occupation.

Hence arises the thought that perhaps the modern man suffers from want of chores and household chores. There is no more wood to be sawed, no water to be pumped, no fires to be lighted every day, no horse to be fed and groomed. The simple and unremunerative but useful occupations are left for the people who cannot afford to have nervous breakdowns. In the old days when one business man wanted to communicate with another, he must put on his hat and take a walk, or write a letter with his own hand or send a boy. All these little acts had a tendency to break nervous tension. The old-fashioned errand boy may have been a blessing in disguise. The mind wandered freely over his universal characteristics—how he was always out when you wanted him, how slowly he traveled, how he went to the wrong place and delivered the wrong message, how he put Smith's letter in the envelope addressed to Jones. Through these delays the old-fashioned man was preforce a little bit of an idler. Modern invention while they serve his convenience, derive him of the opportunity for little changes of occupation, and keep him at a higher state of tension. When he goes home, having no water to draw and no wood to saw, he thinks of his business or wonders whether he will sleep well, and so worries himself out of sleep.

Possibly in some modern sanatoriums there will be provision for chores. The inmates will keep the place clean, attend to the garden and the chickens, do the marketing, and run the errands—all of which are just as good fun as golf, if you will only accept them in the right spirit. They will provide the guests with simple, unremunerative, and useful occupation, and drive away the blues according to the most approved principles of modern science.

SOON BE TEN MILLIONS.

Ontario's Population Will Soon Reach Ten Million.

Between 1891 and 1901 Ontario's population increased only about 68,000. In the eight years that have elapsed since 1901 Ontario's increased population has been close to the half million mark.

Other parts of Canada have shown proportionately large increases during the latter period, according to a recent census department estimate. Whatever the cause for Canada's disappointing showing in population increase during the last decade of the nineteenth century it is evident that such causes have now ceased to operate.

The present population of Canada is estimated at seven and one-half millions. The gains from natural increase and foreign immigration ought in a few years to bring it up to ten millions, and Canada will then enter on a long stretch which will ultimately land her, as the Ottawa Journal says, beside the great powers of the world.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 30 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY FEBRUARY 4 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Tried to Kill Wife Then Commit Suicide

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Emily Bell is in the General Hospital, hovering between life and death, and her husband, William Bell, is receiving attention for a badly gashed throat, the result of an attempt made yesterday afternoon by Bell to murder his wife and to take his own life.

It was shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon that the screams of a woman attracted attention at the corner of Gerrard street and Jones avenue. In the stairway leading to the rooms above the Traders Bank Building Mrs. Bell was found, blood issuing from her throat. She was taken at once to Dr. J. A. Gallagher's drug store, on the opposite of Gerrard street, where she was given prompt attention by the doctor, attention that was no doubt responsible for the saving of her life, after which she was removed to the General Hospital. Rushing up the stair those who had the first intimation of the affair saw a most horrible spectacle. Standing in a pool of blood, William Bell was attempting to end his own existence, after, as he supposed, taking the life of his wife. He was immediately placed under arrest and taken to the Pape avenue police station, but was later removed to the hospital, where he now lies under police surveillance. The razor broke, while Bell was cutting his wife's throat, and for that reason he used a clasp knife on him. reason he used a clasp-knife on himself. Mrs. Bell's windpipe narrowly escaped being severed.

WERE TO START LIFE ANEW.

Bell and his wife are both 43 years of age. What makes the affair all the more pathetic is the fact that after some months of separation, they had just decided to make up their differences, and live together once more, and were looking for rooms in which to again take up housekeeping, when Bell attempted the awful act.

Bell is a brickmaker, and has up till recently worked for his brothers, Bell Bros., brick manufacturers, on Greenwood avenue. His wife has for the past seven months worked as a domestic in a Woolfrey avenue home. Mental aberration is thought to have caused Bell to attempt the rash act. "I was worried about her," he said of his wife, according to the police, but those who know Mrs. Bell speak highly of her.

BOTH WELL SPOKEN OF.

"We thought a lot of Mrs. Bell," said the lady for whom she worked for the past seven months, to a reporter, "and was sorry to hear that she was leaving us. Bell had called to see his wife recently, and last Sunday he went with her to St. John's Presbyterian church."

The police say Bell was a very religious man, and one who was a faithful church attendant. His wife too, it is said, was at one time a member of the Salvation Army, to which one of her sisters, it is said, now belongs. The man is an Englishman, and his wife is a Canadian. There was not, it is thought, any serious difficulty between the pair. Recently Bell has resided with a brother who lives on Leslie street.

Bell's name was called in police court this morning to answer a charge of attempted murder and suicide, but the case was remanded for a week, when, it is thought, he will be well enough to answer the charges.

Husband Is Dying Wife Under Arrest

Hamilton, Feb. 3.—Robert Nevills, who was frightfully burned during a quarrel with his wife after a spree in their home a week ago, is dying in the City Hospital. The authorities there say he cannot live more than a few hours. The wife is under arrest charged with throwing a lighted lamp at her husband.

Magistrate Jelfs, Chief Smith and Stenographer McHaffie went to the hospital at noon to take the dying man's ante-mortem statement, but he was too weak to talk. Mrs. Nevills alleges that her husband tried to cut her throat, and that in the scuffle the lamp exploded.

Nevills was formerly a well-known commercial traveler, and his wife is well connected in the Old Country, her people sending her remittances regularly.

British Warships Go to Aegean Sea---Germany Blamed for Trouble

Conditions Between Greece and Turkey Causes Britain's Move—Foreign Powers will Re-Occupy Crete Rather Than Allow a Struggle

Malta, Feb. 3.—The British flagship Duncan, flagship of Rear-Admiral Sir George Astley Callaghan, second in command of the British Mediterranean fleet, with the cruisers Lancaster, Minerva and Barham and four torpedo boat destroyers, has left here for Poratus, the port of Athens, Greece.

GREEK GOVERNMENT PROTEST

Official advices received from Athens say that the Greek Government protests that the disquietude among the Powers is premature as the parliamentary elections will not be held until next year, and there will be ample opportunity for action in the meantime.

CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

The despatch of the British squadron to Piraeus indicates the determination of the interested powers—Great Britain, Russian, France and Italy—to assure a strict adherence to the agreement under which the international forces were withdrawn from Crete. At that time the Cretans solemnly promised to take no steps against the sovereignty of Turkey. The recent decision of King George of Greece to convoke a national assembly, was followed by reports that the Cretans would attempt to send delegates to that body. This caused uneasiness at Constantinople, and it is understood that the Turkish Government informed the powers protecting the island that if the Cretans were admitted to the Greek National Assembly such action would be regarded by the Porte as a casus belli.

The situation was the subject of an exchange of views at London yesterday several ambassadors and ministers conferring with Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign secretary.

POWERS ARE ACTING.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 3.—The early re-occupation of Crete by the four former protecting powers, Russia, England, France and Italy, was indicated today by the Russian Foreign Office.

The Foreign Office says the powers will under no consideration permit Crete to furnish a cause of war between Turkey and Greece, and will take steps to prevent the present dispute from reaching a crisis.

TURKEY WANTS A SCRAP.

Constantinople, Feb. 3.—The minister of war today despatched ten officers to various European countries to buy horses and guns, in anticipation of a war with Greece. Four destroyers have also been ordered from Germany.

The third army corps, stationed at Salonika, has been ordered to cross the frontier the moment the forthcoming Greek Parliament accepts deputies from Crete into its membership. Such an act, Turkey considers would be a repudiation of Turkish suzerainty over Crete, and a sufficient cause for the immediate declaration of war.

The young Turks are showing great eagerness over the prospect of a war, as it is believed a war would do much to obliterate the reactionary element in Turkey.

BLAME POOR GERMANY.

The despatch of British warships from Malta to Piraeus is the forerunner, it is believed, of the early occupation of Crete by the protecting powers, which, under the agreement of 1898, administered the affairs of the island, under the nominal sovereignty of Turkey, until a few months ago. Italy, Russia and France are the three other powers, and they are all understood to be in favor of intervention in case it becomes necessary.

Germany is accused here of urging on the trouble in the belief that another upset in the Balkan States would materially enhance her schemes for further aggrandizement in south-western Europe.

Crowned Heads Forward Relief to Paris

Paris, Feb. 3.—The Seine continues its recession, the gauge today showing that it had dropped nearly five feet from the crest of the flood. Relief contributions from crowned heads amount now to approximately $55,000. Other foreign subscriptions exceed $400,000. Several prominent Royalist and Catholic writers deliver broadsides in today's papers against what is termed the bankruptcy of the modern science of engineering, contrasting the stability of the ancient bridges like Pont Royal and Pont Neuf with the latter day structures, such as the Pont De L'Alma and the Pont Des Arts, the safety of which was in doubt throughout the height of the flood. They declare that not a single ancient sewer broke under the pressure of the waters, while the modern labyrinth crackled and gave way in many places. Frederic Masson, a member of the French Academy, in a bitter article, lays the blame upon the Laicization of France, saying that still in the hour of calamity, the only consolation of the country is found in Divine faith and charity. He concludes: "In this total bankruptcy of science. Government police and the others who should have foreseen and protected us, the Cross alone is triumphant."

Neil-Sheppard Trophy Remains in Orillia for Another Year

Peterborough loses the historic Neil-Sheppard trophy by 8 points, Orillia won in both towns being 5 up in Orillia and 3 up here. Still five of Peterborough rinks were up and one tied. The cup was lost by Mayor Morrow's rink in Orillia, who played against Mr. F. Toogood, their score being 5—18 respectively, and by Mr. D. Davidson's rink, who played against Mr. B. F. Stewart, their score being 9—20 respectively. Mr. C. N. Brown's rink was six up until the last few ends when Mr. Thompson pulled up well getting one or two each end and tied at 16 ends, score 18 all. All the rest of the games were very close. Every rink playing here last night Peterborough won the first end.

The Orillia rinks arrived in the city last night about ten o'clock and began playing as soon as their stones arrived from the station, and it was a quarter after one o'clock before they finished. They played all afternoon in Lindsay and were feeling pretty tired when they finished here. After the game the local club served light refreshments in the club rooms upstairs.

The four rinks which went to Orillia yesterday morning had a first-class time. The game was good and the Orillia people used them well.

Among the Orillia players were Mr. Bert McCallum, a former well-known Peterborough boy.

Messrs. C. N. Brown and Thomas Brightman had a rabbit's foot in their pockets which worked first-class the first part of the game but towards the end they lost their charm

Mr. R. M. Waddell's rink had four five and six shots piled up at different times only to be spoiled by Mr. A. D. Perry's last stone.

Orillia returns home this morning covered with glory.

The German Scare in Great Britain

When the Imperial Press Conference was in England last summer a member of the Canadian delegation found himself seated next to Sir Edward Grey, Great Britain's Minister of Foreign Affairs, at one of the occasions of the conference. During the evening the Canadian editor said to Sir Edward Grey, "Would you tell me for my personal satisfaction, exactly what you think of the so-called German scare, and the cry for more rapid British building of war ships?"

Sir Edward Grey is looked upon in England as one of the three or four ablest and finest men in public life there, as one of the fairest-minded and most sane, as well as most clear sighted of political leaders. Despite the fact of Sir Edward Grey being a Liberal minister, there is a curious strain of admiration evident in Conservative references to him; and while it is the fact that in the Liberal party in England there are indications of a trend into two camps, the more moderate wing headed by Mr. Asquith and Sir Edward Grey, and a radical army behind Mr. Lloyd-George and Mr. Winston Churchill, both branches seem to have an equally deep respect for and confidence in Sir Edward Grey as a man of the highest type of honor and sincerity.

On the occasion referred to, Sir Edward Grey was silent for a few moments, then spoke slowly, and carefully, in effect as follows:

"I cannot think that there is a likelihood of war. I cannot bring myself to believe that a great and intelligent and Christian nation like Germany could attack us without provocation without grave fault on our own side. But I am compelled to admit that the historial fact is that in the course of her Imperial expansion, Germany has in our time gone more than half way to meet war with Denmark, with Austria and with France, and has within a few weeks practically presented an ultimatum to Russia giving the option of war or silence regarding the annexation by Austria of Bosnia and Hergegovina. We must face the possibility that our turn might come. It is possible, though I cannot think probable, that if Germany were strong enough on the sea to risk an encounter with our navy the encounter might ensue in spite of ourselves.

"If war were to come and our navy were worsted it would spell the ruin of the British Empire. Germany would not need to land a soldier in England. Our food comes across the seas. We could be starved into absolute submission in a month.

"No other great power has to face such a consequence of defeat.

"We have two courses open. One, to allow Germany to easily catch up with us in sea power, and take the chance of a quarrel. The other, to try to keep so far ahead of her in naval force that no quarrel will occur.

"The latter course seems the necessary one. The possibilities of the other are too grave to risk so long as our resources enable us to keep ahead.

"I would hardly contradict any one who would say that it is a hundred-to-one chance against our having war with Germany even when Germany has arrived in a position to risk it. And yet I am compelled to feel that even though it be a hundred to one shot against war, we must not, if we can help it, take even the single chance when that single chance includes the possibility of the ruin of England—the possibility of the end of our thousand years of English story."

It is Not a War Scare But a Need

Principal Peterson of McGill Supports the Attitude of Great Britain.

Treat England as She Treated Russia and France—Favors Dreadnoughts.

Guelph, Feb. 3.—That the British Empire must not stand as a force to the colonies, but that the government must rest on a democratic basis, that the Empire must be a union of free and equal states, and the colonies not subordinate units clustered round a center, was the basis upon which Principal Peterson of McGill University last night addressed the Canadian Club of Guelph. His subject was "A True Imperialism."

The speaker applied his remarks directly to the present European situation, claiming that the colonies must come closer together, or split apart, and his argument was all in favor of an imperialism of the democratic unity. The British Government he argued had not set aside £38,000,000 on a navy in one year merely to create a stir to influence politics, as Henri Bourassa had said in Montreal. It was not a war scare but a need. Germany might at any time take the attitude towards Britain that she had taken against Russia and France.

Many were, in the speaker's opinion living in "A fool's paradise," regard to the danger of foreign invasion, and the fact that Canada was looked upon as a factor to weaken England in time of trouble should waken Canadians to the necessity of contributing to the British navy. He advocated the contributions to the British navy of Dreadnoughts to be given on condition that they would in the future form a part of the navy of Canada.

ZAM-BUK AT THE RINK.

A box of Zam-Buk in your pocket at the rink, or when tobogganing, sleighing, etc., is the best form of insurance policy. The pain and smarting of a cut, a bruise or a sprain disappears with the prompt application of this famous healer. Not only does Zam-Buk give relief, but it ensures you against such serious after-effects as blood-poisoning, festering and inflammation.

Zam-Buk is so highly antiseptic that disease germs are actually destroyed as soon as they come in contact with it. It contains no rancid animal fats, no mineral coloring matter, but, on the contrary, is made from pure herbal essences. Hockey players will find Zam-Buk particularly useful.

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for cold-sores, chaps, etc. Miss Molly Maloney, of Scotch Hill, Margaree, Cape Breton, N.S., says: "I was very much troubled with chapped hands and cold-sores, and thought I would try Zam-Buk. It soothed the pain, and in a very short time my hands were quite smooth and completely cured." All druggists and stores, 50 cents box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for the price.

FIRE ALARM BOXES

Are Badly Wanted in the West Ward of the City.

When the Fire, Water and Light Committee have a little spare time it would be well for them toconsider the chief's request for more fire alarm boxes in the West Ward. There is no doubt in the world of the West Ward being the select residential district. It's not going to be, nor is it a has been, but it is now. Yet Park and Hunter is the only corner where there is an alarm box. All of King street west of Park, all of Charlotte street and the old Burnham estate, all of Gilmour street, all of Homewood avenue, and dear knows how many more streets west of Park, as well as a big section east, have to run to Hubter and Park streets, or almost as far as the fire hall itself. One alarm box serves nearly half a square mile of territory that is covered with the best class of houses. The West Ward should surely have another alarm box and a good place for it would be on the corner of Babb's Lane and Gilmour street or Homewood avenue. It's worth considering.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by all dealers.

"JERRY" HOWARD.

The New Horse Introduced to the Fire Department.

The new horse "Jerry" has taken up his position permanently in the fire hall. He had a work out yesterday morning with "Brock" on the hose truck, and those who saw him go say that he can run. It is quite evident that he did run for he is sweating yet. The firemen explain that by stating that Jerry has been accustomed to running in the barnyard and in a cold stable and that his new quarters are too comfortable.

Jerry is a blocky horse, dark grey, long haired, and with a head like a broncho. He is not five years old yet but he is so quiet that he will hardly eats oats and always says "excuse me." when he goes after the hay.

Chief Howard says that when Jerry is clipped and becomes naturalized he will be out into active training. He will also learn to eat with the bit in his mouth and to put his mane up in curl papers every night. After Jerry has accomplished these feats he will be given a place with the regulars and if he makes good will play right wing on the hook and ladder team. "But look at the head on him!."

TWO CHARGES OF MURDER

ITALIAN COMMITTED FOR TRIAL AT ASSIZES.

Grafton Tragedy Before Police Magistrate and Coroner.

Cobourg, Feb. 2.—Police Magistrate H. F. Holland this afternoon committed for trial on a double charge of murder and on one charge of attempted murder, Gregor Mancuro, an Italian. The murdered men and the man lying dangerously wounded in the hospital here were all working on the Canadian Northern line near Grafton, on Tuesday, January 25th. During the luncheon hour and while beer was flowing freely, a quarrel arose, when it is alleged that Mancuro fired three shots, one almost instantly killing Frank Marino and wounding so seriously Guiseppe Clanfione that he died thirty-six hours later. The third man who was shot, Nicola Lombardi, is still in the hospital but will recover.

The evidence given before the Magistrate to-day was largely a repitition of the evidence adduced at the Grafton inquest on Clanfione and satisfied the magistrate that he was justified in sending accused for trial on the two charges of murder and one of attempted murder.

After accused was formally committed on the charges he was taken before the coroner who is inquiring into the death of Clanfione. At the coroner's inquiry medical testimony as to the cause of death was given and a good deal of the Grafton inquest evidence was repeated.

The jury was still out at an early hour this morning.

CONSUMPTIVES MUST REGISTER.

New Law in Regard to White Plague in Texas.

Austin, Texas, Feb. 1.—Every case of tuberculosis in Texas must be registered with the health authorities, according to the provisions of the new State sanitary code which goes into effect to-day. The reports on tuberculosis are to be privately kept and are to be considered in the light of a confidential communication, not for the purpose of isolation, but with the object of education in sanitary precautions and to supply literature of the State Board of Health. A number of new regulations in regard to the quarantine of contagious diseases and the sanitary requirements of hotels and sleeping cars are also contained in the new code, which has the absolute force of law.

MADE GREAT PROGRESS.

Annual Meeting of the Poultry Association.

The annual meeting of the Poultry Association was held Wednesday evening in the hall over Brown's store, Simcoe street. A large number of the members were present. The president, Mr. George Paxman was in the chair. The association has every reason to feel proud of its success during the two years since organization. Two successful shows have been held and it now owns over $600 worth of coops. It is on a good, substantial basis, financially, and the progress it has made is no doubt due to the untiring efforts of President Paxman and his able assistants.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Geo. Paxman.

1st Vice—R. Thompson Currie.
2nd Vice—Samuel Bickell.
Sec.-Treas.—Jos. Kelly.
Hon. Director—Jas. D. Baptie.

May Muzzle all Dogs in Ontario

Toronto, Feb. 3.—A serious situation has been created throughout the Province by the visit to Queenston, Ont., of a mad dog which came from Lewiston, N.Y., by way of the international bridge. The dog chased about considerably and bit several other dogs and cattle, and the result is that an epidemic of rabies has broken out in several different sections.

Four men have already been sent to the pasteur institutes at Chicago and New York.

Dr. J. G. Rutherford, veterinary director for the Dominion, and Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, are at present consulting as to what steps should be taken to meet the situation. The officers decline to intimate what course they purpose recommending but it is not unlikely that a regulation will be promulgated requiring all dogs throughout Ontario to be muzzled, and that special officers will be appointed to enforce the regulation. In the cities the situation is regarded as most dangerous.

BOUGHT A BUSINESS.

Bowmanville Boys Have Purchased Peterborough Book Store.

Peterborough city is a splendid business place and is growing rapidly. It was a sensible act on the part of two Bowmanville boys—Messrs. Fred W. and Paul Tebilcock, bookseller and stationer of this town, to become owners of the leading establishment of its kind in this part of the Province, known for many years as The Peterborough Bookstore, 417 George St., carried on by A. H. Stratton & Co., We congratulate Messrs. Tebilcock on their choice of a city, and Peterborough on the location there of two such capable and enterprising young business men.—Bowmanville Statesman.

Leader Borden Read Riot Act to Followers

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—The Conservative members of Parliament, held an exceptionally long caucus this morning, and the naval policy was the chief question under review. Very many of the members took part in the discussion, and Mr. R. L. Borden gave a lengthy resume of the situation. It was noted that Mr. F. D. Monk was not present.

It was unanimously decided that the attitude of the party towards bill, or towards the proposals which the government will make under the bill, should be left in the hands of Mr. Borden.

Mr. Borden said, after the caucus when questioned as to the attitude of the Opposition that he could not commit himself until he heard the details of the Government's scheme. He pointed out that while some generalities had been made public, the country was still without any definite announcement.

Mr. Borden will follow immediately after Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the mover of the second reading of the bill this afternoon.

The Conservative policy, therefore will be framed practically on the spur of the moment.

RAPPED NEWER MEMBERS.

It is learned that Mr. Borden read the Riot Act to those of his followers who have shown a disposition to decline to follow his leadership in regard to the navy and other matters yesterday. Mackenzie King tangle was referred to.

The older members of the party gave a severe lecture to some of the newer men who seem disposed to play off their own bat, regardless of the lead given them by Mr. Borden.

It is probable that after to-day's heart to heart talk there will be a little more party discipline shown.

Willl Opposition Move For Abolition of Bar?

Toronto, Feb. 3!—Mr. Proudfoot's three-fifths appeal motion may not be the only temperance measure coming from the Opposition benches this session.

A Liberal member remarked to the press this morning; "Don't be surprised if we submit a far more advanced resolution on the abolition of the bar."

"Won't that be interferring with your June convention?" he was asked.

"We're not bothering about that. We are running our own show here this session."

Albert Milton Strong of Millbrook, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Ada Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson. The bride was attired in white and carried a large boquet of white roses.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Potter, minister of St. Andrew's, in the presence of the most intimate friends of the contracting parties.

The happy couple left on the C.P.R. train for the West, and on their return will reside in Millbrook.

Clarke—Atchison.

At the Springville Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, a quiet wedding took place, when Mr. Matthew Clarke was married to Miss May Atchison, naughter of Mr. George Atchison, Rev. Dr. Marsh was the officiating clergyman.

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the Park St. Baptist parsonage last night of Mr. Thomas Bert Martin to Miss Viola May Doxsee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. C. Riddiford. After a wedding trip to Hamilton and other points, they will take up their residence on Smith street.

ELECTION ABSURDITIES.

The British Voters Act Abounds In Funny Situations.

The British Parliament cannot be dissolved until it has been prorogued and prorogation is effected through the Queen, which is preceded by an address of the Houses of Parliament to the Crown praying for prorogation. The Queen's answer to the address is read by the Lord Chancellor, who, in the absence of the Queen, sits on the woolsack in the House of Lords. The Lord Chancellor is the keeper of the Queen's conscience, and yet he has been known to be the same [illegible] the whole year.

The final stage in the [illegible] is the ridiculous farce of the registration law is practically brutal. If he remains in the same house and until the twenty-first of the month in the county in which he resided on the twenty-first of the month preceding the election, he is entitled to vote. If he moves, may claim a succession, and never lose his vote at all. He is also obliged to claim his vote afresh every year.

Again, take the case of a man who owns two cottages, or even two fields—one in one Parliamentary division, the other over the border in another. If each is worth forty shillings a year, he gets two votes. Another man who has fifty fields, but all in one division, is forced to content himself with one vote, although his holdings is worth twenty times that of his neighbor who has two votes.

The most absurd provision of the anomalous act applies when a man happens to occupy premises through which runs the boundary line between two Parliamentary divisions. Assuming that each part is sufficient in value to give him two votes, his qualification is determined by the boundary line in his bed-room. He votes in the division in which his head lies.

Voters have been disqualified for the most trivial causes. In one case a London tailor, a keen politician, lost his vote because the overseers, by a small blunder, described his property as a "dwelling-house" instead of a "shop."

Again, during the process of polling, ballot papers are disqualified for reasons which seem absolutely trivial to the unprejudiced observer. In the famous Stepney election petition, the judges held that a circle instead of a cross opposite the candidate's name rendered the ballot paper bad.

It is worth mentioning that, after a general election, all the documents connected with the various elections, as well as the writs themselves, must be returned to the Clerk of the Crown. For days and weeks sacks of electoral papers pass through Palace Yard, and are stored in cellars below the House of Lords.

There they are kept for "a year and a day," and then, in official parlance, are "dealt with"—in other words, are chopped up and pulped.

Forgot His Own Poem.

That poets, like other folk, sometimes forget their own creations is shown by an incident related by Sir Frederick Pollock. At a dinner where Thomas Campbell and Lord Nugent were present the conversation drifted from the use of Latin words in English monosyllabic verse. Someone expressed a doubt whether two consecutive lines composed of words of one syllable could be found in our language. Lord Nugent at once quoted:

By that dread name we wave the sword on high,
And swear for her to live—with her to die.

Campbell said he did not believe in the lines, and asked where they came from.

Lord Nugent said, "From your own 'Pleasures of Hope.'"

"How do you know that?" asked the poet.

"I know it all by heart," replied Nugent.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls willalso fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by all dealers.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!
And I will tell you why I say this.
It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free if it fails.
No one need risk even one single penny.
Just think what this means to the suffering sick!
No risk, no excuse, nothing whatever unless health first comes. Try it for 30 full days, and without the risk of a single penny, you can return either of my two remedies to me, and Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, will then cost you absolutely nothing whatever!
Why purchase any medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?
And to-day, I am no stranger to you.
My [illegible] has made Dr. Shoop's Restorative a household word in every good town in the land. [illegible] Why make, [illegible] No take no chance whatever now.
Forty years Dr. Shoop's medicines have become thoroughly established all over America.
And I have [illegible] honest and responsible druggists in [illegible] city, village everywhere to accept my [illegible] years. These selected druggists are glad to [illegible] medicines with the sick—and the [illegible] to shine alone.
But write me first for an order.
I have an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are not authorized to grant the 30 day test.
So drop me a line, please—and then save all disappointments and delays.
Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—all you desire. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan.
Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 30 years experience at the [illegible] in homes and in Hospitals. All phases of [illegible] and relief are told of here. They [illegible] Inside nerves [illegible] no larger than [illegible] Nerves [illegible] given by the Heart its impulse. How the Stomach and Kidneys each have their inside or power nerve. How these organs surely falter when these controlling or master nerves begin to fail. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes [illegible] these failing nerves and rebuilds, and strengthens, restores the lost tone and power. I can surely help you—if it is within the power of medicine to do so. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now, while it is fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. "I'll bet you a guinea you can't repeat it," said Campbell.

The bet was taken, and Nugent started declaiming. The poet soon stopped and said, "I see you know the poem, don't go any further."

The other insisted upon repeating the whole poem, so Campbell paid the extra guinea in order to be spared the recital of a poem which had made famous the words of which he was ignorant.

A Curious Superstition.

Why is it that superstitious persons have always seen a subtle connection between a clock and the duration of human life? The stopping of an old clock has always been held to point to death or disaster, and there are thousands of people, who, even in this age of aviation and women's rights, believe implicitly that the stopping of Big Ben would herald something unpleasant. At a recent meeting of the Finnish Senate — at which the Russo-Finnish situation was being discussed — the clock suddenly fell from the wall and, of course, stopped. The superstitious Finns are now expecting trouble.—Black and White.

Encouragement.

"Why don't you offer your heart and hand?"

"I fear she would turn me down."

"I don't believe it. She has given you enough encouragement."

"Why, she never gave me the slightest encouragement."

"Oh, no? I heard her telling you yesterday that her mother did not allow her to accept anything of value from young men."

Teaching Baby to Walk

Never encourage a baby to try to walk if he seems unwilling to learn. The muscles of the joints are very shallow in tiny children and the bones so loosely connected that they are easily dislocated. Besides, bowed legs are very much easier to avoid than to cure, and standing before the legs are strong enough to bear the weight of the body may result in permanent deformity.

It is a case of root hog or die. Lindsay must win or quit. If Peterborough gets thin game they certainly will get the district. A Peterborough win would mean at least one more big gate for each team. Financially it would be a good move.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyous. Their action is so gentle one don't realize that they have taken a purgative. Sold by all dealers.

TO KEEP OUT CHINESE.

Rigid Laws to Be Enforced Against Asiatics.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—Several stringent new rules designed to keep undesirable Chinese immigrants out of the United States go into operation to-day by direction of the Department of Labor and Commerce. Under the new regulations Chinese bound for foreign ports by way of New England are to be inspected at the original port of entry, Vancouver. Under the system of inspection at Vancouver these Chinese who cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves will not be allowed to cross the international border. Those who really intend to go to foreign countries through the United States will be put under heavy bond. It is believed that the new order will reduce the traffic in Chinese through New England to a considerable extent.

CURED CONSTIPATION QUICKLY.

Tells of a Remedy That is Safe for Young and Old, for All Stomach and Bowel Troubles.

Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely from constipation as I did for near,y six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of the system, that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to mak their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised, and the first box used satisfied me I found a true remedy. Instead of griping by undue activity, Dr Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose, and, indeed, within a month I reduced it and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week obly, just to make sure the old condition would not come back. No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c. boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Grasshoppers, Flowers and Grass

On Tuesday the Herald proudly announced that the first grasshopper of the season had been found and was lively and well in captivity in this office. Yesterday a note was received from H. S. Palmer, W. J. Jordan and D. McDonald of Stirling, saying "Give this to the grasshopper to hope over. If this ain't enough send the grasshopper down to Stirling," and enclosed in the ebvelope was a bunch of prairie grass and everlasting pea, as green and fresh as one would expect to see in May or June. More than that the peas are out in bloom with their pretty little yellow flowers. The grass is from four to eight inches high.

An odd Herald reader may not believe these statements, it was hard for the Herald to believe its eyes when it saw the fresh grass and flowers in the last week in January, but there is no getting away from it all of the senses by which man can learn of the outside world say that the articles touched, tasted, seen or smelled, were fresh, green, grass and fresh flowers. And more than that the gentlemen of Stirling say that there is lots more where this came from.—Lethbridge Herald.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 30 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY FEBRUARY 8 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

CANADA LIFE'S

Most Successful Year.

LARGE GAIN IN SURPLUS—BUSINESS INCREASED —EXPENSES DECREASED.

The Directors' Report submitted at the Annual Meeting of the Canada Life yesterday was as follows:—

The Directors have pleasure in submitting their 63rd Annual Report showing the transactions of the Company for the past year, and setting forth the financial position as at 31st December, 1909.

The Year's Business. Applications to the number of 5,117 for assurances of $12,198,814 were received during the year, and the new policies paid for totalled $10,139,434.00, an increase over the new business paid for in 1908, which in turn was greater than that of 1907. It is very gratifying to note that the Canadian business has again shown a substantial increase. The business from the United Kingdom compared favorably with that of last year, while the business from the United States has been well maintained. The total business in force now amounts to $124,772,856, the increase for the year being over $4,000,000.

The Income and Payments. The income for the year was $5,697,319.59, being larger by $361,277.05 than that of 1908. The payments to policyholders totalled $2,032,332.16. Notwithstanding the constantly increasing volume of business transacted, the expenses of management decreased in 1909, as compared with those of the previous year. A similar reduction in the expenses of management was reported a year ago, the decrease in each year being not only in percentage but in actual amount.

The Assets. The total assets now stand at $39,686,063.57, showing increased in 1909 by $2,972,948.33, the greatest gain in any year in the Company's history. The assets of the Company are increasing at the rate of nearly $10,000.00 for each business day of the year, and the safe and profitable investment of these rapidly growing funds is a serious responsibility which receives the constant care of the Directors.

The Surplus. The increase in surplus reported a year ago of $1,060,000 was up to that time the largest in the Company's history. The Directors are able to announce an even larger gain for 1909, the increase for the year being $1,195,125, bringing the total Surplus over all liabilities up to $3,322,764.65. Such a result could only be attained by a strict adherence to those principles of management which long experience has shown to be the essentials of success, namely, judicious economy in expenditures, prudent investment of funds and skilful selection of risks.

Allotment of Profits. The Directors are gratified to be able to announce that the surplus (included in the above) earned on quinquennial dividend policies issued prior to 1900 enables them to declare a bonus upon such policies as follows:—

Upon life policies a reversionary bonus addition of 1¼ per cent. per annum upon the sum assured, amounting to $62.50 per $1,000.00 of assurance (or its equivalent value in cash or reduction of premiums to policyholders so electing); upon endowment assurances the bonus addition will be not less than $50.00 for the quinquennium for each $1,000.00 of assurance, payable at the end of the endowment period or prior death (or the equivalent of such bonus addition in cash or premium reduction to policyholders so electing).

The profits now declared on these policies are on a cash basis from 30 per cent. to 40 per cent. greater than at the previous quinquennial division in 1905, when over $1,000,000.00 was allotted to such policies. As illustrating this, attention is drawn to the following actual examples from life policies, taken at random and showing the profits now declared, on a cash basis. The table also shows the large increase in profits now declared over those of the two previous quinquennial divisions:—

CASH PROFITS

Quinquennial Year.	Policy No. 64329 Issued 1895	Policy No. 36637 Issued 1885	Policy No. 17135 Issued 1875	Policy No. 4972 Issued 1865	Policy No. 1514 Issued 1854
1900	$164.50	$215.50	$224.50	$229.00	265.00
1905	265.50	334.20	345.50	351.20	394.80
1910	367.00	453.00	467.10	474.10	521.20

Basis for illustration in each case $10,000.

The Directors confidently anticipate that this announcement will be received with general satisfaction by the many persons who will share in the large amount of profits to be distributed on these policies.

Quinquennial dividend policies issued since 1900 receive their allotment of profits each five years from the date of issue, upon their premium due date in place of the fixed date (as at 31st December) for older policies. The premium rates and reserves for such policies are on a different basis from that for policies issued prior to 1900. For these more recent policies as well as deferred dividend policies a modified form of the Contribution System of allocation of profits has been adopted by the Company, and under this system the profits will vary with the plan of assurance and duration of the policy, as well as with the age of the assured.

The amount of surplus now to be allotted to quinquennial and maturing deferred dividend policies will, it is expected, exceed $2,000,000.

Our work is so well in hand that the Profit Certificates on all policies now entitled to participate will be mailed on this occasion at an earlier date than formerly.

Retirement of Directors. The following Directors retire by rotation:—Kenneth MacKenzie, Esq., Frank Sanderson, LL.D., Hon. Robert Jaffray, Adam Brown, Esq., and E. R. Wood, Esq., the first two representing the policyholders and the last three representing the shareholders, all of whom are eligible for re-election.

It is with pleasure that the Directors again record their appreciation of the efficiency and zeal with which the officers, staff and field representatives have performed their respective duties.

Toronto, January 31st, 1910. GEO. A. COX, President.

TWO CHARGES OF MURDER

ITALIAN COMMITTED FOR TRIAL AT ASSIZES.

Cobourg, Feb. 2.—Police Magistrate H. F. Holland this afternoon committed for trial on a double charge of murder and on one charge of attempted murder, Gregor Mancuro, an Italian. The murdered men and the man lying dangerously wounded in the hospital here were all working on the Canadian Northern line near Grafton, on Tuesday, January 25th. During the luncheon hour and while beer was flowing freely, a quarrel arose, when it is alleged that Mancuro fired three shots, one almost instantly killing Frank Marino and wounding so seriously Guiseeppe Clanfone that he died thirty-six hours later. The third man who was shot, Nicola Lombardi, is still in the hospital but will recover.

The evidence given before the Magistrate to-day was largely a repitition of the evidence adduced at the Grafton inquest on Clanfone and satisfied the magistrate that he was justified in sending accused for trial on the two charges of murder and one of attempted murder.

After accused was formally committed on the charges he was taken before the coroner who is inquiring into the death of Clanfone. At the coroner's inquiry medical testimony as to the cause of death was given and a good deal of the Grafton inquest evidence was repeated.

The jury was still out at an early hour this morning.

FIRE ALARM BOXES

When the Fire, Water and Light Committee have a little spare time it would be well for them to consider the chief's request for more fire alarm boxes in the West Ward. There is no doubt in the world of the West Ward being the select residential district. It's not going to be, nor is it a has been, but it is now. Yet Park and Hunter is the only corner where there is an alarm box. All of King street west of Park, all of Charlotte street and the old Burnham estate, all of Gilmour street, all of Homewood avenue, and dear knows how many more streets west of Park, as well as a big section east, have to run to Hubter and Park streets, or almost as far as the fire hall itself. One alarm box serves nearly half a square mile of territory that is covered with the best class of houses. The West Ward should surely have another alarm box and a good place for it would be on the corner of Babb's Lane and Gilmour street or Homewood avenue. It's worth considering.

Neil-Sheppard Trophy Remains in Orillia for Another Year

Peterborough loses the historic Neil-Sheppard trophy by 8 points. Orillia won in both towns being 5 up in Orillia and 3 up here. Still five of Peterborough rinks were up and one tied. The cup was lost by Mayor Morrow's rink in Orillia, who played against Mr F. Toogood, their score being 5—18 respectively, and by Mr. D. Davidson's rink, who played against Mr. B. F. Stewart, their score being 9—20 respectively. Mr. C. N. Brown's rink was six up until the last few ends when Mr. Thompson pulled up well getting one or two each end and tied at 16 ends, score 18 all. All the rest of the games were very close. Every rink playing here last night Peterborough won the first end.

The Orillia rinks arrived in the city last night about ten o'clock and began playing as soon as their stones arrived from the station, and it was a quarter after one o'clock before they finished. They played all afternoon in Lindsay and were feeling pretty tired when they finished here. After the game the local club served light refreshments in the club rooms upstairs.

The four rinks which went to Orillia yesterday morning had a first-class time. The game was good and the Orillia people used them well.

Among the Orillia players were Mr. Bert McCallum, a former well-known Peterborough boy.

Messrs. C. N. Brown and Thomas Brightman had a rabbit's foot in their pockets which worked first-class the first part of the game but towards the end they lost their charm.

Mr. R. M. Waddell's rink had four five and six shots piled up at different times only to be spoiled by Mr A. D. Perry's last stone.

Orillia returns home this morning covered with glory.

The German Scare in Great Britain

When the Imperial Press Conference was in England last summer a member of the Canadian delegation found himself seated next to Sir Edward Grey, Great Britain's Minister of Foreign Affairs, at one of the occasions of the conference. During the evening the Canadian editor said to Sir Edward Grey, "Would you tell me for my personal satisfaction, exactly what you think of the so-called 'German scare,' and the cry for more rapid British building of war ships?"

Sir Edward Grey is looked upon in England as one of the three or four ablest and finest men in public life there, as one of the fairest-minded and most sane, as well as most clear sighted of political leaders. Despite the fact of Sir Edward Grey being a Liberal minister, there is a curious strain of admiration evident in Conservative references to him; and while it is the fact that in the Liberal party in England there are indications of a trend into two camps, the more moderate wing headed by Mr. Asquith and Sir Edward Grey, and a radical army behind Mr. Lloyd-George and Mr. Winston Churchill, both branches seem to have an equally deep respect for and confidence in Sir Edward Grey as a man of the highest type of honor and sincerity.

On the occasion referred to, Sir Edward Grey was silent for a few moments, then spoke slowly and carefully, in effect as follows:

"I cannot think that there is a likelihood of war. I cannot bring myself to believe that a great and intelligent and Christian nation like Germany could attack us without provocation—without grave fault on our own side. But I am compelled to admit that the historial fact is that in the course of her Imperial expansion, Germany has in our time gone more than half way to meet war with Denmark, with Austria and with France, and has within a few weeks practically presented an ultimatum to Russia giving the option of war or silence regarding the annexation by Austria of Bosnia and Herzegovina. We must face the possibility that our turn might come. It is possible, though I cannot think probable, that if Germany were strong enough on the sea to risk an encounter with our navy the encounter might ensue in spite of ourselves.

"If war were to come, and our navy were worsted, it would spell the ruin of the British Empire. Germany would not need to land a soldier in England. Our food comes across the seas. We could be starved into absolute submission in a month.

"No other great power has to face such a consequence of defeat.

"We have two courses open. One, to allow Germany to easily catch up with us in sea power, and take the chance of a quarrel. The other, to try to keep so far ahead of her in naval force that no quarrel will occur.

"The latter course seems the necessary one. The possibilities of the other are too grave to risk so long as our resources enable us to keep ahead.

"I would hardly contradict any one who would say that it is a hundred-to-one chance against our having war with Germany even when Germany has arrived in a position to risk it. And yet I am compelled to feel that even though it be a hundred-to-one shot against war, we must not, if we can help it, take even the single chance when that single chance includes the possibility of the ruin of England—the possibility of the end of our thousand years of English story."

Leader Borden Read Riot Act to Followers

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—The Conservative members of Parliament, held an exceptionally long caucus this morning, and the naval policy was the chief question under review. Very many of the members took part in the discussion, and Mr. R. L. Borden gave a lengthy resume of the situation. It was noted that Mr. F. D. Monk was not present.

It was unanimously decided that the attitude of the party towards bill, or towards the proposals which the government will make under the bill, should be left in the hands of Mr. Borden.

Mr. Borden said, after the caucus when questioned as to the attitude of the Opposition that he could not commit himself until he heard the details of the Government's scheme. He pointed out that while some generalities had been made public, the country was still without any definite announcement.

Mr. Borden will follow immediately after Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the mover of the second reading of the bill this afternoon.

The Conservative policy, therefore, will be framed practically on the spur of the moment.

RAPPED NEWER MEMBERS.

It is learned that Mr. Borden read the Riot Act to those of his followers who have shown a disposition to decline to follow his leadership in regard to the navy and other matters yesterday. Mackenzie King tangle was referred to.

The older members of the party gave a severe lecture to some of the newer men who seem disposed to play off their own bat, regardless of the lead given them by Mr. Borden.

It is probable that after to-day's heart to heart talk there will be a little more party discipline shown.

Willl Opposition Move For Abolition of Bar?

Toronto, Feb. 3.—Mr. Proudfoot's three-fifths appeal motion may not be the only temperance measure coming from the Opposition benches this session.

A Liberal member remarked to the press this morning: "Don't be surprised if we submit a far more advanced resolution on the abolition of the bar."

"Won't that be interferring with your June convention?" he was asked.

"We're not bothering about that. We are running our own show here this session."

Invaluable to Every Farmer

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of Nerviline around the stable, has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. "To cure colic, indigestion and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth the same class as 'Nerviline.' Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop."

NATURE OF BUSINESS

The Company manufactures John McIntosh's celebrated Toffees, the trade names of which are "Old English Toffees" "Treakle Toffee," "Vienna Toffee," "Butter Scotch" "Russian Toffee" and "Buttermild Toffee" as supplied to Queen Alexandra and the Empress of Russia. The business is particularly profitable, and possesses the advantage of being thoroughly established in Canada, as in all other large countries. An understanding of the profit and sale may be gleaned from the knowledge that over 22 tons daily or 8030 tons annually are consumed in Great Britain alone.

History of John MacIntosh's Toffee

The MacIntosh Toffee business was established some 40 years ago in the City of Halifax, England. Mr. MacIntosh commenced business absolutely without capital, boiling his celebrated Toffees in an ordinary kitchen pan on his cottage fire. To-day Mr. MacIntosh controls the largest and oldest Toffee manufacturing business in the world.

Imported From England and United States

Prior to the establishing of a factory in this country, over three cases or 2688 packages of MacIntosh's Toffee was consumed by Canadians daily. This business was done from England and the United States, without the assistance of advertising or local management.

BROCKVILLE WORKS

The Company's buildings at Brockville are large and commodious and are constructed and equipped in a manner suitable to the purposes of the business. The most modern machinery and special appliances installed guarantee a manufacturing capacity of 7 tons of John MacIntosh's Toffee daily or 2555 tons annually.

ACTUAL PROFITS

The cost of producing one case containing 896 packages of John MacIntosh's Toffee ready for sale is $14.00. Study these profits:

"It Is Those Who Invest at Time of Flotation Who Reap Large Profits."—My Opinion.

"I visited Brockville on January 14th and remained there four days. My sole object in going there was to investigate the works and business of John MacIntosh's Toffee, Limited. I studied the details of the business carefully, and in addition to finding a magnificently equipped factory in active operation, I found a good business, managed by men of sterling worth and sound reputation, who have a thorough and practical understanding of the business, gained at the works of the parent Company of John MacIntosh, Limited, Halifax, England, the oldest and largest Toffee Manufacturers in the world. The future welfare of these men is centred in the business and the results of their determination and effort will be the building of a large and important enterprise in Canada.—ATHOL GEORGE ROBERTSON.

REMEMBER—These Shares bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, with the opportunity of earning additional interest.

How to Come to a Decision—You have read the contents of this prospectus and having done so must realize that this offering is particularly good, that it constitutes an investment with all the safeness of a parcel of REAL ESTATE, while containing the interest bearing ability of a good industrial. With this knowledge can you afford to ignore the investment, knowing that no better method can be adopted for the saving and increasing of your small capital.

A NATURAL WONDER.

The Devil's Race Course in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

"The Blue Ridge mountains abound in natural wonders," observed an old resident of Penmar. "Most wonderful of them all, in my opinion, is the Devil's Race Course, which is but a short walk from Penmar.

"At first view this strange natural phenomenon appears like a broad roadway of great stones which extends away up the mountain in a path no human hand could ever build. Many of these great stones weigh tons, while others are only a few hundredweight. Lying close together by the thousand, they present an extraordinary spectacle.

"Tradition has it and scientists agree that a thousand or more years ago this strange track was the bed of an ancient river. The conclusion is drawn from the looks of the stones. They are all well rounded and worn smooth, showing the action of water, which had polished their rough edges no doubt for centuries.

"But the mystery is if this theory be true to explain how the great body of water was confined at the sides, for the course is not hemmed in by high banks, nor is it located in a ravine. In fact, it stands somewhat higher than the natural side of the mountain. The puzzle only intensifies interest in the queer place and multiplies the arguments and theories of its prehistoric origin."—Baltimore American.

THE ANIMAL MIND.

A Story About a Cow and the Calf She Licked.

An absurd story is cited about a cow, showing what creatures of habit animals are. This particular cow would not stand to be milked unless she could lick her calf at the same time. For a long time she always had a calf of some age or other to lick, but at last by ill fortune one of her calves died.

There is no reason why a bereaved mother should mourn her loss just at milking time, but there was the fixed habit of making certain motions. The farmer, however, was a practical psychologist. He stuffed the skin of the calf with hay and let the cow have that to lick. To be sure, the hay calf had neither head nor legs, but a cow has no general ideas concerning the nature of calves nor any special reason for assuming that calves should have heads and legs. It felt right, and it smelled right. It enabled her to go through the customary motions at milking time. Therefore it was sufficient.

By dint of caressing and licking her little calf the tender parent one fine morning unripped it. The hay issued from within, and the cow, manifesting not the slightest surprise or agitation, proceeded tranquilly to devour the unexpected provender.—E. T. Brewster in McClure's Magazine.

One of Field's Jokes.

Edward Everett Hale greatly enjoyed a joke which was perpetrated on him by Eugene Field. Field celebrated one of Dr. Hale's visits to Chicago by giving a luncheon in his honor and inviting a number of prominent persons to meet him. "Field was aware," said Dr. Hale, "that I was a temperance man, and therefore I was somewhat surprised to see that the table on which the luncheon was served was very abundantly supplied with bottles labeled 'Whisky,' 'Brandy' and 'Champagne.' But when these bottles came to be uncorked they were all found to contain nothing but water!"

Effective.

A Chicago judge recently rebuked a person who was sitting in the courtroom with his feet placed upon the table by sending him, through a bailiff, a piece of paper on which he had written the following query: "What size boots do you wear?" The feet were at once withdrawn.

No Panic.

"We had a bad fire scare in church today."

"Good gracious! Was there a panic?"

"Not to notice. The minister preached on the infernal regions."—New York Journal.

Prodigal.

"That fellow seems to be extravagant."

"Hopelessly. He spends his own money just as if it were the government's."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls willalso fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by all dealers.

What's in a Name?

To a certain southern town, on legal business, came a most pompous young lawyer, who, notwithstanding his name was McNaught, had an excellent opinion of himself. He found it necessary to talk with Squire Gardner, an unpolished justice, who had no good opinion of anything and especially of any one who had a good opinion of himself. The squire had never heard of this visitor till he called, and he was a poor hand at remembering names, but he was an expert in human measurements. The young lawyer proceeded promptly to say what he had to say, the squire listening, but watching. Presently he thought it was time for him to say something.

"Hold on, Mr. McCipher," he began.

"My name is McNaught," the lawyer stiffly corrected him.

"Excuse me, excuse me," apologized the squire and finished his remarks.

It was not long until the squire again felt called upon to speak.

"Well, now, Mr. McZero," he started in.

"I said my name was McNaught," the lawyer interrupted sharply.

Again the squire apologized, apologized profusely, and the lawyer concluded his consultation. He was not feeling very kindly toward the squire, but he thought it wise not to manifest his feelings and said goodby with a fair degree of politeness.

"Goodby, Mr. McNothing," said the squire, as innocent as a lamb, and as the visitor walked pompously out of the office the squire chuckled.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Constituent—Say, Bill, the salary that goes with my job isn't half enough to live on. Can't you use your influence to have it raised a little? Alderman—I'm afraid not, Jake. But I'll do better than that. I'll use my influence to have a cheaper man appointed to the place.—Chicago Tribune.

BIG YEAR FOR CANADA LIFE

That a company in its sixty-third year should establish new records in spite of notable achievements in the past is both unusual and unexpected, yet the Canada Life has done that, and the outcome of it is that over $2,000,000 will be allotted in profits to the policy-holders in this, its dividend year. This is largely in excess of the amount divided five years ago, and individual policies will receive materially larger dividends than those of 1905.

All along the line gains were made in 1909, the new business paid for, over $10,000,000, being greater in amount than for several years, while the gain in surplus of nearly $1,200,000, and the increase in assets of almost $3,000,000, constitute records in the company's history.

The total business in force is now almost $125,000,000, the assets aggregate in actual amount as well as in ratio, although the Company's business is constantly increasing.

Grasshoppers, Flowers and Grass

On Tuesday the Herald proudly announced that the first grasshopper of the season had been found and was lively and well in captivity in this office. Yesterday a note was received from H. S. Palmer, W. J. Jordan and D. McDonald of Stirling, saying: "Give this to the grasshopper to hope over. If this ain't enough send the grasshopper down to Stirling," and enclosed in the obvelope was a bunch of prairie grass and everlasting pea, as green and fresh as one would expect to see in May or June. More than that the peas are out in bloom with their pretty little yellow flowers. The grass is from four to eight inches high.

An odd Herald reader may not believe these statements, it was hard for the Herald to believe its eyes when it saw the fresh grass and flowers in the last week in January, but there is no getting away from it all of the senses by which man can learn of the outside world say that the articles touched, tasted, seen or smelled, were fresh, green, grass and fresh flowers. And more than that the gentlemen of Stirling say that there is lots more where this came from.—Lethbridge Herald.

Lonsdale, H. C. Hewitson, J. G. Scott, K.C., George Porter, Wm. G. Watson.

The Vice-President, the Hon. J. J. Foy, took the chair, and Mr. A. D. Langmuir, the Assistant Manager, acted as Secretary to the meeting.

The financial statements, showing the operations of the Corporation for the year ending 31st December, 1909, were submitted and commented upon by the Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir.

TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS OF THE TORONTO GENERAL TRUSTS CORPORATION FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31st. DECEMBER, 1909.

The report to the Shareholders was then read as follows:—

To the Shareholders:—

Your Directors have pleasure in submitting the Twenty-eighth Annual Report of the Corporation, accompanied with the financial statements, showing its operations for the year ended 31st December, 1909.

Executorships	$ 708,115 57
Administrations	311,413 46
Trusteeships	1,534,195 47
Guardianships and Committeeships	69,599 92
Guaranteed Investments	518,923 68
General Agencies	120,700 96
General Investment Agencies	275,774 93
Lunatic Estates	17,281 94
	$3,615,005 93

In addition to the foregoing the Corporation has also been appointed during the year Trustee for Bond issues to the amount of $2,536,000.

The net profits of the year, after payment of all expenses at the Head Office and Branches, and after making provision for every ascertained loss, amount to $182,353.78, as compared with $130,181.80 for 1908. To these net profits have to be added $22,417.16 brought forward from 1908, thus leaving $184,770.94 at the credit of Profit and Loss, as against $153,350.66 in 1908.

Out of these profits your Directors have declared and paid two semi-annual dividends of four per cent., on the Corporation's stock for the year, amounting to $80,000; have added to Reserve the sum of $50,000, thereby increasing that fund to $500,000, and have carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss the sum of $54,770.94, making the total paid-up capital and surplus of the Corporation as at 31st December, 1909, $1,554,770.94.

Your Directors decided during the year that, as the Corporation had quite outgrown its present office and vault accommodation at Toronto, the time had come to make provision for a new Head Office. To this end they have purchased a lot on the corner of Bay and Melinda streets, and are proceeding with the erection of an up-to-date eight-story building, the first three floors of which will be occupied by the Corporation.

Your Directors announce with deep regret that, owing to impaired health, Dr. Hoskin (who for the past four months has been residing in England) desires to retire from the Presidency of the Corporation. A committee of the Directorate has been appointed to carefully consider the question of selecting a fitting successor to Dr. Hoskin, who will be able to devote a good deal of his time to the duties of the Presidency. The Directors are pleased to say that Dr. Hoskin has decided to remain on the Board, and to continue as President until his successor is appointed.

The Hon. S. C. Wood resigned from the Vice-Presidency of the Corporation, as well as from the Directorate, and his place as Vice-President has been filled by the appointment of the Hon. J. J. Foy, K. C., M.P.P., who is one of the charter members of the Corporation, having been a Director continuously for twenty-eight years.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. W. LANGMUIR,
Managing Director.

W. H. BEATTY,
Vice-President.

AUDITORS CERTIFICATE

We, the undersigned, beg to report that we have made a full examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation to the 31st December, 1909, and find same to be correct and properly set forth in the above statements of Profit and Loss and Assets and Liabilities. We have examined, and find in order, all the mortgages, debentures, bonds and scrip of the Corporation, as well as those negotiated for the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, and Trusts, Estates and Agencies in the Corporation's hands, and have checked same with the Mortgage and Debenture Ledgers and Registers. The Bankers' balances, after deducting outstanding cheques, agree with the books of the Corporation.

We have also examined the reports of the Auditors of the Winnipeg and Ottawa Branches, and find that they agree with the Head Office books.

Toronto, January 29th, 1910.

The Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir in Presenting the Statement of Affairs of the Corporation for the Past Year Said:—

It gives me much pleasure to submit the statements showing the operations of the Corporation for the past year, as I am confident they will be accepted by the Shareholders and all concerned as being very satisfactory. The financial results of the past twelve months are the best in the history of the Corporation, and, what is perhaps of equal, if not greater, importance, the year closed with marked evidences of constantly-increasing confidence in and appreciation of the objects of the Corporation.

The Profit and Loss Statement accompanying the report which has just been presented shows that the gross profits of the past year amounted to $324,662.72, and the net profits to $182,353.78, which, together with $22,417.16 brought forward from the previous year, make a total of $184,770.94 brought down to the credit of Profit and Loss.

In the preparation of our Profit and Loss Statement for the year we have continued our policy of only taking such compensation for the management of estates and trusts as has been passed upon by the courts or agreed to by the beneficiaries of estates and trusts. I think, therefore, I am warranted in saying that the Profit and Loss Statement is a satisfactory one; for, after payment of an eight percent. dividend amounting to $80,000, we have added $50,000 to Reserve, and have carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss $54,770.94, making the paid-up capital and surplus of the Corporation $1,554,770.94, an increase for the year of $82,353.78.

The Assets and Liabilities sheet submitted should also be satisfactory, for it will be observed that the assets remaining under the care of the Corporation, after the distribution to beneficiaries of estates of very large amounts, aggregate $37,881,113.53, as compared with $35,161,646.79 last year, or an increase of $2,719,466.74.

The information given to the Shareholders and the public in these statements leads me to again refer to the outstanding features in our work, and which cannot be too often reiterated at annual and other meetings of this Corporation, namely, That we are purely and simply what our name implies—a GENERAL TRUSTS corporation transacting a business of a purely fiduciary character. We are in no sense a speculative company, for we scrupulously confine ourselves to the management of estates, trusts and work of a kindred character. We do not conduct a banking department for the receipt of deposits to be held subject to withdrawal by cheque, believing that our entire energies should be devoted to the proper and prompt investment of the trust and agency funds committed to our care. I have, however, no fault to find with companies that adopt a different course, but, believing that trust companies created for the administration of trusts and estates should practically last forever, the Board of this Corporation have laid down the principle, and have acted on it from its inception, that we shall exclusively confine ourselves to a trust and agency business.

Dr. Hoskin further states: "There are many matters connected with the interests of the Corporation and its beneficiaries present to my mind, which, however, are beyond the scope of this letter, but I may be pardoned for briefly referring to one, viz., that concerning litigation—a matter concerning which I can speak with some confidence, regard being had to the fact that my practice was almost entirely connected with estates and their administration. During the existence of this Corporation, now extending over a period of twenty-seven years, it has been Executor, Trustee, etc., for thousands of estates, yet litigation against the Corporation has been practically nil, and, so far as my memory serves me, in no case has it been adverse, a matter upon which I have often commented, and which certainly reflects credit upon the Corporation, and should commend itself to beneficiaries and the public. And this record is all the more surprising when one considers the conflicting interests that spring up between those for whom we are Trustees, and the knotty and troublesome questions that are constantly arising in connection with the administration of Trusts—a gratifying result arising, I am justified in saying, from the care exercised by the Board of Management."

I can only add that Mr. Hoskin was admirably fitted for the position of President of a Trust Company. His great experience in legal work familiar to what came before him as President, and his unfailing courtesy with all who came in contact with him, exceptionally well qualified him for the position.

It was with much regret that the Board received the resignation of the Hon. S. C. Wood as Vice-President, as well as from the Directorate, and as his successor had to be elected at once the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P., was appointed Vice-President in his stead.

Before I sit down I have pleasure in stating that the investments made by the Corporation for trust, guarantee and agency accounts, as well as for

On motion of the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., seconded by Sir Wm. Mortimer K.C., the report of the Directors was adopted.

The report of the Inspection Committee was also adopted as signed by the Hon. J. J. Foy, Sir Aemilius Irving and Mr. Frederick Wyld.

W. H. Beatty, John L. Blaikie, W. R. Brock, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Sir Wm. Mortimer Clark, K.C., LL.D., Hon. Senator W. C. Edwards, Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., Col. Hon. J. M. Gibson, K.C., Arthur C. Hardy, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., J. W. Langmuir, Thomas Long, J. Bruce Macdonald, Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., W. D. Matthews, Hon. Peter McLaren, E. B. Osler, J. G. Scott, K.C., Sir Aemilius Irving, K.C., Hon. Senator Robert Jaffray, Samuel Nordheimer, B. E. Walker, LL.D., D.S.O., D. R. Wilkie, Frederick Wyld, E. T. Malone, K.C.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors Dr. John Hoskin re-elected President, and W. H. Beatty and the Hon. J. J. Foy, K. C., Vice-Presidents.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" relies you.

It is safe to say that no product of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

The Lindsay hockey team will have a special coach for ladies on the train to-night. The expect to bring a good bunch of the fair sex as well as a crowd of the town's strongest rooters. It is a case of root hog or die. Lindsay must win or quit. If Peterborough gets this game they certainly will get the district. A Peterborough win would mean at least one more big gate for each team. Financially it would be a good move.

Four rinks of Lindsay curlers will accompany the hockey team tonight on the special train and will play four rinks of the local club a friendly game.

Boy Scalded to Death Little Sister Burned

Girl's Clothes Caught Fire Downstairs While Brother Fell Into Boiling Water Upstairs---An Oshawa Tragedy

Toronto, Feb. 11.—A tragedy in an Oshawa home was revealed at the Sick Children's Hospital last night, when little Maud Maton, aged about two years, was admitted to be treated for terrible burns on the left side and arm, which she received in the kitchen of her home last Tuesday while her mother was upstairs frantic in attention upon her three-year-old boy, Johnnie, who had fallen into the bath tub filled with boiling water. The little boy died on Wednesday from scalds. Mr. Alfred Schofield, of the Children's Aid Society, brought the baby to Toronto. She will probably recover.

It appears that Mrs. Maton was in an upstairs room preparing to give the youngsters a bath. Maudie was left alone downstairs. The mother poured the boiling water into the tub, and while her back was turned Johnnie fell into it and was dreadfully scalded. In the meantime Maudie played around the stove and her clothing caught fire. Her screams brought the mother from her other afflicted child and she quenched the flames. When assistance was secured it was seen that nothing could be done for Johnnie, who lingered in agony until death relieved his sufferings the following afternoon.

The authorities were notified, and the Children's Aid Society brought the little girl here. The father of the children is Fred Maton.

COL. SOUTHALL HERE.

Head of the Sunday School Work of the S.A.

Lieut.-Colonel Southall, who is visiting the Salvation Army Temple on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 12th and 13th, is the Young People's Secretary and is widely known throughout the Dominion. In his present capacity he is responsible for the Sunday School operations of the Army.

The local corps will extend a hearty welcome to the colonel on Saturday night and it is anticipated that his visit will result in much benefit to the work here.

Interesting meetings will be held on Sunday. In the afternoon Mrs. Southall will give a special address to the young people and parents.

At night the colonel's subject will be "Guaranteed Safety."

MR. BURNHAM HONORED.

Is Presented With Pipe on Quitting Journalism.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. J. H. Burnham, who recently retired from the editorship of the Review to take up the practice of law with Mr. R. M. Ruddy, K.C., was presented with a handsome pipe by the members of the business and editorial staffs of of the office. During his term as editor Mr. Burnham has not only been very popular with all departments of the Review, but also with the general public as well. The Times hopes after his somewhat stormy experience in newspaper life, that this may be a veritable pipe of peace, and that he may long enjoy all the good things which this checquered life can afford.

Mr. and Mrs. Fife Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fife, 507 Harvey street, entertained the employes of the Peterborough Light and Power Company on Thursday night, and those in attendance spent a most enjoyable time. Mr. Fife showed stereoptican views of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific along the line of the C.P.R. Afterwards an oyster supper was partaken of, and a social time spent. Scottish, English and Irish selections on Mr. Joe Daignault's gramaphone added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Hip Broken.

A man named Ned Keating, who resides near Campbellford, but who has been employed by the Cavendish Lumber Company about fifty miles north of here, met with a painful accident on Tuesday and was brought to this city on Thursday and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where the fracture was set by Dr. McNulty, and the injured man is now in much more pleasant circumstances than has been the case from the time of the accident up to last evening. The accident took place about three miles from the camp and was caused by a big log rolling off a sleigh.

CLEAR-HEADED.

Head Bookkeeper Must Be Reliable.

The chief bookkeeper in a large business house in one of our great Western cities speaks of the harm coffee did for him:

"My wife and I drank our first cup of Postum a little over two years ago, and we have used it ever since, to the entire exclusion of tea and coffee. It happened in this way:

"About three and a half years ago I had an attack of pneumonia, which left a memento in the shape of dyspepsia, or rather, to speak more correctly, neuralgia of the stomach. My 'cup of cheer' had always been coffee or tea, but I became convinced after a time that they aggravated my stomach trouble. I happened to mention the matter to my grocer one day, and he suggested that I give Postum a trial.

"Next day it came, but the cook made the mistake of not boiling it sufficiently, and we did not like it very much. This was, however, soon remedied, and now we like it so much that we will never change back. Postum, being a food beverage instead of a drug, has been the means of curing my stomach trouble. I verily believe, for I am a well man today and have used no other remedy.

"My work as chief bookkeeper in our Co's branch house here is of a very confining nature. During my coffee-drinking days I was subject to nervousness and 'the blues' in addition to my sick spells. These have left me since I began using Postum and I can conscientiously recommend it to those whose work confines them to long hours of severe mental exertion."

"There's a reason."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

CONCERT AND TEA.

In Murray Street Baptist Church Last Night.

The Ladies' Aid of the Murray St. Baptist church gave a tea and concert last night, the proceeds of which will be devited to the building fund. A splendid program was given. Mr. Whitehouse of the Nordheimer Piano Company, Toronto, delighted those present with his selections on the piano, and was heartily encored. Mr. Johns gave two recitations, Mrs Greenslade and Mrs. Rehill a duett, Miss Hill a recitation, Mr. Downey a solo, Miss Watson a piano solo, and Miss Bessie Elcombe a piano solo. Mr. Vincent Eastwood made a very acceptable chairman for the evening. The ladies served refreshments.

DYSPEPSIA AS IT BEGINS.

This Stage Easily Cured.

One of the most common symptom of stomach disorder is a sense of fulness or lightness after eating. This indicates that the stomach needs help, belching of gas frequently follows, the tongue is coated, the bowels become irregular, until finally, in addition to the stomach distress, constipation adds its deadly influence in destroying health.

The treatment is simple and if employed promptly and reasonably persevered with, cure is speedy and permanent. Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills in full doses every second or third night, then three times a week, one pill at bed time.

The first effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills is to excite activity of the liver and kidneys. This cleanses the system and prepares the stomach for vigorous work. Gastric juice is abundantly secreted, digestion of food and not its fermentation, marks stomach activity with total absence of gas and removal of other symptoms of perverted action.

For good health, vigorous appetite and the best digestion, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. No other medicine will do so much good. Price 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

The Late Mrs. Jones.

On Thursday evening the death occurred of Mrs. Robert N. Jones, 568 Charlotte street, after an illness of eight weeks. The deceased was 39 years of age and was a daughter of Mr. David Flack of Manvers. She was married fifteen years ago and her husband, with two sons, Arthur and Earl, are left to mourn her loss. Mrs. G. Wilson of Vellverton, is a sister, and one brother, Arthur, resides in Manvers. The late Mrs. Jones had possessed many estimable qualities and her demise will be sincerely regretted. She was a member of All Saints' church. The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

INS AND OUTS.

The Examiner is out with the apparently authentic information that Lent is here.

It is said that Mr. Burnham when in newspaper work, did most of his writing while standing. Which may be one of the reasons why some of the Grits couldn't stand his articles.

A subscriber asks The Times why it is that more women do not vote at civic elections. Perhaps they are under the impression that it is necessary to tell their age before they can do so.

The Examiner remarks that "women do not always stay single from choice." But they often wished they had done so.

Board of Trade to Take Charge of Scheme to Promote Industrial Development of Peterborough

On Council Agreeing to Grant Board $2,000, the Officers Decide to Attempt to Raise $2,000 or More---Committee of Whole Council and Deputation from Board of Trade Dealt with the Question

Ald. Gillespie, the council in Committee of the Whole last night, decided to grant $200 to the Board of Trade on the condition that the board take charge of the schemes to develop Peterborough from an industrial standpoint and raise $2,000 or more by public subscription.

The members of the council present were Mayor Morrow, Aldermen Batten, Phelan, Gillespie, Turner, Buller, Metheral and Bradburn. They were not unanimous on the proposition. Aldermen Bradburn, Turner, Gillespie and Phelan voted in favor of giving $2,000. Ald. Metheral voted against it, and Ald. Buller did not vote at all.

The deputation from the Board of Trade consisted of Messrs. D. O'Connell, J. H. Lamonth, W. H. Denham and D. Hughes Charles. The matter was discussed for an hour. The members of the council could not see their way clear to add a mill to the tax rate to raise funds to carry on the work of the industrial and publicity department for a year. One mill on the assessment would raise $4,300. Leaving an appropriation for the industrial and publicity department out of the estimates, the lowest rate that could be secured, the mayor and Ald Bradburn stated, was 22 mills. Last year it was 19½ mills.

Finally Mr. O'Connell proposed that if the council would make a substantial grant to the Board of Trade, that body would undertake to raise $2,000, or more if possible, to make the necessary sum required.

The mayor suggested a grant of a thousand dollars from the city and stated that it might be made more after it was seen how the Board of Trade got along in securing subscriptions from merchants, manufacturers, commercial men and others.

The Board of Trade deputation would not agree to undertake the work with a grant of only $1,000 from the city, and to settle the question Ald. Turner moved that the council grant $2,000. In doing so he warmly supported the project. Ald. Gillespie seconded the motion and it carried as stated before.

HOUSE OF REFUGE.

The House of Refuge question was discussed briefly and it was decided to leave the matter over for a later meeting at which Rev. H. J. Keith and Rev. Father McColl will be present.

Mr. D. Belleghem appeared before the committee in connection with the Dan Spence ambulance question. It was discovered that the contract Mr. Belleghem had with the city required him to take out of town cases from the stations to the hospitals. This was not considered satisfactory to the committee and it was decided to send the matter back to the Property Committee with instructions to revise the contract.

The mayor, Ald. Bradburn and Ald Phelan were appointed a committee to go into the proposition of the C.P.R. in regard to the entrance into the city of the proposed grain route.

Mr. R. T. Braund addressed the committee in reference to the proposed entrance of the grain route in the vicinity of his store in the southwestern part of the city. The closing of the streets, as shown in the plans submitted by the C.P.R. would ruin his business. He was not opposed to the project but he did not want to have his business injured without compensation.

Mayor Morrow informed Mr. Braund that the city would keep his position in view when making any agreement with the railway company.

Capt. Scott will Take Three White Men to the Pole

London, Feb, 11.—Captain Robert F. Scott, commander of the British Antaractic expedition soon to set out, in a lecture at York, defended Commander Peary's action in sending Captain Bartlett back. He said that some injustice had been done Peary in this respect, and while it would have been better if he had organized the party so that he could have had another white man accompany him to the Pole, under the circumstances he had no choice, because he was bound to send Bartlett back as leader of the Eskimos.

Captain Scott expressed the hope that his expedition would arrive at the South Pole before the Americans reached that desirable objective point, and announced his intention to have four whites in each party, and take the whitest man to make the long journey, so that the world would have the evidence of three white men to support that of the leader.

PEARY IS PLEASED.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Commander Robert E. Peary returned to Washington last night expressing gratification that the Senate had passed a bill which will promote him to the rank of rear-admiral, with immediate retirement, and that the National Geographic Society accepted the offer of the Peary Arctic Club to conduct a joint expedition to the South Pole.

"I feel it is a great distinction to be honored by the Senate," said Commander Peary. "If I am retired finally, I will devote the rest of my life to studying Arctic and Antarctic problems and helping the American people to achieve further successes along these lines."

Must End Veto of Lords First

London, Feb. 11.—That there is considerable dissension in the Cabinet is beyond doubt. Apparently Lloyd George and Winston Churchill were not invited to last night's dinner party at the home of War Secretary Haldane. The gathering was confined to the more conservative members, who desire to pass the budget, and so place the finances of the country upon a normal basis before tackling the question of the Lords and their prerogatives.

The Cabinet held a two hours' conference yesterday, and will meet again today to complete the redistribution of portfolios, and to perfect the government's program.

GRATEFUL TO UNITED STATES.

Dublin, Feb. 11.—Addressing his fellow Nationalists yesterday, Mr. Redmond said that they were celebrating the successful campaign for home rule in Ireland and Great Britain. Ireland has now a party of 72 members, more united, and therefore more powerful, than any Irish party in the past, and never again in their lifetime would men, nominally pledge-bound members of the party be permitted to discredit their colleagues and thwart the party's policy.

Mr. Redmond paid a tribute to T. P. O'Connor's visit to America, and asked the Irish people to remember that the Irish people had fought the election with money supplied by the colonies and America. The Lord only knew, he said, how near they were to another election, and Irishmen should not forget that no call had been made on them for the last.

The question of the veto of the Lords, continued Mr. Redmond, was for them in Ireland the question of home rule, and there had been a majority of 120 against the veto and in favor of home rule.

He believed that Mr. Asquith was a man of his word, and he would not insult the prime minister by suggesting that he was likely to go back on his home rule declarations.

For the government to pass the budget and postpone the veto question was a policy that Ireland could and would not approve, but if Premier Asquith stood to his pledges he would have the support of the Irish party.

Mr. Redmond concluded by saying that he was prepared to subordinate every question to the question of home rule. If home rule was to be put aside he would fight for the budget, and if it were a question of securing home rule he would support the budget.

Most of those who held that Canada had a peculiar interest in the contest talked of tariff reform. The Duke of Argyle hoped that the Old Country would "play up for" commercial concert with the rest of the Empire." Austen Chamberlain says that tariff reform holds the field, and make converts daily. Lord Northcliffe regrets that many Canadians do not realize that the election turns mainly on two questions—tariff reform or free trade—large or small navy." Lord Northcliffe, we regret to say, has not dropped his regretful tone in speaking of this country.

As it happened, tariff reform did not play an important part as was expected, and the London Times admits that it did not receive the public approval. The Unionist successes were largely in rural constituencies, whose only interest in tariff reform is the taxation of food supplies, colonial or foreign. The industrial districts of Great Britain want cheap food and the open market; and the open market is better for Canada than the system of protection and preference which the tariff reformers propose.

Roosevelt Must First See the Pope

Rome, Feb. 11.—"My feelings have not been hurt in the slightest by the Vatican's cancellation of my appointment to call upon the Pope," said Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice-president of the United States as he busied himself with preparations for his departure tomorrow for Berlin.

"Were the whole thing to do over, I think I would act just as I have. I certainly would not have paid the great Methodist Church and its representatives in Rome the gratuitous insult of refusing to address the local church, after making the appointment to do so, merely to preserve what might be called my eligibility to call at the Vatican.

"I am sorry that the incident has resulted in stirring up feeling between Protestants and Catholics. The Vatican has certain rules that it deems to be proper regarding the Pope's reception to public men, and I think that we should assume that it knows what rules are best in the government of its actions."

The statement of Mgr. Bisleti, papal major domo, that ex-President Roosevelt has notified the Vatican of his desire to call upon the Pope, has awakened fresh interest in Mr. Roosevelt's coming. He has been invited to address the Methodist Church in Rome, but, in view of the Fairbank's incident, it is assumed that he will pay his respects to the Pope before appearing before the Methodists.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, will have to give the Pope precedence over King Victor Emmanuel, who will also receive him in audience and entertain him in the palace. The Vatican's rules forbid an audience by the Pope to anyone who first honors the King. King Emmanuel has no objection to receiving those who pay their first respects to the Pope.

Seven Murders to His Account

Richmond, Va., Feb. 11.—Howard Little, who murdered Mrs. Betsey Justis, her son-in-law, George Meadows, and his waife and three children in their home near Hurley, Buchanan county, last September, was put to death by electrocution in the penitentiary here at noon today, without unusual incident.

Most murderers are executed for single murders; Howard Little has seven to his account. There were six at once in the wholesale butchery for which he was sentenced to die in the electric chair here today—a man, two women and three children. The victims were Mrs. Betty Justis, George Meadows, Mrs. Meadows and three children of the latter couple, all killed together in Buchanan county one night last fall.

Little was no ordinary "low-browed" criminal. He bore an excellent reputation in which he lived, and a number of his friends still believe in his innocence. He is described as one of the handsomest men in the State; over six feet in height, and weighing 236 pounds. Except for his association with women, he carried himself generally without reproach.

While holding the position of United States Marshall for the Eastern District of Kentucky he shot and killed George McKinney, and was sentenced to a life term in the Kentucky penitentiary. He was pardoned after a short period and moved back to Virginia.

Cabinet Prepares The King's Speech

London, Feb. 11.—The terms of the King's speech with which the new Parliament will be opened were finally agreed upon at today's adjourned meeting of the Cabinet. Subsequently the ministers dispersed, several going to the country for the week-end, so that there will be no further conferences before Monday. The Cabinet had before it today a sort of ultimatum from the National directory of the United Irish League modelled on the lines of John Redmond's speech of last night. The communication pointed out that pledges would be required regarding the Lords' power of veto and home rule for Ireland as a condition of Nationalist support on the budget and the general work of The Parliamentary session. Mr. Redmond left Dublin for London today to lend his personal influence of the furtherance of these demands.

Doctor Fears for Lives of Little Quadruples

LILE WILSON QUARTETET.

Viva Jean Wilson, 3 pounds.
Margaret Beryl Wilson, 3 pounds.
Barbara Alberta Wilson, 1¾ pounds.
Clara Emma Wilson, 2 2-3 pounds.

They have put on four or five ounces each since their birth.

Burk's Falls, Feb. 11.— Will they live? That is the question. These four tiny girls, whose simultaneous birth by one mother in Burk's Falls last Thursday has been a lively topic of conversation all over Canada for the past seven or eight days —will they live? If they do, all precedent will be disregarded, for in the only other known case where quadruplets were born in Canada three died almost immediately. If they do not, at least they have made themselves the most famous persons in Canada for their age, for many a man in public life is known less than this quartet of week-old infants.

In the few days they have already been fighting for breathing they have entertained over half the population of Burk's Falls, and people from Edmonton, Calgary, Revelstoke, Toronto, North Bay, Orangeville, and other places have come to see the four wonders of the day. Hardly a train comes into the Grand Trunk station but leaves a visitor, whose sole purpose is to get a glimpse of the Wilson quartet.

At first Dr. H. L. Barber, the family physician, thought they couldn't live beyond an hour or so, but when they seemed as healthy as other babies preparations were made to entertain them permanently. Three nurses have been secured, and Dr. Barber calls several times a day. Besides relatives are on hand to help.

The result of all this attention is that the four babies are still alive "and kicking," as the saying is, after eight days' strenuous battle.

MACKINTOSH PREFERRED.

"Will they live?" this question has been asked of the doctor a hundred and more times. In answering a reporter, Dr. Butler was non-committal.

"They have a pretty slim chance," he said, with a shake of the head. Just at present they all seem to be doing fairly well, but I don't think that a baby of under three pounds weight has much of a chance to survive. Of course, they may pull through. We are certainly doing everything we know to keep them in the land of the living, but I will be surprised if any one of them ever sees another birthday."

"They are all on about the same footing, you think, as to their possibility of living?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, they have all had their bad spells, but there isn't one of them as heavy as it ought to be."

THE BABIES CHRISTENED.

They had the children christened the Thursday evening on which they were born. They feared that if it was let wait for even a day they would be too late. Rev. A. T. Barnard, M.A., of St. Andrew's church, performed the ceremony, and the names selected were as follows: Viva Jean, Margaret Beryl, Barbara Alberta, Clara Emma.

It is Clara Emma, the youngest who had been so ill. She weighed 2 2-3 pounds at the time of birth. Barbara Alberta is the tiniest one of the lot, she weighed only 1¾ pounds, but she seems to be the liveliest member of the quartet. The other two weighed an even three pounds a piece. On Thursday morning they were all weighed again, and it was found that a growth of between four and five ounces apiece had been the result of the week's care.

THE TOWN CHARACTER.

"Ike" Wilson, the proud father of the quartet, is the character of the town. One of his legs is several inches shorter than the other, and he has only one eye. It would seem as if a man with such handicaps as these would have a hard time to make a living in a town the size of Burk's Falls. But Nature has divided her gifts equally after all, for in Mr. Wilson's ready wit and keen intellect she has provided him with the means of a good livelihood. He is an auctioneer, and one of such marked success in his calling that he does 90 per cent. of the auctioneering in the township. Opposition has been started, but, it is said, has failed every time.

Mackintosh Preferred

Is a Safe and Profitable Investment.

Interviewed regarding Mackintosh Preference Shares as an investment, Athol George Robertson of Manning Chambers, Toronto, Trustee of this company, stated as follows: The offering of cumulative preference shares of the Mackintosh Company is something exceptionally good as a sound and profitable investment, the business is thoroughly established in Canada, and the officers and directors are men of known integrity and financial worth, there is no speculative feature in the investment, and those who are looking for outrageous profits will not find it tempting, but the conservative investor who will reasonably consider safeness combined with dividend paying ability, would have a hard task to discover its equal in a security likely to pay from 10 per cent. to 15 per cent. One of Canada's leading weekly papers has recently been condemning the flotation of large companies of no particular standing, the kind of company that allots the larger portion of its stock to the promoters. I wish to point out that the good work accomplished by this weekly paper in ridding Canada of these promoters of paper companies, is not intended to injure legitimate enterprise, and that those who have money to invest and capable of using their good judgment, will do well to study the prospectus of the Mackintosh Company, published in this issue.

GIVES CLEARNESS TO SKIN

Heals and Purifies Blood and Thereby Keeps you in Good Health.

Most women and some men try to remove yellowishness of skin, blotches, dark lines under the eyes by cosmetiques. Such means are as useless as disappointing. When the skin lacks clearness, particularly when the body is emaciated, it is simply the stain upon the skin of impurities in the bowels that are carried about by the blood. Sluggish activity is certainly the cause of bad complexion even if regularity should be pretty fair.

Better than any cosmetique, because they remove the cause of skin discoloration, Dr. Hamilton's Pills ensure inward cleansing and activity. In addition to their laxative action they are a true tonic to all the eliminating organs, liver, kidneys, bowels, and glands. Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the cause of all blood troubles that manifest themselves outwardly, and they fortify and strengthen the organs and thereby prevent a return of diseased conditions.

One box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills proves their merit, even one dose shows how different they are from other pills, 25c. per box, at all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

INTERESTING STATISTICS.

Practically one-half the vessels and one-half the tonnage of the world's merchant marine flies the British flag. Sea-borne commerce has assumed tremdous proportions, and with the development of Canada, Australia, Spanish America, Siberia and even China, it is bound to expand rapidly. The latest report of the United States bureau of statistics apportions ships and tonnage among the various nations as follows:

Flag.	Number of Vessels.	Ton
British	11,563	18,700,000
American (including lake traffic)	2,250	4,800,000
German	2,178	4,232,000
Norwegian	2,148	2,000,000
French	1,517	1,683,000
Italian	1,100	1,300,000
Japanese	870	1,142,000
Russian	1,400	1,000,000
Swedish	1,550	900,000
Dutch	565	900,000
Spanish	551	700,000

London's trade is greater than that of any other port in the world, amounting to $1,620,000,000 a year, and Liverpool's is almost as much. The incoming and outgoing ships of Hamburg and Bremen combined carried freight to the value of $2,025,000,000 during 1907, while Antwerp's share last year was $1,000,000,000. The French ports of Marseilles and Havre do an annual business of close on a billion dollars between them. The growth of Japanese merchantmen since 1880 has been remarkable, the tonnage having increased from 89,000 to 1,142,000, while the trade of the three ports of Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki now totals $350,000,000 annually.

One striking feature of the statistics is the indifferent showing made by the United States. It is true that country ranks second in vessels and tonnage, but if what is employed on the inland lakes is deducted the ocean-going tonnage will be found almost negligible. The American flag has almost vanished from the high seas, whereas fifty years ago the United States mercantile marine was challenging Britain's supremacy. The ship-building industry in the republic has been almost killed by the tariff upon every material that enters into the construction of ships. It lives upon the lake business, of which it has a monopoly under the coasting laws. The United States is low in the scale, too, as regards commerce. Shanghai, with trade amounting to $256,000,000 outranks New Orleans, the second United States port, by $50,000,000, while Calcutta, Bombay and Singapore, with $910,000,000, exceed by $40,000,000 annually all United States ports excepting New York and New Orleans. In view of the competition of the Canadian route, which bears particularly hard on New York, there does not appear any likelihood of an improvement in the showing of United States ports in the near future.

THAT HEAVY DEFICIT.

In great measure liquor license fees and timber dues are payable to the Government in November and December. It was this fact that led the Provincial Treasurer in his budget speech a year ago to predict a heavy deficit for the short fiscal year of ten months ending on October 31st 1909. He now enjoys the happy result of having made an ultra-conservative forecast of the available income. The revenue for the ten months exceeded expectations by more than a million dollars and fell only a few thousands short of the ordinary expenditure.

The excess of the actual revenue over the amount estimated came partly from Crown lands, partly from succession duties, and partly from the Provincial railway. The heavy fines imposed during the year in a measure explain the large contribution from the liquor traffic. The taking out of a great number of company charters accounted in some extent for the increased revenue from the Provincial Secretary's department. For the whole calendar year the income more than met the ordinary outgo.

For the year commencing November 1st 1909 and ending October 31st 1910, the legislature already has voted $7,500,000 in main and supplementary estimates. Colonization roads and statutory expenditure will increase the estimated total outlay considerably. Colonel Matheson calculates that his revenue will fall several hundred thousand dollars short of the revenue.

The anticipated deficit is attributed partly to the low estimate which the Provincial treasurer places on the year's income from succession duties and partly to the larger payments to the University. Nor is it to be overlooked that the year's estimates include a capital outlay of between $500,000 and $600,000 on the new Central Prison and the new wing of the Parliament Buildings. The Provincial Treasurer's income for 1909 turned out a full million dollars better than his estimate, and the same thing may occur this year. For one thing the returns from succession dues may run much heavier than is expected. There is reason for economy, but none for alarm. The organization of the districts of Northern Ontario into counties would relieve the Government of the burden of local administration, and money might be saved in that way. Moreover, after the pending census the Province will receive an increased subsidy from the Dominion treasury.

WILL THEY DESERT THE INFANT?

A royal commission on tariff reform for Great Britain is suggested. Such a commission would in all probabily show what is already known—that in the agricultural constituencies the tariff reformers want taxes on food, and that in the urban constituencies the tariff reformers want taxes on manufq?turers, with free food. A tariff commission carried on by private funds at the instance of Mr. Chamberlain examined the farmers and found some enthusiasm for taxes on foreign grains, but none for a preference for colonial grain; a royal commission would probably have a similar experience.

The failure of the protectionists to carry the industrial centers, with the exception of those under the direct personal influence of Mr Chamberlain, has had a marked effect. Some of the protectionists attribute the chilliness of the atmosphere to the proposed food taxes, and propose to drop them. But by doing this they would risk the loss of the agricultural constituencies, to which the Unionists owe whatever measure of success they have achieved. They would also have to abandon the idea of binding the Empire together by taxing foreign wheat three cents a bushel more than colonial wheat. This seems a little thing to forsake, but as it is all that now remains of Mr. Chamberlain's policy, there would be something cold-blooded in the act of desertion.

IRELAND'S POSITION.

The prospect that Mr. Redmond and his band of Irish Nationalists will hold the balance of power in the new Imperial Parliament recalls the fact that Mr. Parnell and his followers wrecked a former Liberal Administration. It was in 1885 that the Parnellites joined the Conservatives, and turned out the Gladstone Ministry. Lord Salisbury then formed his first government, which was to retain office till a general election could be held under the new Franchise Act.

Lord Carnarvon was appointed Viceroy of Ireland. He was known to have liberal views on Irish self-government. His personal relations with Parnell were friendly. During the period between the formation of the Salisbury Government and the elections, Carnarvon had two interviews with Parnell. These meetings were held with Lord Salisbury's consent. The heads of a home rule bill were talked over. No definite bargain was made by either statesman. Lord Carnarvon was careful to tell Parnell that he spoke for himself only.

When the elections took place the Irish vote in England and Scotland was cast for the Conservatives. They failed to win, and (as now) the Home Rulers held the balance between the two parties. Parliament met in February, 1886. Lord Salisbury declared for coercion. Thereupon the Irish members joined the Liberals on Jesse Collings' motion re agricultural reforms. Their action turned out the Conservatives.

Gladstone then took office on a pledge to introduce Home Rule. He brought in his bill on April. It was thrown out in the Commons. He appealed to the country in June, 1886, and was beaten by a majority of one hundred. It is possible that the nation faces similar stirring times. The Irish will hold the whip hand in the Commons. They want Home Rule, but at the same time they dislike the budget, and know that tariff reform would make Ireland prosperous. Failing to secure a sweeping measure of self-government from Mr. Asquith, they conceivably might go over to Mr. Balfour, particularly if the Unionist leader saw his way clear to giving England, Ireland and Scotland each a legislature to manage its own local affairs, thus leaving the Imperial parliament to deal exclusively with the larger national and Imperial issues.

NOT INVINCIBLE.

When Art Experts Are Taken In by Crooked Dealers.

All "antiquities" are not antique. The art of the old-time is an art that conceals itself sometimes enough to be almost impossible of detection.

The doubt that has been cast by art experts generally upon the wax bust attributed to Leonardo da Vinci purchased by Dr. Bode for the German Government for £8,000, is by no means an isolated incident in the history of art collecting.

It has yet to be decided whether this bust is the work of the great and versatile Leonardo or Mr. Cockle Lucas, the recently deceased wax modeller; but it is an undeniable fact that there is hardly a public collection that does not contain several items, the authenticity of which would not bear investigation.

At the Victoria and Albert Museum, the Louvre, and elsewhere, it has more than once been discovered that treasures that had been long venerated as unique are most flagrant forgeries.

Some years ago, a Parliamentary commission was held upon the contents of the museum at South Kensington, and very early in the evidence it transpired that the predecessor of the then curator had removed over fifty objects, as either forgeries or as absolutely worthless, which had been considered of great importance and value.

For instance, the authorities purchased three items at the famous Hamilton Palace sale in 1882, all of which proved to be other than was supposed. Those were the Agate Cup, purchased for $2,500; the Cardinal Wolsley chair; and a Vernis Martin cabinet, which cost the nation no less than $4,000.

The cup proved to be a made-up piece, worth, at the most, $250; the chair, which was supposed to be English fifteenth century work, turned out to be Cingalese work of the eighteenth century; and the cabinet, though partly genuine, was discovered to contain panels made by a man who later, upon obtaining employment at the museum, readily recognised his handiwork.

There is also at South Kensington a statue attributed to Michael Angelo which many claim to be a made-up piece; whilst a terra-cotta bust of Savonarola in the same collection, purchased in the middle of last century as a genuine example of fifteenth century work, was later discovered to be of quite modern manufacture.

In the National Gallery there is more than one work, the attributes of which does not meet with general acceptance.

In 1904, when the portrait of Ariosto, by Titian, was acquired for the nation for the huge sum of $150,000, there were many who claimed—and, in fact, still do so—that the portrait was not by Titian; and, moreover, that it was not a portrait of the famous Italian poet.

Another remarkable instance of experts being hoaxed is that of the purchase of a picture, reputed to be by the great French landscape artist Corot, for the New Dublin Gallery of Modern Art, a few years ago.

The sensational discovery at the Bath Picture Gallery that, of the 250 pictures labelled with the greatest names in the history of art, only seventy were genuine, is still fresh in the memories of most readers.

Transmigration of Souls.

First Johnnie—What caused him to renounce theosophy? The last time I saw him he was claiming to be the reincarnation of his grandfather.

Second Johnnie—Yes. He firmly believed that he was the reincarnation of his grandfather, but people began dunning him for money they had lent the old gentleman fifty years ago, and he dropped the theory like a hot potato.

Good at Learning.

Mrs. Post—Do you think you'll smoke when your older, Johnnie? They say it makes one awfully sick at first.

Johnnie (aged ten)—I don't expect any bother over it, mother. It wasn't the slightest effort for me to learn to swear.

Wasn't Necessary.

"Our family is awfully exclusive," said one little girl to another who had just moved into the adjoining flat. "Is yours?"

"Oh, no!" replied the other. "We haven't anything to be ashamed of."

ELECTION ABSURDITIES.

The British Voters Act Abounds in Funny Situations.

The British Parliament cannot be dissolved until it has been prorogued. The prorogation is effected through the Privy Council, which, summoned by the Sovereign at the advice of his ministers, advises him to prorogue Parliament—in other words, to declare the existing session at an end.

This procedure must be scrupulously carried out before any Parliament can cease to exist, and during the interregnum between the dissolution of one Parliament and the assembling of the next the executive power is vested in the Privy Council and the Lord Chancellor.

The royal proclamation dissolves, not the Commons only but also the Lords; and it is interesting to note that, while the twenty-eight Irish peers sit for life, the sixteen representatives which Scotland sends to the Upper House are freshly elected at each general election.

The absurdities of Britain's registration laws are numerous. While the complicated machinery of a general election has been greatly simplified of late years, the qualification which enable a man to vote, or the restrictions which prevent him from so doing, are in many cases amazingly absurd.

Take, for instance, the case of a lodger who has qualified for a latch-key vote. He marries his landlady. At once he loses his vote, and it takes him possibly about six years to qualify for a vote as householder. And yet he has been living in the same house the whole time.

The unfortunate lodger's treatment at the ruthless hands of the registration law is positively brutal. If he moves from one house to the next door he loses his vote, and, until he regains it, has no more say in the government of the country than a convicted criminal. The tenant occupier, on the other hand, when he moves, may claim a concession, and never lose his vote at all. He is also obliged to claim his vote afresh every year.

Again, take the case of a man who owns two cottages, or even two fields—one in one Parliamentary division, the other over the border in another. If each is worth forty shillings a year, he gets two votes. Another man who has fifty fields, but all in one division, is forced to content himself with one vote, although his holdings is worth twenty times that of his neighbor who has two votes.

The most absurd provision of the anomalous act applies when a man happens to occupy premises through which runs the boundary line between two Parliamentary divisions. Assuming that each part is sufficient in value to give him two votes, his qualification is determined by the boundary line in his bed-room. He votes in the division in which his head lies!

Voters have been disqualified for the most trivial causes. In one case a London tailor, a keen politician, lost his vote because the overseers, by a small blunder, described his property as a "dwelling-house" instead of a "shop."

Again, during the process of polling, ballot papers are disqualified for reasons which seem absolutely trivial to the unprejudiced observer. In the famous Stepney election petition, the judges held that a circle instead of a cross opposite the candidate's name rendered the ballot paper bad.

It is worth mentioning that, after a general election, all the documents connected with the various elections, as well as the writs themselves, must be returned to the Clerk of the Crown. For days and weeks sacks of electoral papers pass through Palace Yard, and are stored in cellars below the House of Lords.

There they are kept for "a year and a day," and then, in official parlance, are "dealt with"—in other words, are chopped up and pulped.

Forget His Own Poem.

That poets, like other folk, sometimes forget their own creations is shown by an incident related by Sir Frederick Pollock. At a dinner where Thomas Campbell and Lord Nugent were present the conversation drifted from the use of Latin words in English monosyllabic verse. Someone expressed a doubt whether two consecutive lines composed of words of one syllable could be found in our language. Lord Nugent at once quoted:

By that dread name we wave the sword on high,
And swear for her to live—with her to die.

Campbell said he did not believe in the lines, and asked where they came from.

Lord Nugent said, "From your own 'Pleasures of Hope.'"

"How do you know that?" asked the poet.

"I know it all by heart," replied Nugent.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Get Well First

Don't risk even a penny—until health first returns.

And I mean just exactly what I say. I am the one physician who says to the sick: "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help."

And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's prescriptions have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively endorsed in every community by druggists, doctors, and other unwarranted and uncertain methods. Thousands upon thousands have left the sick assembly hall Dr. Shoop's Restorative. When the stomach nerves, or the Heart or Kidney nerves fail, these sick ones know how quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they purchase it by taking no money-risk whatsoever. They know that when health fails it pays to get Dr. Shoop's. They know that when Dr. Shoop's Restorative returns, it brings gladness and joy. They know that a full 30 day treatment is freely provided. But write me first for an order.

Then Pay

This offer is made to you without delay and discrimination. All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but all are not prepared to give you 30 day test. So drop me a line about—for I have appointed an honest and responsible druggist in almost every community, who is glad to loan me the medicine by the test, Tell me which book you need. The books below will surely open the way and helpful ideas to them who are ailing. And they are perfectly free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice. My best effort is yours for the asking. Just worth your simple request. So write me now, while you have it fresh in mind for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

FREAK CATALOGUING.

British Museum Has a System That Few Can Fathom.

It may seem ungrateful in an old reader who has reaped so many benefits from the great library in Bloomsbury to find fault with the arrangements, and if I stood alone in this complaint I would retain my isolation, but the grievance is ventilated by many.

In the first place, I and J are treated as the same letter, as U and V are. That was all right when the catalogue was begun and was in manuscript, but now that printing has superseded handwriting the obsolete fashion of cataloguing Jones and Ives under the same letter or Vale and Unwin as having the same initial might be discontinued and the modern usage adopted.

In the second place, anonymous works are catalogued according to a bewildering system, the object of which seems to be to hide the identity of the work.

Take the case of the valuable little book with the following title: "An Account of the Origin of Steamboats, in Spain, Great Britain and America and of Their Introduction and Employment Upon the River Thames Between London and Gravesend to the Present Time"—i. e., 1831. One would think that it would be catalogued under "Steamboats," that being the main subject, but no—it is catalogued under "Spain." I am told the rule is to take the first proper name.

That rule, however, is not applied in the next case. A well written little book published in 1907 is entitled "Devon, the Shire of the Sea Kings." "Devon" would seem to be the natural heading, but no—in the catalogue it will be found under "Great Western Railway."—London Notes and Queries.

A MESS OF POTTAGE.

The Surprise That Was In Store For Self Satisfied Fred.

By H. S. FRANK.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

The lilacs were in bloom, and above them upon the limb of the big elm an oriole had hung her nest, and every day in the sunshine her troubadour mate sang to her of love and companionship and airy journeyings. From across the fields came the odor of freshly plowed ground and the breezy calls of men to their horses. In the barnyard were the cacklings of hens and the peeping of many chickens, while from the pasture below came the lowing of cows to their calves. It was mid-May, and the wheat heads were still green with their thriftiest glowing, and the fence corners and roadsides were cheery with their golden offerings of dandelions.

Elsie came to the kitchen door and looked out. The orioles were singing, and she ran lightly down the steps and round the house to the front yard, her sleeves rolled above her plump elbows and her cheeks flushed with the exercise of dishwashing. Her eyes were bright with sympathy for the perfect day and the surroundings, and as she looked up at the oriole her lips parted in a lilting little song which she was to sing with her graduating class at the high school a few weeks later.

But at the front gate the song dropped to a lower key and then stopped altogether as a gayly dressed young man threw himself from his horse and came jauntily toward her, with hat in hand.

"Good morning, Elsie," he began. "I take the 10 o'clock train, but I had to come round and say goodby to you. I haven't much time, you know, but you'll write, won't you? And I'll write and tell you how I get along. Everything 'll be fine up there."

"Yes, I suppose so," Elsie answered slowly, "and I'll write." Her eyes had grown softer at his approach; now they looked troubled. They always looked troubled lately after a few minutes' talk with Fred. He was changing so. His people had taken summer

"MOTHER TOLD ME THERE WAS TO BE A PARTY OVER AT HULLS'."

boarders, and Fred was aping their manners. He wore cheap kid gloves and tried to imitate their way of walking and used as many of their phrases as he could in his conversation.

"Yes, I'll write," she repeated, "and tell you about everything going on here. But they'll be dull letters, for I'm just a farm girl and like farm ways. I wish I could be ambitious like you, but the country is so beautiful. I feel about it like the oriole singing up in the tree. I'm afraid you'll think we are dull, Fred, and grow away from us."

She watched him down the road to the corner of the next field, where he stopped for a moment to speak with Hank Barton.

When she went in her father was standing on the kitchen steps, lighting his pipe.

"Who was that fellow, El," he asked —"Fred Taggart?"

"Yes, father."

"I thought so. Come to say goodby, didn't he? Well, I'm sorry for old man Taggart. He sets the world by that boy. An' 'tis a pity too. Fred was the smartest fellow round here at one time for a young chap an' seemed to have the makin' of something uncommon. But the smartness has all franzled out now in kid gloves an' squeakin' boots, an' he's goin' up to the city to work for $6 a week when his father's got the finest farm round here, an' Fred could have the runnin' of it in a few years if he'd stay. Well, well! Fools ain't all dead yet. But here comes Hank. Guess he wants to see you, El."

Elsie had been slipping into the house with heightened color, but turned back. Hank was the son of their nearest neighbor and was a good, whole souled fellow, with clear head and energetic habits, but woefully diffident and slow of speech. Elsie liked him, but had never cared to analyze what Hank's feelings might be toward her.

As he approached from the young Hank. It's bright moonlight."

"Yes, yes; I know 'tis," desperately. "But there's rehearsals next week, and church tomorrow night, and—and there's all summer long and all next winter. It won't be moonlight all the time. You'll need somebody to walk with you. Of course I ain't asking you to keep company with me," hurriedly, "only—only you'll need somebody till Fred gets back, and I'm handiest."

"I'm not engaged to Fred," proudly.

"No, of course not. I know that—or thought so. But he sort of kept company with you, and—and I'm handiest, Elsie, and you'll be sure to need somebody, and—and you and I will understand."

She looked at him thoughtfully.

"Yes, you and I would understand, Hank," she agreed, "and maybe I will need somebody sometimes. I—yes, you may come for me."

The rest came about naturally. Hank became Elsie's "steady company," as the neighboring young people said, but Hank and Elsie themselves understood. And Fred when he returned home for a few days at Christmas understood, too, and he wrung Hank's hand and called him a good fellow for protecting his girl from the other boys.

Before the end of the next year there was a rumor that Fred's father was not quite satisfied. The firm had not advanced Fred as it should have. He was still receiving $6 a week, and money had to be sent from home to pay for his clothes. Then his letters were filled with theaters and the proper things in high life, with nothing about his work.

Then one day Fred suddenly appeared among them, jaunty as ever and home for good, as he said. The city was too crowded and unsatisfying, and, besides, his father needed him to manage the farm. And all he brought for his two years' work and the money sent him were a large diamond, which flashed upon one of his fingers, and experience.

The very night of his arrival he dressed himself with all the elaborateness of his city knowledge and went across to Elsie's home. She received him in the parlor in the pretty white dress which he remembered she was having made for her graduation. As she entered the room something in her bright, winsome beauty—so different from the chalky complexions of the shopgirls he had become acquainted with—made him step forward impulsively.

"Why, you're beautiful, Elsie!" he exclaimed. "I had no idea. It's fine to be home again. Ain't you glad to see me?"

"Yes, indeed, I am, Fred," she answered frankly as she gave him both her hands. "It will be nice to have you with us again."

Fred laughed complacently and settled himself comfortably in the easiest chair in the room.

"How do you like city life?" asked Elsie.

"Oh, I like the city, but there's no chance for a fellow there. I wish there was. The amusements to be had in the city are infinitely superior to those we have in the country. I used to go to the opera nearly every night in the season. Of course I always went in evening dress. No man goes to the opera in the city as he would go to one of our country parties. Everything seems very crude to me now I've got back."

"Indeed!"

"Oh, by the way, Elsie," he said presently, "mother told me there was to be a party over at Hulls' Wednesday night. Shall we go? I haven't got any invitation yet, but it'll come soon 'a they hear I'm home."

"Yes, you'll get it all right," Elsie agreed. "But I can't go with you, Fred. I've promised Hank. He's got a cousin staying at his house, though—a nice girl. Suppose you ask her."

"No, thank you," smilingly. "I would rather have you. It'll be all right about Hank. I'll see him myself and tell him he's 'off duty.'"

The color deepened a little in Elsie's cheeks.

"I don't believe Hank will agree to that, Fred," she said demurely. "We are to be married at Christmas, and he doesn't seem to want me out of his sight a single evening. But he'll be here in a few minutes now. You can ask him and see."

They looked out of the window, and there came Hank, walking as if behind the plow, but with as honest a face as the sun ever shone upon. Fred glared at him, but said nothing.

"I reel [illegible] at our wedding [illegible]" said Elsie.

"[illegible] to see him," replied

Four Typhoid Patients.

Yesterday there arrived at Nicholls Hospital from Hastings, a family of four persons suffering from typhoid fever. The family, which was composed of the father and mother, two sons and three daughters, was with the exception of Mr. Sharp, stricken with typhoid fever, about two weeks ago. One son, aged 18 died, and the family physician last night had given up all hope for the recovery of the other boy. Dr. Leach is the attending physician.

"I I'm afraid I shall have to deny myself the pleasure," stammered Fred "I've found, after all, I've become so much attached to city life that I can't stand the country any more. I'm going back."

"That's too bad," from Elsie.

The wedding came off at the appointed time, even though Fred was not there to give it eclat in a swallowtail coat.

Queer Hotel Employees.

In the lobby of the Shirley several men were talking about queer people seen around hotels.

"Down in Kentucky," said a traveling man, "there was a negro hotel porter with only one arm, but he could carry the heaviest trunks just the same. He'd use his one hand and his teeth in lifting the trunks."

"I once stopped at a hotel in Texas," said a doctor who lives at the Shirley, "where they had a deaf and dumb man who was employed as an entertainer. Each night he'd play the piano and sing while the guests ate supper. The funny part of it was he'd always be on the key, although he couldn't hear a note."

The manager of the Shirley spoke up at this point. "Speaking of queer hotel employees," he said, "I guess I once knew the queerest on earth. He was employed at a hotel in a small Michigan town. The man had lost a leg in the war and had a wooden stump. It was on account of this wooden leg that he was employed at the hotel."

"What had the wooden leg to do with his working at the hotel?" somebody asked.

The manager cleared his throat and replied, "Why, you see, they used him to mash the potatoes and"—

British Army Secures a Workable Airship

London, Feb. 12.— The British army appears at last to have secured a workable airship after many false starts. Manned by Col. Capper and four assistants, the huge fish-shaped craft was launched from the military balloon factory at Farnborough today. An hour was occupied in a flight over Laffans Plain to Aldershot camp and back to its shed. The airship traveled several hundred feet above the highest points passed over and appeared to answer its helm perfectly.

It seemed to be under thorough control throughout the trip and maintained a good speed even when driven into the teeth of a stiff breeze The new machine is many times greater in size than its predecessors, being 170 feet in length with pointed ends and having fin-like protections on either side. Framework extends below the body for about three-fourths of its length. The propellors are attached to its sides.

GETS TWO YEARS.

Harold Mills Gets Two Years in Central Prison.

Harold Mills, the young man arrested on the 5th instant, at the home of his father on William street, by P. C. Meharry, has been sentenced to two years less one day in the Central Prison, and a pal of his, named Clarke, received a term of 18 months. Chief Roszel received word Saturday morning to this effect from the chief of police at Midland. Clarke and Mills were charged with breaking into a store at Midland on the night of Thursday, January 27. Both made good their escape. Mills coming to Peterborough. Constable Ruff came here and took the prisoner back to stand his trial and it was during the trip that Clarke boarded the train and gave himself up. Mills had but recently escaped from the Mimico Reformatory.

CONFEDERATION LIFE ASSOCIATION.

39th Annual Report Presented — A Most Successful Year.

The 39th Annual Report of the Confederation Life Association was presented at the annual meeting, which was held on Tuesday, the 25th instant.

The report was presented in the usual clear and definite form, showing the operations of the company for the past year, and the statement was made that "in no year in the company's history have the directors been privileged to lay before the policy holders and shareholders a more satisfactory report."

The applications for new business were 3,869, for a total assurance of $6,994,422. Of these, 3,667 for $6,440,522 were approved and policies issued; 200 for $488,838 were declined, the lives not being up to the company's standard; and the remainder regarding which further information was required, were incomplete at the close of the year. Adding bonus additions granted, the total new issue was $6,455,194, and the total insurance in force at the close of the year was $51,797,428, under 33,144 policies.

The claims arising from deaths among the insured were 255, calling for a total sum of $458,282, under 282 policies.

The sum of $1,141,561.17 was paid on the policy-holders and annuitants' account. Of that sum $823,840.70 was for claims by death and for matured endowments. If to this item is added the balance of the claims for the year, awaiting proof, it will make a total of $855,876.77 for the year. The measure of relief the payment of this sum will have brought to many homes can readily be imagined, and will serve to illustrate the great benefits of life insurance.

Notwithstanding the large increase in volume of the company's business the actual expenses for the year were considerably less than for the previous year, showing that care had been exercised over the company's expenditures, and the ratio of expenses to income shows a reduction of slightly over ½ per cent. as compared with the previous year.

A large increase was made in the cash surplus, which now amounts to $1,324,320.00, an increase of over $230,000 for the year, while the actual payments of cash profits to policy holders were considerably more than in the previous years. The actual surplus earned for the year amounted to $352,596.00, which was substantially the largest surplus earned in any year of the company's history. The rate of interest which the company earned on its invested funds for the year also shows a most satisfactory increase.

Full reports of the meeting are in the press and will shortly be issued.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION.

The Golden Rose Mining Company's Wonderful Property.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the above company, which appears in another portion of the paper. ere is something that should interest investors, as it is a proposition of unusual merit. The company is splendidly officered and those investing are sure of a square deal. Mr. J. H. Clary of Sudbury, is known to many of our readers, having practised law for some years in Hastings.

In a private letter to The Times, Mr. Clary says: "Every word in the prospectus was written by me on facts ascertained by me personally and from stuff picked up (not picked out) by me from which assays were obtained. Nobody will believe the assays are genuine. I have chunks in my office weighing pounds that I I am afraid to say what they will assay.

Can fill all the cars that an engine could pull once per day for years if given a sufficient force of men to handle powder and rocks. Nobody can grasp the richness except those who have seen the deposit."

Mr. Clary has sent The Times a few prospectuses, and those interested are invited to call and get one.

London, Feb. 14.—The new British parliament will assemble tomorrow but the formal state opening by the King will not take place until a week later, as the swearing in of members and other preliminaries are necessary before the royal inaugural ceremonies take place.

"Aunt Hester" 113 Years Old.

(Special to The Times.)

Delmar, Del., Feb. 14.— "Aunt Hester" Cordrey, who is believed to be one of the oldest women in the world, celebrated her 113th birthday today at her home near this place. "Aunt Hester" was born on a farm near here February 12, 1797. She was one of a family of fifteen children, and several of her brothers fought in the war of 1812. Until quite recently she personally supervised the work on her little farm.

Steamship General Chanzy, Running Before a Terrible Storm, Dashed on the Rocks

Bodies are Floating Ashore and Men are Stationed Along the Coast to Recover the Dead—Only Known Survivor Tells Story of Disaster

Marseilles, Feb. 12.—Marseilles today is in great grief. Hundreds of relatives of those lost in the General Chanzy disaster crowded the piers throughout the night, braving the storm and crying frantically for the despatch of succor to those who are lost beyond all hope.

Along the Cannebiere, the boulevard which leads to the Old Port, a packed mass of mourners today defied the police. A heavy force was on the spot to prevent an outbreak.

Women crying pitifully for word of husbands, sons, brothers or sweethearts, stormed the offices of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique Again and again some of the more desperate attempted to hurl themselves into the sea in paroxysms of grief.

Weeping en besieged the steamship officials and the authorities Yet there was not a ray of hope for them.

PANIC STRICKEN PEOPLE

The crowd was swelled today by panic-stricken enquirers for the safety of other ships in the path of the storm. By noon a solid mass of thousands clogged the water front defying the police and demanding the news that did not come.

ONLY ONE ESCAPED.

Paris, Feb. 12.—Advices received by the French Transatlantic Steamship Company, state that the loss of the General Chanzy occurred on Wednesday night while the vessel was running before a terrible storm in the vicinity of the Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean. When the vessel struck a reef north of the Island of Minorca, the shock was terrific and the ship was literally broken to pieces.

Marseilles, Feb. 12—The French Transatlantic Line states that no passengers embarked on the General Chanzy after the regular passenger list had been made up. According to this list the only American on the steamer when she foundered off the coast of Minorca on Wednesday night was Leon Derenda, a vaudeville performer of San Francisco. The woman reported as an American was Miss Elsie Herry, who was born at Epernay, France, but recently returned from a trip to America.

The steamship officials received nothing during the day to encourage the hope that more than one person out of the 157 on board survived

BODIES FLOATING ASHORE.

Palma, Island of Majorca, Feb. 12 Bodies were floating ashore today from the wreck of the steamer General Chanzy. The authorities posted men along the coast to recover the bodies, and also to watch for small boats in the desperate hope that some of those aboard might have escaped

Marcel Rodel, the Algerian customs official, and the only known survivor was still unable today to give a lucid account of the disaster. When the vessel went down on Wednesday night he clung to a piece of wreckage and was washed ashore. When tossed on the rocks he was rendered insensible, and in this state remained throughout the night.

CARRIED FIRST NEWS.

Reviving in the morning, he wandered about aimlessly most of the day, finally stumbling into the village of Ciudadela, thoroughly exhausted and almost demented. From his rambling story, the authorities first learned of the disaster and rushed help to the nearest land point. They found only a mass of wreckage piled up against the coast.

The villages say that even if the small boats had been launched they could not have lived in the sea that raged on Wednesday night.

SHIP DRIFTED HELPLESSLY.

Owing to the difficulties of communication between the villages, in the absence of telegraph lines, few additional details of the wreck reached here today. The General Chanzy missed the passage between the Islands of Minorca and Majorca, being either blown out of her course or rendered helpless by the breaking down of her engines, or the loss of her propeller.

The place where the vessel struck is known as "Liosa." Some reports have it that the steamer broke in two and sank at once after she had struck, and others that an explosion on board occurred. The heavy loss of life is attributed to the probability that during the howling tempest all of the passengers and such of the crew as were off duty, were below. Other explanations are that the vessel struck with such force that several bulkheads gave way simultaneously and that the ship filled and sank in the boiling waters before a single small boat could be lowered. The escape of Rodel is considered as almost miraculous.

AMERICANS LOST.

Marseilles, France, Feb. 12.—It is believed today that the only Americans aboard the ill fated French steamer General Chanzy, that went down off the north coast of the Island of Minorca on Wednesday, were Miss Elsie Henry, aged 28 years, address unknown, Leon Derenda, and possibly his partner, a man named Green. Derenda is said to have come from San Francisco.

These three were members of a vaudeville combination bound on a tour of the colonies. Derenda and Green are described as jugglers and acrobats.

Among the other performers in the combination were several Englishmen, a Frenchman named Nestor, and the two Strakleys, bar performers, from Antwerp. The most prominent of the artists was Francis Dufour, a music hall performer who was very popular in Paris.

Among the other victims was Second Engineer Lorenzetti, who was a survivor of the Bourgogne disaster At that time he was picked up after having drifted for days in an open boat. Capt. Cayol of the General Chanzy was considered by his employers, the French Transatlantic Steamship Company, as one of the most careful and experienced of officers.

OTHER WRECKS.

News of other wrecks were received today. The schooner Mathilde from Dunkirk, which left Port de Bouc, France, Feb. 4, for St. Pierre Miquelon, with a miscellaneous cargo, was wrecked last Wednesday in the same vicinity as was the General Chanzy. The fate of the schooner's crew is unknown.

Among the passengers lost was the son of E. Hoskier, the Danish consul general here, who lost his wife and daughter in the charity bazar fire.

German Ambassador Radolin paid a personal visit to President Fallieres today to express the condolences of his government and himself over the loss of life on the French steamer.

The Sailors' Relief Society has contributed $4000 for the relief of the families of the General Chanzy's crew.

Three Children Met Terrible Death in Fire

Parry Sound, Feb. 12.—Three children have been burned to death in a fire at Shawanaga, at the home of Mr. Freeman Carpenter, about eighteen miles north of here, on the C. P.R.

The news was brought by Alex. Bayette. The house was totally destroyed by the fire, which occurred last night about 12 o'clock.

The father and mother, the five children, and a young lady who was visiting at the house, retired to rest about 10.30, leaving a good fire in the stove.

Mrs. Carpenter was awakened by the glare of light and aroused her husband and the young woman who slept in an adjoining room.

All th children were asleep upstairs. The father rushed up the stairs and succeeded in getting three of them, but one of them died four hours later.

The other two boys were burned to a crisp.

Nothing whatever of the furniture was saved, and the women escaped with but little clothing.

Helps to Move 100-000 People to Canada Every Year

London, Feb. 12.—George Mc. L Brown, who has been appointed European manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in succession to the late Mr. Archer Baker, is a genial giant of 6 feet 4 inches, who has done some rowing in his time, but generally made the boat side heavy. His advance has been rapid. He now, at the age of forty-four, holds the most important post outside of Montreal, that his company has to confer.

"It is a bigger job than Moses had," remarked one of his associates, "for we send 100,000 people to Canada every year." It is not for nothing that throughout Canada Mr. Brown is known as "George." Personal intercourse between the management staff and the customers of the line is strongly encouraged.

NATIVE OF HAMILTON.

Born at Hamilton, Ontario, in 1860, Mr. Brown was educated at Shrewsbury, England. He entered the services of the C.P.R. in 1885. He organized the passenger service on the Pacific Coast and was appointed agent-general for the executive in British Columbia. He managed the hotels, restaurants, sleeping cars and dining cars of the company. He went to Montreal as general passenger agent for the Atlantic service. In 1909 he came to London as general traffic agent. He is now European manager, and has, therefore, obtained one of the prizes of the service.

INS AND OUTS.

The Examiner prints a paragraph warning men against the habit of staring at pretty women on the streets. My dear boy you are old enough to know that the only time when a man will not turn to look at a pretty woman on the street is when he is on his way to his own funeral.

He's a mean man who will snore in church and keep others awake.

Apart from the fact that it needs an entire new management there is nothing wrong with the local Tory party.

A Toronto judge has ruled that a man who mixes two kinds of whiskey is a blender. And the man who mixes three kinds is a bender.

Things are now extremely quiet in local political circles, but it must be remembered that the editors of our local contemporaries haven't got their second wind yet.

The Globe says that a man named Smith accuses a neighbor of having blackened his good name. A case of blacksmith.

C. P. R. to Establish Direct Steamship Line from Canada to Austria

London, Feb. 12.—A Vienna despatch says Mr. Bosworth of the C. P.R. was interviewed there. He said the principal object of his journey to Austria was the creation of commercial relations between Canada and Austria. For the purpose of realizing this scheme he will study the industrial situation there and discuss important questions with representatives of the government. If he is satisfied, the Trieste harbor scheme for a direct line to Canada will be immediately realized.

Two More Vessels Sink---All were Lost

Marseilles, Feb. 12.—Within sight of the spot where the wrecked steamer General Chanzy lies on a Majorca coast, where she went to disaster yesterday, sending 156 of the 157 persons she carried to their deaths, two more vessels were wrecked today. Every soul on board perished, it is believed, swelling the death list of the storm that is sweeping the Mediterranean by at least fifty.

The vessels were the Mathilde and the Martial, both sailors. The Mathilde is believed to be the French barque of that name, owned and commanded by Gaultier De Kermoel. She was built in 1883, hailed from Granville, and was of 334 tons. The Martial was reported to be a large vessel.

This is St. Valentine's Day

Valentine's Day is declared by the encyclopaedias to be falling into disuse. This merely means that the men who compile encyclopaedias have abandoned the practice of sending Valentines. Hence they become the subject of "mocks," the sending of which is a reprehensible custom which we cannot encourage.

But the genuine Valentine! What love and sweetness lingers around the memory of these missives. What a wretched wight is he who never sent, and what a forlorn maiden is she who never received one.

St. Valentine was an old bishop who lived about 1600 years ago, and nobody seems to know just why he got mixed up with the affairs of Cupid. It is supposed that his day became identified with the festival of Pan and Juno, just as Easter perpetuates the Feast of Eostie, the Saxon goddess in Britain, where Valentine's Day is chiefly observed, the birds are declared to mate on this date, but this is not regarded as a scientific observation.

The historic valentine is Sam Weller's, which he sent to Mary at Mr. Nupkin's, Ipswich. It began as all good valentines should, with "Lovely creetur."

"Taint in poetry, is it?" interposed his father.

"No, no," replied Sam.

"Very glad to hear it," said Mr. Weller "Poetry's unnatural no man ever talked poetry 'cept a beadle on boxin' day, or Warren's blackin, or Rowland's oil, or some o' them low fellows never let yourself down to talk poetry, my boy."

Germany to Enlarge Her Gun Factories

Berlin, Febl 12.—Considerable extensions are contemplated this year at the Krupp ordnance works. In order to adequately dekl with the plentifully orders that are coming in [illegible] to the artillery works, and on completion of the new buildings some 1000 men additional will be employed. The recent visit of the Chinese Naval Commission is almost certain to mean large orders for heavy guns for Krupp's.

Belgrade, Feb. 12.—Prince George of Servia, the ex-crown prince, has again attracted attention by his behavior towards M. Alimpics, prefect of police. Some months ago Price George, meeting M. Alimpics in the corridor of the palace, insulted him. M. Alimpics asked the government to relieve him of his post, but was begged to remain.

Recently, at a court ball, Prince George, observing M. Alimpics, insulted him grossly in a loud voice, causing general consternation among all present.

The prefect immediately left the palace, and the next day demanded his release from his post, at the same time charging the prince with insult.

The cabinet met on last Tuesday night specially to discuss this, and decided to keep the prefect in his position, and to compel the prince to leave the country.

London's Trade Greater than any Other Port

Practically one-half the vessels and one-half the tonnage of the world's merchant marine flies the British flag. Sea-borne commerce has assumed tremdous proportions, and with the development of Canada, Australia, Spanish America, Siberia and even China, it is bound to expand rapidly. The latest report of the United States bureau of statistics apportions ships and tonnage among the various nations as follows:

Flag.	Number of Vessels.	Ton.
British	11,963	18,700,000
American (including lake traffic)	2,250	4,800,000
German	2,178	4,232,000
Norwegian	2,148	2,000,000
French	1,517	1,883,000
Italian	1,100	1,300,000
Japanese	870	1,182,000
Russian	1,400	1,000,000
Swedish	1,550	900,000
Dutch	565	600,000
Spanish	551	700,000

London's trade is greater than that of any other port in the world, amounting to $1,620,000,000 a year, and Liverpool's is almost as much. The incoming and outgoing ships of Hamburg and Bremen combined carried freight to the value of $2,025,000,000 during 1907, while Antwerp's share last year was $1,000,000,000. The French ports of Marseilles and Havre do an annual business of close on a billion dollars between them. The growth of Japanese merchantmen since 1880 has been remarkable, the tonnage having increased from 89,000 to 1,142,000, while the trade of the three ports of Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki now totals $350,000,000 annually.

One striking feature of the statistics is the indifferent showing made by the United States. It is true that country ranks second in vessels and tonnage, but if what is employed on the inland lakes is deducted the ocean-going tonnage will be found almost negligible. The American flag has almost vanished from the high seas, whereas fifty years ago the United States mercantile marine was challenging Britain's supremacy. The ship-building industry in the republic has been almost killed by the tariff upon every material that enters into the construction of ships. It lives upon the lake business, of which it has a monopoly under the coasting laws. The United States is low in the scale, too, as regards commerce. Shanghai, with trade amounting to $276,000,000 outranks New Orleans, the second United States port, by $50,000,000, while Calcutta, Bombay and Singapore, with $910,000,000, exceed by $40,000,000 annually all United States ports excepting New York and New Orlean

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Haycen, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh cracking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, NERVILINE but none broke up my cold till I used CURES Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest CHEST and shoulders, morning and night, and COLDS all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy and enjoy perfect health."

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. Sold everywhere. The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

SPREAD OF THE FOOD BOYCOTT.

The sudden growth and remarkable extent of the popular uprising against high food prices gives the movement all the aspects of a social revolution.

Notable characteristics of the uprising are its astonishing vigor and vitality under the impetus given to it by organized labor. Thirteen States—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Connecticut, Delaware—have now joined in the campaign.

A formidable army of insurgents is already in the field in the Middle West, says The New York World, where families by tens of thousands have taken the pledge to abstain from meat. In Illinois a great host will begin an anti-meat campaign on March 1, under the direction of the Federation of Labor. Though the boycott is primarily a labor movement, it has appealed to all consumers regardless of class.

Its seriousness is further evidenced by the attention Governors, Congressmen, a Cardinal, and public men generally are giving to the arbitrarily increased cost of living and by its discussion in a Presidential message. But the public is in no mood to wait for legislative relief. It has taken up the question at first hand and is applying the remedy direct.

The problem has come up at every breakfast table, and in response to the popular demand for information an enormous volume of data bearing on the case of higher commodity prices, with statistical tables, exhibiting the cost of living at different periods and in various localities, has been brought out. Among these suggestive comparisons of market prices are those showing the disparity between the prices for meat, butter, eggs and potatoes in American cities and those obtaining in Canada, where the cost of living, continues The World, as it is affected by articles of table consumption, is 25 per cent. less than here.

What part the tariff has to do with the elevation of food prices and to what extent it is due to the utilization by manufacturers and dealers of cold-storage facilities to maintain them at an artificial level will perhaps be determined as a result of the agitation which is now attaining national proportions. In that case the theory will come after the fact, following the expected reduction of prices by direct methods of attack and of the immediate effect of which a hint is given in the lower prices in Cleveland.

The Redemption of Tramp Kelly.

A Lesson That Was Taught by His Brother In Misery.

By WILLIAM ALFRED COREY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Milwaukee Red had just rolled out of a box car, having arrived on a night freight from Seattle, and was thumping back doors for breakfast.

With one foot very conspicuously bound up in rags, an arm in a sling and an expression of countenance to correspond, he had applied at several doors without success when at the door of a poor little shack in a side street a woman with a foreign accent bade him enter.

"Holy smoke!" thought Milwaukee Red. "Is me power house workin' right? A warm set down already! Dat's sure goin' some. Dat beats de old handouts a mile. Now, jes' watch little Willie punish de grub!" And he hesitated not the fraction of a second; but, with a cheerful willingness born of a two days' fast, he followed the woman into the house.

But Red's bright vision of a table loaded with savory dishes only lasted until he got inside the door. The table was there all right, but in place of the smoking breakfast that Red's hungry imagination had conjured up there were only some fragments of loaves of bread and a pitcher of water. Seated about the table were four half starved children.

The woman explained to Red that she and themselves nearly starving, that she was a widow and that a grown son, her sole support, had wandered off months since in search of employment, but that she never turn a hungry man away unfed at least with such as she had and ended by bidding him sit up to their frugal board.

But Red did not move. He stood in the middle of the floor and stared as though hypnotized. He stared at the partly eaten pieces of dry bread, at the famished looking children, at the pale faced woman and at the room in general, wherein want was written everywhere. He stared for a full minute, and then, without a word, he turned and strode out of the room. And the woman noticed that he did not limp as he went out as he had done when he came in.

Outside, Red made for the nearest alley, divested himself of his "make up," stored the bandages in a bundle for future use and started uptown. An inspiration had come to Mr. Red of Milwaukee.

He had been in Frisco many times before, and he knew the types at a certain cheap eating place south of Market street. Once in a moment of weakness he had accepted a position in the place for a few days washing dishes.

Red went boldly into a meat market and said: "I'm after de meat for Johnnie's hash factory. Johnnie sent me. Say wants ten pounds."

The butcher looked at Red. "Just some tramp dishwasher at Johnnie's," he thought to himself. "He acquires a new one every other day. I'll chance it's being all right."

Red hiked with the meat, but not to Johnnie's. He next lay for a baker's wagon. Pretty soon one rattled past and stopped in front of a house. Red watched his chance, and as the driver was around the house with two loaves of bread he helped himself to four nice, fresh warm ones from a box up on top.

Butter and milk were next on his shopping list, and these he stole from back doors where the articles had been left, it being yet early in the morning and Red being an artist in this kind of foraging.

A half hour later the kind hearted though poverty stricken woman who had offered Red a share of what she had was surprised to find on her back porch the food he had collected, together with the following crudely written note:

Deer Madam—Dese tings are for you. Don't say nothin' about it to nobody. Jes' turn de kids loos on it.

A FREND.

The next morning another and similar offering was found on the porch and eagerly appropriated, the poor family supposing it to be the work of some charitably disposed person, as in fact it was, though the tramp who had called at their door was farthest from their thoughts.

These early morning donations continued with scarcely an interruption for three weeks. Some mornings there would be articles of clothing for both children and adults as well as food. Of the latter there was a great variety and a great a variety, in fact, as the source from which it came.

"Wat yer rustlin' so hard for all de time, Red?" asked Kelly the Bum one night when they met in an alley where some empty barrels afforded free lodgings.

"Got a fambly to support," was Red's terse reply.

"A which?" exclaimed Kelly, scarcely crediting his ears.

"A fambly," repeated Red.

"You sure must be nutty," said Kelly, with alarm, as though in fear of bodily harm.

Then Red had to explain the situation. "I ain't goin' to see them kids go hungry," he said, "not as long as I can rustle."

"You'll git pinched an' sent over de road fust thing yer know," warned Kelly.

"Can't help it none," said Red. "Them kids is goin' to eat as long as I'm here."

"Where does yer fambly reside, Mr. Milwaukee Red?" inquired Kelly, with a mock obeisance.

"Out Russian Hill way," Red told him, ignoring the other's sarcastic manner.

"Russian Hill!" echoed Kelly, the cynicism in his voice changing to a note of interest.

"Yes, Russian Hill," repeated Red. "Wat's remarkable about dhat?"

"Nothin'," said Kelly, with forced effort to appear unconcerned. And then, after a moment during which neither spoke, he asked: "Where does them people live? Worked that section meself once."

Red told him the street and described the house, wondering the while, though not appearing to notice the strange effect the information seemed to produce upon his pal.

"An' yer been feedin' 'em for a month," mused Kelly.

"Yes, an' I'll be feedin' 'em for another month unless—unless her son comes back. Reckon he's bummin' somewhere same as you an' me. Didn't like to tell the old woman, though. Say, pal, if I had some kin folks o' me own to hustle fer I'd—I'd quit the road an' go to work."

Kelly did not answer at once. He seemed to have lost the power of speech and to be lost in thought, though Red knew him too well to try to force his ragged friend to unbosom himself.

Finally Kelly pulled himself together and said: "Well, hust be goin'. Got a hen on. So don't need no help. See yer tomorrer." And then he added impressively: "Red, whatever yer do, don't git pinched. Hear me? Keep yer eye peeled an' don't git pinched. S' long."

There was no denying it was a grim risk Red was running, as was indicated by the following news item which appeared prominently the next day in a city paper:

SNEAK THIEVES INFESTING HILL DISTRICT.

Recently sneak thieves have been plying their trade in the Russian Hill district so industriously that there is an insistent call for more police protection. Articles of food and clothing have been disappearing so rapidly in that neighborhood of late that it would seem a small army of these gentry are at work there. Groceries and meat carts stores in the early morning hours are being entered and robbed, and small neighborhood stores even are being entered and robbed in broad daylight. The police are laying for these miscreants, and a good, healthy penitentiary term awaits all caught in the dragnet.

And besides the risk which he knew he was running, Red felt the weight of the responsibility which he had voluntarily assumed. Looking out for himself was an easy matter. Long experience had made him a past master in the high art of living without working. But looking out for himself and supporting "a fambly" were two different propositions.

However, he had not long to carry the burden. One morning—it was a week since Kelly's sudden disappearance—Red was surprised to find the poor woman awaiting him on the oft visited back porch.

Their surprise was mutual, for the woman at once recognized in Red the tramp with whom she had offered to divide her crust several weeks previous.

"And is it really you who have been doing this?" she questioned, as though doubting her senses.

"I reckon 'tain't nobody else, mum," said Red.

"How can I thank or ever repay you?" she said, her lips trembling.

"Oh, that is what I was waiting to see you or whoever brought the things about," said the woman. "We don't need help any more. My dear son Will"—and tears of happiness shone in her eyes—"has returned, and he got work yesterday. He's going to take care of us now. He was gone so long, and we didn't know where he was. But he says he'll never leave us again. We're all so happy: it seems as though you have brought us good luck. I want you to come this evening and see my Will. He'll be so glad to see you."

Red looked past the woman and saw a coat which he easily recognized as Kelly's hanging upon a peg just within the kitchen door. And his pal's strange behavior on the night of their last conversation was at once explained.

"Don't see how I can come, mum," he said, "but tell Kelly—I mean Will—that I'm glad he's doin' so well and to stay with his new job."

And before the happy woman could detain him or press upon him more words of gratitude Red was out the gate and gone.

But one day they saw an item in a newspaper about a tramp being run over by an automobile and lying in a hospital with a broken leg. Something in the reporter's reference to the man led those whom he had befriended to think it was he. Going to the hospital, true enough, there was their old friend. As soon as he was able to be moved they took him home with them and as they were now in a more prosperous condition [illegible]

THE BEST APPLES.

A List Which Includes Some Old Friends and Leaves Out Others.

The area of the world devoted to apple-raising in the Northern Hemisphere extends from Scandinavia on the north to the mountain region of North Carolina and Tennessee on the south. In the Southern Hemisphere apples are raised in New Zealand and Tasmania, but little success has been obtained in Australia, Africa or South America.

North America is the great apple-producing region of the world, and New York leads all the other states in the quantity grown, although varieties quite as good are produced in other states, particularly Missouri, Oregon and Washington. To have perfect fruit, the soil and climate conditions must be of the most favorable character.

A list of what may be called the best apples—best in one sense or another—has been arranged. It comprises these varieties: The Belmont Arkansas, Bullock's Pippin, Cogswell, Lady Joe, Lespus, Spitzenberg, and Wine, Garden Royal, Missouri Pippin, Northern Spy, Pomme Grise, Porter, Primate, Red Canada, Summer Pearmain, Summer Rose, Swaar, Sweeney and Westfield. To this list he added the Baldwin and the Rhode Island Greening — two of the best known apples the country over.

Other popular apples include the Golden Sweet, Vandevere, Minden's Blush, American Beauty, Famous, Pound Sweet, Talman Sweet, Winesap, Bellflower, Red Astrakhan, Autumn Bough, Roxbury Russet, Sops of Wine, King, Twenty Ounce, Hubbardston and Peach Pond Sweet.

The pippin wherever found seems to be always well liked. But one pippin differs from every other. Where one stale knows an pippin, another state grows its pippin, quite a different variety. The Ben Davis, for instance, known in the middle west, is known in New York State as a New York pippin.

Almost every propagator of apples has found, if his experience and his orchards are extensive, specimens which he thought entitled to such names as Seek No Farther, Nonesuch and Sine Qua Non, so that if one receives an apple bearing one of these names in Massachusetts it may differ exceedingly from one of the same name offered to him in Wisconsin. But they are all likely to be worth the eating if their grower has seen fit to honor them with such names.

Many apples achieve an enviable local reputation, but do not become known outside a rather restricted territory, as they will not stand shipment. As an example there is the Primate, propagated and raised near Syracuse, in New York. Those who know it through finding it in its home are its fond admirers. But it cannot widen its acquaintance through travel.

The most interesting achievement in the producing of curious or interesting apples is to be credited to Luther Burbank, who has grown, quite by intent and not through accident, an apple one-half of which is yellow and sour, and the other half red and sweet.

Naturally there have been efforts to produce seedless apples, but success has not, so far, attended them. Some hold that the seedless apple would be a mistake. There are many who really like the pulp of the apple seeds, and always include the eating of them and the finishing part of an apple.

The longer apples remain on the tree, unless the weather becomes too cold to permit their exposure, the better the flavor and keeping qualities. The fruit that comes to perfection the farthest north, as that in the Hood River region of Oregon, appears to have the finest keeping qualities, without deterioration in flavor.

Of the varieties raised in the east, the winter russets keep longest without being put in cold storage, and really reach the full perfection of flavor only late in the winter or in the early spring. It used to be considered a marvelous and almost impossible thing to keep apples over from the fall till the first summer apples appeared, but with methods of cold storage so extensively used as they are now this is easily achieved, and with far less deterioration in flavor than might be reasonably expected.

Many contrivances have been tried for the picking of apples, with the hope of lessening the time and trouble spent in picking them by hand, but so far the hand-picked apple is the most satisfactory of the gathered fruit. Careful handling, too, of apples is a prime necessity in keeping apples at their best, and the choicest varieties are wrapped in paper, and put into boxes, instead of barrels, with as much care as is bestowed upon the packing of oranges.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also fail It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see! Sold by all dealers.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?
Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the nerves of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then this is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "no help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the $5 Gar-bot.

Cut out and mail me for the order, for all druggists are authorized to give the 30 day test.

So do it now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

Last Wednesday was New Year's Day in China, and Chinks the world over celebrated the event by feasting and other forms of dissipation. In Peterborough there were midnight orgeries in which the game of fan tan was popular.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common every-day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, chest, throat or lungs. Sold by all dealers.

Mrs. Scott-Raff Will Assist.

The next concert of the Conservatory orchestra will be held at the Conservatory Hall on Friday evening. Mrs. Scott Raff, the eminent reader and directress of the Margaret Eaton School of Expression, will be the special artiste for the occasion.

Will Practice Law.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.A., who very creditably filled the position of editor of the Review for some time, has formed a partnership with Mr. Robert Ruddy, K.C. The new firm will no doubt have a large clientage, as both members are held in high esteem throughout the city and district.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all dealers.

Excellent Photographs.

There is an exhibition in the window of the Tate Optical Company, George street, four photos, taken by Mr. N. A. Howard-Moore, a local amateur photographer, which are worthy of inspection. The photos are entitled "The Crane's Roost," "On the Otonabee," "The Old Beech Tree," and "The Stream." The last three are local views. They will be shown at the Jamestown, N.Y., Art Exhibition, which commences on the 21st inst.

Big Purchase of Western Land.

The Canadian Real Estate Company, of which Mr. E. R. Wood, Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, is president, has bought a hundred and fifty thousand acres of land on the north bank of the South Saskatchewan, paying therefore thirteen dollars an acre, a sum which is looked upon as a very high price for wild land.

Died in Winnipeg.

Word was received here on Saturday of the death of Capt. John Wesley Kennedy, of Winnipeg. Capt. Kennedy was a native of Peterborough, where he was born, and where he resided until the first Reil rebellion, when he went West with the military expedition under Col. Wolseley. He was also a Fenian raid veteran. He was 75 years of age.

Poorhouses May Be Ours.

One blessing, potatoes are plentiful and not expensive, and should the worst come, both counties most fortunately possess extremely comfortable Houses of Refuge, or County Homes."

Restoration of Stomach Power Comes Quickly With the Right Medicine.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended, and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend, who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvellous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon glowed within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Ames, was aglow on Friday afternoon last with flowers and pretty gowns on the occasion of an At Home given by Mrs. Ames for the only daughter, Miss Ethel Ames. The hostess and sweet-faced young debutante received their friends in the reception room, whose rose-hung walls made the guests forget the February frost and snow. Mrs. Ames wore an exquisite gown of primrose satin, with sweeping flounces of rose-painted net and trimming of gold bugle fringe. Miss Ames wore a gown of ivory satin, with overdress of striped gauze, embroidered in crystal and pink. The drawing-room in forest green with dainty hangings, was bright with roses, carnations and lilies, where Mrs. E. W. Cox, Mrs. H. C. Cox, Miss Belle Morrow, of Peterboro, and Miss Shaw acted as assistant hostesses. In the tea room the table was beautifully decorated with a centrepiece of Venetian lace and a bank of daffodils and mauve sweet peas. Mrs. H. R. A GOOD THING

When It Comes Along Don't Let It Get Away From You.

"I really feel that it is hardly possible to say too much in favor of Grape-Nuts as a healthy food," writes a Chicago woman.

"For 9 or 10 years I had suffered from indigestion and chronic constipation, caused by the continued use of coffee and rich, heavy, greasy foods. My ailments made my life so wretched that I was eager to try anything that held out a promise of help. And that is how I happened to buy a package of Grape-Nuts last spring.

"That ended my experiments. For in Grape-Nuts I found exactly what I wanted and needed. From the day I began to use it I noticed an improvement and in a very few weeks I found my health completely restored.

"My digestive apparatus now works perfectly and my chronic constipation has been entirely removed. I have gained in weight materially, and life is a very pleasant thing to me so long as I use Grape-Nuts once or twice a day. I have found by experiment that if I leave it off for a few days my health suffers.

"A physician in our town has great success in treating stomach troubles, and the secret of it is that he puts his patients on Grape-Nuts food—it always brings back the power of digestion."

"There's a reason."

IF PEERS WERE POOR

MOST OF ENGLAND'S LORDS COULD TURN A PENNY.

Several of Them Are Expert Sea-Captains, and Many Are Capable of Earning a Livelihood at Literature—There Are Also Some Notable Financiers in the British Upper Chamber and Some Land Agents.

In spite of the dismal prognostications in which certain wealthy peers have been indulging as to the probable effect of the budget on their incomes, it is unlikely that many of them would be unable to make both ends meet by their own exertions even were they reduced by a hard-hearted Chancellor of the Exchequer to the painful necessity of earning their own living.

Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, for instance, could easily obtain employment as a chauffeur or garage attendant were he to be deprived of his estates in Hampshire, while Lord de la Warr is another peer who is equally at home whether steering a 60-horse-power motor car or a dainty racing yacht.

Quite a number of peers could earn a very good living amongst those that go down to the sea in ships. Lord Brassey is a case in point. Not only is he one of the foremost authorities in the Upper House on maritime matters, but he also holds a master's certificate from the Board of Trade, and has sailed many thousand miles in his famous yacht the Sunbeam. Another peer who is quite at home on the briny is Lord Dunraven, whose name was once in everybody's mouth as that of a challenger for the America's cup.

Many members of the Upper House, were they to be suddenly deprived of their inherited incomes, would doubtless turn their attention to literature and journalism, among those who have earned distinction in these fields being the Duke of Argyll, Lord Rosebery, and Lord FitzMaurice. In addition to these aristocratic lights of the literary firmament, there are, of course, in the House of Lords many men who owe their position to their brilliant work as professional journalists and newspaper proprietors. Most prominent among these, perhaps, are Lord Northcliffe, founder of the halfpenny press, which has done so much to revolutionize newspaper methods, and Lord Burnham, an ex-proprietor of The Daily Telegraph. In this connection it is interesting to note that the late Marquess of Salisbury in his younger days used to eke out his not over lavish allowance as a younger son by brilliant contributions to The Saturday Review.

Except as directors and "guinea pigs," few members of the Upper House would be able to make much of a living at commercial or financial pursuits but there are some conspicuous exceptions, notably Lord Avebury and Lord Rothschild, while the Marquess of Londonderry, an ex-Postmaster-General, has had considerable practical experience as a colliery proprietor.

Sporting peers whose ancestral hen roosts had been robbed would doubtless seek posts in connection with their favorite sports and this market would probably be overcrowded, for there are a large number of occupants of the gilded chamber who would be eminently qualified to act as trainers, huntsmen, or gamekeepers.

Among prominent peers whose knowledge of racing matters might procure them profitable employment might be mentioned Lord Durham and the Duke of Portland, while several noble lords who at present act as masters of foxhounds would be able to earn their living in the humbler, but equally important, post of huntsman.

Even if he had not his profession to fall back upon, the Lord Chancellor might still turn an honest penny as marker at a racquets or tennis court, he having been in his day one of the best amateur exponents of these games, while a post in the world of athletics could also be found for Lord Desborough, the founder of the Olympic Games.

Another occupation which peers shorn of their ancestral revenues might be glad to take up is that of a land agent, Earl Carrington, for instance, the present popular President of the Board of Agriculture, is probably excelled in practical knowledge by very few professional land agents, while another peer who is an adept in agricultural pursuits is the famous scientist, Lord R[illegible].

From these examples it will be easily seen that peers, even if they do take the [illegible] are by no means the [illegible] dream they are sometimes supposed to be. Indeed it [illegible] that there are few peers who could not be performed by some [illegible] born in the House of Lords. Even the [illegible] not unrepresented [illegible] Lieut. Irving at one time served in the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, while Lord Lonsdale is the honorable colonel of a battalion in the provinces.

Dr. Ross says the little thin man loses heat much more rapidly and therefore is a much better sailor than is the larger, and more fleshy man.

TO KEEP OUT CHINESE.

Rigid Laws to Be Enforced Against Asiatics.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—Several stringent new rules designed to keep undesirable Chinese immigrants out of the United States go into operation to-day by direction of the Department of Labor and Commerce. Under the new regulations Chinese bound for foreign ports by way of New England are to be inspected at the original port of entry, Vancouver. Under the system of inspection at Vancouver those Chinese who cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves will not be allowed to cross the international border. Those who really intend to go to foreign countries through the United States will be put under heavy bond. It is believed that the new order will reduce the traffic in Chinese through New England to a considerable extent.

EDWARD J. TOWNSEND, President.
ALEXANDER H. BEATH, Vice-President.
JAMES K. MACLENNAN, Secretary-Treasurer.
JOHN ANNIS, of Markstay, Ont.
JAMES TOWNSEND, of Mabel, Que., and
JOHN H. CLARY, of Sudbury, Ont.

This Company was incorporated by Letters Patent dated April 16th, A. D., 1909, and is empowered to carry on in all its branches the operations of a mining, milling, reduction and development Company.

The Company was organized more particularly to acquire and develop certain of the mining claims on Emerald Lake commonly called the Townsend-Annis gold properties.

Mr. Townsend had an undivided eleven-sixteenths interest in Mining Location W.D. 154, and Mr. Annis had three water claims adjoining and extending westward from W.D. 154. The Company has a working option on the remaining five-sixteenths of W. D 154 from Mr. William Crawford, of Haileybury, formerly of Sudbury. The Company purchased outright the interest of Mr. Townsend and Mr. Annis.

These claims are distant about 32 miles almost due north from Warren, Ontario, and lie on the east side of Emerald Lake. In winter they are reached from Markstay by an existing road some 40 miles long, needing some small repairs in places—in summer from Temagami station on the T. and N. O. Railway, by steamer to Obabika Bay on the north-west arm of Lake Temagami, and thence a distance of ten miles, in all, by water, four short portages excepted, to Emerald Lake and W.D. 154 is reached.

On W.D. 154 the ore outcrops in the form of a deposit, in width from 300 to 500 feet, and has been traced on the strike for about 1,000 feet. The dip is nearly vertical. The contact wall on the south side is jasper and maguetite and on the north side is black slate. The gangue rock is calcite, schist and quartz, heavily mineralized with gold-bearing iron-pyrites. Considerable stripping and test pitting have been done at various points, and at each point good values in gold have been found. All blastings have disclosed free gold and pannings show many colors. The directors believe this property to be

The Largest Outcropping of High-grade Ore Known in the World To-day.

Four assays from Messrs. Handley and Parker, of Sudbury, showed respectively $2,419.01, $1,020.68, $787.63, and $102.72 per ton. Ledoux and Company of 99 John Street, New York, $26.45 (from an iron-pyrites sample). Kropp's, Germany, gave $68.00 per ton from an iron pyrites sample.

The Directors have decided to place 50,000 shares on the market at the special price of 50c per share, in blocks of not less than 50 shares each. Allotments will be made as applications, accompanied by the necessary cash, have been received for 20,000 shares. Should this number not be subscribed for by February 15th next, money will be refunded promptly. The above low price is to provide the necessary funds for the installation of the proper milling and reduction plant and for the carrying out of the necessary mining operations. See prospectus.

All have not the knowledge or the necessary capital to send out prospecting parties, but many small capitalists can afford to put up $25.00 or more to get a share in this local enterprise where they know that first, last and all the time they will get a square deal. Come and see samples. Have them assayed yourself. Investigate for yourself.

Porcupine may have plenty of gold but you don't need to go further than Emerald Lake for gold. Many mining men of Sudbury know W.D. 154. Cut out this advertisement. Watch for following ads. Get a prospectus and all information from any of the Directors, or from Editor of the Times.

The Standard Oil in Power Scheme

Montreal, Feb. 14. — It is now known what interests are behind the big scheme for creating power by building a series of dams across the St. Lawrence at the Long Sault Rapids.

Efforts have been made for some time in legislative circles to get this information without avail. The Pittsburg Reduction Company, or people closely connected with that enterprise, who in turn are connected with the Standard Oil Company and the Mellon banking interests are financing the deal.

It is planned to spend $70,000,000 if the deal goes through.

Arthur Davis of the Pittsburg concern has been identified with the promotion.

The scheme is strongly opposed by leading Canadian interests on account of its interference with the St. Lawrence as a waterway.

Much Suffering on the Polar Trip

Punta Arenas, Chile, Feb. 14. — Further details have been received here of the voyage of the Pourquoi Pas, which is now returning with Dr Jean M. Charcot's Antartic expedition. The Pourquoi Pas, on reaching the region of ice on her trip to the South, stranded on the coast of Graham Land, but was re-floated after three days. On the resumption of the voyage the steamer met with a long series of accidents. She was in collison with a number of icebergs and lost her rudder owing to the pressure of the ice. The crew, however, managed to construct a jury rudder.

There was considerable suffering among the men during the many months in the Antarctic regions, scurvy and heart disease being the chief ailments.

Numerous journeys were made over the ice, but it was impossible to use automobiles on account of the bad conditions of the ice fields.

The stranding of the Pourquoi Pas and the collision with bergs caused a serious leak at the outset of the expedition, which proved impossible to repair. Water flowed in at all times, and the pumps were in constant use until the end of the voyage. The steamer was exposed to violent storms on the return trip as far as the Straits of Magellan, and was compelled to put into an obscure harbor for two days to repair the engines. A scarcity of provision and coal, the damage to the ship, and the exhaustion of the crew necessitated the return.

Balfour will Aid in Passing the Budget

London, Feb. 14.—All fear of a Parliamentary deadlock on the passage of the budget in the Parliamentary session that begins tomorrow, was removed today by an official assurance from Arthur J. Balfour, one of the foremost figures in the Conservative party, to Premier Asquith that the Conservatives will help the Liberals to pass the Lloyd George budget.

Balfour declares that the Conservatives are as much opposed to the budget as ever, but they are unwilling to assume responsibility for continuing the tie-up of the national finances, which were thrown into chaos when the budget was rejected last fall.

The Conservatives admit, also, that another immediate general election, which would be necessary were the budget rejected again, would precipitate a panic, which the Conservatives desire to avoid, according to Balfour.

The Conservatives' agreement to support the budget makes it practically certain that the budget will be the first thing taken up when Parliament reconvenes.

KING WON'T SWAMP LORDS.

Despite the fact that Parliament meets tomorrow, the personnel of the new cabinet is still unannounced, the delay being unprecedented. It is said that Asquith's delay in naming the cabinet is due to King Edward's refusal to agree to swamp the House of Lords with Liberal peers in the event of the Lords continuing their opposition to the Liberals' legislative program.

If this report is true, it indicates an early resignation of the cabinet and makes another general election a matter of days, instead of months. Asquith still insists that unless the complexion of the House of Lords is changed by the creation of Liberal peers, it is useless to attempt to abolish the veto power of the Lords, without which reformation it will be equally useless to attempt other legislation demanded by the Liberals including the Election Reform bill.

The passage of the Election Reform bill is considered imperative if the Liberals are to be victorious in the next election, with the question of Home Rule one of the dominant issues.

The cabinet resumed its session today amid scenes of unusual activity. Messengers swarmed around the Premier's house, where the session was held, and there was a constant stream of party leaders going in and out of the house.

IS IT A MASTER STROKE?

Balfour's support of the budget may yet prove to be the master stroke of the skilful tactician. This is likely what it will prove to be if the Government is forced to resign because of some other difficulty than the budget question, for then the Liberals would be robbed of some of the advantage the budget gave them in the last fight. The Conservatives could pose as reasonable men who put the welfare of the nation before their own prejudices, and who were content to abide as they said they would, by the decision of the electorate.

If the Conservative leaders can learn that Asquith can no longer use King Edward will not guarantee his government against interference from the Lords, by creating a host of Liberal peers, or if he has information that the Nationalists will insist on a radical measure for the abolition of the Lords' veto being put through before the budget, and that such a measure will be defeated, his plan is no doubt a wise one. Dissolution would then become inevitable, and in the new appeal to the country the Conservatives would be in a much better strategic position.

Final Results Give Liberals Lead of Two

London, Feb. 14.—The last election returns from the recent general elections were received today and showed a Liberal victory in the last constituency voting. This makes the final voting as follows:

Liberals 275.
Conservatives 273.
Irish Nationalists 82.
Laborites 40.

With the Liberal, Nationalist, and Laborite coalition intact, the ministerial majority will be 125, which is likely to be slightly reduced should the twelve members of the O'Brien faction of the Nationalists vote independently.

In Orkney and Shetland, Wason, the Liberal, secured 4,117 votes, and Hemsley, the Unionist, 994.

The Liberals have two more seats than the Unionists.

MAKING GREAT STRIDES.

Whole Canadian West Making Great Strides.

Winnipeg, Feb. 15.—This winter influx of people is spreading all over the West, and population and capital is entering by every line of railroad. Travel on the Soo Line is heavy and daily trains are crowded with people who have cast their lot in with Western Canada. Some of these are homesteaders with very little money, but many are farmers who have made money in the States and who come to Canada to get cheap land and to invest the money they have where their experience and that of others has proven that such an investment returns a better profit than may be had by like process in any other part of the world. Under this impetus of new population and new capital, the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta are filling up fast, too, and such cities as Regina, Moose Jaw, Lethbridge, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Calgary, are receiving considerable accessions of people and money. Many smaller places are growing rapidly, too, and along such new lines as the Moose Jaw Outlook branch, the towns that are there are making phenomenal growth upon the working capital of rich land and enormous crop returns, it is useless to attempt to line that are but a little more than a mile from the open prairoes have shipped more than 400,000 bushels of wheat this year, and have yet a large reserve stock to send out. At a net price of from eighty five to ninety cents a bushel, and a crop yield of thirty bushels to the acre, reason for the rapid growth of such a section is not far to seek, and the story is one that is many times repeated in the history of Western Canadian progress.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

Young Mac Pleads Guilty to Having "Raised" a Cheque.

A young man named Frederick Palmetier, was arrested in the Brass Department of the Canadian General Electric Company yesterday morning by P. C. Meagher, charged with forgery, and when he appeared before Magistrate Dumble, elected to a summary trial and pleaded guilty.

County Crown Attorney Wood asked that the prisoner be remanded for one week, and this was done.

Palmetier, it is charged, on receiving his cheque last week, changed the amount of $8.65 so that it read $18.65. He is an orphan, and came to this city from Campbellford about three months ago.

AN ARMY OF 4,000,000

AND GERMAN'S WAR STRENGTH IS STILL GROWING.

More Than a Million Men are Under Arms Now.

The Army Has 6000 Guns at Its Command.

Special to The Times.

London, Feb. 15.—The military correspondent of The Times, in reviewing the position of the German army gives some interesting particulars of its development during recent years. Of the imperial budget of $712,500,000, for the financial year ending March 31, 1910, the sum allotted for army expenditure was $202,500,000. This does not represent the whole of the army charges, which are nearly $250,000,000.

The peace strength of the German army has risen during the past year to 620,000 men of all ranks and 111,820 horses. The number of reservists called out for training during the year has risen to 456,398 excluding officers, an increase of more than 110,000 over the figures for 1906. The German plan is to train each soldier twice for fourteen days while in the reserve and once for fourteen days while in the Landwehr.

The number of reservists recalled during the year for training has risen of late at the rate of 30,000 a year and will continue to rise until the plan is in full operation. Thus there are and hereafter will be more than a million men under arms at one time or another each year.

The year 1907 is the last for which complete statistics of recruiting have been published. The recruits examined number 1,189,945 among whom there were 552,092 of the age of 20, who were examined for the first time. In all 435,933 were incorporated in the armed forces including 212,661 in the active army and 10,374 in the navy.

About one half of the army recruits were 20 and the remainder 21 or 22. There were only two one-hundredths of 1 per cent of illiterates. Voluntary engagements numbered 53,000 for the army and 3,800 for the navy.

"Germany leads the world in many matters," says the writer, "and the Lord High Admiral has a supremacy in the air. He has several dirigibles of the Zeppelin, Parseval and types, and there are fifteen other dirigibles in private hands susceptible of being requisitioned.

"The German plan is to act by methods of registration and survey to prepare as for the navy, the establishments and the means for rapid construction and to aim in particular an increased speed so as to obtain relative independence of the weather. The successful trial of the Gross III, which made over 37 miles an hour on her trial trip on December 31, is a case in point.

"The Deutscher Luftflottenverein aspires to preserve for Germany the lead in aeronautics that she has already acquired and the German soldiers are inclined to believe that the aerial navy may render good service in the battlefield for tactical and for strategical exploration, while experiments have been made in dropping explosives from the airship.

"The establishment of a corps of exploration of the dirigibles is already greater than that given to any army corps. It is generally stated that the Zeppelin airship will be used in the direction of war.

"The case of the aeroplane has been steady progress in securing the germ for war. The effectives of the aeronautical battalion have been raised from 400 to 540. A census of motor carriages has shown that there are 41,727 of all classes available for requisition, and during the manoeuvres of last year great use was made of them and also of motor cycles, who will probably be formed into special corps.

"The companies of machine guns are increasing, and there will eventually be one company with six guns with each regiment of infantry. The cavalry is now for the greater part armed with the 1908 carbine modified to take the S bullet and sighted up to 2,200 yards. The distribution of the new automatic pistol, pattern 1908, will be completed this year.

"Mobile field kitchens have given good results and will soon be general use. Wireless stations are being erected at various places. The latter census of horses shows that Germany possesses 4,345,000 horses of all sorts, including 3,500,000 four-year-olds and upward.

"In many other minor details the progress of the army has been very satisfactory, and the chief causes of complaint are, first the deficit of 900 officers of the army, and secondly the manner in which the Emperor's military cabinet deals with the questions of selection and promotion.

"Excluding 3,000,000 untrained reserves and Ersatz reserve, there are over 4,000,000 trained soldiers now available for war, and there are over 6,000 field guns. It has not, however, been the custom of the German staff hitherto to rely so much upon quantity as upon quality.

"It will be with young and highly trained men, aged from 21 to 26, that the first great blow will be struck in case of war, and all attention has been concentrated upon making the first echelon of the army as perfect as human effort can compass. The record of the last year shows that from almost every point of view the German army continues to receive constant accessions of material and moral strength."

The Ontario Government will be officially represented at the opening by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary.

Two Women and Constable were Shot in Toronto Yesterday

Mrs. Davis, Colored Woman, Thought to be Killed and Her Daughter Wounded—Policeman Gets Bullet in Foot

Toronto, Feb. 14.—A posse of police are at present surrounding a frame building at 27 Elliott street, where a shooting affair took place this afternoon.

One woman, by the name of Davis, colored, is supposed to be dead, and Constable Morris has been taken to the General Hospital with a bullet through his left foot.

The shooting took place in the house about half past two, but it was not till half an hour later when a young lad who heard the sound of the revolver being shot off, informed the officer on the beat.

Morris hurried to the scene and tried to gain entrance to the house, but the doors were all locked.

He then kicked in a window, but hardly had he gained entrance to a room when he was confronted with a revolver and told to get out. He was not fast enough in moving, so he was shot through the foot.

Staggering out of the window, Morris gained the outer air and raised an alarm. Other officers were soon on the scene, but they waited the arrival of a stronger posse before endeavoring to get into the house.

The dead woman's name is Davis, but whether she is the mother or daughter has not yet been learned. One of them is thought to be dead, and the other is said to be in a dangerous condition as a result of the bullets.

The assailant is thought to be colored also. His identity has not yet been discovered, but he is thought to be a man by the name of Wooders. Others say his name is Mose Davis, a relation of the inmates of the house.

Mrs. Davis is a widow, her husband having died four years ago. She and her daughter occupied the lower part of the house, and a family, also colored, by the name of Sheppard, the upper portion. All of these were out at the time of the affair.

A great crowd soon gathered, and it augmented when the police patrol arrived.

The injured policeman was taken to a doctor's on Broadview avenue, thence to the General Hospital. The bullet is still in his leg, but it is not thought that the wound is serious.

At 4.45 this afternoon the house was still surrounded by policemen, but the man is holding the fort and no one has ventured to dislodge him. It is not thought, however, that his escape is possible.

Later it was said the wounded woman was Mrs. Davis' daughter, Mrs. Withers, and that the latter's husband was in the house at the time of the shooting.

At four o'clock the man is still holding the house and nothing really definite is known.

Police Constable Morris was not badly hurt. He was able to walk to a trolley car, on which he was taken to the General Hospital, but he left a dark trail of blood on the snow behind him.

Later Detectives Moffit and Guthrie and Inspector Miller, of No. 8 Division, after futile efforts to get the assailant to open the door have decided to enter perhaps at the cost of their lives.

The man is inside, revolver in hand, and threatens death to anyone who tries to come in.

It may happen that the affair will turn out like a similar one in Montreal a few months ago, when the police had to shoot through the doors, and one of them was in turn shot dead by the man inside.

Cruelty to Victims of Peonage System

Fiendish Cruelties Practiced at Texas Plantation—Over 1,500 Men Held in Peonage in State

Burleson, Texas, Feb. 14.—Stories of cruelty and outrages are told by victims of the peonage system that is alleged to exist on the Koppe plantation in Burleson county, Texas, and on other plantations, who were here to give their testimony before the Federal grand jury. Two more arrests on a charge of conspiracy to hold certain persons in peonage were made recently on indictments of the Federal grand jury, the accused being Robert S. Sewell, superintendent and manager of the Koppe plantation, and W. S. Hogsett, a deputy sheriff of that county.

FOUR SPECIAL AGENTS.

Four special agents of the government have been investigating the peonage cases in Texas for some weeks. The first information the government received of the practices was from Jos. Fidler, of St. Joseph Mo. He is a young man of good family, who while on his way to Brownsville, ran out of funds. He left the train at Somerville, Burleson county to telegraph home for money, and was arrested on a trumped up charge by a local officer. He was sent to the Koppe plantation, not being permitted to communicate with friends or relatives. He was kept on the farm six months, and worked until physical weakness caused him to be discharged. He reported the matter to the United States authorities when he got back to St. Joseph.

GOUGED OUT EYES.

It was discovered that many negroes and whites were held in peonage on the plantation, that they were beaten into insensibility by a bat and six-foot strap; that negroes and whites, including men and women, were housed together; that failure to do the appointed task each day caused horrible punishment to be inflicted; that the eyes of two men were gouged out, and that several died from injuries inflicted by the guards.

According to statements of the Federal special agents, from 1,500 to 2,000 men have been held in peonage in the last year in Burleson and other counties in the state of Negroes and whites were arrested without cause and pressed into peonage. It is stated that local police officers received $15 for each man they delivered to the plantation.

Eighty-Eight Persons Clinging for Life to Stern of British Vessel

Valparaiso, Chile, Feb. 14.—Immediately on receipt of the news that the Pacific Navigation Co.'s steamer Lima, had been wrecked on a reef in the Huamblin Passage, in the Straits of Magellan, and that 88 persons had been left aboard, the Chilian Government despatched the protected cruiser, Ministro Zenteno to the rescue.

Following quickly in the wake of the cruiser are five steamers, which the navigation company ordered to proceed at top speed to Magellan. The fate of those who were left behind by the British steamer Hatumet, which rescued 205 of the passengers and crew, will not be known until the Ministro Zenteno, which carries wireless, arrives there.

No further word was received yesterday from Ancud, where the Hatumet put in with the survivors. According to late despatches last night there is some hope that the remainder of the passengers and crew on the Lima may be able to hold out if aid reaches them quickly.

The Hatumet, after taking off 205 persons, was compelled to proceed on account of the danger of being swept upon the rocks by the storm that prevailed at the time.

The Lima, owned in Liverpool, was a vessel of 4,945 tons, whose last sailing date from Liverpool was December 23. She was known as an intermediate vessel. She carried passengers to Bahia Blancha (the port of Buenos; Ayres), Pt. Madryn, Peuntos Areras, Valparaiso, and other west coast ports. She was last reported as sailing from Bahia Blanca Argentina, on January 26, and was on her way to Chilean and Peruvian ports.

The place where the steamer was wrecked is probably Hrumblad Passage, located between the south shore of San Pedro Island and Chiloe. It is a narrow passage, full of dangers and very difficult of navigation. Huamblin Rocks, two in number, and 65 feet high, mark the entrance to the passage.

Ancud, Chile, Feb. 14.—The Chilean cruiser Ministro Zenteno and five steamers of the Pacific Navigation Company are racing south today in the desperate hope that they may save the 88 persons who were last heard from were clinging to the stern of the British steamer Lima, as the vessel was pounding herself to pieces on a reef in the Huamblin Passage in the Strait of Magellan.

Two hundred and five persons were taken from the wreck by the British steamer Halumet under difficulties which finally compelled the Halumet to abandon the work of rescue. Four of the Halumet's crew sacrificed their lives before their captain commanded his crew to cease their efforts. The Halumet has arrived here, and today her captain told the story of the wreck and rescue. He said:

"When we sighted the wreck we put out small boats, which closely approached the stern of the Lima where passengers and crews had gathered. Two vessels with 500 fathoms of cable, and were successful in lowering. We made connections with the ing 205 persons into our small boats and in getting them upon the Halumet. Heavy seas were rolling, which made the work of rescue perilous, and finally the Lima's end of the cable slipped from her stern and became entangled in the rocks. The Lima threw out another line, which our chief mate made a daring attempt to pick up. The second connection was eventually made, but the line suddenly tightening upset one of our small boats, and our chief mate, the ship's carpenter, the fourth engineer, and a Spanish steward were drowned. My boat rescued the others of the small boat's crew.

"I signalled the captain of the Lima that we had but one small boat left, and as this was badly strained we had better proceed to Ancud for further assistance. Unfortunately, we were delayed off Ancud by a dense fog. The Lima had a list to starboard and her port quarter is under water. She has 17 feet of water in her engine room. When we last saw her she lay in a dangerous position and was striking hard.

Boston, Feb. 14.—No news of the missing U.S. naval tug Nina, which left Norfolk for the Charlestown navy yard last Sunday has yet come to relieve the anxiety as to her fate. The belief is growing strong

DYSPEPSIA AS IT BEGINS.

This Stage Easily Cured.

One of the most common symptoms of stomach disorder is a sense of fulness or lightness after eating. This indicates that the stomach needs help, belching of gas frequently follows, the tongue is coated, the bowels become irregular, until finally, in addition to the stomach distress, constipation adds its deadly influence in destroying health.

The treatment is simple and if employed promptly and reasonably persevered with, cure is speedy and permanent. Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills in full doses every second or third night, then three times a week, one pill at bed time.

The first effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills is to excite activity of the liver and kidneys. This cleanses the system and prepares the stomach for vigorous work. Gastric juices is abundantly secreted, digestion of food and not its fermentation, marks stomach activity with total absence of gas and removal of other symptoms of perverted action.

For good health, vigorous appetite and the best digestion, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. No other medicine will do so much good. Price 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Wireless operators at the Charlestown navy yard and at the New port naval station are keeping in touch with the battleships, gunboats, and revenue cutters seeking over the waters of the North Atlantic for the Nina, but the search so far has yielded no sign of the whereabouts of the missing vessel.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 14.—Bringing 38 survivors of the steamer Farallon, wrecked near Hianna Bay, Alaska, on Jan. 5, the steamer Victoria, arrived in port from Valdez, Alaska yesterday.

Invaluable to Every Farmer

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of Nerviline around the stable has a great deal to learn. "Why I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. To cure colic, indigestion and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth the same class as Nerviline. Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the [illegible] and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline down his throat and I know it straightened him out. I have used many kinds of liniments and veterinary remedies and never knew Nerviline it a remedy used as a ration in every. And I know from my experience that for man or beast internally or externally Nerviline is worth a dollar a drop."

Mr. Gallagher is a well known stock breeder at [illegible] and has used Nerviline for many years. He is glad to tell anyone of its merits. Write him at [illegible] or see The Graphic and Times Advertising Agency, Ltd.

PESSIMISM AND POTATOES.

There was a time when "plain living" required as little definition as "high thinking" still does. But, alas, with the science of dietetics the troubles of the poor layman have steadily multiplied. He hardly knows what to eat, or how.

Here is a London expert advising him to "cut out" potatoes from his diet without regret or mercy. Potatoes, the aforesaid savant asserts, cause chronic dyspepsia, depression, worry and premature death; they contain no nutriment and overtax the digestive apparatus; the idea of eating them is too absurd to be tolerated another day.

But here is Dr. Turck of that city, who in a popular lecture on food attacks savagely the hot biscuit, the mince pie, the doughnut, the American habit of swallowing without chewing, and expressly advises the liberal consumption of rice and potatoes. True, he stipulates that the potatoes be "well boiled and mashed," but this would not placate the London foe of the tuber.

Now, the potato has been a godsend to millions in times of famine, and it has figured prominently in all plans for the simple life—compulsory or preferred. If, however, it is really the cause of pessimism and nervousness—diseases of the age, as they have been called—we must put it on the index of forbidden foods for the sake of the joy of life. But are we not entitled to ask for something like a unanimous verdict of the specialist fury? How about the perplexity and pessimism caused by divided opinion on things that so closely concern us as the potato does?

Possibly there's room for a compromise. Let us see that our potatoes are "well boiled and mashed" and watch the effect of that reform on the spirits and health of the race. The heroic advice of total exclusion seems premature.

WHERE OUR PULPWOOD GOES.

The Times is in receipt of a letter from a subscriber in Port Arthur, who says: "There is a "screaming example" of how our pulp policy works at Fort Frances. The visitor to that city is quickly attracted by the sight of a mammoth white brick building. But it is not in Fort Frances. It is situated in a Minnesota village across the Rainy River. It is a pulp mill, said to be the largest in the world. Yet virtually the whole of its raw material comes from Canada. If it had to get its logs elsewhere it would soon be in dire distress, and in no long time would have to close or move to where the logs are."

CHAMPION EATER.

Washington Laborer Claims He Broke All Records.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Any hungry man who thinks he can eat more than ten pounds of ham and forty pounds of kale and drink more than two gallons of beer at a single sitting has a fine opportunity to make a reputation for himself.

He can challenge "Boots" Rogers, a laborer at the navy yard, who last won the all-round long distance eating championship of the capital by putting away the aforementioned meal. The dainty little feast took place last night in a saloon packed so full of interested spectators that "Boots" had scarcely room in which to work his jaws.

On a former occasion Rogers put away a ten-pound turkey, three quarts of succotash, one quart of cranberries, a half gallon of raw oysters, a pint of ketchup, a half-pound cheese and one gallon of beer, one peck of bread and twelve stalks of celery. Boots is forty years old, five feet, ten inches in height, and has a waist measure of only thirty inches before the beginning of each meal.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of the above company, which appears in another portion of the paper. It is something that should interest investors, as it is a proposition of unusual merit. The company is splendidly managed and many investors and users of water from the Otonabee River have already testified to the benefits derived from the use of Ozone. Mr. J. H. Gore of Sudbury is known to many of our readers, having practised law for some years in Peterborough.

In a private letter to The Times Mr. Gore says: "I have used it in my household for the past year and am pleased to say that it has given entire satisfaction. I have recommended it to many friends and have not heard a complaint. I am pleased to see that you are taking it up."

Husband Seekers.

Hindu girls go through several superstitious rites in order to obtain a good husband. The "worship of Gauri, or Pavati, is the consort of Shiva, and on the twelfth day of the first month of the monsoon season, little girls between the ages of five and ten years form an earthern image of Gauri, and dress it up in clothes.

On either side they have set a vessel full of earth, in which they have sown wheat and barley. The morning of the twelfth, as soon as they get up, they go to the river side to bathe. Returning thence, they proceed to some place where all the female children of the village or quarter of the town are assembling, and thence the whole proceed together, singing songs, to the house of some Brahmin to whose care the image of Gauri has been entrusted.

They now worship the goddess with the sixteen prescribed ceremonials, making her presents, which fall as perquisites to the Brahmins. The mothers, or elder sisters of the girls, at this time prompt them to ask a boon of the goddess, and the children, one after another, say, "Gor! Mai Grant me a good bridegroom." The festival is not a little suggestive. It is not so poetic as that other festival celebrated by Moore, during which Hindu maidens float little lamps on the Ganges, and go away disheartened if the tiny lights do not reach the opposite bank in safety.

The Franklin Expedition.

The greatest tragedy of the far north, says a writer in The Boston Herald, was that of the Sir John Franklin expedition. Franklin sailed in 1845 with two ships, the Erebus and the Terror. They passed up the west coast of Greenland and were last seen in latitude 74 degrees 48 minutes. For three years nothing was heard of the party. Then expeditions were sent out, and the discovery after years of the records of the voyage as well as of many skeletons showed that the commander, officers and crews of the two vessels, to the number of 134, had perished to a man. Their fate was only finally revealed in 1854 by Dr. Rae of the Hudson Bay Co. and in 1859 by Captain McClintock.

"Three Nights."

Sir Henry Irving had a number of old pensioners who, though they had never risen above "sleep-thinking" parts, yet considered they were infallible experts on matters dramatic.

Shortly before one magnificent but ill-fated Lyceum production, of which a certain super had no exalted opinion, Sir Henry Irving, towards the end of a rehearsal, had a long consultation with his two colleagues on matters musical and artistic.

A pessimistic veteran, then called to a fellow-super and pointed out the distinguished trio to him with pity in his voice.

"Just look at 'em," said he, "... ole Sir 'Enry Irving, pore ole Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and pore ole Sir Alma-Tadema! Three blessed knights—and that's about as long as the bally piece will run!"

A "Fine Panama."

The Duke of Argyll has enriched the lexicon of the game with a new golf story. In opening the new club house at Helensburgh recently the duke commented on the picturesqueness of the situation enjoyed by the club. It reminded him, he said, of an incident that occurred to him and his wife on the coast of Panama. They were ... a very fine panama."

EDWARD J. TOWNSEND, President.
ALEXANDER H. BEATH, Vice-President.
JAMES K. MACLENNAN, Secretary-Treasurer.
JOHN ANNIS, of Markstay, Ont.
JAMES TOWNSEND, of Mabel, Que., and
JOHN H. CLARY, of Sudbury, Ont.

This Company was incorporated by Letters Patent dated April 16th, A. D., 1909, and is empowered to carry on in all its branches the operations of a mining., milling, reduction and development Company.

The Company was organized more particularly to acquire and develop certain of the mining claims on Emerald Lake commonly called the Townsend-Annis gold properties.

Mr. Townsend had an undivided eleven-sixteenths interest in Mining Location W.D. 154, and Mr. Annis had three water claims adjoining and extending westward from W.D. 154. The Company has a working option on the remaining five-sixteenths of W. D. 154 from Mr. William Crawford, of Haileybury, formerly of Sudbury. The Company purchased outright the interest of Mr. Townsend and Mr. Annis.

These claims are distant about 32 miles almost due north from Warren, Ontario, and lie on the east side of Emerald Lake. In winter they are reached from Markstay by an existing road some 40 miles long, needing some small repairs in places—in summer from Temagami station on the T. and N. O. Railway, by steamer to Obabika Bay on the north-west arm of Lake Temagami, and thence a distance of ten miles, in all, by water, four short portages excepted, to Emerald Lake and W.D. 154 is reached.

On W.D. 154 the ore outcrops in the form of a deposit, in width from 300 to 500 feet, and has been traced on the strike for about 1,000 feet. The dip is nearly vertical. The contact wall on the south side is jasper and maguetite and on the north side is black slate. The gangue rock is calcite, schist and quartz, heavily mineralized with gold bearing iron-pyrites. Considerable stripping and test pitting have been done at various points, and at each point good values in gold have been found. All blastings have disclosed free gold and pannings show many colors. The directors believe this property to be

The Largest Outcropping of High-grade Ore Known in the World To-day.

Four assays from Messrs. Hamilton and Parker, of Sudbury, showed respectively $2,419.01, $1,020.68, $787.63, and $102.72 per ton. Ledoux and Company of 99 John Street, New York, $26.45 (from an iron-pyrites sample). Kropp's, Germany, gave $68.00 per ton from an iron pyrites sample.

The Directors have decided to place 50,000 shares on the market at the special price of 50c per share, in lots of not less than 50 shares each. Subscriptions will be accepted on or before March 15th next, and must be accompanied by the necessary cash payment of 10c per share. Should these numbers not be subscribed for by February 15th, money will be refunded promptly. The object in placing low prices is to provide the necessary funds for the installation of the proper milling and reduction plant, and for the carrying out of the necessary mining operations. See prospectus.

All have not the knowledge or the necessary capital to send out prospecting parties, but many small capitalists can afford to put up $25.00 or more to get a share in this local enterprise where they know that first, last and all the time they will get a square deal. Come and see samples. Have them assayed yourself. Investigate for yourself.

Porcupine may have plenty of gold but you don't need to go further than Emerald Lake for gold. Many mining men of Sudbury know W.D. 154. Cut out this advertisement. Watch for following ads. Get a prospectus and all information from any of the Directors, or from Editor of the Times.

Unsuccessful Poetry.
The story is told of a farmer near Cobourg, who presented terms on which he would sell his land to the C.N.R., in six foolscap pages of rhyme. To "get even" the C.N.R. claims agent replied in rhyme. The result of the poetic controversy was that the railway paid $700 for land for which $4,000 was asked in the first effusion. Another evidence that poetry doesn't pay.

Dead Indian Secured Liquor.
Minden Echo: After keeping the body of Jacob Henry, the Indian, for a week, while several communications passed between the local authorities and the Indian agent, the burial took place at Minden cemetery on Wednesday. It seems that a bottle containing liquor was found on the body where he perished on the shore of Gull Lake last week. Is it possible that liquor was the cause of his collapse?

VOL. XXXIII NO. 35 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 16 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Hon. Raoul Dandurand is to Enter Cabinet

Would Succeed Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries—He Has However, Shown no Inclination to Accept the Onerous Duty

Ottawa, Feb. 17.—It is expected that before the end of the week Sir Wilfrid Laurier will announce the first of the cabinet changes which are impending. As previously announced in The Journal, Hon. L. P. Brodeur's illness is so serious that he cannot contemplate a return to public life at any early date, and just as soon as he can be moved he will go south for a six months' rest.

Hon. Raoul Dandurand, former speaker of the Senate has been offered the portfolio of Marine and Fisheries, which will include the control of the new Canadian navy, but he has shown no disposition to undertake these onerous duties. It is probable, however, that before the week is out, he will be announced as Mr. Brodeur's successor.

It may be taken for granted that the navy will be placed in the hands of a French-Canadian Minister, for obvious political reasons, and the strongest men within the political ring are Mr. Dandurand and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. The latter, it is said, would not be averse to the portfolio of Marine and Fisheries, but radical changes in the cabinet, unless absolutely necessary, are not favored by the Prime Minister during the parliamentary session, and it may be that the general shuffle in the cabinet, which is impending, may be delayed until the recess.

It is understood that this will be Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's last session in Parliament. His hearing has not improved, and this militates against his usefulness in Parliament.

One of the names mentioned most prominently in connection with the new appointment to the cabinet is that of Mr. Hugh Guthrie, M.P., for South Wellington, whose ability is unquestioned. He may get the Justice or State Department.

Sad Suicide of Young Student at Ottawa

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—The suicide of a young University of Toronto graduate of the science class of 1907, named Alvin McLean, of Hensall, Ont., occurred here yesterday afternoon. The victim, aged about twenty-five years, came to Ottawa about three weeks ago, and took lodgings on O'Connor street. Since then he had been doing some work at the Dominion Observatory, and was apparently studying for an examination, although little is known here as yet to his business in Ottawa, or his family connections.

About four o'clock yesterday he shot himself through the head with a revolver while standing in front of a mirror in his bedroom, and died an hour and a half later. No reason for the act is yet definitely known, although it is presumed from letters found in his room by the police that he had been brooding over some trouble in connection with a young lady living in Toronto. On the back of an envelope containing a letter from this lady he had written: "God in heaven help me." Letters found in his room also show that that his relatives live in Hensall, Huron County.

The landlady at the house says that young McLean, since he came to Ottawa, had lived very quietly, and was apparently of a religious character.

An inquest will be held.

Mr. Robinson's House Burned to the Ground

Joshua Robinson, who has resided at Zion, about nine miles south of the city, was called from his work near Campbellford on Saturday morning after nine o'clock, and arrived to find his dwelling burned to the ground. Robinson is engaged in chopping wood on Mr. J. J. Howden's property near the wharf at Campbelltown. His wife was leaving the house shortly after nine o'clock, when she noticed smoke coming from the upper storey. She called several neighbors to her assistance and a vigorous attempt was made to extinguish the fire, but it had gained considerable headway, apparently being in the wall. Attention was turned to the furniture, but only a few odd pieces were saved. When the husband arrived on the scene the ashes were cool and the embers had died out. The house belonged to the school section. During the progress the flames threatened the shed of the English church, but snow and water was thrown on the roof, and no damage was done. It is not known what the loss will be, but Mr. Robinson is left with little else but a stove, table and a few chairs.

DR. BURNHAM RESIGNED.

Dr. McNulty New Chairman of the Board of Health for 1910.

The regular meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday morning. The first order of business was the resignation of Dr. Burnham, who was re-elected at the initial meeting this year, when, although the doctor was absent, it was felt that he would not decline to act for another year. Yesterday, however, he expressed himself as desirous of having the other members share the duties of chairman, and he asked that his resignation be accepted. There was considerable delay at this stage, but it was finally moved by Dr. McNulty and Mr. Edgar that his resignation be accepted. The former, in making the motion, stated that the board regretted Dr. Burnham's action, but felt that he could not accept the position or he would not ask to be relieved from the position. It was then necessary to elect another chairman, and after another lapse Dr. McNulty was chosen upon motion of Mr. Murty and Dr. Young. In assuming his position Dr. McNulty said he would endeavor to give as much satisfaction as his predecessor, and to carry out the business of the board, as did Dr. Burnham.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

Peter Connal & Co., $3.65; R. Hicks & Co., $3.40; A. W. Cressman & Sons, $3.70.

Dr. Young addressed the board in regard to his bill against the city for services during the epidemic of smallpox last summer. He did not think that the manner in which his account had been dealt with had been fair to himself or any of the parties concerned. Dr. Bingham had been given two months' leave of absence by the council, and Dr. T. Young was appointed in his place. The first case of the disease, that in the Miller family, on George street, received his attention. He called on the mayor and Dr. Burnham in regard to what he should do, and was informed to proceed with the case, and he would be remunerated in full. The circumstances were such that it was necessary to act on the instant, and Dr. Young considered that he was employed.

Dr. Burnham asked Dr. Young what would have been the result had Dr. Bingham retained the position. Dr. Young said he had paid expenses connected with the outbreak and was asking that he be paid in the same manner as Dr. McPherson's bill. On motion of Mr. Murty and Dr. Burnham, it was decided to send Dr. Young's bill to the Finance Committee of the Council, recommending that it be paid. The members of the Board present were Dr. Young, Dr. Burnham, Dr. McNulty, Messrs. Edgar and Murty, and Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., and Chief Roszel.

NO MORE POOLROOMS

In Rural Districts, Says the Rev. Dr. Chown.

Poolrooms in rural constituencies will have a hard time to exist if the Government adopts a suggestion made by Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, secretary of the Social and Moral Reform Committee of the Methodist church. Dr. Chown in an interview with Sir James Whitney asked that the present Municipal Act be amended to permit municipalities to refuse to grant permits to poolrooms to operate. He stated that he had received a large number of letters from townships complaining that while they had the power to "regulate" poolrooms, they could not "prohibit" them. They had attempted to shut them out by raising the fee to hundreds of dollars, but when appeals were taken to the courts the judges had held that a "prohibitive" fee was against the law, and the poolrooms were flourishing unchecked.

"If we get this amendment in the Act there will be hardly be a poolroom in a rural constituency in the Province," said Dr. Chown.

LAND FRAUD TRIALS.

Three Prominent Men to be Placed on Trial.

Special to The Times.

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 15.—The Federal District Court convened here today for the trial of the so-called Kettenbach timber land fraud cases, in which William F. Kettenback, of Lewiston and several other wealthy and prominent residents of northern Idaho are charged with defrauding the Government out of valuable timber lands. The cases were brought here on change of Venue from Moscow.

The three defendants, Messrs. Kettenbach, Kester and Dwyer, will be tried on two counts of an indictment returned against them five years ago. They have already been tried and acquitted on three counts of the indictment. The other two were appealed by the defendants to the United States circuit court of appeals and remanded back to the Idaho district court for retrial. The two counts charge conspiracy to defraud the Government out of timber lands by making illegal arrangements with entrymen by which they agreed to purchase the filings of the latter and induced them to take timber lands which were later turned over to the defendants.

DECIDING GAME.

Will Be Played Between Auburn and C.G.E. Teams Tonight.

The deciding game in the Mercantile League will be played at Brock street rink tonight immediately after the Strathcona-West End fixture. The Auburns and C.G.E. sevens are rated for the championship, and the play-off should be most exciting. Both teams have played strenuous and fast hockey since the league opened this winter, and the deciding game should attract a crowd to see it particularly as the City League final goes with it.

BANK AT BRIDGENORTH.

Mr. James O'Brien to be Manager of Bank to be Opened at Bridgenorth.

The opening of a branch of the United Empire Bank of Canada at Bridgenorth, with Mr. James O'Brien, son of Mr. M. O'Brien, Gilmour street, as manager, was announced yesterday. Mr. O'Brien arrived in the city from Toronto, and accompanied by one of the bank inspectors, drove to Bridgenorth to complete the arrangements which were instituted a short time ago. A location has already been secured, and it is expected that the branch will open for business next Monday. Mr. O'Brien will have as his staff a teller and junior, and will have a thorough equipment for carrying on the usual banking business. The locality is considered a good one, being as it is, the center of a wealthy farm district, and it is expected that the people of the district will take every advantage of the establishing of a bank in their midst.

Rabies Scare Strikes Peterboro' Aldermen

Ald. J. J. Turner, Jr., Wants Immediate Action Taken to Properly Restrict the Running at Large of Dogs

Ald. J. J. Turner, Jr., brought before the Legal Committee's notice last night, that it is high time some thing was done in this city to safeguard citizens against being bitten by dogs, especially now that rabies is spreading so rapidly amongst canines as to create a general alarm throughout the country. Every day, he urged, municipalities are taking steps to restrict the running at large of dogs and it behooves Peterborough authorities to follow suit. In these days of rabies, scare hundreds of citizens are actually timid of meeting a dog on the streets. We have four dog bylaws, but neither of them appear to meet the requirement. Something should be done by the council to protect our citizens, and that at once. He offered several amendments.

Ald. Buller said he was a friend of dogs, but he admitted that they should be more fully restricted from running at large.

This matter was taken up in the general order of business but the committee decided to wait for the legislature to take action, which it is expected they will do at an early date.

Ald. Turner is to be commended for the interest he is showing in this regard. The town council of Lindsay is taking the rabies scare so seriously as to contemplate passing a measure that will provide that all dogs in that corporation shall be either muzzled or shot. From our knowledge of Lindsay a few dogs in that burg can be quite readily spared.

The Legal Committee of the City Council met last night, Ald. Duffus in the chair. There were also present Aldermen Turner, Gillespie and Buller. In the absence of City Clerk Armstrong at the Court of Revision, City Solicitor E. H. D Hall acted as clerk of the proceedings.

Mr Griffin appeared before the committee regarding his recent appearance in the police court when he was fined on a charge of trespassing on his neighbor's property. It seems the case was one of line fence dispute between the two citizens, resulting in Mr. Griffin being fined by Magistrate Dumble to the tune of $19.85. Mr. Griffin thinks he has been unjustly dealt with and hoped the council would remit him the fine. He contends that the fence put up by his neighbor is on his property according to accurate survey.

The committee had no power to deal with this matter.

GUIDE FOR EXCURSIONISTS.

The Review Printing Co., tendered for printing an illustrated pamphlet, replete with valuable information for visitors to Peterborough, and setting forth the advantages of this city as an excursion point. The price tendered was $1.5c. for 5000 eight-page phamplets, and 1c. for 10,000.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Gillespie,—That a request be made to the council for an appropriation of $200 for legal and recep. tion purposes.—Carried.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Gillespie.—That the chairman be authorized to make arrangements for having printed 10,000 of the above mentioned phamplets, the cost not to exceed $100.

POLLUTION OF WELL.

Mrs. Cadigan's communication re damages for the pollution of her well by sewage was referred to the Board of Works.

EARLY CLOSING BYLAW.

Ald. Gillespie moved, seconded by Ald. Turner.—That the petition from city grocers for an early closing bylaw, be referred to the city solicitor for advice as to whether it is properly drawn up or not, and also to the chief of police for certification that the required number of signatures are appended.—Carried.

CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES.

Thos. Mitchell's claim for damages to his crops on the Hilliard farm by reason of the smallpox tent being located there, was on motion of Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, referred to the City Trust.

Mr. Sharp's claim for damages for the drowning of his horse at Dugeon Creek bridge again came up for discussion.

Ald. Buller moved, seconded by Ald. Turner,—That acting on the advice of the city solicitor, no action be taken, and that the clerk write to the county clerk to that effect.—Carried.

NOT ON VOTERS' LIST.

Christine L. Smith complained that her name had been left off the voters' list, and asked that the matter be investigated. This matter was left in the chairman's hands to investigate and report back to committee.

DOG BYLAW.

Ald Turner introduced suggestions for amending the present dog bylaw so as to thoroughly restrict the running at large of dogs. He thought no dog should be allowed on the streets, tagged or not tagged, unless under control of its owner, muzzled and with leash if necessary.

Ald. Gillespie thought it would be better to draw up a new bylaw than to amend the old one.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall offered that no doubt the legislature will shortly adopt some measure to pacify the present rabies scare, in which event it might be well to await such action.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Buller—That no action be taken in this matter until the committee have an opportunity of ascertaining in what manner the government is going to respond to the public agitation against dogs so general throughout the country.—Carried.

COMMITTEE FOR TORONTO.

Ald. Gillespie moved, seconded by Ald. Turner.—That the mayor and chairman appoint a committee to look after the city's interests at Toronto when the city's bill comes up before the Private Bills Committee.—Carried.

Reserves Opinion on Power Scheme

Ottawa, Feb. 14. Hon. G. P. Graham declines to be interviewed with regard to the Long Sault dam project. The minister is thoroughly acquainted with the question, but eventually will have to pass upon it, and in the meantime does not care to express an opinion.

The question will be up to the government only when the International Waterways Commission makes its recommendation which will be awaited with considerable interest.

In some quarters the report of that body, adversely to the damming of Lake Erie, inspires the hope that a similar recommendation will be made regarding the Long Sault.

If the scheme, however, should be recommended by the commission there are members of the government likely to oppose it, while if it goes to parliament, the Opposition will be even more determined. The strong stand taken is an important factor against the scheme being carried out.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all dealers.

Merry Widow Gives Way to Chantecler

London, Feb. 15.—London has seldom accepted any craze from Paris as quickly as the present Chantecler one.

No sooner did the weird feather concoctions known as Chantecler hats appear in the gay city than they were imported post haste, into England in all their hideousness, and English women are hastening to buy them.

Chantecler cloaks, hat pins, purses and buckles are also on the market, and the day of the "Merry Widow," who so long reigned supreme over millinery gowns and novelties, is over.

Says New York is Crave Yard for Preachers

New York, Feb. 15.—"This city is a graveyard for preachers," said Rev Wm. Cartier, pastor of the Madison Avenue Reformed church, in his sermon yesterday.

"After two years' work I had to go abroad for a year's rest, broken down. I met there three other New York pastors, abroad for the same reason, and one of them took his life from melancholia.

"Three of the prominent Fifth Avenue churches paying the largest salaries are without pastors, after extending call after call. Clergymen are avoiding rather than seeking New York.

"The reason for this is that a minister here is compelled to bear his whole burden alone. The congregation says in effect, 'We're paying you your salary, now go ahead.'

"There must be active co-operation between pastor and congregation, if the church is to do its best work."

DENOUNCES CARNEGIE PENSIONS

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 15.—The Rev. Sylvanus Haupert, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, in a sermon on our denominational colleges, characterized as a bribe the proposal of Andrew Carnegie to pension college professors upon retirement and said that it was "commercialism's blow at the church, because of the conditions upon which the pension must be accepted.

Dr. Haupert said, "The Andrew Carnegie proposition to grant a pension to professors in our colleges on retirement and on the condition that the colleges to receive this benefit must sever all their legal relations to any religious denomination, is one of the most daring, subtle and alluring temptations that has ever presented itself to the Church. Directly it is commercialism's blow at the Church, and indirectly it is a blow to get Christian colleges out of the control of the Church, and to place them under the obligation and dictation of an iron king."

Word has been received from Wardner, B.C., announcing the death of David Breckenridge, at Wardner, B. C. He was well known in Peterborough, being a brother of Mr. Matthew Breckenridge, Mr. C. C. Sawed Through Prison Bars---Escaped by Train

Montreal, Feb. 15.—"One of the slipperiest criminals and most versatile in crime," as the provincial detectives describe him, Alexandre Rondeau, convicted a few days ago of horse stealing, with the aid of two confederates, sawed his way to liberty at the village jail in Joliette this morning at three o'clock, and disappeared. It is supposed that they jumped on the Quebec to Montreal night express.

This morning about six o'clock, when things began to stir about the jail the sawn bar of Rondeau's cell, a rope dangling from the wall and a ladder which leaned against the wall showed the escape and the method. Later Rondeau's cell mate told how he had been offered a chance to escape, but declined, and had been forced to hold his tongue by Rondeau's confederates who threatened him with a revolver.

The cell bars had been sawed with a file, which was smuggled to the prisoner.

Chief Carpenter of the local detectives received a communication this morning about eight o'clock. He says that Rondeau has been convicted of burglary a number of times and is well known to the Montreal police. Because of this reputation, he was sentenced to serve seven years, the maximum for horse stealing. The provincial detectives were informed of the escape at noon, and Detective Contin is on his way to the scene.

A close search was immediately made in and about Joliette, but no trace of the jail breakers could be found. It is believed they made a "getaway" to Montreal, and that they timed their escape to enable them to reach Lanerate, the nearest station on the C.P.R. main line by 4:30 o'clock, to catch the Quebec to Montreal night express. Lanerate is seven miles away.

The Montreal police are enquiring at this end, but so far have discovered no trace of the three men here.

GIVES CLEARNESS TO SKIN

Feeds and Purifies Blood and Thereby Keeps you in Good Health.

Most women and some men try to remove yellowishness of skin, blotches, dark lines under the eyes by cosmetiques. Such means are as useless as disappointing. When the skin lacks clearness, particularly when the body is emaciated, it is simply the stain upon the skin of impurities in the bowels that are carried about by the blood. Sluggish activity is certainly the cause of bad complexion even if regularity should be pretty fair.

Better than any cosmetique, because they remove the cause of skin discoloration, Dr. Hamilton's Pills ensure inward cleansing and activity. In addition to their laxative action they are a true tonic to all the eliminating organs, liver, kidneys, bowels, and glands. Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the cause of all blood troubles that manifest themselves outwardly, and they fortify and strengthen the organs and thereby prevent a return of diseased conditions.

To Follow Christopher Columbus Route for His Ocean Voyage

Madrid, Feb. 15.—Dr. Gans Fabrice has now definitely completed the plans for his adventurous attempt to cross the Atlantic in an airship, and the date of departure is fixed for the middle of May. The launching point has not yet been chosen, but it will be either on the coast of Portgual or the Island of Teneriffe.

The balloon is ellipitical in shape, 162 feet long, and 49 feet broad, and contains 6,000 cubic metres of hydrogen. The basket takes the shapes of a gondola, shaped liked a submarine boat, 28 feet long, 7 feet broad, fitted with four-horse-power motor. This engine will only be used to keep the balloon in the course of the African trade winds, the doctor's idea being to make the voyage entirely without mechanical propulsion by keeping within the air limits which took Christopher Columbus on his voyage of discovery.

To obviate all danger that might arise from the expansion of gas under the influence of changes of temperature, the balloon has two envelopes, between which an air current contantly circulates. Water is to be used as ballast.

Before embarking on the great adventure, Dr. Gans-Fabric will make a trial trip over some European sea.

Plain Talks to Women.
Children's Skin Troubles, Cuts, Etc.
Every healthy child gets them, and every mother has to "put something on." What do YOU put on?
When you put an ointment on to a child's skin it gets into the blood through the pores just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach. Did you ever think of that? How important, therefore, that the salve or balm should be pure!
Zam-Buk is absolutely pure; contains no animal fat; no mineral coloring matter; no acid astringents; no burning antiseptics—yet it is antiseptic! It is purely herbal, and thus meets all the needs of the skin in the superior and all-powerful way in which nature alone provides.
Children like Zam-Buk best because as soon as applied it stops the pain and the smarting of the injury or sore place. Healing then sets in immediately.

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

And Here is the Proof—A Solemn Statement from a Four-years' Cripple, Who Says "Nerviline" Did It.

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I CURED have heard of Nerviline, and now I am 4 1-2 able to tell and advise others how they YEARS. get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only, large bottles, 25c., or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A SPLENDID PRECEDENT.

In the referring of the St. Lawrence Power Development Company's bill, by the Private Bills Committee of the Commons, to the Conservation Commission an important and valuable precedent has been established, says The Ottawa Journal.

This bill is one of many in which legislators find themselves between the devil and the deep sea. On one hand, if the proposition is a legitimate business one, and they refuse to pass it, they are open to the accusation of obstructing business and standing in the way of the legitimate investment of capital. On the other hand there is a suspicion that the bill in practice, may work out to the tying up or monopolizing of some important source of natural national wealth that should be used to contribute a benefit to the whole people.

The promoters of this particular bill claimed it was for the purpose of authorizing them to distribute power already developed throughout Canada. To a question, as to whether the bill was intended to distribute power developed from the Long Sault—and indirectly give a legislative foothold to that scheme—no definite answer was received.

It is just such question as this bill presents, that the Conservation Commission has the information and the machinery to answer fully and definitely. After all, the final decision rests with the Private Bills Committee and the House of Commons and the question will again come before them in the same form as at present, but with the additional information and comment that the Conservation Commission will be able to offer. This being the case, the large majority of the committee acted as a board of directors would, were their own business concerned, for no sane men, could surely object to receiving upon an important and complicated question, a mass of exclusive, highly specialized and reliable information.

Whatever the outcome of the bill in question, in the reference of the matter to the Conservation Commission, a highly valuable precedent has been established, and one that will probably, in future—if the Conservation Commission prove to be the able and independent body people believe—be followed in many other of the difficult questions of this nature that constantly arise.

If you would have a safe yet certain Cough Remedy in the home try Dr. Shoop's—at least once. It is thoroughly unlike any other Cough preparation. Its taste will be entirely new to you—unless it is already your favorite Cough Remedy. No opium, chloroform, or any other stupefying ingredients are used. The tender leaves of a harmless hugheating mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop' Cough Remedy its wonderful curative properties. It is truly a most certain and trustworthy prescription. Sold by all dealers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A NEW MINISTER.

According to despatches from Ottawa. Mr Brodeur, owing to ill-health, may be compelled to withdraw from the Government. If this should become necessary, and certainly no one could be so bitterly partisan as not to desire Mr. Brodeur's early and permanent recovery, he probably will be succeeded by Senator Dandurand, of Montreal. Mr. Dandurand, and this may be said without instituting comparisons of an invidious character," will bring strength to the Government. Although a strong partisan, he is honorable, and able as well as courageous. There are few men on the Government benches so well fitted to occupy this position at Ottawa, and both the Government and the country may be congratulated if it turns out that he joins the Ministry.

QUEBEC'S REAL VOICE.

La Presse and La Patrie, two of the leading, if not the two most important, French daily newspapers in Canada, are supporting the proposition of a Canadian navy. Good! Although Canada's French Canadian citizens may think differently on many subjects, to their English neighbors, when it comes to the point it is generally may always found, that as many of the leaders of thought in Quebec are to be found ranged on the side of generosity and decency as are to be found in Ontario. The attitude of La Presse and La Patrie in this matter, which is one not of political expediency but of conviction, goes a long way to goods increasing the good feeling and helping the better understanding between the two sections of the Canadian people.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies have failed. Sold by all dealers.

No action was taken by the Cobourg council on the petition which was presented asking that the hotel licenses be reduced from 12 to 4.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evident honesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

THE CASE OF GUERRE

One of the Queerest Stories of Doubles In History.

AUDACITY OF THE IMPOSTOR.

He Deceived Not Only the Sisters, but Even the Wife, of the Man Whose Place He Usurped—The Return of the Real Guerre and the Exposure.

Perhaps the most remarkable case of doubles in all history is that of Martin Guerre, a Frenchman, who was born near Bayonne in the first half of the sixteenth century. Martin Guerre was the son of a well to do farmer and brickmaker, and, as was the custom of the country at the time, he married at the age of eleven Bertrande de Rois, who had then reached the age of ten. For eight years they lived together.

Unfortunately Martin stole a bushel of corn from his father. Frightened by the heinousness of his crime, he deserted his wife and fled to Spain. There he entered the service of Emperor Charles V. and after several years of campaigning seems to have forgotten his wife, Bertrande, and his baby boy, Sancho. At any rate, he ceased to write home, and his family lost all trace of him. His absence stretched on to eight years.

Then one evening a stranger arrived at the inn of the village where the deserted wife was still living. He at once told his host that he was Martin Guerre and recounted the adventures and hardships that had kept him from home so long. The rumor of Martin Guerre's return soon spread, and his four sisters hastened to the hostelry to welcome him home. They found him much changed. He had gone eight years before, scarcely more than a boy. Now he was a mature man, bronzed and bearded. Nevertheless they welcomed him, embraced him and carried the news to his wife. Bertrande hastened to him at once. When she saw him first she started back with misgiving. But he addressed her tenderly, repeated word for word their parting conversation and mentioned details that only a husband could have known. He even spoke of the clothing he had left behind and where it could be found. Bertrande was convinced. She begged forgiveness for her doubts and threw herself into his arms. An uncle arrived. He, too, hesitated, but the newcomer detailed to him all the minutiae of their business transactions eight years before, and he also was convinced.

The upshot of the matter was that this newly arrived Martin Guerre returned home with his wife and lived happily and without suspicion with her for four years. During this time they had two children, and Martin's father at his death bequeathed him a farm.

However, a soldier passing through the village declared that he had seen Martin at the siege of St. Quentin that he had lost a leg there, but that he was still alive, and the soldier left a written deposition to that effect. The rumor spread that the man living as Martin Guerre was an impostor.

Bertrande at this filed a criminal information against the man to whom for four years she had granted the rights of a husband. He was described in the accusation as Arnault du Tilh and was committed to prison. The prisoner said that the uncle had influenced his wife and that the whole charge was a conspiracy to deprive him of his fortune of 5000 livres. He submitted to a searching interrogatory after the French fashion, and answered all questions satisfactorily. He told of his campaigns and revealed the most intimate details of the family history. He relied for his defense, too, on the four sisters who still called him brother, on his four years' life with Bertrande with her consent, and pressed her in the presence of the judge to swear that he was not her real husband, declaring that if she so swore he was ready to forfeit his head. Bertrande refused to take this oath. She was confused by his confident manner.

In the trial 150 witnesses were examined. Of this number forty deposed that the man was the real Martin Guerre, fifty deposed that he was Arnault du Tilh, and sixty declined to pronounce any opinion, owing to the extraordinary resemblance. In spite of the conflicting evidence the judge pronounced him guilty. He at once appealed to the parliament of Toulouse.

Oil Bathing.

Oil bathing is a regular institution among the Hindoos. An experienced masseur rubs the oil on his patron's friends or relatives generally once a week. And it is a fact that moles, warts and such faults of the surface of the skin are very rare among them. The newborn infant gets the oil bath daily for forty days. The intervals are then gradually lengthened, but he will be considered a very naughty boy who during his school days tries to shirk the oil bath at least once a week. As a youngster he yells all the time he is being bathed. Perhaps it is good for his lungs. Anyhow, nobody thinks of finding fault with the nurse for the ballooing of her charge, and generally speaking it may be said that Indians have better lungs and better pectorals as compared to the body weight than the Europeans, and the feminine bust is decidedly fuller and more perfect.—C. N. Saldanha in Lancet.

How to Carry Books.

The Philadelphia free library permits patrons to take out six books at a time during certain months.

"If you are not going to wrap those books up let me show you how to carry them," said one of the assistants at the library recently.

Then the young woman slipped a cover of one book inside of a cover of one she placed on the top of it, building up a pile of six books in this fashion, and the man addressed, who was carrying the volumes home to please his wife, the reader of the family, found his difficulties were much lessened.—Philadelphia Press.

Too Much Like Work.

The happy mother of a seven-months-old baby, whose chief business seems to be making a noise in the world, was paying her sister a visit, and the other evening young Master Harry, aged seven years, was delegated to care for the baby while his elders were at dinner. So he wheeled it back and forth, forth and back, the length of the library, giving vent to his sentiments by singing, much to the amusement of the family:

"Free while, I'm glad I'm free!
No wedding bells for me!"

—Ladies' Home Journal.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed out this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to those failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days' test will surely tell. Try it once and see. Sold by all dealers.

Sunday School Workers Meet.

Rock Hill, S. C., Feb. 15.—With Sunday school workers present from all over South Carolina, the annual State Sunday School convention began a three days' session here today. The feature of the initial session this morning was the annual address of the President, Rev. C. A. Freed, of Columbia. At the subsequent sessions subjects of great interest to the workers will be discussed by such speakers as W. C. Pearce international superintendent, and W. B. Jacobs, of Chicago.

(NO PERSONAL LIABILITY.)

Incorporated Under the Ontario Companies' Act

Authorized Capital $500,000
Divided Into 500,000 Shares Par Value $1.00 Each

Treasury Stock - - 200,000 Shares

EDWARD J. TOWNSEND, President.
ALEXANDER H. BEATH, Vice-President.
JAMES K. MACLENNAN, Secretary-Treasurer.
JOHN ANNIS, of Markstay, Ont.
JAMES TOWNSEND, of Mabel, Que., and
JOHN H. CLARY, of Sudbury, Ont.

This Company was incorporated by Letters Patent dated April 16th, A. D., 1909, and is empowered to carry on in all its branches the operations of a mining, milling, reduction and development Company.

The Company was organized more particularly to acquire and develop certain of the mining claims on Emerald Lake commonly called the Townsend-Annis gold properties.

Mr. Townsend had an undivided eleven-sixteenths interest in Mining Location W.D. 154, and Mr. Annis had three water claims adjoining and extending westward from W.D. 154. The Company has a working option on the remaining five-sixteenths of W. D. 154 from Mr. William Crawford, of Haileybury, formerly of Sudbury. The Company purchased outright the interest of Mr. Townsend and Mr. Annis.

These claims are distant about 32 miles almost due north from Warren, Ontario, and lie on the east side of Emerald Lake. In winter they are reached from Markstay by an existing road some 40 miles long, needing some small repairs in places—in summer from Temagami station on the T. and N. O. Railway, by steamer to Obabika Bay on the north-west arm of Lake Temagami, and thence a distance of ten miles, in all, by water, four short portages excepted, to Emerald Lake and W.D. 154 is reached.

On W.D. 154 the ore outcrops in the form of a deposit, in width from 300 to 500 feet, and has been traced on the strike for about 1,000 feet. The dip is nearly vertical. The contact wall on the south side is jasper and maguetite and on the north side is black slate. The gangue rock is calcite, schist and quartz, heavily mineralized with gold-bearing iron-pyrites. Considerable stripping and test pitting have been done at various points, and at each point good values in gold have been found. All blastings have disclosed free gold and pannings show many colors. The directors believe this property to be

The Largest Outcropping of High-grade Ore Known in the World To-day.

Four assays from Messrs. Handley and Parker, of Sudbury, showed respectively $2,419.01, $1,020.68, $787.63, and $102.72 per ton. Ledoux and Company of 99 John Street, New York, $26.45 (from an iron-pyrites sample). Kropp's, Germany, gave $68.00 per ton from an iron pyrites sample.

The Directors have decided to place 50,000 shares on the market at the special price of 50c per share, in blocks of not less than 50 shares each. Allotments will be made as applications, accompanied by the necessary cash, have been received for 20,000 shares. Should this number not be subscribed for by February 15th next, money will be refunded promptly. The above low price is to provide the necessary funds for the installation of the proper milling and reduction plant and for the carrying out of the necessary mining operations. See prospectus.

All have not the knowledge or the necessary capital to send out prospecting parties, but many small capitalists can afford to put up $25.00 or more to get a share in this local enterprise where they know that first, last and all the time they will get a square deal. Come and see samples. Have them assayed yourself. Investigate for yourself.

Porcupine may have plenty of gold but you don't need to go further than Emerald Lake for gold. Many mining men of Sudbury know W.D. 154. Cut out this advertisement. Watch for following ads. Get a prospectus and all information from any of the Directors, or from Editor of the Times.

At ten o'clock yesterday morning the fire brigade was called to Foster's Temperance House, opposite the C.P.R. station, to handle what had all the signs of being a bad fire. A blaze had started in the second floor presumably from matches. Three chemicals and a considerable amount of water was used, hose having been laid on the arrival of the brigade. Two bedroom suites were destroyed, and the woodwork badly burned in many places. A trunk belonging to a boarder was also partly destroyed. The damage is estimated at about $100.

Do Not Remove the Sand.

The past few days the city engineer's department had men at work putting sand on the walks on the business streets of the city which are very slippery. In many cases, however, employes of stored came out with their brooms and swept the sand off. This happened at many places and as a result the good work being done by the sand sprinklers was counteracted. The city is putting the sand on the streets to make them safe for pedestrians and merchants and others should see that it is left where it is sprinkled.

Splendid selections were given on the phonograph supplied by Mr. J. H. Callendar. The juveniles had a happy time in comparing the valentines. Refreshments were served during the evening.

British Airships to Patrol Coast

Special to The Times.

New York, Feb. 12.—Within a few week's England's first naval airship will be "launched." The crew already chosen, six officers and men from His Majesty's ship Vernon, are now undergoing a course of preliminary instruction. This aerial ship is to be utilized in patrolling the North Sea, and the strictest secrecy has hedged about its construction in a special shed at the plant of Messrs. Vickers' Sons & Maxim, at Barrow-In-Furness.

Though the Admiralty has succeeded in keeping knowledge of the details of construction from leaking out, it is known that the airship will be of a far more advanced type than any hitherto built. Of the rigid type, it will be the largest of its kind in the world, with the single exception of the Zeppelin airship. The engines are expected to develop approximately two hundred horse power. If required the craft could carry from twenty to thirty men, but the limitation of the crew to six, so it is reported, has been with the object of allowing for the carriage of as much war material as possible. A special feature is said to be the magazine for the carrying of explosives in time of war.

The firm which has had charge of the construction built the first submarine for the British navy, and for that reason the meximum of confidence as to the success of the new airship has been popularly inspired. The craft was especially designed by Messrs. Spencer, of Highgate.

"This new Admiralty craft," said Mr. Percival Spencer, who is a firm believer in the possibilities of airships as a war factor, "naturally is is something of an experiment. Opinions differ on the subject of size. Some believe in huge constructions of the Zeppelin type and others pin their faith to the smaller craft of the French Clement-Bayard type.

Use of Rigs in Local Option Campaigns May be Prohibited

Toronto, Feb. 16—Hon. Mr. Hanna has promised that legislation will be enacted to prevent the hiring of rigs in local option contests. "It is a matter of legal doubt, and we want it cleared up."

This statement was made by Rev. B. H. Spence at the preliminary conference succeeding the annual convention of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance, held in the Elm street Methodist church. There was a large attendance, and Mr. Gibson the president, was chairman.

Rev. Mr. Beatty of Cobourg, was asked a question concerning the hiring of rigs.

"We must not hire rigs; but we have to do it all the same," he said.

"Our friend, Mr. Beatty, was giving went to the humorous side of his nature," Chairman Gibson said a minute later, "We local optionists always want to keep with the law."

THE LOCAL OPTION BYLAW.

"You can't sell liquor without a license, and you can't get a license. This is the fundamental foundation of the local option bylaw," said Mr. Spence, who spoke on Our Local Option Bylaw.

He said Hon. Mr. Hanna had formulated legislation to prevent "shake purses" consumption of liquor. A shake purse is when a number of fellows pool their money to buy quantities to bring to boarding houses.

Mr. Spence told of an incident at Owen Sound, where Mr. MacKay said there had been less drinking in Owen Sound.

"I was in a hotel lobby conversing with a number of newspapermen," he said, "and they were saying that there was as much liquor drunk in Owen Sound then under local option, as under the license system. Owen Sound was at its worst under the local option law, then, too. Mr. MacKay, who was sitting nearby, said: "It is not true, there is not one tenth as much drinking in Owen Sound now as there was under the license system."

"What we are striving to attain," said Mr. Spence, "is a decreased consumption of liquor. There has not been half the number of convictions in local option districts as in the districts under license law.

"Begin your campaign early, never heard of a campaign being commenced too early yet."

GET UP BIG PETITIONS.

In the Round Table Conference which followed on How to Conduct a Local Option Campaign, Mr. Spears advised the delegates to secure an overwhelming petition to present to the local city, town, or village councils.

Mr. Spence told the delegates to have the petitions in seperate sheets recalling an incident in Toronto when a number of these lists were cut off except the one at the top and the list was thrown out.

"Watch your opponents' lists," said Rev. John Cobourn, "and see that no dead men, boys, or ineligible people are allowed on the voters' list. Election day seems to be a kind of resurrection day for many, and Gabriel's Trumpet seem to bring a lot of men to life to vote.

In advocacy of this he told how 2,500 names had been struck off the voters' list in Toronto, that the anti-license reductionists had endeavored to have placed on the voters' lists. This had won the election, he said, as the majority had only been 846. A change over of 3,800 had been effected.

"Can a minister who lives in a parsonage vote in a local option contest?"

This question was asked Mr. Coburn, and he said yes, because the free use of house was included in his salary and actually in part of his salary.

"We want to win local option contests on a clean list or not at all," said Chairman Gibson.

Rev. Mr. Beatty, chairman of the Cobourg Local Option Committee, spoke on the canvas and getting out the vote. He gave some advice gained from experience on the subject. "If you're not systematic you cannot accomplish the work you otherwise would," he said.

Mr. Beatty said there was an increasing number of "black ballots" being cast in local option campaigns These should be guarded against.

In his address on literature and publicity, Mr. H. P. Moore, of Acton, advised the use of all literature possible in the campaigns, especially the local press. A newspaper proprietor should not be asked to give his columns free because he might be a supporter.

Rev. J. G. Potter of Peterborough, gave an address on the canvas and getting out of the vote.

The convention proper opened this afternoon. Two hundred and twenty-four delegates were present.

Anglican Sunday School Convention and Summer School

Enthusiastic Meeting in St John's Last Night to Arrange Preliminary Details—Members from Various Local Anglican Churches will be a Committee to Complete All Arrangements

The meeting of the city Anglican clergy, Sunday school superintendents and teachers, was held in St. John's guild room last night, to form a committee in connection with the S.S. convention to be held here next June.

The meeting was very largely attended, and characterized by considerable enthusiasm for the work in hand.

The Rev. J. Russel McLean, rector of Colborne, was present, and outlined the work proposed to be taken in hand by the committee for the deaneries to be represented at the convention. On the Sunday preceding the convention the Anglican pulpits will be occupied by Bishop Sweeney, Archdeacon Cody and Rev. Canon Powell. Papers will be given by Mr. Barlow Cumberland, Rev. Mr. Burn-Rev. Mr. Holdsworth and others Wednesday and Thursday of convention week will be devoted to a summer school conducted by expert S.S. teachers. A city committee was formed as follows: Mr. Edgar of All Saints,' chairman: Miss Birdie Dawson, and Mr. R. J. Devey, secretaries: the three local superintendents, convenors, with five representatives from each congregation, will form the executives of the committee.

In the course of the discussion that followed strong emphasises was laid upon the fact that merely academic discussion at the coming convention would be useless and consequently the committees were requested to take up subjects that would be of real practical assistance to Sunday school teachers.

The object of the work to be taken up, both at the convention and the summer school will be to specially help Sunday school work in purely rural districts.

Rev. H. R. Trumpour of All Saints' presided at the early part of the above proceedings, followed by Rev. Dr. Langeldt of St. Luke's church.

Joseph Chamberlain Attended but was too Weak to Sign Name

London, Feb. 16.—Amid scenes of the greatest enthusiasm manifested by political followers and opponents alike, Joseph Chamberlain, the Conservative leader, and member from Birmingham West, was sworn in today.

Mr. Chamberlain has been in poor health for several years, and he was so weak that he could not sign his name to the House register, merely making a cross after his name—

That he was able to appear at all, however, was hailed with delight by the Conservatives, who are hopeful that he will continue to improve in health and again take his place as the dominant figure in the party. Chamberlain says he hopes to be able to attend the sessions regularly.

REPEATED WORDS IN A LOW VOICE.

London, Feb. 16.—Austen Chamberlain and Lord Morpeth today escorted Mr. Joseph Chamberlain to a seat in front of the Government benches. There, resting upon a stick, with his head bent toward the clerk who administered the oath, Mr. Chamberlain repeated the formula of swearing in in a low voice, and his name was added to the roll.

Mr. Chamberlain placed a cross against the name.

China to Ignore New English Move

Pekin, Febl 17. The St. Petersburg report that the British Government holds that China should not complete a detailed agreement for the Chinchow-Fu loan without considering Russian's interests and consulting Russia is regarded as unimportant here.

Chinese officials construe the move merely as an attempt on Great Britain's part to carry favor with Russia.

Throughout the loan negotiations the British Government has been conspicuously inactive, leaving the whole burden to America, despite the fact that the project contemplates American and British co-operation.

Great Britain's present move is decidedly belated, both America and China having from the first assured Russia that not only was there no intention of infringing upon any legitimate rights Russia may possess, but that they will admit Russian participation.

Liquor License Bill Does Not Deal with Three-Fifths Requirement as Expected

Toronto, Feb. 16,—"It was sorely disappointing to temperance workers that the Government bill to amend the Liquor License Act did not deal with the question of the three-fifths requirement." Mr. Ben Spence, secretary of the Provincial Branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance, said in the secretary's report read at the convention in the Elm street Methodist church this afternoon.

"The Government's promise has been left unfilled," he said further. "The result of the vote in 1908 and 1909 proved beyond question that the three-fifths requirement is not necessary.

This requirement, the secretary pointed out, has prevented local option being carried in 109 municipalities in three years.

Will Build a Parsonage for Methodist Church

Lindsay, Feb. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Eaton of Toronto, have decided to build a parsonage for the Methodist church at Omemee, and the gift has been thankfully accepted by the official board. Steps are being taken to arrange suitable plans. Mrs. Eaton was formerly a valued member of the church, and has always manifested a deep interest in its welfare. Recently she gave purses to the organist and to the choir member who had the best record of attendance during the year.

DIED WHILE CUTTING ICE.

Elijah Decon Expired at Long Lake From Heart Failure.

Englehart, Feb. 16.—Elijah Decon was found dead yesterday by his son behind his house on Long Lake, about six miles from Charlton. He had been cutting ice off the house and fell backwards with the axe in his hands, heart failure evidently causing death. Mr. Decon was about fifty-five years of age and a native of Norfolk County, where he was license inspector for several years.

AT ST. JOHN'S.

Rev. Mr. McLean Preached Splendid Sermon.

Rev. Mr. McLean of Colborne, officiated at St. John's church last night when the reverend visitor preached an interesting and forcible sermon on "Christ's Forty Day's Fast and Subsequent Temptation." Mr. McLean is very popular in St. John's, and his presence always attracts a large congregation, last night being no exception to the rule.

HER HUSBAND DRINKS.

Wife is a Temperance Leader and Spouse Said He Was a Temperance Man.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 16.—Mrs. Mary Moore of McKeesport, is suing for divorce, because she says, of her husband's drinking habits, and that he had deceived her into believing that he did not drink. She was a temperance leader, and it seems that while a prohibition meeting was being held in her house a lady intending to draw water from the water tank in the room drew whiskey, and a scandal resulted. It transpired that the husband had put a bottle of whis key in the tank to keep it cool, and the maid, putting in more ice, broke the bottle.

CAR FERRY IN DISTRESS.

Grand Trunk Craft and Her Crew May Be Driven Ashore.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—According to a wireless message received here today a vessel believed to be the Grand Trunk car ferry Grand Haven, is in distress, and in danger of being driven ashore at Grand Haven, Mich. The vessel is said to carry a crew of twenty men, and left the Michigan port yesterday evening headed for Milwaukee.

BIG STRIKE OF GAS.

Fine Flow Develops While Deepening Well in Oxford County.

Woodstock, Feb. 16.—While deepening one of their wells on the property of Adam Matheson, Innerkip, the Oxford Oil & Gas Company made a good strike of gas. The well had previously been 450 feet deep, but was lately sunk to 800 feet at which the flow was struck. Just how big the flow is, is not yet known. The company will sink all their wells to the 800-foot level and it is expected that more gas will be found. All wells sunk as yet have been on the Zorra side of the river, but there are good prospects of abundance of gas on the Blandford side.

DERANGED KIDNEY ACTION

Causes Florid Skin Blotches, Pimples.

Mrs. Conrad Schmid, Hamilton discovered what a great many women would like to know, the cause of redness, that unlike natural healthy color suffuses the entire face. It is humiliating indeed to a refined person to always present the appearance with "dram drinking." In writing of her case, Mrs. Schmid says: "Cosmetiques and local applications were quite useless. By reason of an aching pain in the back I was recommended by a friend to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills to relieve my kidneys. I discovered that failure of the kidneys to remove matter from the blood was the cause of my heightened color. Dr. Hamilton's Pills at once removed the cause of the pain and gave me a comperion that most young girls might envy. I have the most satisfactory proof that Dr. Hamilton's Pills not only regulate the organs, but purify the blood thoroughly."

No other medicine will so quickly clear the skin, cure pimples, eruptions and all blemishes. For general family use, as a blood cleanser and tonic laxative, Dr. Hamilton's Pills can't be excelled. Beware of substitutes. All dealers sell Dr. Hamiltons Pills, 25c per box, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Spencer Committed for Trial on Charge of Shooting Chinaman

Walkerton, Feb. 15.—Ernest Spenser, who was arrested shortly after his marriage on the charge of shooting a Chinaman here for the purpose of robbery, was before Magistrate A. W. Robb yesterday for preliminary hearing. A chain of circumstantial evidence was produced, and the prisoner was committed for trial Spenser, who is a Bell Telephone lineman, had boarded for many weeks in Walkerton, and being behind in board and otherwise hard up, he was suspected of having tried to recuperate his fortunes by shooting a Chinaman, Harry Wong, in the arm, for purposes of robbery. He is also said to have exhibited a revolver on several occasions, and on the strength of such evidence as this a warrant was issued for his arrest. Spenser was apprehended at the home of his sister, Mrs. Rowe, in Chatham. He devoutly declares he is innocent, and his young bride, who was formerly a Miss Fraser of that city, staunchly believes him. She shared his cell with him at the police station, until the arrival of Constable Russell, when the prisoner was removed to Walkerton. Detective Reburn of Toronto, is scouting around the neighborhood looking up evidence.

Nearly 9,000 Miles of Railways in Ontario

Toronto, Feb. 16.—The report of the Minister of Public Works shows that during the past year there were 260.23 miles of new railway opened for operation in the Province, bringing the total mileage to 8,660.42. Of this 188 miles form part of the National Transcontinental. The Algoma Central Railway has 110 miles under construction, all of it begun since the reorganization of the Lake Superior Corporation.

There were opened up during the year 146 miles of colonization roads in Northern Ontario. Among the important public works completed were eleven steel bridges on concrete substructures, and twenty timber bridges in New Ontario. The largest bridge was over the Spanish River near the scene of the recent wreck, one span being 200 feet long. The storage dams comtracted at the outlet of Dog Lake will provide for the development of 40,000 horse power.

Love-Sick Young-Man Took Carbolic Acid

Kingston, Feb. 16.—Geo. Green, a young man of Sharbot Lake, aged 23 years, while despondent as the result of an interruption in his love affairs, took a dose of carbolic acid last evening, and his life is despaired of. It seems that the young man had been keeping company with a young woman, and that his family had strongly objected to the court-ship.

The Abolition of the German Surtax

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—In the House of Commons yesterday Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, brought down an official statement of the negotiations which have been going on for some time between the German consul-general for Canada and the Canadian Government. These negotiations have had in view improved trade relations between the Dominion and the German empire. An agreement has been entered into and signed whereby the surtax of 33 1/3 per cent. imposed upon German goods is suspended, thus leaving German products to be admitted into Canada under the terms of the general tariff, Canada to receive in return for this concession the benefits of the German conventional tariff upon a specified list of products. Hitherto the specified products imported from Canada have been subject to the maximum German tariff.

The convention which was signed yesterday is a provisional one and provides that "if after reasonable time a commercial convention has not been entered into, then either of the principals may terminate the convention by giving two months' notice." Dr. Long, the German Consul-general for Canada, had full authority to sign the agreement as in a letter to Mr. Fielding, he says: "I have the honor to assure you that I am fully authorized by my government to make the arrangement contemplated, and that, on my signing the memorandum of agreement, immediate action by the German Government will be taken for putting it into effect.

The German surtax was placed in effect by the Laurier Government in 1897. When the administration sought to give a preference to Great Britain it was pointed out by several members of the Opposition that this preference would, under existing treaties, extend to imports from Belgium and Germany. The Federal Government finally asked the Imperial Government to denounce the commercial treaties then in force with Belgium and Germany. Great Britain did this, but at once negotiated a new treaty with Germany to the same effect as the old one, except that Canada was specifically excluded from favored tariff treatment by Germany. Although this result was brought about at the request of the Canadian Government, Canada put a surtax of 33 1-3 per cent. over and above the general tariff upon all imports coming from Germany. Thus a tariff war was inaugurated.

PRODUCTS TARIFF AFFECTS.

The list of Canadian products to be admitted into Germany on and after March 1, next, at conventional tariff rates, is as follows:—

Wheat and spelt, barley, oats, red clover seed, white clover seed, and other clover seed, grass seeds of all kinds.

Fruits, fresh:—Apples, pears, quinces unpacked, packed apricots, peaches, plums of all kinds, cherries, acards, medlars, strawberries, raspberries, currants, gooseberries, blackberries, myrtles, elderberries, juniper berries, and other edible berries.

Timber:—Sawn longitudinally or prepared in some other way, not planed, hard and soft wood for cognizable as these articles, not casks (staves and headings), also pieces of wood roughly shaped, repainted or planed, of oak or other hard woods or soft wood.

Horses, horned cattle (live weight), sheep (live weight), meat, (excluding bacon), fresh, frozen, simply prepared, prepared more delicately for the table.

Marine crustaceans, living or not, including those merely boiled, or salted, whether shelled or not, lobsters and crayfish gross weight.

STURGEON FALLS SCHOOLS.

Another Action Against the Town and Seperate School Trustees.

School Section No. 1, of the town of Sturgeon Falls, is taking action against the corporation of the Town of Sturgeon Falls and the Separate School Trustees of Section No. 1 for an order to compel the corporation to pay over the Public School rates for the year 1908, which have been levied by the corporation.

An order is also asked declaring that an agreement alleged to have been entered into between the plaintiffs and the Seperate School Board, dated June 22nd, 1898, is, and was from its execution, void, and that the statute, passed by the Ontario Legislature, entitled "An Act respecting the Seperate Schools in the town of Sturgeon Falls," alleged to legalize the argument, was, and is ultra vires the legislature, and that the recent award in the District Court of Nipissing, purporting to be made in pursuance of the statute, be declared void.

BELL TELEPHONE PROGRESS.

Splendid Business Done by the Local Exchange.

It will be interesting to citizens generally to know that the Bell Telephone Co.'s branch in Peterborough is one of the company's leading exchanges. This city is classed with such places as Brantford, St. Catharines, Sherbrooke and Windsor, where the 'phones number from 1,000 to 3,000, and the service here is the best of all, while the increase in the number of 'phones has been very flattering, to the company and is proof of the splendid service. In spite of the fact that there is keen opposition, and that the city has not increased very rapidly in population, the increase in the number of 'phones during September and October only, was 13.71 per cent. There are only eleven other exchanges in Canada that exceed Peterborough in this respect, and in the majority of those instances this was due to an influx in the population and in the business centre. The local management deserves great credit for the growth of the system here, and the local staff deserves credit for the popularity of the service. Peterborough is to-day using more Bell 'phones per population than almost any other city and the people are gradually beginning to see the necessity of having the telephone system in the house, which gives them perfect local and long distance connections.

Lady Laurier Fined.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—In the police court today Lady Laurier was fined $22 and costs for allowing her automobile to be driven at a speed of about 20 miles per hour on one of the city streets. A plea of guilty was entered.

THE WEATHER.

A boon to StockRaisers

We Know How to Cure Colic, Distemper, Colds, Swellings, Etc.— Saves Thousands Each Year.

It is a matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse-owner and stock-raiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly sick.

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Fullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years:

SAVED $1,000 BY NERVILINE

"Several years ago when my horses took colic I used to give them Cayenne Pepper in a few cases only did it help, and because I had no proper means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Wendling, of Brockville, Ont., had in his racing stables with "Nerviline," so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000.00. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died, had it not been for Nerviline. I have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practical horseman proved beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Give Nerviline a trial. It's good for man or beast, internally or externally. 25c per bottle or five for $1.00. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE GOOD CLASS.

In a wail over population lost to Canada the Chicago Record Herald points out that the Americans coming to the Canadian West are of a class of immigrants such as no other country has attracted to any extent from the beginning of history.

Hitherto, as a very general rule, the immigrants of the world have been men who change their country to improve their condition, men of the poorest class who hope amid the more active conditions of newer land to make a fortune.

The Americans crossing the boundary are men of a different type, men who have made a success of their American life, but who leave, attracted by the lure of larger farms cheaper land, and greater productiveness, and who bring with them good and money, which in a summer's aggregate, amounts in value to over two hundred million dollars.

Little wonder the Chicago Record Herald "views with alarm" this national loss. It is some of the best blood of the nation that is being transfused into Canada. And as yet we are but at the beginning.

Two men in Toronto have been fined very heavily for calling a non-union man a scab. Which but emphasizes that the law recognizes no class.

Halsey Bribery Trial.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 15.—Theodore V. Halsey, former general agent of the Pacific States Telegraph and Telephone Company, who, by a plea of illness has succeeded in delaying for many months his trial for alleged connection with the Ruef-Schmitz graft operations, now finds himself unable to delay his court hearing further. On the strength of a report made by a board of medical examiners, who found that Halsey was suffering neither heart disease nor from tuberculosis, as his physicians asserted, Judge Dunne assigned the case for trial to-day. Halsey must answer to the charge of bribing the Ruef-Schmitz board of supervisors in connection with a telephone franchise.

Janet, the Factory Girl

The Ray of Brightness That Came Into Her Dull Life.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

"Dingle, dongle, dingle, ding, ding, d-i-n-g," ended the first summons to the factory workers, the last "d-i-n-g" being long drawn out, as though the bell ringer, who was also the night watchman, was becoming weary of the signal which ended and yet did not end his hours of labor. His regular visit to the peg clock in each room was over, but now he must wait another half hour to ring the last summons to the help.

Janet Ratcher was a sleepy head, and, though she heard and recognized the last drawling "d-i-n-g" of the first bell, she made no effort to rise, but continued to lie there, gazing sullenly at the window, through which a faint suggestion of daylight was beginning to appear. Rain was pattering against it, and the chill of a falling barometer had penetrated the room until the mere thought of stepping out upon a cold floor brought an anticipatory shiver, and the factory was nearly a mile away.

Janet was blue. She had gone to bed in that condition, and now she had awakened in the same way.

It was not until she heard a hesitating step below that she sprang from bed, repentant, ashamed, and hurried into her clothing and downstairs.

"Oh, mother," she cried, "you ought not to have got up till I had a fire started! Here, let me throw this shawl around you."

"I was afraid you'd be late, dearie," her mother said apologetically. "I meant to have got up sooner and had something warm for you, but overslept. It's too bad to have to go out on a morning like this."

"Well, I didn't oversleep," confessed Janet, forcing herself into temporary cheerfulness. "I was just lazy and lay there studying about things. Lucky I had everything ready last night. I'll put the water in this shallow pan so it'll heat quickly; then we'll have coffee." She glanced at the clock. "Twenty minutes, and it'll take twelve for me to walk to the factory. No, ma, you needn't put up a chair for me! I shan't sit down. I'll just take a bite and run. Don't you hurry, though. Wait till the victuals get warmed over, and the coffee's good, then take your time. It'll help fill up the day. You must get awful lonesome here by yourself."

"N-no, not so very," the old woman answered. "I have my knitting, and there's the cat. But I do look forward to your coming home, dearie."

"I suppose so. I wish"— She paused abruptly. She must not make things try harder for the invalid, who already had to bear so much. She took a few bites hurriedly and in silence, then slipped some bread and an apple into a paper bag.

Janet was all ready, with the hood of the waterproof drawn over until it almost concealed her face, when her mother returned with the slippers and stockings rolled into a small package. This was then placed under the folds of the waterproof. Then she pushed back the hood a little in order to kiss her mother goodby.

"Now I must hurry," she said, "for time's up. Tonight I'll cook up a lot of nice things—an Indian pudding, maybe, and some brown bread. And you know, mother, Sunday's only three days off, when we'll be together most all day."

Outside the depressed feeling returned in its full intensity. The rain beat in her face, the raw wind crept through the waterproof and thin clothing, the road was covered with two inches of soft, clinging mud, and it was still too dark for her to see her way clearly.

The next house was dark. The folks had not got up yet and would not have to any more until it was light. Mary Bosworth, her best friend, lived there, and the morning before Mary had joined her in the hurry toward the mill. But Mary was a very bright girl, who had studied drawing and other things and who was quick and imaginative in sketching designs and novelties. The day before she had been promoted to the position of assistant designer for the mill, and after this she would work in the office and not have to go in until 9 o'clock.

A depression in the road caused her to stumble, splashing the mud up to her waist. Her lips quivered. She was not bright, like Mary. She could not do anything except make Indian pudding and brown bread and coffee and things like that and spin. They did say she was the best spinner in the whole room. But spinning was no good to help one up to anything else. It meant that she could just spin and spin and spin all the rest of her life.

A halting footstep and an eager "Janet, Janet," caused her to slacken her pace a little. A lame girl was limping toward her, a girl younger than herself and far more thinly clad, but the sallow, pinched face was radiant.

"Isn't it fine, Janet!" she cried gleefully as she snuggled under the waterproof, which Janet promptly opened and shared with her. "I can go along with you to the mill now, and I'm to work in the same room. I—" bell had been ringing for minutes now, and from its accelerating clangs and tumultuous jingles they knew it was racing on toward its final, "dingiety, dingiety, dingiety," the last notes of which would still be madly vibrating the air when the night watchman darted out, putting on his hat and coat as he ran. His speeding exit would be the signal for the last of the help to slip inside the yard gates, for then they would be locked. Janet and her companions were a dozen yards away when the final "dingiety" sounded and the watchman speeded out, but the gatekeeper saw them and fumbled clumsily with the fastenings until they could hurry in.

On rainy days like this the ends ran badly, with much twisting and breaking, and, though Janet was nimble fingered and the best spinner in the room, she had all she could do to keep her sides pieced up. Especially was this the case after doffing, which occurred twice a day. With the bobbins nearly full the threads ran more smoothly, but with them empty or nearly so there was greater strain upon the threads, causing them to snap frequently. The doffers pieced up the first irregular breaks, but after that the spinner had to attend to her own sides.

This doffing of the full bobbins and replacing them with empty ones upon the spindles had always been an interesting operation to Janet, and she could doff as quickly and neatly as the experts themselves.

There were always two of these doffers, each taking a side of a frame and going up one row and down another until the room was completed. They use small sleds or carriages which could be pushed along the sides by the right knee as they worked. It took about two hours to doff the whole room, and then the doffers were allowed to leave the mill or do whatever they pleased until doffing time came again.

This long leisure between work made the position of doffers a very desirable one, and there was a saying among the spinners that "once a doffer, always a doffer." The present two had held their positions for years.

Soon after the morning doffing the overseer made one of his observation tours among the frames, reprimanding by blowing upon his shrill whistle any neglect of work he found. No matter where the operator of a side might be, when she heard that whistle she hastened back to her neglected duty with apologetic and crimson face. In Janet's alley this whistle was rarely heard. When he came to her now the overseer was smiling. He usually was smiling when he found good work.

"You had a hard morning coming down, didn't you, Janet?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. It was pretty wet and muddy."

"Well, why don't you ask for the Harding tenement? They're going to move next week, and it would bring you to within a few rods of the mill. It's the same road as your house is there in the country, I think, and would make it a lot easier for you this winter. Suppose I speak to the superintendent about it?"

"I wish you would," Janet replied.

She would save her mother after and return to her earlier in the evening, and it would save that long walk during the winter. But, on the other hand, there was the apple orchard at the country place and the big garden and the flowers around the house. Her mother loved flowers, and one of her chief pleasures was to be out among them in the spring and during the summer. And they had planned no flower seeds and beds for the next year. It was really beautiful out there, while the Harding tenement was only the counterpart of fifty others without yard or even fence around it. And even if it was cold and disagreeable sometimes that mile walk would very likely be good for her to counteract the mill confinement. What had she been thinking about?

She went straight to the overseer.

"I don't believe you'd better speak to the manager about that tenement," she said. "You see, we've got an apple orchard out there and a big garden of flowers, and mother loves such things. I've been thinking it over, and I believe the walking will do me good."

"Why, I don't know but you're right," he answered. "I'd forgotten the orchard and flowers. But wait a moment," as she was turning away. "About the Harding girl's job of doffing. There's been a dozen applicants after it already, but you know more about the work than any of them, so you are the proper one to have the place. You may commence Monday. You've done your work conscientiously, and I want you to feel the advantage appreciates it. This job will give you a lot of time next spring to look after your garden and the flowers, and you can get home earlier nights. Your mother will like that."

Janet turned away, smiled back, but with something choking in her throat that prevented speech.

Forget His Own Poem.

That poets, like other folk, sometimes forget their own creations is shown by an incident related by Sir Frederick Pollock. At a dinner where Thomas Campbell and Lord Nugent were present the conversation drifted from the use of Latin words in English monosyllable verse. Someone expressed a doubt whether two consecutive lines composed of words of one syllable could be found in our language. Lord Nugent at once quoted:

By that dread name we wave the sword on high,
And swear for her to live—with her to die.

Campbell said he did not believe in the lines, and asked where they came from.

Lord Nugent said, "From your own 'Pleasures of Hope.'"

"How do you know that?" asked the poet.

"I know it all by heart," replied Nugent.

Settling the Preliminaries.

"Oh, Jennie," said the other girl, "I had such a queer dream about you last night!"

"Don't say another word if it was the unlucky kind," Jennie interrupted.

"It wasn't. I dreamed I saw you going up the great white way to the pearly gates."

"Wait! How was I dressed?"

"All in shining white."

"And did I have on my white picture hat?"

"Yes."

"Go on."

The Final Test.

"Doctor," asked the patient, whose eyes had been undergoing treatment for a period of six months or more, "do you think that my eyes are all right now?"

"Yes," said the oculist, "I think I can assure you, Mr. Pinchnickel, that your eyes are cured. But there is one more test I should like to apply. See if you can read that at a distance of twelve or fourteen inches without blinking."

Whereupon he laid his bill before him.

Croup positively stopped in 20 minutes, with Dr. Shoop's Croup Remedy. One test alone will surely prove this truth. No vomiting, no distress. A safe and pleasing syrup—25c. Sold by all dealers.

LORDS VERSUS COMMONS.

How the Houses Have Fared In Former Famous Fights.

The whole of Britain is now anxiously watching to see what the Lords will do with the budget, and, in view of the challenge of the Commons to alter or reject it, it is interesting to see how big encounters of a similar kind have fared in the past. The first great occasion of such a fight in modern times was when the Lords rejected the famous Reform Bill of 1831. That bill, as was quite easily seen, would alter for ever the superior standing the House of Lords had hitherto held in the constitution, so important would be the influx of new blood, new types of men, new methods and new ideas into the Lower House. Therefore the majority of the Lords opposed the Reform Bill tooth and nail when it came before them.

Its rejection by 199 to 158 set all England aflame. There were agitations, scenes of violence, and outbreaks galore. Lord Grey estimated that at least 9,000 crimes owed their origin to that rejection. The Lords persisted in their course, and at last the King—William IV.—himself intervened, regularly or otherwise, by requesting, in a private letter to them, that the peers who opposed the bill should withhold their votes, and let it pass, so as to allay the tumults and threatened revolution which were disturbing the peace of the land.

Though there was tremendous opposition by the House of Lords to the repeal of the Corn Laws in 1846, and though time after time it declared it would not allow the act to go through, yet some very strong speaking at last by men of the stamp of the Duke of Wellington on what had happened before, and what the Government might do again, by using the kingly prerogative, brought the peers to their senses ere it was too late, and they acquiesced in the passage of the act.

Serious was the crisis, if not so terrible as in some other cases, when the Lords refused to pass the act for Disestablishing the Irish Church in 1869. Very deep was the feeling of the House of Peers against this act, and just as determined was the majority of the Commons and the Cabinet that it should be passed. It seemed certain for a time that the Lords would give the bill its coup de grace, and agitation with violence began again to rear its head, when, suddenly, it was rumored that it was the resolve of the Government to have new peers created in sufficient numbers to swamp the objectors if the Upper House any longer refused to bow to the people's will as shown by the Commons. This fear once more swayed the peers, and the second reading was finally carried in the Lords.

Excitement ruled high, and strikingly things were seen; when the House of Lords took its courage into its hands, and fought resolutely against the Act for Abolishing Purchase in the army in 1871. This act, it is true, did not gain any great majority in the Lower House; and, of course nearly all the peers were opposed to it, as it meant so much to many young sons and relatives of the ruling classes. Under the guidance of the then Duke of Richmond, they agreed not to pass the bill, and that peer framed a clever amendment which did not bring the House absolutely to extinction, nor to firm opposition, but stated that the peers wanted to know more about, and to consider duly, the Government's other plans for the army before they decided to pass the act.

The next great fight between the Houses was on the Ballot Act of 1871, when the Lords, seeing at last that resistance was useless, finally agreed to pass the measure, if it was accepted at first as an experiment only, for a term of eight years.

The Government consented, and so the Ballot Act got through. In 1878 this act was, of course, renewed indefinitely.

Guarding the Tower.

The Tower of London is where the Crown Jewels are kept. At a cost of several thousands of pounds it has been made absolutely impregnable against all the assaults of the modern burglar.

Immediately an alarm is given all the gates and doors in the Tower are instantly closed on pressing a button. There are several of these buttons in the governor's room at Scotland Yard, and in places known only to a few responsible officials.

Even the massive gates of the Middle Tower, through which visitors have to pass, can be closed in a few seconds. At the same time all the doors in the Tower are closed, and soldiers to prepare themselves for any emergency.

A ROYAL BED.

The Magnificent One That Was Used by Queen Elizabeth.

An interesting description of the magnificence of a bedstead ordered for Queen Elizabeth's use is found in a "wardrobe warrant" dated 1581 and quoted in "Gleanings After Time." It was of walnut tree, richly carved, painted and gilded. The celure, tester and valance were of cloth of silver, figured with velvet, lined with changeable taffeta and deeply fringed with Venice gold, silver and silk.

The curtains were of costly tapestry curiously and elaborately worked, every seam and every border laid with gold and silver lace, caught up with long loops and buttons of pallion.

The headpiece was of crimson satin of Bruges, edged with a passamayne of crimson silk and decorated with six ample plumes containing seven dozen ostrich feathers of various colors profusely decorated with gold spangles.

The counterpoint was of orange colored satin quilted with cutwork of cloths of gold and silver and of satins of every imaginable tint embroidered with Venice gold, silver spangles and beautifully colored silks fringed to correspond and lined with orange sarcenet.
